Potatoes are daily becoming more plentiful and dropping in price, selling for a splendid variety at 60 cents a peck with prospects of their dropping still lower to-morrow. Beets, carrots and onions are coming in very freely selling at 5 cents a bunch and a large number of these are being bought up by the housekeepers for pickling purposes.

Fruit Market

Cherries still hang on, the last of the fruit selling at a lower price than when they were at their height. Even at $1.50 a basket, the grocers are not selling many. Black cherries are retailing at $1.75 a small basket.

Raspberries are at their height at present retailing at 25 and 27 cents a box. One reason accounting for the steady price is the fact that they are being consumed fresh at present, largely enough to hold the price. The housekeepers are mostly shying at the idea of canning them with sugar at 25 cents a pound. Plums are not on the market as yet in the city, their ripening having been greatly retarded by the weather. Pears are retailing at 60 cents a dozen, red currants at 20 cents a box, black currants at 35 cents a quart and huckleberries remaining steady at 30 cents a quart in spite of the huge drop.

Practically all the preserving is being done in very small quantities, the fruit being bought in quart lots and sugar by the pound. In this way the housekeepers claim they do not feel the high cost as much as if they preserved in larger quantities and are gradually putting up a fair supply of fruit for the winter.

AT THE ALLEN

Compounded of tears, laughs and thrills blended together in exactly the right proportions "Dollars and Sense", the feature picture at the Allen last evening starring Madge Kennedy was undoubtedly one of the most acceptable offerings of the season and was witnessed at every performance by practically capacity houses.

The story is somethig new. A little chorus girl whose company has failed, bereft of friends and funds aimlessly and hungry wanders about the streets of New York seeking an investment for the last two cents she owns in the world. Fate leads her to a bakery shop where, under pretext of investing her last cent in stale buns for a hungry dog while she is starving for the food, she becomes acquainted with the baker a dreamer and thinker whose generosity, while not building up capital, has made him the idol of the poor. Subsequently, at her own suggestion the chorus girl takes hold of the business and works it up when the baker whom she loves falls a prey to flu contracted while conducting a bread line. In desperation when business falls off the girl appealed to a stock broker, an old admirer for financial help. The broker who has realized the girls true worth gives liberally and at the time appointed for her to come to his house has a clergyman and wedding breakfast prepared for her and otherwise than claiming any return from her, has the baker lover on hand and the wedding service is performed.

Ushers in livery added a novel touch to the performance and the supporting pictures maintained the high standard of all Allen productions.

PIPE BAND'S WORK IS APPRECIATED

PIPE-MAJOR THOM RECEIVES FULL CREDIT.

The following letter was received from the Peterboro Athletic Association by the Caledonian Pipe Band for the services rendered at the Benefit Sports and it speaks for itself:—

Dear Sir,—At a meeting on the evening of the 23rd inst., the writer was instruced by the Executive of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association to communicate to your Association their deep appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered by your Pipe Band on the occasion of the Benefit Sports held in the Exhibition Grounds.

We were indeed highly honored in that we should be favored by the first appearane of your band. There is no doubt whatever that a conderable portion of the success of the evening was directly contributed to the first appearance of the Peterborough Caledonian Pipe Band.

The Association sincerely hopes that the credit already achieved by Pipe Major Thom by the performance of the Band, may be enlarged to such an extect that on all occasions of public functions of any nature the band will be in demand.

For the assistance rendered the Association, it would be considered a pleasure if this Association could reciprocate in any way.

Wishing you and your Pipe Band the best of success.

Yours very truly,
LEON FRAZER,
Secretary.

MUSIC AND SOCIAL INTERCOURSE.

The advocates of the humanities in education are stil numerous and influential, and their case is a strong one. Some of them are not, alas, awake to the value of music and the kindred arts in a cultural scheme of education, but in the main, the advocates of this system find a place if not one of first importance for music, at least as an accomplishment. Now one of the purposes of an accomplishment is to make its possessor socially more agreable, to smooth the pathway for social intercourse, and to serve in many cases as a point of contact between people who might otherwise find nothing in common. It might sem somewhat absurd for a musician to urge this as an argument in favor of music in the education of the common man, yet we know what an important part social intercourse plays in all human activities—how a "good mixer," as we call him, has valuable assets quite apart and distinct from his technical knowledge or his professional skill; how much of business, politics, even government, depends upon the personnel equation. How can it be possible that an element so important in the getting on of a man should receive so little attention as it does in our educational scheme? Music is by common consent an "open sesame." We all know the familiar story of the millionaire who as a young man is reputed to have won his way to the heart of his employer and later on to preferment through his singing and playing of folk songs. Even from a purely mercenary point of view, the ability to sing and play and the acquaintance with at least familiar musical literature are of undoubted value at every man and women in this important direction.

GRAM OF RADIUM WORTH $120,000 FOR CANCER CURES.

WASHINGTON.— One gram of radium valued at $120,000, but sealed in a tiny lead tube for vest pocket carriage, was delivered yesterday by the United States Bureau of Standards to Arthur Roeder, a representative of the New York State Institute for Malignant Diseases.

Tested by the bureau, which certified to its exact weight, it is said to represent the largest single amount ever brought to Washington for certification. It will be used for cancer research at the State's Institute, and is part of a total quantity of 2 1-4 grams secured for the purpose.

The gram of medium, according to Mr. Roeder, constituted the total amount extracted from 125 tons of ore, which was reduced by the Radio Chemical Corporation at Orange, N.J.

MUST SOON PAY ROADS HUGE SUM

U. S. Gov't Under Agreement to ... $490,000,000 to Meet Deficits.

WASHINGTON. — The Government, under its agreement with the roads, soon will be called to pay them at least $490,000,000 to meet deficits incurred during March, April, May, June, July and August. Director Parmelee of the Bureau of Railway Economics, estimated to-day.

Parmelee characterized this statement as "very conservative."

"It probably will be more than $500,000,000," he said. Parmelee figured it this way. $165,000,000— known deficit covering March and April; $125,000,000—estimated net operating degcit for May, June, July and August $200,000,000— wage increase awarded 2,000,000 rail workers.

This is nearly twice the biggest deficit incurred in any 12 months of Government operation, Parmelee pointed out.

STRAW VOTE ON BRIDGE BY-LAW AN INCIDENT OF MASONIC OUTING

RESULT WAS 74 TO 53 IN FAVOUR OF THE MUCH DISCUSSED MEASURE—ANNUAL EXCURSION TO IDYL WYLD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON PROVED AS ENJOYABLE AS EVER—COSTLY PRIZES FOR THE RACES WERE BOUGHT AT WOOLWORTHS—U.F.O. BRETHREN WON BALL GAME.

SUPPER A REAL TREAT

(BY F. H. DOBBIN)

There are two occasions, now well recognised as standardised when men lay aside business and hike back along the path reverting to the days of boyish and young man activity. One is the Masonic annual, the other the nomination of a U. F. O. candidate. Both afford the opportunity for mental, physical, and jocular activity. Only the Masonic brethren put it over the U. F. O. in that the fraternal gathering is each year and the other semi-occasionally.

Yesterday's trip down the river brought out the largest excursion that the lodges have had as yet. Thursday afternoon off makes for a business holday. Those away were of the members whose duties and occupations could not be interfered with. And all these, being responsible men, handle responsible things. They were remembered when the provender was given out, for they missed something that was mighty acceptable. Hooper's annual catering never shone to such gastronomical profusion, and was served with elegance and precision.

The boat, the Stoney Lake, made good time considering the weighty cargo. Having finished perusal of the daily papers something had to be done to keep up the excitement. Not a dull moment was allowed. So a ballot was called for, just a trial heat, to find out how the boatload stood on the matter of the Hunter Street Bridge By-law. Returning officers were appointed, ballots prepared, marked, spoiled, and audited. The results showed 74 for the by-law and 53 against it. How will this compare with the vote to-day? Nearly all who marked ballots were property owners.

At Idylwyld four games of baseball were at once perpetrated. The teams were designated as the U. F. O., Captain Harry Webber, "Commercial Travellers," Capt. Stan Cooper, the "Board of Trade Bohunks," Capt. L. Frazer, and the "Vermonters," Capt. Sam Holden. The Vermonters were affiliated with and out of the Vermont Marble Co. Hence the name. This team proved to be as hard as the rocks they work on. Most of their runs garnered were counted on lost balls, balls slammed into the shrubbery, and to the lake shore.

Fitting persons were selected for the dangerous positions of umpire. Chief Thompson faced injury and a prolonged sentence while the two games prevailed. W. A. Logan took his chance during two other games. The Field expressed opinions. Men were counted out on the slightest probability. In fact, forced out by public opinion. It was surprising the number of men who seemed to have acquired dexterity in handling the ball, and in swiping the same all around the lot. Such stars as Fraser of the Bank of Nova Scotia, McPherson, of the Board of Health, Weber of the drug store, Dobbin of the Waterworks, and Rogers of the Canoe Co. were donig their best, which was some. It is always the innocent bystander who gets it in the neck. One spectator was handed a beautiful black eye from a ball batted bang into his face. He was taken to the nearest outhouse for repairs. The programme of events shows the winners.

"Al Fresco Buffet."

Supper was served out through a window. Each suppliant came up, waited his turn, was plated and coffeed and retired to brace his back against the nearest tree and consume. Listen to the menu:

Sliced ham (real ham), baked beans, some sort of a salad, pickles, thin bread and butter, berry pie trimmed with ice-cream. Whew! All was appreciated. To go with the ice-cream a box of doughnuts was sent out, under the presidency of Frazer of the Board of Trade. He was very polite about it. "Please take one!" was his invitation. This did not suit the hungry brethren, and presently Frazer was chased all over the island, with the box in one hand and his life in the other, until corralled and the box emptied. It was fun to see twenty staid men running for a doughnut each. We regret to chronicle the fact that there were numerous thefts perpetrated from those who incautiously left pie on the sward. Bill Richardson cleaned up his plate with his doughnut stuck on his finger like a gigantic wedding ring. Safety First is the canoe builder's motto.

In Capable Hands.

The prize-list speaks for itself. In fact, it needs no other assistance. Chris Graham, as usual, was Master of Athletic Ceremonies. Chris pervade the scene on such occasion, when Cameron of the Telephone Co. isn't about. Then it is hard to hold Cameron. He's very impulsive, is Cameron. Let alone Walter Stocker, without whom no solemn ceremony can go forward. If it wasn't for the spectators, Chris would get along nicely. The Field interferes. And has too much to say, and says it very rudely. Things were said that may cause these people regretful moments in after life, and on reflection. But the same is a part of the game. And the game is outlined in the results.

Prizes Cost $1.65.

The committee cannot be accused of reckless extravagance. It had expended as much as $1.65 in buying presents at Woolworths'. This sum produced a variety of things that were just souvenirs. When opened the basket looked like as if Santa Claus had come aboard. The line of goods displayed had been added to by a gift of cigarettes and package of tobacco from the International Tobacco Co., which was appreciated, and allowed the committee to put on airs of being liberal.

Boxing, blindfolded.—Won by Gordon Langley. Prize—a drum. Each contestant was entwined by a rope, blindfolded, and let 'er go. Bangs were volunteered by the audience just to keep things moving.

Fifty yards race, open handicap. Any amount of entries—Cameron and R. B. Rogers, on account of political disabilities, were given 35 yards of a start, and won with surprising celerity. Prizes—to Rogers an airplane, being a rising man. Cameron got a tin pail. An emblem of capacity.

Fifty yards race—Married men over fifty and under ninety years. Seven entries. (It is understood that ages were misstated.) Prizes—J. W. Fraser, a horn; Stocker, a jumping-jack. (It is understood that the winners swapped prizes, Walter looking for a horn.)

Bald-headed Men's Race. Twenty-seven entries. Degrees of baldness not to count. Winners—Claude Rogers, another airplane; Campbell, of the hardware company, a rocking horse.

Three-legged Race. Twelve entries in pairs. This race was a very disorderly proceeding. From the mixed heap at the winning post the following were selected as winners—F. C. Weber and Dr. Wood, being reasonably first; Dr. McPherson and D. Wood, second. Prizes to all in cigarettes.

Centipede Race. Three entries. Royal Arthur, Peterborough, and Corinthian Lodges, in teams of twelve. Each team straddled a long pole, grasped the pole with hands, and trotted and fell off. As usual, Peterborough Lodge team won. Prize—Box of cigars, distributed with some impartiality.

Shoe Race. Sixteen entries. Winners and prizes—Ross Dobbin, a motor truck; Frank Bradburn, Resolute, Jr. This race should be seen to be depreciated. The shoes were frightfully mixed. Likewise the ensuing remarks.

U. F. O. Team Won.

The winners of the baseball concussion was the team of the "U.F.O.", Capt. Harry Webber. For a prize, R. B. Rogers was penalised to entertain the team at the approaching Agricultural Picnic to be held here next month. Mr. Rogers is president, and it was felt that he should appreciate the seriousness of his once. The team awaits formal invitation.

For services in the field, Chief Thompson, a special prize, was awarded a handsome top. It was felt that intrepidity and fearlessness should be fittingly recognised. The top can be viewed at the Chief's office.

The voyage home brought out the singers of the lodges in full force. Having expert accompanists in Bros. Barrie, and Devey, Jr., the crowd made the welkin ring, supposing that there is a welkin agout the river. Anyway it was musical and harmonious and satisfactory. Those who did not join in the music sat apart and contemplated Friday's vote on the Bridge By-law. With regard to which there was some gloom.

ECONOMIC BLOCKADES TO MAINTAIN PEACE

ARTHUR BALFOUR SAYS IT WOULD TEND TO PREVENT WAR.

SAN SEBASTIAN Spain, July 30. —"We mus have an economic blockade", declared Arthur J. Balfour, British representative on he League of Nations Counil, in an interview regarding the program of the council which opened its eighth meeting here to-day. He considered the meeting important because the blockade in question was comprised in its agenda. If an economic blockade was applied to a nation which defied the League Mr. Balfour said, he could not believe that the nation would be able to resist for long.

"No nation would destroy itself in these civilized times by inviting such penalty", he added. "It is not likely it will often be used since it is not probable the league will be often defied."

15 POUND LUNGE.

Caught by Mrs. George Hutchinson at Chemong.

Mrs. George Hutchinson, an elderly lady who is spending the summer at Chemong, landed a 15-pound lunge at Chemong Lake recently, the first time she had been out on the lake this year. She made the catch only a few minutes after dropping the spoon into the water.

EFFICIENCY IN THE HOME

Efficiency in the household—so much has been said and written in the subject that it would seem as if every Canadian housewife should be the very simon pure or proficiency in household management, which is very far from the case yet. In spite of cooking classes in the public schools, in spite of night schools in domestic science, in spite of endless literature on the subject the Canadian housewife's management is unbusinesslike, extravagant and wasteful.

The average woman does not appreciate the value of business methods in the kitchen. But putting house keeping on a business basis is a matter of morals as well as of economics. The spending of money entails a moral obligation to its source of supply in business, why nat in housekeeping? We have lost the ene of proportion in our attitude toward housekeping because it is universal and therefore commonplace But if we pause to consider that the health of humanity, the development of future generations and the happiness of millions of homes depends uo on the intelligence with which this question is met and solved, it gains its true proportion in the human perspective.

Housekeeping marries grave responsibilities. Upon it rests the health and therefore the happiness of a whole family. Yet young girls drift into the position of head of a household with no special training, no system, and only a vague idea that "somehow they will manage." They do manage somehow, any old how, to waste everything. Morally it is not right that women should waste money in their business. The average husband gives a stated part of his income to his wife to manage and run the household, and perhaps he makes no inquiry ito the expenditure, and that, for his peace of mind may be just as well. But in too, too many cases he would be amazed if he knew how many dollars were literally flung away, because his wife did not look upon the spending of money as a serious moral obligation.

It should be a part of the education of our girls that they should be made to realize that running a household feeding a husband and caring for him so that he may do his work well, is not only a happy privilege but a business obligation. When she does reach this realization, housekeeping will be an interesting business rather than monotonous drudgery.

Every woman should have a definit allowance from her husband and the expenditure of that allowance should be accounted for. One reason why housekeeping arouses so little enthusiasm in many women is that it offers so litle, if any, reward for efficiency. Every man is working with some clearly understood aim in view, wealth, fame, power.

Woman's work in the household is a labor of love for the comfort and happiness of her family. But whatever she does is apt to be taken for granted. Every woman is expected to be a capable housekeener as a matter of course, and an unusual amount of efficiency is unlikely to be recognized by those about her.

Would men enter into their profession or business with the same keen zest if they met with a like reward.

So this question of a definite allowance becomes a vital question with the thousands of women who are entirely dependent upon their husbands for support. They should have a definite allowance and whatever they can save by intelligent and careful management, should be their reward for efficiency. The torture a sensitive woman must feel at having to appear before her husband as at a bar of justice, and account for every cent, should be eliminated.

But a woman should have a business method of running her household, by which they can go to their husbands and present a clear, business statement of the household accounts and be given the credit and appreciation which every man would be only too happy to bestow.

We hope the time will come when every girl must present as her credentials a certificate in household management before she shall be allower to marry.

THE BEWILDERED GUEST.

I was not asked if I should like to come,
I have not seen my host here since I come,
Or had a word of welcome in his name.
Some say that we shall never see him, and some
That we shall see him elsewhere, and then I know
Why we are bid. How long I am to stay
I have not the least notion. None they say,
Was ever told when he should come or go,
But every now and then there bursts upon
The song and mirth a lamentable noise,
A sound of shrieks and sobs, that strikes our joys
Dumb in our breasts; and then, some one is gone.
They say we meet him. None knows where or when,
We know we shall not meet him here again.

—William Dean Howells.

DEVELOPING PERSONALITY

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery—at least that is what the proverb says.

Indiscriminate imitation might possibly flatter some people but it might do a great deal more harm than good especially as far as the flatterer is concerned. For instance, in regard to music you probably have a favorite singer ar pianist or violinist among the stars and you may think that one particular star is almost beyond comparison with any other mortal and you just love to hear him or her as the case may be in real life when possible, and on a sound reproducing instrument at other times. This is not far from the truth, is it?

Of course every arist to be successful must have some personality to begin with and must cultivate and develop that. But it sometimes happens that mannerisms are cultivated and grow up along with the personality which really should have been dug up by the roots and thrown on the weed pile.

Nothing is so easy to cultivate as a weed, as you have probably discovered in the garden, and nothing is so conspicuous when it is where it should not be.

IN THE NIGHT.

Long hours I wake, and all the [illegible] sleep—
But I must sleep when they are awake!
How strange that I shall thus be [illegible] wake!
While Springs, and Summers [illegible] to turn awake,
And Autumn's riot wine to stir the blood—
The blood of them that [illegible] while yet I sleep—
Nor feel the fall of myriad [illegible] leaves,
Nor see the lone, gray [illegible] all the hills,
Nor sense the tang of frost [illegible] morn,
As Winter marshals all his [illegible] of ice
And frost and snow, to [illegible]
The little sleeping things that wake with Spring—
That wake with Spring, while yet I stay asleep!

WHOLE VILLAGE AS POLICE.

Wappingers Falls Plans to Deal with Speeding Motorists That Way.

POUGHKEEPSIE.—Plans are under way by the authorities in Wappingers Falls, south of here, to swear in all the residents of the village as special policemen unless violations of the highway traffic laws by motorists passing through are stopped. Already a number of the residents are acting as special police, two and three to a block.

An increase from $10 to $20 in the fines to be imposed on offenders is also announced. Jail terms are likewise contemplated. Despite warning the use of open cut-outs passing on the wrong side of "policemen" are complained of the village people.

SPORTING NEWS, VIEWS, AND GOSSIP

LAST SCHEDULED LEAGUE BALL GAME HERE SATURDAY

To-morrow's game between the Lindsay Greybirds and the Petes, the last home game of the Central League schedule, will commence at 3 o'clock with Umpires Dick Butler of Lindsay and Alex. Kay of Peterborough in charge. The Peterborough crew have to win the game to keep their position at the head of the Central League race and Lindsay, old rivals as they are, will do their best to spill the beans and knock the Solomon crew out of the race. They are counting upon the southpaw pitching of Lefty McElroy to turn the trick for them, knowing that the Petes are not altogether in love with left-handed twirling. Manager Solomon is taking no chances in regard to the game and will have his full array of talent ready for the fray. The following players are expected to be on hand at 2 o'clock sharp: Swanston, Ross, L. Rose, Harrison, Kirn, R. Rose, Holyman, Cherrett, Murray, McCarney, Lowe, Adams, Jackson, Shaughnessy, Corrin.

CALEDONIANS VS. CANADIAN WOOLLENS ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON—OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST.

On Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. at Nicholls Oval the Caledonians will be the guests of the Canadian Woollens in a Cup Tie Game. Mr. Coombs will act as official referee.

On Tuesday evening last, the C.G.E. Executive fixed up their playing grounds to proper dimensions under the careful direction of Mr. Mortimer who carried every kind of appliances to measure from a mile to a fraction of an inch. He even had a micrometer in his pocket. Mr. Ridyard, Senior, made a creditable debut in football circles by handling the spade to fit the goal posts.

All football enthusiasts will be surprised to hear that the Association have been promised a Football Shield for the incoming league. Two prominent gentlemen are contemplating presenting a challenge cup to the Association at next meeting, also another cup is promised for charity games. No less than 3 cups and 4 football shields.

The C.G.E. team received no official notification from the Machine Gunners that they would forfeit the game, ad taking no chances the Electric boys lined up their team and scored a goal for Referee McKinley to award them the Cup Tie.

In the C.G.E. team last evening Williamson occupied the left-half position instead of inside left. This player was suspended sine die by the Association a few months ago.

It is expected that the badges awarded by the Association to the winners and runners-up in the City Football League will be distributed next week.

The next meeting of the Peterboro Football Association will be held in G. W. V. A. Rooms on Tuesday evening, August 3rd., at 8 p.m. prompt. On that date a very prominent gentleman will present a handsome challenge cup to the Football Executive to be competed for annually.

No player that has been suspended sine die by any Football Association, whether affiliated or not, cannot return to the field of play without the whole executive of any past, present of future association rescinding the previous decision of sine die. The proper procedure of any player is to appear personally before the football council and make his request in a proper manner. If any player sends a letter of apology to the association and plays in any game without receiving the written sanction of the Football Association, he places the whole team and Executive in a very serious predicament. In a case like this no individual can act upon his own opinion or authority.

Through the Gunners forfeiting the game to the C.G.E. last evening they meet the winners of the Vets vs Comrades on Saturday August 7th on the winner's grounds. The referee will be chosen by the Secretary.

The Comrades Football Team will practice to-night at the west end pitch on the Exhibition Grounds at 6.30 prompt.

The United States Football team received a great reception at Stockholm, Sweden, yesterday, after travelling through Belgium and Germany They will play a series of games throughout Sweden.

Caledonian Football Players are requested to report no later than 3.30 Saturday afternoon. The team will be picked from Fenner, J. Willshaw, R. Willshaw, McFadden, Frost McNeat, McMillian, Service, J. Shaw, M. Shaw, Terriss, Hannah, McDowall, James Shaw.

The Toronto Caledonians defeated the fast Willys-Overland in the semi-final for the Robertson Cup by 2 goals to 1. The Caleys are a third division team and the Willys played in Ontario Cup Finals a few weeks ago.

The Canadian Woollens Team for To-morrow's game will be S. Calladine, goal; J. Cridland and J. Hillman, backs; J. Montgomery, J. Pickford and T. Hodson half-gacks; C. Thorpe, H. Jones, J. Chambers, E. Bell and D. Jones, forwards. Reserves—A. Roberts and J. Jackson.

GENERAL HUGHES LAUNCHED OSHAWA'S G.W.V.A. DRIVE.

Campaign to Rose $50,000.00 for Memorial Hall.

OSHAWA, July 29—The local branch of the G.W.V.A. launched their two weks' drive for $50,000.00 at a banquet held in Welch's Parlours last night. The money will be used for the erection of a fine memorial hall on Simcoe Street.

A splendid spread was provided, and the guests included the committee and many of Oshawa's leading citizens, who are lining up enthusiastically in the big financial drive.

There were many ladies present. Mr. F. W. Cowan presided, and a splendid programme was provided. The musical portion was supplied by Mrs. Fry and Messrs. Maitland and McKellar.

The speech of the evening was made by General Sir Sam Hughes. He was given an immense ovation, the guests standing and cheering him for several minutes.

Stirring addresses were made by Rev. Mr. de Pensier, Col. O'Flynn, President of the G.W.V.A., and others.

BABE RUTH FEARS HE WILL HURT THE PITCHER

Babe Ruth, the $125,000 baseball phenomenon and king of home-hitters, is obsessed with one big, overshadowing fear. He is afraid that in some game one of his terrific wallops will drive the ball back at the pitcher with such velocity that the latter can't duck, and will sustain a permanent if not a fatal injury. Says Frank F. McNeil in the New York Evening Sun:

When the Yankees were in Detroit in the second game of their series with the Tigers, Babe crashed a line drive through the centre of the diamond and almost knocked Howard Ehmke's head off. Ruth was frightened stiff, according to his own statement, when he saw that ball whizzing back on a line. He yelled a hoarse warning at Ehmke, and the Tiger moundsman just managed to get his head out of the way as the hurtling sphere projected by all the dynamic power in Ruth's giant frame bounded off his gloved hand, thrown up in instinctive motion. Eddie Collins almost suffered a fractured hand stopping one of Bambino's grounders, and other infielders have declined the issue with some of his powerful smashes.

Babe told McNeill that hitting is better this year than formerly because of the new rules. "I know some pitchers who used the old emery and the shiner and all the rest and they were bear-cats," he said. "Now they have to get by on their natural ability and they don't rate so high." The ball-player also styled as "bunk" the idea that the "ball is livlier."

WEDDING AT ALLEN THEATRE PAVES WAY FOR BOLD BENEDICT

To disprove the theory advanced in Marshal Neilan's most recent film production, "Don't Ever Marry," the Allen Theatre is offering to furnish a marriage license, a gold wedding ring and a beautiful present to say nothing of a minister to perform the ceremony, to any couple who are willing to be married on the stage of the Allen Theatre Thursday evening, Aug. 5th.

This offer is genuine and is made in good faith by the management of the Allen Theatre, who do not agree with Marshall Neilan when he advises young people to forego the bonds of matrimony.

In his so-called "Mirthquake of Laughter," Neilan sets forth several reasons why modern young folks should stay away from the altar and orange blossoms. Of course, his production is made in a comedy vein, but at the same time there is what is purported to be sound advice in the pictorial expose of proposed matrimony.

The management of the Allen Theatre has purchased a handsome wedding ring and a beautiful present which will be presented to the couple who will join hands in marriage in front of the audience at the theatre Thursday night at 8 p.m. The affair will be conducted in a simple but effective manner, and will be as binding as any such ceremony can be.

Further, the Allen Theatre will present a season pass to the lucky benedict, if he will, after six months of married life, present himself at the theatre and state that his marriage has been a complete success. This pass will be good for the groom and wife and will be exchanged for a season family pass, if so desired, at the end of one year's time.

"Don't Ever Marry" will be the principal attraction at the Allen Theatre for 2 days, Aug. 4-5. This is purported to be the greatest comedy-drama of the year.

"DESERT LOVE" IS LATEST MIX PICTURE

An intense conflict between law and a gang of rustlers —a conflict that persists for two generations — is said to be the main strand of the story in "Desert Love," featuring the intrepid Tom Mix. The picture is a Fox production and will be shown at the Allen Theatre to-day and to-morrow.

Tom Mix stands at the head of the screen's thrillers. In a series of pictures of which "Desert Love" is the latest, he has demonstrated to motion picture fans and lovers of red-blooded adventure a dauntlessness that has made his name syonymous with daredevil." Stunts are his daily portion and he accepts them with a relish that is genuine.

In the cast of "Desert Love" are such splendid players as Francelia Billington, Eva Novak, Lester Cuneo, Charles K. French and Jack Curtis. The direction is by Jacques Jaccard.

LAKEFIELD WON CHAMPIONSHIP, DEFEATING DOURO BY 18-3 SCORE

AS WINNERS OF THE EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE THEY QUALIFY TO MEET LINDSAY'S WINNERS FOR INTERMEDIATE O.B.A.A. HONOURS.

PLAYED ON STUBBLE FIELD

By defeating Douro at home yesterday evening by the score of 18 to 3, Lakefield won the championship of the East Peterborough Ball League, and earned the right to enter the race in the Intermediat series of the O.B.A.A. The champions will meet the winner of the Lindsay Town League in the first game for intermediate honors.

The East Peterborough circuit does not close till Thursday, August 5th, but Lakefield have played all their scheduled games, having won seven and lost one. Norwood have lost two and Keene three, so that the best these two teams can do is fight it out for second place.

Lakefield won the game yesterday by mauling Walter Cranley's offerings hard and consistently making the contest look safe in the fifth by scoring eight runs. Fitzgerald opened this frame by clouting out a double. Everybody made a trip to the plate, and when Fitzgerald came up the second time, he smashed out a triple, driving in two runs. The Lakefield first sacker repeated with another three-base biff in the seventh, scoring another brace of runs. Nelson had a perfect day with the willow, getting five singles in as many times at bat.

Reeve Coughlin Versatile.

The game was played on a field, recently relieved of a dandy crop of hay, and porcupine quills had nothing on the sensations that fell to the lot of those base runners who risked slides to the bags. Conditions were also much against sharp infielding, but Martin Coughlin, the Douro pilot, surprised players and spectators alike with his playing at short-stop. Grounders and bounders through the stubble had no terrors for Martin. He picked up some hard ones, and although playing deep, threw out the runners at first base, with swift and accurate throws. O'Brien in right field for Douro made a great catch on Hull's fly in the third, making the third out and stopping two runners. Condon in middle field grabbed a hard fly from Manning.

Dick Lush twirled steady ball, holding the Douro lads to six singles and striking out eleven. He was given good support by Gordon Adams, and his team-mates made it easy for him by their great batting. Sabatino was used as second base and he played well. Nelson had a busy time at third, and grabbed two difficult foul flies.

Visitors Score First.

Lakefield got a run in the first on Hull's hit, a stolen base and Erskine's single. Sabatino fanned, Adams grounded and Manning fanned.

Lush threw out Coughlin. Welsh was safe at first after fanning. Adams dropped the third strike and on the throw, Fitzgerald did not touch the bag. Welsh stole, advanced on Manning's error and scored on a wild pitch. Condon fanned and Cranley lied to Fitzgerald.

In the second, Foley dropped the ball after a perfect peg from Coughlin off Fitzgerald's grounder. He stole and Nelson scored him with a single. Fairburn fanned and Lush walked. Hull lined to Foley, Nelson scoring. Three singles scored three more runners, Adams making the third out at third on a peg from Welsh.

Douro got three on in their half of the second but failed to score. Sullivan was passed, O'Brien singled, Foley fouled to Nelson and Dench was safe when Fairburn dropped his fly after a run. Coughlin fanned and Welsh went out at first.

Manning's double and Nelson's single gave Lakefield a run in the third, but Douro was blanked.

Lakefield failed to score in the fourth and Douro met the same fate, going out in a row.

Then came the fifth when Lakefield opened up on Cranley and scored eight runs, Douro getting two of them back in their half on two singles, a hit by pitcher and a wild pitch.

Double Play by Douro.

Lakefield halted in the sixth when Cranley and Sullivan pulled off a double play, the former spearing a drive from Erskine and nipping Lush off second.

Lush retired Douro on strikeouts in their half, with a walk and a single sandwiched in.

Singles by Adams and Manning, Fitzgerald's triple, hits by Nelson and Fairburn and a wild peg to first, gave Lakefield three in the seventh. Douro got two on, F. O'Brien getting to third, but no runs came in. Sabatino took Cranley's fly and Lush fanned Sullivan and O'Brien.

The box score:—

Lakefield—	AB	R	H	O	A	E
Hull, rf	6	1	3	0	0	0

BOHUNKS LOST TO PORT HOPE CENTRALS

The Port Hope Central Ontario team defeated the Peterboro Bohunks by 8 to 3 in a five inning fixture in the lakeshore town last night. The Peterbor boys motored down but met with an accident that delayed them. It was 6.30 when the game was called.

At the end of the first Port Hope had the lead with one run. In the second Peerboro tied. In the fourth Peterboro went to pieces and Port Hope crossed the plate six times. Al. Doughty was in great form but had no support. White on first was kept busy with wild throws. Bergoine did some great work behind the bat. Frick was Peterboro's heaviest slugger getting a home run. Bergoine came next with a double.

The line ups were —Peterboro—Bergoine, c, Doughty, p, White, 1st base, Lacheur, 2nd base, Herbison, 3rd base, Frick ss, Webber, lf., Meredith, cf, McGee, rf.; —Port Hope—Ware, c, Bird, p, McElroy, 1st base, Hills, 2nd base, Thompson, 3rd base, Hutching, s.s., Cuft, lf., Delyea, c.f., Hagerman, rf.

Port Hope will play the return game on Monday next.

CANADIAN TRADE MAKING RECORDS

Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, July 30. — During the twelve months ending June 30, imports into Canada showed a remarkable increase as compared with the imports in the twelve months previous.

The increase was marked in both the dutiable and the free goods.

There is evidence also of a record in Canadian exports following in the fall due to the cessation of the munition shipment.

NEW STUDEBAKER SHOW ROOM ON CHARLOTTE ST.

To-day marks the opening of a new automobile sales room and accessary house in the midst of what is becoming known as motor row.

The new business is located at 192 Charlotte street and presents a very creditable appearance. It is being conducted by the firm of Eastwood & Stock, a partnership having been formed by Mr. W. P. Eastwood and Mr. A. P. Stock.

Mr. Eastwood has been with the Studebaker business for the past eight or nine months, a member of the firm of Fitzgerald & Eastwood.

Mr. Stock, who has been a member and vice-president of the firm of Wm. Stock & Sons, has severed his active connections with this firm and will in future devote all his time to the selling of Studebaker cars.

Mr. Easwood and Mr. Stock are both long and favourably known residents of this city and should meet with great success in their new venture. Both young men served for some time overseas in the Royal Air Force as pilots and flight commanders, an experience which well fits them to recognize and appreciate an excellent engine. They claim a very superior performance for the Studebaker motor and state that "you can't pick a hole in the machine."

In the new show-rooms a complete line of tires and accessories will be carrie and customers are assured of prompt attention at all times. To quote Mr. Stock: "If we haven't got it, we'll get it."

The show-room has been well lighted and furnished and ladies will be able to view the stock without soiling clothes that contracted from oil or grease as there will be no repairs carried out on the premises.

Service will be taken care of at other premises under the personal supervision of Messrs. Eastwood & Stock.

There is now every prospect of good deliveries on the Studebaker, increased production being better able to take care of the great demand there has been for the car this year.

The new firm is ready to demonstrate their cars at any time. They claim as outstanding features of the Studebaker great power and flexibility, fine riding qualities and extra ease and comfort in driving, together with durability, rich lines and fine equipment.

SHOOTING FOLLOWED REMOVAL OF PIANO

DRAYMAN IS PROBABLY FATALLY WOUNDED BY IRATE CHESLEY MAN.

CHESLEY, July 29.—Bert Cavill, a drayman, was probably fatally shot by Joslin Green, an employe of the bedstead factory here, about nine o'clock this morning. Four shots were fired, two of which took effect, one entering the mouth, carrying away a couple of teeth and lodging in the back of the neck, the other piercing the lungs and lodging in the spinal column. The affray resulted from a dispute over the removal of a piano, on which there was a lien, from Green's house. Latest reports state that there is no hope for the victim's recovery. Green has been committed to the Walkerton Jail on a charge of shooting with intent.

On Wednesday night, acting under the instructions of the holders of the lien, Cavill removed a piano from Green's house, and left two planks on the latter's lawn. He returned this morning for the planks and was met by Green, who wanted to know when he had bought the house. An argument ensued, in which Green, who is a large man, threatened to attack Cavill, who is of very slight build. Cavill threatened to have Green arrested, whereupon the latter whipped out a revolver from his hip pocket and fired four shots in rapid succession. Two were misses, but the others found their mark.

Dr. H. A. Sinclair was called to Chesley to operate, but little hope is held out for Cavill's recovery. Green was taken before Magistrate Bell, who committed him to Walkerton Jail. When arrested, Green stated that the shots had been fired in self-defence.

WEST OPTIMISTIC.
Minister of Agriculture Found Excellent Crop Prospects.
Canadian Press.
OTTAWA, July 30. — Back from his extended trip west where he formally opened half a dozen provincial live stock and agricultural fairs, Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, stated to-day that the present prospects were for an excellent crop despite reports from some sources to the contrary.
What most impressed him however was the wonderful spirit of optimism especially in the districts which have had no crop for several seasons.

NEW TITLES SYSTEM.
Torrens Plan Would Save Fees of Legal Search.
LONDON, Ont., July 28.—E. A. Pocock, a member of the Provincial Commission investigating the administration of justice in Ontario, has announced that the Torrens system of land titles will be recommended. To avoid the cost of $100 for furnishing a clear title to every land owner it is proposed to legislate for the adoption of the system at the end of ten years. It will give the owner a clear title without the expense of a lawyer's search.

OBITUARY

JAS. W. LATIMER
James Wellington Latimer was born on August 28th, 1857, and died at his home on lot 4, con. 6, of the township of South Monaghan on July 23rd, 1920. He was a hard-working, honest, faithful farmer who by his candid and kindly manner won many friends who cherish the memory of his life. On April 7th, 1895 he was united in marriage to M. Matilda Cooney, who with their only daughter, Myrtle V. W., fourteen years of age, is left to mourn his early departure. For the last few years there had been evidence of physical weakness, occasioned by stomach trouble and anaemia, but during the last six weeks, he was bedfast and finally entered into rest on Friday last. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., of Fraserville, on Sunday afternoon, July 25th, and after the impressive service at the house, the body was laid to rest in the Fraserville cemetery. The pall-bearers were Joseph Madill, George Moncrief, John A. Jones, Matthew Clarke, Harry Clarke and G. B. Cooney.
In addition to the wife and daughter there are left two brothers, Richard C. at home, and William A., in Minnesota, and one sister, Mrs. John A. Jones of Fenelon Falls.

A. M. WIGMORE.
After an illness of between five and six weeks, Mr. Abel Myers Wigmore passed away yesterday at his home, Peter Street, Orillia. Deceased was a son of the late Captain Robert Wigmore, of Peterborough. He was born at Norwood, Ontario, and completed his seventy-fifth year on the 10th of May. He had been a respected resident of Orillia for the past twenty years, during which time he was a trusted employee of the Tudhope Carriage Co. In 1881, he married Miss Ellen Hutchinson, of Hastings, who survives him, with one son, Thomas Wigmore of Toronto, and two daughters, Miss Ethel Wigmore of Hamilton and Miss Hazel Wigmore at home. He also leaves three brothers, two of whom reside at Calgary and one at Dummer. He was a lifelong Conservative, and a member of the Anglican Church. The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon, and will be under the auspices of the Orange Order, of which he was a member.—Orillia Packet.

MORNING'S VOTE ON BY-LAW WAS LIGHT

NOON HOUR BROUGHT A RUSH OF BALLOTS.

In the first two and a half hours of polling this morning at the six central polling stations, there were only 24 votes cast, an average of four votes a station. Supposing that the more outlying stations registered the same average the total vote cast before 11.30 o'clockat the 22 polling places would be 88.
At one central station only one vote was cast this morning, while the record was 7 votes.
Noon brought a comparatively large increase in votes, some stations running over 30. The record percentage increase at noon was at Mitchell's store on Hunter street, where the increase was 700 per cent, the morning vote being 1 and the noon vote 7.

WEDDING BELLS

DAVIS—PARKER.
At the Methodist parsonage, Millbrook, on Wednesday, July 28, 1920, Miss Gladys Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Parker, to Mr. Edward Davis, all of Cavan. Rev. S. T. Tucker officiated. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and a large number of friends were present. After the wedding dinner was served a very enjoyable evening was spent. The young couple left for their new home amid a shower of confetti and the good wishes of their many friends.

BANKERS' TEAM WIN
In Their First Game They Defeat Quaker Oats Office.
The recently organized Bankers' team opened their ball season last night by defeating the Quaker Oats office team 5 to 4. The money handlers are filled with elation at the great start and the material for a winning team they have discovered behind the desks. Next Tuesday the two teams will clash again and with a few practises between now and then both teams should be out in better form than last night. W. Brooks umpired the game satisfactorily.
The two teams lined up as follows:
Bankers—Thirnbeck, p; Soden, c; Brownscombe, 1b; Ritchie, 2b; Thompson, 3b; McWilliams, ss; Young, rf; Harkness, cf; MacIntosh, lf; Cross, cf.
Quaker Oats—Sheehan, p; G. Butcher, c.

No News from Polish Delegates to Armistice Conference

No Word for Anxious World From Armistice Emissaries

WARSAW BELIEVES THE SOVIET'S TERMS WILL BE TOO HARSH TO ACCEPT—BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE PRESSING FOR INFORMATION.

HOT FIGHTING CONTINUES

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 2. ... Up to an early hour this afternoon nothing had arrived in official British or Polish circles here to indciate definitely whether the Russian and Polish armistice emissaries had actually come into contact.

The British Foreign Office is pressing all its representatives in that part of the world for anv scrap of news as to what is going on but so far without success.

DOUBTFUL OF AGREEMENT.

WARSAW, Aug. 2. — Doubt was expressed to-day in diplomatic circles here as to whether an agreement for an armistice would come out of the negotioations between the Polish and the Soviet emissaries at Baranovitch.

It was thought that the Soviet authorities were likely to impose terms too severe for the Poles to accept.

CROSSED THE NAREW RIVER.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 2. — Hot fighting along the River Narew, in the region northeast of Warsaw, is reported in Sunday's official Soviet communique received by wireless from Moscow today.

The crossing of the river at one point by Bolsheviki is announced and progress against the Poles further to the southeast, in the Bielsk region, is claimed. The Soviet cavalry also is reported pressing northeast of Lemberg.

RUMANIA'S ULTIMATUM.

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, Aug. 2. — Rumania has served an ultimatum on Soviet Russia giving Soviets three days to withdraw their troops from Rumanian territory, according to a Belgrade despatch.

In the event of Russias' failure to comply, it is added that Rumania will declare a general mobilization.

MEET AT BARANOVITCHI.

LONDON, August 1. — Bolsheviki Parliamentarians met a group of Polish delegates east of Brest-Litovsk on Friday night and escorted them to Baranovitchi to discuss the terms of the Russ-Polish armistice. No agreement is expected to be reached before Monday at the earliest.

The Red armies are within four days' march of the Polish capital.

They have captured Lomza, which is just 75 miles north-east of Warsaw and the towns of Kolno and Szczuczyn, near the German border in the Lomza region.

Bolshevik forces which have been camping on the banks of the Narew River, with the apparent object of driving to Warsaw along the Bug River, have delivered a series of strong attacks, according to the Polish communique isued to-day. The statement adds that the Poles have repulsed the Bolsheviki with heavy loss in a sector near Topieloe, the Russians abandoning 11 machine guns, and leaving 500 dead.

DESPERATE STRUGGLE

A desperate struggle is going on west of Bialystok, on the Brest-Litovski railroad, for possession of the line runing through Topczeja and Lubina and along the rivers Nurets and Zerczyce.

The fighting in the Brody region is reported by the statement as favorable to the Poles.

In spite of these and other Bolshevik successes the military experts of the Anglo-French mission in Poland are reported to be optimistic because of the remarkable stiffening in the resistance of the Poles' northern army, under General Haller.

The chief concern of the experts is the position of the Fourth Polish army, defending Brest-Litovsk, but Polish advices declare the pressure upon that army will be relieved very shortly by the Polish counter-offensive which is being directed northeastward from the region of Brody, north-east of emberg.

MUNITIONS ARRIVE

A large number of ships are arriving at Danzig daily from French and British ports with munitions, which are being unloaded rapidly and rushed to the Polish front, according to word received here. An efficient unloading system has been organized by the Allied experts, and in putting this system into effect, French, British and Polish workers are laboring side by side without interference, it is declared.

FLEEING POLES ENTER GERMANY

Pursued by Bolshevik Cavalry and Are Disarmed by the Authorities.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Russian Bolshevik cavalry pursued 2,000 Polish soldiers, who, with forty officers, crossed the German frontier in East Prussia Friday, according to advices received here. The Russians threatened to follow the Poles across the national boundary, but refrained from doing so when German authorities disarmed the fugitives. The Poles ,when informed they must be disarmed, threw away their rifles and scrambled aboard a train, which carried them further into German territory.

Mounted Bolshevik patrols are seen frequently along the East Prussian frontier. The Bolsheviki are reported to be carrying on a great campaign of propaganda in Lithuania, and declare Lithuania must join Soviet Russia as a federal state. A Cracow despatch says a Soviet republic has been proclaimed in Kovno, and declares Lithuanian troops have mutinied, being supported by the Soviet troops there.

SAYS FLEET OF 100 BOATS CARRY 1,000 CASES OF LIQUOR NIGHTLY ACROSS RIVER AT BORDER

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINDSOR, Aug. 2.—More liquor is being shipped across the river from Amherstburg and its adjacent neighborhood than ever before. This was confirmed by a newspaperman by a visit to Amehrstburg and a trip across the river on Saturday night in a boat actually carrying a load of contraband for the thirsty ones on the American side.

From experiences yesterday it is easy to believe that the estimate of special Assistant United States District Attorney Isadore Polozker in regard to the magnitude of the rum running is not exaggerated at all. According to his opinion, 1,000 cases of Canadian booze at least is brought across the river every night and not less than 100 boats of various varieties are engaged in the business. Mr. Polozker has charged the local police in the American river towns outside Detroit with gross negligence of duty and even connivance in the trade.

SIR EDWARD KEMP RETURNS SALARY

MAKES CANADA PRESENT OF SERVICES DURING THE WAR.

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—Sir Edward Kemp, new Minister without Portfolio, and formerly Minister of the Overseas forces of Canada, has written the Finance Department, returning uncashed all cheques received by him for ministerial salary during the war period. In all the cheques amount to $25,219, covering the whole of the payments to him as Minister of Militia and later as Minister of Overseas Forces. Previous to being sworn in as Minister of Militia and subsequently as Minister of Overseas Forces, Sir Edward was without portfolio, and acted, without remunertaion, as chairman of the War Purchasing Commission. In this capacity, and as Minister, he had of necessity to incur expenses from time to time and was entitled to be reimbursed by the Government, but he has rendered no account for such outlays, nor will he do so. He has also refrained from drawing any of his sessional indemnity for the last four sessions of Parliament. Sir Edward's contributions under these heads, apart altogether from his large contributions to patriotic war objects, run into a considerable amount. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, has appropriately acknowledged Sir Edward's generosity, on behalf of the Government.

PONZI SPECULATORS WANT MONEY BACK

START RUN ON BRANCH OFFICE IN WOONSOCKET.

(Canadian Press)

WONSOCKET, R.I., Aug. 2.—Investors in the Securities Exchange Company, of Boston, engaged in a frenzied run on the office of Adelard Forcier, agent in this city, after the arrival of the Boston newspaper extra containing an article regarding the operations of Charles Ponzi, head of the company. Men and women in line clutching newspapers demanded the return of their money. Requests were met where matured notes were involved, but other investors told that returns on unmatured certificates would be made from Boston to-morrow.

BUILDING PERMITS TOTALLED $187,615

SIX MONTHS' ACTIVITIES AHEAD OF SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

Building permits issued in the city during the past six months are much heavier than those issued during the same period last year. During the half year ending on Saturday permits issued totalled $187,615, while during the same time last year a total of $67,115 was reached.

For the past month, however, the permits ,eleven, totalling $2,640, were slightly lower than those issued the same month last year when fifteen totalled $8,705.

FREE TICKET HUNT ON WEDNESDAY FOR CHAUTAUQUA WEEK

SIX JUNIOR TICKETS WILL BE HIDDEN UP TOWN FOR CHILDREN TO FIND.

Here's your chance, boys and girls, of Peterborough, to get a real live Chautauqua ticket for nothing. Don't believe it, eh? Well, you just listen to this:

The executive officers of the local Chautauqua Committee, have planned a "Hunting" contest for the purpose of arousing interest on the part of the children in the Chautauqua, which begins next week.

Six junior season tickets, good for all sessions of the Chautauqua, will be hidden sometime during the night of August 3rd. Each one will be hidden in some prominent place about town, such as in some store window in plain sight among other objects, or in some similar place. Just when the tickets will be hidden and just who is to do the hiding will remain a secret until after the contest is over. At one o'clock on the afternoon of August 4th the ticket hunt will begin.

This will be lots of fun for everybody. There are no strings to this contest. Every boy and girl in town has a right to hunt for one of these tickets. Get out real early so as to have a good start, and hunt. Look everywhere. You may be the first one to find one of them.

Free Meeting in the Morning.

There will be a free meeting for all the children of Peterborough Wednesday morning at 9.30 on the Armory Grounds, conducted by the Chautauqua advance superintendent and the assistant to the junior leader.

At this meeting the winners of certain athletic contests will receive free tickets for all sessions of the Chautauqua. The ticket hunt to be held in the afternoon will be explained and the Chautauqua week program will be given out.

FOOTBALL CUP TIE TO-MORROW EVENING

The War Veterans' team will be picked from the following players: W. Jones, D. Perry and A. Bishop, J. Peel, P. D. Ryan, A. Edwards, S. Curiss, T. Monks, H. Norman, J. Piggott, J. Sharman, N. Jones, H. Gamble and H. Burrows.

The Comrades' team will be: R. Moore goal, R. Leach and N. Nicholls backs, W. Yates, R. Joliffe and V. Hopkins half-backs; W. Warman, H. Knowles, B. Martin, M. Dunkley and A. Lee forwards.

CLUMSY PROWLERS TRIED TO BREAK INTO HOUSE AT OVAL

Noise Wakened Walter Kitney, Who Chased Them With an Empty Gun Across East Nicholls Park to Waiting Buggy.

About 1.30 o'clock last night unknown men, after trying all the doors, attempted to enter the house of Walter Kitney, caretaker of Nicholls' Oval, by smashing in a window, but were frightened away by Mr. Kitney and his son-in-law, Richard Walsh.

Mr. Kitney, who lives at the Oval, told The Examiner this morning that the family was awakened about 11.30 o'clock by hearing someone trying to doors. Mr. Kitney, who was sleeping a room downstairs as the sleeping rooms were occupied by guests, heard footsteps coming aroud the veranda from the side door and then a window in the room in which he was sleeping was suddenly smashed in. The inside jamb on one side of the window fell into the room but the jamb on the other side held.

GAVE CHASE WITH GUN.

Mr. Kitney seized a gun and, accompanied by his son-in-law, Richard Walsh, of Toronto, ran out. The housebreakers fled. Mr. Kitney and his son-in-law could not see them in the dark, but they heard footsteps receding across the lawn toward the bend, east of the house, and then heard horse and buggy drive swiftly away. They followed but the horse was whipped up and went down Ross street.

Mr. Kitney stated that yesterday afternoon he and his wife had seen two young men hanging around the house who, by the way in which they watched the windows, aroused the suspicion of the family.

The case was placed in the hands of the police this morning.

Mr. Kitney's gun was not loaded last night, but he bought some cartridges this morning and stated that the next midnight visitors would receive a rousing reception.

There was about $50 in the safe in the room which the housebreakers tried to enter.

THE SERBIAN RELIEF FUND

THANKS FROM FEDERATION.

To the Editor of The Examiner,—
Peterboro, Ont.:
Dear Sir:

Will you permit me through the columns of your paper to express the grateful thanks of the Orphan Children of Serbia and the Canadian Brotherhood Federation, to all those who so generously contributed to this fund. The splendid result of the appeal, which will apparently total $4,500.00, reflects the greatest possible credit upon the county and speaks well for the warm hearted generosity of its citizens.

Serbia, as one of our most devoted allies, will very greatly appreciate the practical interest which Canada takes in the welfare of her children, and the efforts which are being put forth to maintain, clothe and educate the half-million orphans which have been left by the war.

Yours very sincerely,
J. O. McCarthy,
General Treasurer.

MATURING CROPS NEED SUNSHINE

CABBAGES AND POTATOES THRIVING IN PRESENT WEATHER.

A week's bright weather is absolutely essential for the fruit and vegetable crops which are particularly heavy this year, but cannot ripen with the present cold, damp weather. Cabbages and potatoes seem to thrive under present conditions and each are larger and of better quality than in years. Corn and vegetable marrows are on the market, the former selling at 50 cents a dozen, the latter at 15 cents each.

Tomatoes are selling at 20 cents a pound and $2.50 and $3.00 a basket. Potatoes at 55 and 60 cents a peck, cucumbers at from 5 to 15 cents each, green peppers 2 for 5 cents and cantalopes at 20 and 25 cents each.

Fruit Market.

The large quanities of local grown frut has effected the banana market, and they are selling at 30 to 50 cents a dozen, lower than for some months. Lemons are selling at 30 and 40 cents a dozen and the few pineapples on sale are bringing 30 and 40 cents each.

Saturday saw about the finish of cherries when they were run off at $1.25 a basket, or at a loss of 25 cents a basket to the greengrocer. Some few baskets are in the stores at $1.50 to-day. Berries which have passed the height of the season are selling at 25 and 27 cents a box.

MANY TURKS PREPARING TO LEAVE ADRIANOPLE, WHERE GREEKS COMMAND

CIVIL ADMINISTRATION IS BEING RESTORED, PRISONERS ROUNDED UP AND THE CITY SET TO WORK AGAIN—TURKS SEEM STUNNED.

(Canadian Press.)

ATHENS, Aug. 2.—Adrianople is quiet at present according to advices receved here, Turkish and other elements being either stunned by the presence of Greek troops in the city or resigned to the fate that has come to them. Large numbers are said to be preparing to leave Adrianople. The Greeks are restoring the civil administration, in some cases retaining Turkish officials and telegraph service between Adrianople and outside world is being resumed. The work of rounding up prisoners, who for the most part are regular soldiers or officers, continues.

CUT HIS ARTERIES, DIED BEFORE ABLE TO SIGN HIS WILL

(Special to The Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 2.—W. D. Foster, aged 49, committed suicide yesterday. He came here from Hamilton, Ontario, where he was a structural engineer of considerable standing, and after severing arteries tried to write a will, leaving his property to his wife, but died before he signed it. He wrote this will on the reverse side of a testimonal of his services by the Sixer Force Company of Buffalo, N.Y., where he held an executive position.

FINE RACING CARD FOR THE HOLIDAY

GUELPH JAZZ BAND ALSO ENGAGED FOR EXHIBITION PARK PROGRAMME.

The Exhibition Board met on Saturday night and completed the final arrangements for civic holiday, on Monday, August 9th, which promises to be a red letter day in horse racing circles, and a long entry list is anticipated.

The purses are exceptionally good, and the best offered for some years. The three races and purses are:

1—2.18 class, trot or pace, mile heats, best 3 in 5. $500.00.

2—Free for all, trot or pace, mile heats, best 3 in 5. $500.00.

3—2.30 trot or pace, mile heats, 3 in 5. $300.00.

Entries for the races must be made with F. J. A. Hall by August 5th.

The Guelph Jazz Band has been secured for the day. It is reputed to be the snappiest ten piece band in the province and will dispense its latest music on the holiday.

The races are the premier attraction and horsemen throughout the district are manifesting much interest in them. "Doc" Sinclair of Cannington will start the races.

JUDGING FIELD CROPS TO-DAY

Results Will Likely be Announced in Few Days.

W. F. B. Switzer of Streetsville, judge of the field crop competitions for the Peterboro Exhibition Board is inpecting the fields entered to-day. "We will probably know the results on Wednesday or Thursday" said Secretary F. J. A. Hall.

Three Workmen Dead and Three Shocked By Lightning Bolt

BULGARIAN LABOURERS ON HYDRO CANAL SOUGHT SHELTER IN STORM UNDER A BIG STEAM SHOVEL—CURRENT STRUCK THE WIRES OF THE SHOVEL—FACTORY CHIMNEY BLASTED.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 1.—The city and district was visited by a brief but severe electrical storm yesterday afternoon. Three Bulgarians who had taken shelter from the storm below a big shovel on the Hydro canal were killed when a bolt struck the shovel. Another man who was with them escaped with severe burns. A big chimney-stack on the Waugh Lumber Mills here was struck and the top torn off. The lightning cracked it all the way down, and blew a heavy furnace door a distance of 50 feet. Bricks were thrown a considerable distance.

Three in Hospital.

(Canadian Press)

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 2.—Coroner Greenwood, of St. Catharines, viewed the bodies of the three foreigners who were killed at the Hydro canal plant here by a bolt of lightning. On account of the accident occurring at Queenston, which comes under Lincoln County jurisdiction, the bodies of the three Hungarians whose naames were Hominick, Frank Shannon and Pete Jones are at Morse & Sons' undertaking rooms here. In the Hydro hospital are Charles Chautici, who is severely burned, and Tony Bolsky and Frank Kamiski, Russians, suffering from shock. The foreigners sought shelter under the steam shovel at the power house site during the severe electrical storm when the lightning struck the wires of the shovel.

CITY'S THIRST LESS AND WATER COLDER

170,000 GALLONS A DAY LESS THAN IN JULY, 1920, CONSUMED LAST MONTH.

During the month of July Peterboro consumed 170,000 less gallons of water a day than in the corresponding month last year. This is accounted by Mr. R. L. Dobbin Waterworks superintendent, to the heavy rainfall this month making it unnecessary to water the lawns, as much as last summer when a dry spell occurred. The water was much colder than usual during the past month; July failing miserably in keeping up its record of past years. The highest temperature of the water yet recorded is 73 degrees on July 15. Last year July 13, with the water at 80 degrees was the highest. The average temperature of the air at the waterworks during July was only 64 degrees while for the some month last year it was 73 degrees.

The average pumpage hovers around 3,500,000 gallons per day except on Sundays when it drops nearly a million gallons.

Keep on Boiling.

The boiling of water should be still continued states Mr. Dobbin. The condition of the water is much the same and the dose of chlorine is as strong a ever. Many citizens have not followed the repeated warnings of Mr. Dobbin and Dr. McPherson. Many have substituted well water without a test of the well and there have ben many discomfitted people when proper tests reveal that the water is worse than river water. Many wells are very bad and a menace to the district it was learned. The waterworks department is ready to make tests of any well water to determine whether it is safe to drink.

BELLEVILLE'S LOSS PUTS LOCALS ON TOP

PETERBORO'S GAME IN OSHAWA NEXT SATURDAY THE CRUCIAL ONE.

Peterborough now has a clear lead of one game in the standing of the Central Ontario Baseball League. Oshawa at home on Saturday provided the unexpected by defeating Belleville by the score of 7 to 3. Peterborough plays in Oshawa next Saturday and by winning this game will secure the league championship. Belleville's remaining game is with Lindsay. Lorne Rose will likely pitch next Saturday with Harrison playing first. A crowd of fans are preparing to accompany the team.

TRIPLE SHOOTING IN NEW YORK HOME

YOUNG DENTIST KILLED AND PORTO RICAN AND CHORUS GIRL BADLY WOUNDED.

NEW YORK Aug. 1.—Dr. Jose Arenas, a young dentist, who came here recently from Colombia, was found last night shot to death in his home on West Seventieth street, a block away from the house in which Joseph B. Elwell, horseman and whist expert, was shot and killed June 11.

Ruth Jackson, a chorus girl, who, the police say, has been in Arenas' apartment, was found in a taxi nearby with a bullet wound in her chest. Ignacio Marti, a young Porto Rican, who went to the hospital with a wound in his chest, told the police that he was shot by Arenas at the latter's home, and that the dentist then shot the girl and turned the revolver upon himself.

Marti said the Jackson girl had formerly lived with Arenas, but had left the dentist and come to him. Together they went to the Arenas apartment to get some clothing that belonged to the girl. The dentist admitted them, according to Marti, dismissed a man with whom he had been conversing, and then went to the rear of the apartment, returning with a revolver.

Becoming frightened Marti said, he fled through a window, but went back for the girl, whom he carried to a taxi with the idea of taking her to his own apartment, in 61st street. Three bullets struck Arenas, two in the chest and one in the right temple.

Ruth Jackson is the wife of Elmer Schultz, a taxicab driver, Toledo, Ohio. She came to New York in April to enter the movies. She is 17 years of age.

The medical examiner, after an autopsy to-day, reported that Dr. Arenas committed suicide and that he ended his life after an unsuccessful attempt to kill Ruth Jackson and her companion, Ignacio Marti.

SWARM OF BEES ATTACK MAN AND HORSES

Mr. Frank Kirley, West Ops, had a rather exciting experience on his farm the other day. He was engaged in cutting his fall wheat, when a swarm of bees attacked his horses. Mr. Kirley attempted to unhitch the horses from the machine, which a portion of the storm attacked him. Mr. Kirley, as well as the horses, were very badly stung before the bees were beaten off. Mr. Kirley's little son, who was with him at the time, was also attacked but escaped with a few slight stings. Mr. Kirley's condition was such as to require the attention of a physician, while a veterinary had to be called in to attend to the horses.

TOMATOES AND ORANGES POSSESS DIETETIC VALUES JUST DISCOVERED

Certain fruits, always highly esteemed, have been recently shown by physiologists to be valuable foods from points of view hitherto unrecognized. This is especially true of the orange and of the tomato, which latter, is entitled to be called a fruit, altho we generally class it as a vegetable." The substances called vitamins, now known to be absolutely necessary to health, are present in the juices of these two products. Both have long been recognized as anticorbuties, or preventers of scurvy, but they have in addition qualities, more recently studied, that make them of even higher value. Some of these are described and explained in an editorial in The Journal of the American Medical Association (Chicago), most of which we summarize below. Says the writer:

"Artificially fed infants thrive better if they receive some addition to cow's milk, particularly when the latter is pasteurized or sterilized. One reason for this is that many of the artificial-food mixtures are likely to be qualitatively incapable of averting scurvy in young children, so that some added antiscorbutic must be provided. For this purpose orange juice has attained a well-deserved popularity. Other fruit juices have likewise been used with succes; and latterly the juices from certain vegetables have ben demonstrated to have a similarly beneficial influence in the dietary of the young. Owing to the price and occasional scarcity of oranges, notably during the war, special efforts were made, both here and abroad, to secure suitable substitutes. The use of the tomato has been particularly promising owing to the fact that this readily available vegetable can be dried or canned without losing its potency, and it can be administered efficiently in various ways, including intravenous injection of the juice.

"From the recent investigations of Osborne and Mendel it appears that the tomato has even further properties to commend its use during the period of growth.

Vegetables in New Light.

"The new studies, indicating the richness of many types of plant tissues in those nutritive properties termed vitamins, place the dietary importance of the green vegetables in an enirely new light. It emphasizes their use to supplement the refined foods of the modern food industry which furnish products rich in proteins, fats, and carbohydrates but in many case comparatively deficient in the viamins. The tomato is striking in exhibiting all the now recognized vitamin potencies. Little wonder, hen, that it has found an important place in the dietary.

"Orange juice has also now been shown to be possessed of something more than attractive flavor and antiscorbutic virtues.

The same observers have demenstrated the presence of the water-soluble vitamin, in both the juice and the inner peel of the orange. Evi dently, therefore, when orange juice or tomato is added to the food of an infant, something more than an antiscorbutic is furnished. The Iowa pedistricians have noted that in every case when the antiscorbutic dose of orange juice was increased to infants whose weight has remained stationary for a number of days, there was a marked stimulation of growth. A mere increase of food intake (calories of itself had no such influence on the rate of gain.

"Orange juice from which the antineuritic vitamin is removed does not thus stimulate growth, altho it still has antiscorbutic properties. This answers the assertion that the antiscorbutic vitamin may be responsible for promotion of growth. In feeding orange juice, provided the quantity is not too small, one is administering at least two highly beneficial adjuwants to the diet. This fact, and the growing practice of early enlarging he diet of milk-fed infants by the use of fruit juices, etc., is significant further in view of the recent demonstration by Osborne and Mendel that cow's milk, from a comparative stand point, is not rich in water-soluble vitamin. Recent studies of cow' milk have indicated that on this score it muse be classed as less valuable than many of the raw friuts and vegetables Similarly relatively large quantities of milk are required to produce the increased intake of food and improved rate of growth which are readiy secured by very small quantities of many green vegetables."

A WONDERFUL SEARCHLIGHT.

The Most Powerful In the World, It Almost Rivals the Sun.

It is ten feet high, its mirror has a diameter of five feet, and it weighs three tons. Its beam is as brilliant as the sun at 8 o'clock in the morning or 4 in the afternoon, New York latitude, and you can read a newspaper by its light thirty miles away. The heat of its focused beam is so intense that it will set paper afire at a distance of 250 feet. It has a candle power of more than one and a quarter billion.

These are a few astonishing facts in the Popular Science Monthly about the Sperry searchlight, the invention of Elmer A. Sperry of Brooklyn, who is already known as the inventor of the airplane stabilizer and ship gyroscope bearing his name and the first electric arc light.

One of the most powerful beacons along the coast is the Sandy Hook lighthouse. But the Sperry searchlight is twenty-two times more brilliant than that light. Were the Sperry lamp substituted for the lighthouse beacon a ship passing out to sea could be bathed in light until it disappeared below the horizon. By swinging the light back and forth across the sky it has been made visible 150 miles away. For navy use the Sperry lamp illuminates a target ten times more brilliantly than any other projector devised.

LEAD THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Common Sense Points the Way to Reaching a Ripe Old Age.

It is astonishing how many old people there are in almost every community in New England. Every day there is recorded in the press the passing of some one who has reached the nineties, and quite frequently there is mention of a centenarian. These people, generally speaking, die in the rural districts, but the cities are not without a group of them.

These events indicate that there is no necessity for any one who takes proper care of himself to fail to reach old age. Longevity is merely a matter of caring for oneself and keeping in a cheerful frame of mind. An important factor also in long life is to indulge in some occupation, if only for a few hours daily, in order that the mind and body shall have normal exercise. Drones seldom live long.

It is noteworthy in all the interviews which visitors have with the very aged that the latter invariably explain that they attribute their longevity to leading the simple life. They eat sparingly of the most nourishing food that agrees with them, are temperate in the use of all liquids, obtain plenty of sleep, indulge daily in very light exercise and do not worry.

Whoever follows these simple rules can count on living about as long as he or she desires

VIRTUOUS WIVES

By OWEN JOHNSON

"Excuse me. It isn't I; it is you who have made an explanation necessary I left the decision to you. You have sacrificed me to bring that young Dawson into the house."

"Dawson! Dawson!" she exclaimed irritably. "Always harping on that idiotic affair! Besides, he isn't here alone. He's here with half a dozen others—because I'm at my wits' end—because everyone must help me."

"Good heavens, don't reason like a child!" he burst out in turn. "Face the situation; understand the gravity! Be a least a woman!"

She turned, feeling escape impossible.

"Well?"

"I have left the solution to your sense of delicacy, of loyalty, to decide and you have done so."

"I have decided," she said definitely.

"What?"

"That I will not be bullied by you into doing unreasonable things."

"'Unreasonable'! You regard my request as that?"

"Exactly."

"In other words, you intend to go your own way, regardless of my wishes," he said, in his deliberate, businesslike manner, which had the power of doing away with all her better feelings and arousing a blind revolt.

"That depends entirely on you."

"Your attitude does not surprise me," he continued slowly. "After all, Dawson is just an incident. How many others there are, I don't know," he said, with a shrug of his shoulders. "The crisis has been coming on for months. The trouble is that you are not interested in my life. You do not care in the least for my problems. I asked you to be careful of expenses—and this fete is the answer."

"Now that is how unjust you can be!" she said, two red spots standing out in her cheeks. "Who wished me to give it who suggested it five months ago?"

"Then I wasn't worried."

"But I couldn't give it up after it was announced!"

"My dear Amy, you could do anything you wanted to—but you didn't want to. The trouble is, you don't love me."

"No; that is not the trouble," she cried angrily, for even at this moment he recoiled before pronouncing this tragic finality. "The trouble is that you are heartless and brutal, that you wish to order me about as you do one of your clerks, that you haven't any pity on me—that you are thoroughly selfish."

"I, selfish!" he said with a laugh, that came back to him with its ugly echo. "That is too much. The truth is we've reached a point most marriages arrive at. We are utterly apart and out of sympathy with each other. We don't look at things in the same way."

"It is your fault!" she cried desperately.

"We won't discuss whose fault it is. The question is, what's to be done?"

"'Done'?" she cried, opening her eyes. "Are you actually going to threaten me—now—at this moment?"

"I am not threatening anything. I am convinced that you are at the present moment simply carried away by flattery and adulation. I don't believe for a moment that there is anything serious. If I did—" He stopped, frowned at the leap of his pulses, passed his hand wearily over his forehead, and said, "But we have not come to that yet. At present I intend to protect myself."

"What do you mean?"

"I don't intend to wreck my life because you refuse to understand. In other words, in order to avoid bankruptcy"—he repeated the word—"bankruptcy—I shall put you on an allowance and insist that you keep to it. For the next year or so we will materially change our scale of living."

Her nerves, long taut, snapped at the vision of the future, which seemed the end of her ambitions. She burst into tears.

"You come in to spoil everything. You make me hate everything. You've spoiled it all now—all! And I was so happy!"

"Happy! Good God!" he thought. "When my heart is breaking. Who can talk to her—who can make her understand?"

He threw up his hands in the air in token of defeat and went out of the house.

CHAPTER IX.

Forrester came back at eleven and went to a bedroom on the fourth floor where a dresser was waiting for him and his costume. A dozen times during the evening he had said to himself rebelliously that he would not return, that he would send for his valise and catch the midnight express, pretending a sudden business summons. For, undisciplined in the social arts of concealment, he looked forward to the evening as one of exquisite torture. In the end, he comprehended that this liberty of action no longer existed, that no matter what the suffering, the rigid gods of etiquette must be served. He dressed, and as his body was well formed and his legs gracefully turned, he made a striking figure. Yet he was ill at ease. He felt ridiculously undressed. This was his first masquerade, and the compliments of the dresser only aroused his suspicions.

"Trying to work me for a tip, of course," he thought, with a shrug of his shoulder. "Well, now for it!"

He went down to the second floor. Already the gallery that opened on the great stairway was alive with guests, a black arriving stream streaking through the brilliant throng which descended from the dressing rooms. He joined it, and it was not until he had crossed the first salon that an acquaintance recognized and spoke to him. In the further salon, at the foot of the great carved-stone fireplace—foot of impoverished Italy—Amy was standing. At first glance he cried involuntarily,

"Good God, how beautiful she can be!"

Her dress was a bewildering swirl of royal blue brocade, glowing as the first break of brilliant azure through a clearing storm—a subtle, winding profusion which wrapped her delicate body about so airily that she seemed, by some deft improvisation, to have been entangled in the flowing draperies as a fragile butterfly is caught in a silken met. The curled and powdered hair, piling up in a white cloud, turned in dainty ringlets about her clear temples and, winding down the slender neck, slipped across one bared shoulder, meeting a jeweled vine a starry eglantine which climbed up to the perfumed lattice of her tresses and hid itself in the mysteries of her head-dress. The daintily turned arms and wrists came whitely out from the dark-blue shadows of luxuriant folds, while her sensitive nose, her gay lips, her lively eyes under the quaint and pointed evebrows, gave to the dainty oval a fragile aristocracy. All—poise, gesture, veiled glance and scented smile—held the incomparable seduction that once was Woman.

He crossed gravely to take his place by her side. Some one caught him by the arm. It was Steingall, picturesque in the costume of Largilliere—Steingall, triumphant in the success of his hostess, which was his success.

"Wonderful, eh, Mr. Forrester?" he cried, with glowing eyes.

"Wonderful!"

"She must be painted like that," said the artist, with his head on one side. "By Jove, what blues!"

"Of course," he answered laconically, and continued on his way through the buzz of whispered praises that surrounded his wife.

Amy had grown restless at his delay, but this furtive anxiety only added liveliness to her expression. For the Andrew Forrester who had now emerged was incomprehensible to her. She resisted him; she sought to conciliate him, while she watched him with growing apprehension. The moment he was there, she forgot everything but the intoxication of her personal triumph. She put out her hand eagerly and drew him to her, slipping her arm through his, to associate him with her own success and thus to reclaim him.

She was in a dangerous mood. Nothing educates a woman so much as the first touch of sorrow. Before, she had been an inconsequent child, distributing happiness and suffering with the same unconsciousness, never stopping to consider the result of an impulse, never comprehending her responsibilites later. But this sense of being protected and adored was now torn from her. A mental transformation had come. She stood alone, feeling that she must defend herself, fight her own battles, find herself her final security. She did not quite see what she should do, but she knew that another life, complicated and uncertain, was beginning. And as the obscurity ahead frightened her, her instinct strove to return to old landmarks. An hour before, she had revolted against her husband with all the strength of her nature. The explanation he had sought had ended only in a quarrel. But, aghast before the unknown, she felt surprised herself at the impulse which flung her back to him. She wished to conquer him, to dazzle him and more than any one else, for it seemed to her that if she could establish the supremacy of her charm and beauty over him, that all might yet be repaired.

"Andrew—why, you are superb!" she whispered to him in a moment of freedom, and her hands pressed his with a quick, impulsive pressure. "I am very, very proud."

"You are very beautiful," he said carefully but without enthusiasm, for he said to himself, "She is afraid—it is only fear of the future which brings her to me."

WATCH YOUR GUMS—BLEEDING A SIGN OF TROUBLE

Medical science knows how serious is the sign of bleeding gums. For it knows that tender and bleeding gums are the fore-runners of Pyorrhea, the dread disease which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

If the disease is unchecked, the gum-line recedes, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the Pyorrhea poisons generated at their base—poisons which seep into the system and wreck the health. They cause rheumatism, nervous disorders, anaemia and many other ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and use Forhan's For the Gums. Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums firm and healthy—the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions and consult your dentist immediately for special treatment.

BELA KUN ALLOWED TO CONTINUE ON HIS WAY

Germans say that they are not Justified in Holding Him.

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 31. — Bela Kun, the former communist dictator of Hungary and his communist companions, who recently were detained at Stettin, while en route to Russia, are to be allowed to depart to a destination abroad to be chosen by themselves, according to an official government statement issued on Friday.

The government refers to the fact that Hungary has asked to have Bela Kun handed over to it, but without result, and says that the German government does not feel justified in "further withholding freedom from arested persons without any legal grounds."

MILKMEN OPPOSED TO HIGHER FREIGHT RATES

Increasse Sought by Railways Would Amount to Five Cents a Can at Last.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 31.—Mr. Ed. Stonehouse, of Richview, president of the Milk Producers Ascsociation stated to-day that that body would oppose the application of the Canadian Railways Associaion for an increase of 40 per cent. in the rates for the transportation of milk. Mr. Stonehouse said that the addition to the costs would increase the price of milk but just how much he could not say but at least five cents a can.

"The charges are fixed according to zones and vary" said Mr. Stonehouse. "There is a special rate for cream and I cannot say just how it is affected. The application of the Railways is very vague. We intend to ask the Railway companies to furnish particulars."

LIGHTNING HIT SHED CONTAINING DYNAMITE

Three Men Reported Dead in Quebec Town.

(Canadian Press.)

QUEBEC, July 31. — News was received this morning from passengers on the Ocean Limited that a very bad storm swept over Valbrillant, Que., last night. They reported that three men were killed as a result of lightning striking a shed containing dynamite. The three men killed were standing near the shed when it blew up. All communication with Valbrillant is interrupted.

PORT HOPE BASEBALL TEAM SEVERELY CRITICISED

Port Hope Guide:—We have seen the kids in the abck lot choose up sides and we have seen tournaments in villages, etc., but last night's exhibition by the Port Hope Central League team against Cobourg takes the medal. They fumbled everything and their throwing was most erratic. The local ball tossers evidently realize now that to have a successful team there must be co-operation and systematic practice.

Howard Hutchings replaced Guy at short stop in the third innings and proved our contention that he should have been one of the regulars all season. He accepted every chance without any error and also hit the ball.

THAT COST CLERK.

Now that the City Council have been voted another $100,000 with which to finish the new Hunter street bridge, let us hope they will take advantage of any hint as to construction policy that may have been dropped during inquiry into the reasons for existing excess costs over and above the estimates of Engineer Mr. Frank Barber. A letter from this gentleman early in the year conveyed to Council the comforting intimation that this work would be completed within the estimates, and the announcement in June that Council's appropriaton of $260,000, together with a grant of $50,000 from the Dominion government and another grant of $5,000 from the Railways Board was exhausted, fell like a bolt out of the blue in the midst of this community. Engineer Barber, in his explanation of how he came to lead Council to believe that the bridge would be finished within the estimates, contended that without the employment of a 'cost clerk" it is difficult, if not impossible, for an engineer to estimate a structure's ultimate cost with any degree of accuracy. And his words conveyed the impression that a cost clerk should have been on the job from its incipiency. Of course Mr. Barber was in this connection referring especially to the uncertainty of labour conditions and cost of material as making for difficulty in arriving at a total of future expenditures.

Now many people imagine that Mr. Alex. Elliot is a cost clerk. He s nothing of the kind. Mr. Elliot is a bridge accountant, who keeps track of expenditures and material received and on hand. In referring to a cost clerk Mr. Barber several times used the expression "costing clerk," and that term is more illuminating. Such official keeps the actual cost of construction per food or yard, as the case may be, for the guidance of the engineer or contractors. By this means there is no uncertainty from day to day as to whether construction is exceeding the estimates or not, and the responsible parties have opportunity to govern themselves accordingly. It is the knowledge of what construction should cost under given conditions, coupled with the application of methods by which daily record is kept of what it is "costing" that enters largely into the efficiency of engineer or contractor. For instance, a contractor working on a lump sum basis will keep account of what the work is costing him as it proceeds, and should he find it is exceeding his estimates, per yard, let us say, he'll quickly delve into the cause, therefor, and apply the remedy, if remedy there be. Such cost accounting requires the services of an official with either a knowledge of engineering or construction work.

In this connection the Hunter street bridge is not let under contract, but on the commission basis, which fixes responsibility for the appointment of any such official as cost clerk on the Council, for whom Engineer Barber is agent. At least that is the inference drawn from the latter's explanation, although, so far as we can learn, he did not advise such an appointment. However, Mr. Barber drops the hint that such an official is necessary, if for no other purpose than to avoid any future misconception as to what the bridge is really costing. Another $100,000 are now avalable, and if past experience in the expenditure of over $300,000 teaches an object lesson, as to how to keep in touch with its application on construction, for guidance from month to month, would not Council be wise to profit by that lesson, accept Mr .Barber's hint and appoint a cost clerk? In any event, large sums of the public's money have been and are still at stake, and if such an official enters into the usual expenditure on large structural work, as Mr. Barber seems to contend, then a cost clerk's salary should have been, and may be was, considered in the bridge's original estimates. We do not know whether both an accountant and a cost clerk are needed, but Mr. Barber can undoubtedly advise Council on that question. He promises that the additional $100,000 just voted will finish the bridge and his estimate should not be handicapped by either lack of an official or the employment of more than needed. Let Council be clear on this point and govern themselves accordingly, for another unforseen call on this community for still more money to finish the bridge might result in a situation that to say the least would be embarrassing.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

This may be an old cry these days, but its need is still with us, if Canada is to take the place among world-nations its resources presage. There is abundance of room for increased population and for increased agricultural, mineral and industrial development effort.

As to population, in 1917, and the figures have not materialy changed since then, one could draw a line north and south through Peterborough, dividing Canada in two, and one would find one-eighth of Canada's population resident between Peterborough and Hamilton, another eighth between Hamilton and Port Arthur, and one-fourth from there to the coast. Advisedly, we say that thousands of acres of land between Peterborough and Toronto are lying idle, while it is well known that millions of acres in Ontario are still non-productive. Going west statistics show that a little more than one-half the area of Albera. Saskatchewan and Manitoba, if under cultivation, would produce approximately the same amount of wheat, oats and barley as the whole world's total pre-war yield.

Canada poses as an agricultural country, with millions of acres of virgin soil, and yet she imports wool, mutton, sugar and tremendous quantities of other necessities which she can produce herself. Take sugar; it's price is sky-high, it is reported scarce and yet all through Ontario, along the St. Lawrence River, in Manitoba, and British Columbia, beet roots will grow. A. C. Flumerfelt of Vancouver estimated 18/20 tons of sugar beets to the acre could be grown in these districts, and profitably converted into domestic sugar. Then why not grow our own sugar.

This Dominion imports so much of many commodities from abroad, and especially from the United States, that she is, commercially speaking, affectionately referred to as the "goose which lays the golden egg" in America's markets. And one reason for this is that our urban population is out of all proportion to rural settlement. Over forty per cent. of Canada's population lives in cities, while millions of acres of good tillable land go a-begging. Too many farmers' sons, aye, and daughters also, get educated in cities, and there they stay, and in after life they invariably regret their decision. Rural life is too tame, not to say lonely, after city experience and every effort should be made to remedy this in new settlements, under the Governments' jurisdiction, either in the wilds of Ontario or in the Northwest. Rural planning is needed quite as badly as town planning and in the former case it should, to again quote Mr. A. C. Flumerfelt, provide for settlements of some 380 to 400 persons so grouped that no person would be more than one and a half miles at most from a village centre containing educational, religious, social and store advantages. Such planning persistently followed, would relieve the lonesomeness of country life, offer to young people semi-city pleasures, which together with the motor car, rural phones, farm electric light and power plants, should make country citizenship more attractive, and stimulate the development of Canada's agricultural resources to such an extent that we could ere many years do our duty by the Empire by contributing to her food needs in a measure more in keeping with Canada's agricultural opportunities.

PLAIN LLOYD GEORGE.

Perhaps the most outstanding figure in the world to-day is plain Mr. Lloyd George, Premier of Great Britain and Ireland, head of that race whose vast good humor, sporting characteristics and inherent but unconscious wisdom have carried them through innumerable national menaces to world-heights of power yet unattained by any other nation. His to-day is the dominating voice in European peace councils, as it was in 1918, when all the world waited with bated breath for his reply to Germany's peace overtures.

This "barefooted son of a Welsh teacher" as Mr. Lloyd George was abusively referred to by the German press on his elevation to the Premiership of Great Britain, was not born in Wales, but in Manchester City, England, where his father officiated as a school master. From the tender age of years, when his father died, Lloyd George was cared for and educated by his mother's uncle, Richard Lloyd, a shoemaker in the village of Llanystwmdwy, North Wales. He was articled to a solicitor, developed into an enthusiastic Nationalist and at all times displayed an intense regard for the rights of small nations. From such humble birth and upbringing David Lloyd George developed into an ardent politician, eventually contributing in no small degree to saving Liberalism in the Old Country at a time when that party was threatened with obliteration as a factor in national affairs. He was only twenty-five years of age when first elected to Parliament on the Liberal ticket, since which time he has forged ahead in public confidence, guided the British Empire through a period of peril greater than had ever threatened her, finally reaching a pedestal of statemanship toward which the world's eyes are ever turned these days of European unrest.

Plain Lloyd George visited Canada at the outbreak of the South African War, when he came at the invitation of the Minister of the Interior to study immigration prospects. Returning home greatly impressed with Canada's opportunities and resources, he has ever since regarded this Dominion as the brightest jewel in the British crown. During the war Canada lived up to his expectation of this country, and now in an era of after-war reconstruction, let us see to it that we maintain that height of strength and world honor to which Canadians have lifted their land and race.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Soviet Russia will brook, that Government declares, no foreign interference in its governmental affairs. Then why do not the Soviets act consistently by curbing the propaganda of Russian Bolsheviki in other countries to the embarrassment of foreign Governments?

Price flurries and economic worries do not necessarily indicate a coming panic. Both this country and the United States seem to be on the eve of a gradual readjustment of economic conditions which will avert a repetition of old-time panics.

T. F. Rhodes Disher invites pilgrims to the Marguesa Islands, where there are no taxes to pay, and everything is free for the taking. He describes the place as a white man's paradise, where a community can live in peace and hamony on the co-operative plan. But he stipulates that each pilgim must be passed of $1,000, and he does not exclude women. And yet we are instructed that money and women are the root of all evil; if that is true our friend had better stay alone on his beautiful tropical island, for he is courting a disturbance of that place and harmony he so glowingly emphasizes.

PIPERS PLAYED MILLBROOK PRECEPTORY TO CHURCH

REV. CAPT. SPENCER DELIVERED AN ELOQUENT SERMON.

A large number of people witnessed the Black Preceptory, No. 945 of Millbrook, parade to church on Sunday evening to the Anglican church, and accompanying the local lodge were members of the Black from the surrounding district, including Peterborough, Blackwater, Omemee and Lindsay.

The Orangemen lined up before the hall and headed by the Peterborough Caledonian Pipe Band, marched through the streets to the church.

The Rev. Captain Spencer, on opening his address to the Order extending them a very hearty welcome to the Anglican church, more particularly on the authority of the Professor of Saskatchewan, who stated that the Orange Order was first started in the Anglican church. Orangemen celebrated July 12th on the occasion of William of Orange crossing the Boyne, but to-night the Black Preceptory were commemorating August 12th, the Relief of Derry. He emphasized the true characters necessary for every man to carry out his obligations in the light of the Lord Jesus Christ and recommended them to put on the whole armour of salvation to manifest the foundation so laid by the Lord.

After the service the Pipe Band played the Order back to the hall, where refreshments were served to the vsitors before returning to their respective homes.

On arrival at the hall the Pipe Band rendered a number of selections before a large attendance of spectators.

LANGUAGES UNITE SOUTH AFRICANS

BRITISH BILINGUAL CONCESSION HAS RECONCILED THE DUTCH.

(Canadian Press)

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 31. — Mr. Ward Jackson, distinguished South African newspaperman, addressed the Canadian Club in St. John last night. He is visiting the city in connection with the tour of the Imperial Press Conference. Mr. Jackson dealt with conditions in British Africa following the Boer War, outlining the growth of British sentiment during the last fifteen years. He appealed to all Canadians to take a closer interest in South Africa, to trade with her sister colony to a greater extent, and establish a closer unity.

"The difficulty in reconciling South Africa after the war lay chiefly in the language," said Mr. Jackson. "When commission Government was replaced by representative Government the only concession made was Parliament equality. That meant that they can speak in the various Parliaments the Dutch language on equal terms with English, and that understanding has been carried out by the English both in the spirit and the letter.

"In each school in South Africa there are certain classes taught in Dutch and certain in English. South Africa has to be bilingual, and by this process each child is being educated in its mother tongue.

"You will have heard of the Nationalist party, which is generally known as a separate party. It has got hold of the word 'self-determination,' which I think is going to be the most harmful word ever coined. It is obvious that the principle is excellent but dangerous when wrongly handled. The Nationalist party is formed of a substration of Dutch South Africans, amongst whom the war left a good deal of social animosity. But I think the number is limited."

Women of Canada Who Testify

Tillsonburg, Ont.:—"Ever since I can remember, Dr. Pierce's medicines were used in our family at home and they never failed to give good results. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' was used as a tonic and blood purifier and for bronchial trouble, and it proved excellent. I have personally taken 'Golden Medical Discovery' for bronchial trouble, and the 'Favorite Prescription' to build me up when I was run-down and they both were very beneficial. Mother always used Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed for pain; it also was very good. I feel safe in recommending all of Dr. Pierce's medicines knowing them to be good."—MRS. CLIFFORD MITCHELL.

Central Butte, Sask.:—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal, as I used it for my boy for tuberculosis of the knee joint. My neighbors and friends were surprised with the results; in fact, do not think he would be alive today had it not been for the 'Medical Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs from other cough medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach as most cough syrups do it is good for the stomach. I only wish I had known about Dr. Pierce's medicines sooner."—MRS. PERCY WOOD.

When you take Golden Medical Discovery, you are getting the benefit of the experience of a doctor whose reputation goes all around the earth. Still more, you get a temperance medicine that contains not a drop of alcohol or narcotic of any kind. Long ago Dr. Pierce combined certain valuable vegetable ingredients—without the use of alcohol—so that his remedies always have been strictly temperance medicines.

SOVIET TAKES ACTION AGAINST LOAFING

Railway Tribunal Found 'Criminal Decline in Production.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 2—Evidence of the stringent measures applied by Bolshevist organizations to curtail loafing among the working masses in Soviet Russia is contained in an account published in the London Times of a recent trial at Tula, conducted by the chief railway tribunal in connection with the "cirminal" fall in production at the Tula railway works.

The commssars, administration, and workers were accused, the indictment disclosing a "heavy picture of loafing, criminal carelessness, inattention and cognizant 'bacon saving.'

Those guilty of taking days off for the purpose of speculation, the Times says, were sentenced to ten years' forced labor. A militiaman who slept at his post was sentenced to eight years. The commissars and administration, for fall in production, were sentenced to three years' hard labor, while the remainder were sentenced to hard labor without imprisonment.

The Borowitch-Bolshevist organization have decided to send to a concentration camp those of its members who have not participated in the 'Working Saturday,' a Times despatch from Moscow says.

200,000 HOUSES.

Plans For That Number Approved by British Minister of Health.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 2.—It has been announced that plans for more than 200,000 houses have been approved by the Minister of Health in connection with the national housing scheme at present in operation in Great Britan. Up till June 1 of this year there had been completed by local authorities and public utility societies 1,500 houses, while the total number of houses under construction was 18,095. The total number of housing schemes submitted to the Ministry of Health is now 10,351, of which 6,726 have received official approval.

MIDNIGHT ENCOUNTER WITH ENRAGED COON.

Abbie Bell, Cobourg, agent for the Deering Machinery Co., who resides at Precious Corners, had a rather unpleasant experience recently. Returning home at night he went to bed, leaving the back door open. W. T. Harris had a coon, which he had chained to a post. The coon got loose and made its way to Mr. Bell's bedroom, and while Mr. Bell was asleep, jumped up on the bed and attacked him with its teeth and nails. Mr. Bell was painfully bitten on the face, arms and legs before he was able to get away from the enraged animal. The next night the coon was caught and shot.

SHOE POLISH

SAYS SHOE PRICES WILL NOT DECLINE UNTIL NEXT SPRING

In order to correct any wrong impression which may have been given to the public with regard to the lowering of shoe prices, Mr. R. J. Kidd, vice-president and manager of the Robert Neill Shoe Company, stated to-day that false ideas were caught by the people by the featuring of exceptions in the shoe market.

As an instance of how wrong impressions are given out, he said that during the shoe convention held recently in Montreal, one large dealer said that prices were probably due for a drop in the spring. Re-told the statement was not qualified by "the spring," and the public took it for a forecast of the fall prices.

Again, he said inferior goods, refused by the dealers, have been sold recently at reduced prices, and the public immediately looked for a drop in all lines.

In the United States recently dealers having caught the erroneous impression that shoes would drop, cancelled their orders to such an extent that the manufacurers to save themselves from insolvency, opened up several large retail shops in Boston, selling at reduced prices the cancelled stock. This drop, though featured as an apparent permanent lowering of prices, was only temporary.

No Lowering at Present.

For the present or for the fall Mr. Kidd states there is no prospect of lower prices in shoes. While the hide market has dropped, bringing a good deal of misunderstanding, it will be several months before the hides are leather, and the drop will certainly not affect the price of the finished product for months.

Again, the rise in labor, which to-day is higher than ever before, offsets any drop in material. It is possible that towards spring leather shoes may drop but white canvas and poplin shoes will be advanced owing to the ever-soaring prices of cotton. All dealers are booking orders at a ten per cent. rise over what they paid last year for this line, and the public will pay at least the ten per cent. advance.

HEIFER GORES FARMERS; ONE DIES, ONE BADLY HURT

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 1.—Robert Watts, well known and highly respected farmer, residing near Wellington, on Friday afternoon was fatally injured by a two-year old heifer. Edwin and Ewart Harnes were driving cattle along the road when a heifer became unmanageable and jumped a fence of Mr. Watt's farm. The latter went to the assistance of the men when the animal attacked him, goring him in a frightful manner. Death ensued shortly after. G. Edwin Harnes was also knocked by the heifer and an ugly wound in the abdomen was received.

OPEN LETTER FROM ROBERT HICKS TO MR. FRANK BARBER

To Engineer Frank Barber:

Dear Sir,—Will you be good enough to answer one or two questions, which I think will interest other ratepayers in the City of Peterborough.

1.—Do you intend to take advantage of the present unfortunate conditions, in the cost of labor and material, to add to your income by exacting a commission on anything further than your original estimates on the bridge?

2.—Can the Hunter street bridge be completed as originally intended with the additional one hundred thousand dollars?

3.—How did your estimates on the granite finish, for that portion already done, work out. I mean high or low and what amount?

My object in asking the first question, Mr. Barber, is to know you better as a man.

The object of my asking the second question is to place you on public record, so that we may all know you better as an engineer, believing myself when supporting the by-law that the bridge cannot be finish as intended with the amount voted.

Your truly,
ROBERT HICKS.

INAUGURAL SERMONS BY REV. HAROLD YOUNG AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

LARGE CONGREGATIONS AT UNION SERVICES YESTERDAY—NEW MINISTER CREATED VERY FAVOURABLE IMPRESSION—INDICATES FUNDAMENTALS HE WILL DEAL WITH.

Large and appreciative audiences greeted the new pastor of George Street Methodist Church yesterday, both morning and evening. His first service was at George Street and he created a very favorable impression on the large number of members present. Mr. Young did not preach a formal sermon, but confined himself to an introductory talk. He expressed his deep appreciation of the welcome to Peterborough given Mrs. Young and himself. He also expressed the hope of great things for George Street, stating that he was proud and pleased to be pastor of such a large congregation and would serve it under the providence of God.

Mr. Young, using as his text Christ's words, "According to my gospel," referred to the fact that every man interprets the truth in his own way and in the light of his own experience, and emphasized three fundamentals that would be preached from George Street pulpit during the coming years.

1.—The conception of life as a noble thing and a gift of God to be developed.

2.—A high conception of Jesus Christ. Many low conception of Christ are being taught to-day, but He should be given no position lower than that of the Son of God, the Imperial Christ.

3.—The conception of God as a near and present friend. This is the heart of the Christianity we profess to follow and live. "God with us" is to be the heart of Mr. Young's message and gospel.

At the evening service in St. Paul's Church Rev. Mr. Young dwelt on the subject of the presence of God at all times in our lives, taking for his text a portion of the 14th verse of the 7th chanter of Isiah, "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and shall call his name Immanuel," or "God with us."

A critical time had arrived in the history of the nation. Upon the throne was the weak, servile and faithless king Ahaz. He looked in vain for someone to save it. Fear grows to desperation and desperation becomes panic and the whole court shares in it. Amid all, there remains one old prophet, Isaiah, who proclaims his message insistently that Ahaz and his people must place their trust in the living God. Laughed to scorn, he proclaims the prophecy quoted.

The crisis is past, years roll by and a son is born whose name was called Immanuel as foretold by Isaiah to King Ahaz. This was another evidence that God had still an interest in His world and that He was still with men.

Whenever men have sought to understand Jesus and His word they have realized as nowhere else this message, "God is with us."

Nature brings to us in many ways evidences of God being with us.

Many a man and woman looking into the eyes and hearts of loved ones see evidences of God being with them. Then, too, we feel the presence of God in our own hearts through the ideals and aspirations which sweep over our souls.

A conclusive proof of God being with men was given by Jesus at the last supper when He told the disciples of the sorrow, pain, anguish, doubt and possibly death which was ahead of them. He also told them that He was going to leave them and yet His parting message was, "Let not your hearts be troubled."

How much the men and women of to-day need help such as God can bring. It matters not what our heartbreak may be "God is with us."—with us with an infinite friendship, a tender hope that not even death can take away. We all have battles to fight and victories to win. Surely in all our battling and striving the God of Jacob is our refuge.

While God lives right must win. While God is with us, sacrifice can never be in vain and wrong can never eternally triumph.

WORLD'S LARGEST SHIP MAY GO TO WHITE STAR

The "Bismarck" Will Be Completed And Turned Over to the Allies

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The world's largest ship, the Hamburg-American liner Bismarck, 56,000 tons, is to be completed immediately and handed over to the Reparation Commission for one of the Allies, according to The Daily Mail.

It is believed that she will be given to the White Star Company the newspaper says, to replace the Brittanic, which was torpedoed or mined while a hospital ship in the Mediterranean.

FORD SENT DUMMY TO BLACKMAILER

Had Written Letter Demanding $25,000 on Pain of Death.

DETROIT, July 29.—Edward ordon, 22, was held in $5,000 bail today, when he was arraigned on a charge of attempting to blackmail Henry Ford and his son Edsel. The post-office authorities allege thta Gordon wrote the Fords three letters, in which he demanded they send him $25,00 on pain of death. A dummy package was mailed and Gordon was arrested.

Of French invention is a steam-heating radiator in which water is boiled by electricity.

DIED FROM EFFECTS OF ILLUMINATING GAS

Terrence Collins, of Lindsay, Was Found Unconscious in Toronto Hotel.

LINDSAY, July 31. — The death took place at Toronto General Hospital on Friday afternoon of the late Terrence Collins. The deceased, it will be remembered, was poisoned with illuminating gas at the Daly House, Toronto, last week, and had been in an unconscious state practically ever since.

The late Mr. Collins was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Collins, of Ops township, and had been a resident of Rochester for the past few years. He is survived by two brothers, Charles, of West Ops, Cornelius, of Lindsay, and one sister, Miss Ellen, of Lindsay. The late Rev. Father Collins, of Bracebridge, and Rev. Father Collins, of Toronto, were brothers of deceased.

WHO WILL MARRY AT ALLEN THEATRE?

RING AND BEAUTIFUL PRESENT OFFERRED TO COUPLE FOR CEREMONY ON THE STAGE.

To disprove the theory advanced in Marshall Neilan's most recent film production, "Don't ever Marry," the Allen Theatre is offering to furnish a marriage license, a gold wedding ring, and a beautiful present, to say nothing of the minister to perform the ceremony, to any couple who are willing to be married on the stage of the Allen Theatre, Thursday evening, August 5. This offer is genuine and is made in good faith by the management of the Allen Theatre, who do not agree with Marshall Neilan when he advises young people to forego the bonds of matrimony.

In his so-called "mirthquake of laughter" Neilan sets forth several reasons why modern young folks should stay away from the altar and orange glossoms. Of course, his production is made in a comedy vein, but at the same time there is what is purported to be sound advice in the pictorial expose of proposed matrimony.

The management of the Allen Theatre has purchased a handsome wedding ring and a beautiful present which will be presented to the couple who will join hands in marriage in front of the audience at the theatre Thursday night at 8 o'clock. The affair will be conducted in a simple but effective manner, and will be as binding as any such ceremony can be.

Further, the Allen Theatre will present a season pass to the lucky benedict if he will, after six months of married life, present himself at the theatre and state that his marriage has been a complete success. This pass will be good for the groom and wife.

"Don't Ever Marry" will be the principal attraction at the Allen Theatre for 2 days, commencing August 4th.

NEED A LONG TIME TO SOLVE RUSSIAN PROBLEM

Two or Three Years at Least before She will begin to Help Europe.

PARIS, July 29. — Russia is so disordered that in spite of its natural resources its demands on the rest of Europe would far outweigh what she could supply and only add to the burdens of already overburdened taxpayers.

The Russian situation as seen by the British government heads presents a problem that will take a long time to solve. Their view is that whatever course may be pursued, Europe will not be able to feel the benefit from increased wealth production in Russia for two or three years.

GERMANS TO BUY SHIPS.

Hamburg Reports Contract Pending for 300,000 Tons from England Formerly German Vessels.

Berlin—Germany will close a contract for the purchase of approximately 350,000 tons of merchant shipping from England, according to advices from Hamburg. These ships were originally German, but were taken over by England in accordance with peace treaty agreements.

The vessels in the deal are understood to include the Imperator and ships of the "President" type.

The reason for the British decision to sell was said to be fear of an over surplus of tonnage, which would close down British ship yards and throw large number of workmen out of employment.

ABOUT MADRIGAN SINGING.

Madrigal singing was a common accomplishment in England for some 300 years—say from 1500 to about 1800. It was in its glory in Queen Elizabeth's reign, but got a terrible set-back at the time of the Puritans, from which it never fully recovered, even when music was again in favour, as independent instrumental accompaniment began to be the musical fashion during the reign of Charles II., and in the nineteenth century piano-playing, rather than choral singing, was by far the most widely cultivated form of music. To be sure, there was still plenty of singing, but among the amateurs, at least, it was largely of a much less musicianly type—mostly trivial ballads or sentimental songs, with an accompaniment of tonic and dominant chords.

It ought to be a matter of pride to any musicians of Anglo-Saxon ancestry to realise that during the three hundred years above noted English composers took an absolutely leading place in the art of pure part writing for voices; they equalled intellectually the very best composers of Italy, Germany, and the Netherlands, and excelled them in melodiousness and in a feeling for what was truly vocal in the leading of the parts.

A Bountiful Supply of Coloured Wools To Keep Apace With The Vogue for Knitted Sweaters, Tams, Scarfs, etc.

"A substitute for twirling the fingers" is the way some one has accounted for the prevailing craze of womankind to knit pull-overs, sweaters, tams, etc. It may be so---at any rate, it is a pleasant way to while away the leisure hour. But we believe that the bright soft hues of beautiful wools have captivated their fancy and a desire to adorn themselves with these lovely colours and express their individuality in the working, is the true reason. We have seen to it that there is no shortage of colors in our stock of wools.

It was Raining on One Side of the Street the Other Day and the Sun was Shining on the Other and pedestrians went hurrying across the street for a place in the sun.

On the business streets of many cities there is a cloudy side and a sunny side. One side attracts more people than the other. In such places there is usually much jockeying, by business houses, for position to secure a place in the sun.

We have never investigated, to find out, which side of our main street is the best for business, but we have sufficient confidence in our merchandise to believe that they would sell as readily on one side as the other

LAWN COMPETITION ENTRIES MUST BE IN BY AUGUST 10

PRIZE LIST AND NUMBER OF CLASSES INCREASED—THOS. MACVITTIE JUDGE.

Once again all residents in the city will have the opportunity of entering in the annual lawn and garden competition, to be held between August 16th and 21st, under the auspices of the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

Following the precedent established last year, extra competitions are again open to children and to the officials of church, school and factory grounds.

Considerable interest in all the competitions were shown last year, and it is much desired that this year will never prove a greater interest and that all eligible property will be entered.

No greater stimulus is given to the citizens to make Peterborough the "City of Flowers," than this yearly competition with its attractive prizes.

To allow all persons to enter no fee is charged, and to make a fair competition the society directors will not be allowed to enter, excepting in class A.

All entries will be made in writing and forwarded to the secretary, Peterborough Horticultural Society, Board of Trade chambers, not later than August 10th.

Competitions.

Class A.—Open to all for best kept grounds surrounding premises, 1st prize, the F. W. Adam's Cup for one year; 2nd prize, $5.00, and 3rd, $3.00.

Class B.—Amateurs only, for best lawn and surrounds, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00 and 3rd, $2.00.

Class C.—Workingmen only, for best garden and surroundings, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class D.—Best display of window boxes, hanging baskets or urns, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class E.—Best flower-bed cared for solely by boy or girl 16 years of age or under, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class F.—Best kept factory grounds, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class G.—Best kept church grounds, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class H.—Best kept school grounds, 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Judging.

The judging in the competition this year will in all probability be in the competent hands of the well-known horticulturist of Toronto, in the person of Mr. Thomas MacVittie, chief gardener for Sir Henry Pellatt.

Mr. MacVittie will be at a considerable inconvenience in coming to Peterborough during the week of August 16th to 23rd, as it is the midst of his extremely busy season, therefore it is expected that the citizens will co-operate with the Horticultural Society in making as many entries in competitions as possible.

Fall Bulbs.

Members of the Horticultural Society will be pleased to learn that the fall bulbs will be delivered from an order placed with Van Meeuwen and Tegelaar, of Lisse, Holland, during December of last year, thereby ensuring as early a distribution of fall options as possible.

HAMILTON WOMAN GAINED 25 POUNDS

MRS. NICHOLS ONLY WEIGHED NINETY POUNDS BEFORE SHE STARTED TAKING TANLAC.

"My wife has not only gained 25 pounds in weight but is enjoying better health than she has for years past and we have got to thank Tanlac for it," declared Richard J. Nichols of 88 East 24th Street, Mountain Top, Hamilton, a few days ago.

"Owing to the strain of bringing up the children and doing all her own work she had been in a general run-down condition for the past, four years. Her appetite was very poor, and the little that she ate caused indigestion. The gas would form so bad as to bloat her up so that she could hardly breathe. She had frequent sick headaches that almost drove her frantic, and she always got up in the morning feeling dull and heavy. She lost flesh until she only weighed 90 pounds and although she tried all sorts of medicines none of them gave her more than temporary relief.

"She heard of so many people being helped by Tanlac that she thought she would like to try it and so I got a bottle for her. It was surprising to see the way it gave her an appetite and in a short time she could eat anything that she desired and never had any trouble with gas or indigestion afterwards. As I have already said she has gained 25 pounds in weight and feels fine all the time. That tired feeling is all gone; she never has a headache now, sleeps well at night, and gets up feeling as fresh as a May morning. I can't just describe how thankful I am for the great good it has done her, and I have every confidence in recommending the medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Wayne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.—(Advt.)

CANADA ABLE TO WEATHER CRISIS

PREMIER MEIGHEN'S CONFIDENCE BASED ON CHARACTER AND INITIATIVE OF PEOPLE.

(Canadian Press)

FORT WILLIAM, Aug. 2.—"There is no cause for apprehension in respect of the financial condition of Canada," said Hon. Arthur Meighen, Canada's Prime Minister, here yesterday.

"Business opinion anticipates a general world contraction. Business opinion is not always correct, but, in any event, Canada is in a better condition to withstand the world stringency than any other country with the possible exception of the United States.

"I don't base this contention entirely upon the tremendous natural resources which we possess, but mainly on the character and resourcefulness of our people. To the prime common sense and great capacities of Canadian citizens do I refer the maintenance of stable times in the Dominion."

FARMERS CAN'T COMPETE WITH THE CITY'S WAGES

Professor Suggests Friendly Relations With Big Business Men.

(Canadian Press)

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., August 2.—Speaking here at the closing session of the rural educational conference on the subject "What Ails Us", Professor G. I. Christie of Purdue University, asserted that there were "too many diamonds and not enough alarm clocks; too many serge suits, and not enough overalls."

As an inducement to keeping the boys on the farms he advocated closer and more friendly relations between city business men and the farmer, stating that the farmer cannot compete with the business man in the payment of high wages, which has caused an acute shortage of farm help.

WIFE'S DEATH CAUSES FARMER TO END LIFE

OTTAWA, July 30.— Temporarily deranged through brooding over the death of his wife, which occurred last November, George Shouldice, a well-known farmer of Duclos, Masham township, Que., aged 53 years, ended his own life by shooting yesterday morning.

A trail of tragedy marks the history of this unfortunate family. A son ended his life about 20 years ago, while another son and daughter are in an asylum.

ALL TO CHRIST WE OWE.

If on life's journey, we have trod
The steep, straight, narrow way,
Never, from that ardous path,
Wandering, perverse, astray.

It is because, our steps are led,
By Guardian ever nigh
Upheld, by an almighty arm
And guided, by His eye.

If we have kept God's Holy Day
From works, and words profane
Nor spent its Hallowed hours in toil
Or followed pleasure's train.

It is, that He who bade us keep
The Sabbath, to His name,
Has given to us, that needed grace
And strength, to do the same.

If, we when tried and tempted, sore
By Satan's subtle power,
Have safely passed, unscathed, unstained,
Temptation's crucial hour.

His are the glory, honor, praise,
And victory alone,
Who, well, our frailty, and the might
Where others fell, if we have stood
Of Satan's wiles has known.

And won the well fought day.
'Twas, that our Heavenly Captain fought
On our side, 'mid the fray.

If running well, our appointed race
We win the shining prize
A crown, of everlasting life,
And mansion in the skies.

It will not be by aught of worth
Oh merit, we can show
But to Christ's blood, and righteousness
Our Title Deed, we'll owe.

THROWN OVERBOARD AND DROWNED DURING FIGHT

QUEBEC, July 29.— Last evening three French sailors on board the French Government schooner Narmoutiers quarreled and one of them was thrown overboard during the fight and drowned. Two sailors were arrested this morning in connection with the affair.

Real-Fruit Desserts The Rarest Sort

The only gelatine dessert which has fruit-juice flavors sealed in glass is Jiffy-Jell.

No artificial flavor can take the place of fruit. For Jiffy-Jell the fruit is crushed, condensed and sealed in vials. A bottle of this liquid essence comes in the package. And sugar is used—not saccharine—to sweeten Jiffy-Jell.

Jiffy-Jell comes in ten flavors. Try loganberry and pineapple for desserts. Try lime-fruit flavor for tart salad jell. Try mint for a refreshing mint jell.

UNFITTED FOR PEACE AS WELL AS WAR BY SHOES PRIMARILY MADE TO SELL

FEET OF MEN AND WOMEN ALIKE DISTORTED ONLY IN A LESS DEGREE THAN THOSE OF CHINESE WOMEN—CAMPAIGN PREPARING AGAINST ILL-FITTING SHOE.

With reference to the campaign which will shortly be launched in the city for the banishment of ill-fitting shoes, Dr. N. H. Sutton told The Examiner to-day that the condition of the nation's feet found during medical examination overseas gave the campaign, which is nation-wide, the needed incentive to direct action.

In the American army, he said, from twenty to thirty per cent. of the men examined were found unfit for the first line trenches due to faulty feet. These men were actually fit for active service elsewhere, but marked B or C due to the results of ill-fitting shoes worn either in infancy or in later years. The percentage in other of the allied forces was found to be equally large.

Industrial medical surveys have pointed out that the condition in civilian life is even worse than in the army and that the condition is more prevalent among women than men.

Is Preventable.

The whole condition, the doctor contends, is preventable by sane judgment in the purchase of shoes and arises largely from a matter of fashion.

The Chinese women whom Christians have pitied are only worse off than their white sisters in a matter of degree, they having done with bandages what we do to a less extent with shoes.

Worse Shape.

The feet of the civilized nations are in a worse shape to-day than ever before, due largely to the advent of the large manufacturers of ready-made shoes and boots which are made to sell and the lasts for which are altered with the idea in view of following all changes in fashion. Exaggeration in styles in footwear has been much greater in women's than in men's footwear.

In the old days before 99 per cent. of the population was shod in ready-made footwear, the days when the shoemaker measured the foot for the boot, days of hand craft rather than machine manufacture, there was at least an honest effort made to fit the foot, although the styles varied in the different ages.

New Condition.

Within the past fifty years a new condition has arisen when 99 per cent. of the public is wearing ready-made shoes, giving rise to many complications.

An instance of the evils resulting is such as a man coming into the town to purchase among many other articles a pair of boots for his boy at home. He knows the leather he wants and thinks he knows the size but knows nothing of the width of the boy's foot. The purchase is made by guess and there is one chance in ten that the boot will suit the foot for which it is intended.

Another instance is the direct admission of a clerk in a shoe store who when asked how he went about fitting the female clientele, said ordinarally a woman announces that she wants a pair of shoes, naming the leather and the sizes as 3. The clerk produces two or three pairs of the kind of shoes wanted—but size four. This is a simple preformance on the part of the clerk, but one preventing the proper fitting. In fact the "hit and miss" custom maintained in the sale of footwear has gone so far that in many shoe stores a foot measure is never used, in most seldom and in many of the latter cases with little knowledge.

Baby Clinic.

The Baby Clinic has revealed many cases of distorted feet due to ill-fitting footwear which have come as a surprise to the mothers of the children.

EDITOR FLATTERS CANADIAN READERS

VISITING BRITISHER SAYS SMALL TOWN PAPERS HERE ARE GOOD.

(Canadian Press)

QUEBEC, Aug. 2.—Speaking at a dinner given in honor of captain and officers of the S.S. Victorian, Robert Donald of the Yorkshire "Observer," proposed the toast of "Our Canadian Colleagues," paying tribute to the excellence of the Canadian newspapers, especially as regards their editorials. He said that Canadians must be more intelligent than Britishers, since they supported good newspapers in smaller towns than was the case in Great Britain."

NEW ZEALAND FOR IMPERIAL PREFERENCE

Tariff Revisions Will be Made to Correct Anomalies.

(Canadian Press)

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, August 2.—Speaking at a luncheon to the British Trade Commisioners recenlty, Premier Massey said the New Zealand tariff would be revised next year, as many anomalies had crept in since its revision thirteen years ago.

Continuing, the Premier said Imperial preference was now part of the British government's policy. The principle had been adopted and a wedge driven in, and he hoped the wedge would be driven in farther and that New Zealand would give fuller support.

Europe had relied upon Germany for sugar, Mr. Massey said, which should be raised within the Empire. It should never again rely upon a foreign country for anything that could be produced in the Empire. England had to give up according preference to all peoples and confine it to the British Empire, he said in conclusion.

PETERBORO DEFEATED LINDSAY IN CENTRAL LEAGUE FIXTURE

PETES CLOSE HOME GAMES WITH WIN OVER GRAY BIRDS, SCORE 7-2—NOW LEAD THE LEAGUE AS RESULT OF OSHAWA'S VICTORY OVER BELLEVILLE.

Manager Soloman's Central League leaders closed their home schedule on Saturday by defetaing Lindsay by 7 runs to 2 in a well played game. The Grey Birds surprised the fans with their work and caused much wonderment at their lowly position in the race. Lefty McElroy was in great form and the locals found his offerings not at all to their liking. Five hits were the total of their efforts with the willow and of these only two were of the honest-to-goodness variety, the reminder being bunts. However, these were all bunched in the fourth inning, and along with a couple of errors, accounted for four runs and the game. Hap Harrison worked the first six innings for Peterborough and was never in very much trouble. Four hits were all Lindsay could collect from him, and no two of them came in one inning. Kirn finished the game in great style, holding Lindsay hitless and scoreless for the last three innings.

Peterborough was retired in order for three innings, while Lindsay scored one in the first and another in the fourth and were leading two to nothing when the Petes came to bat in the fourth. In this session after Murray had doubled a bunting attack was staged with telling effect and after this the game was never in doubt. There were no sensational fielding features, although Lowe made a nice catch of McMahon's drive and Murray and Swanston each caught several foul flies in great style. For Lindsay, Logan, catching his first game of the season, showed good form and McElroy contributed some nice fielding, as did also Coombs and Carew. By virtue of Belleville's defeat in Oshawa on Saturday, Peterborough are a full game in the lead and a win in Oshawa next Saturday will make them Central League champions. A loss will result in a tie and play-off. Following is the box score and play by innings:

Fifth Inning.

Lindsay — Ashton struck out. Coombs fouled to Murray and Williamson did likewise to Swanston. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Peterborough —Murray walked and stole second. Rose was hit and was forced at second by Swanston, Wettlauffer to McMahon, Murray scoring. Harrison was safe on McMahon's error, Swanston scoring and Harrison going to second on the throw. Harrison was caught off second, McElroy to Wettlauffer. Holyman went out, McElroy to Coombs. Two runs, no hits, two errors.

Sixth Inning.

McDonald fouled to Swanston. Carew fanned. McElroy singled and was forced at second by McMahon, Cherrett to Holyman. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Shag out, McMahon to Coombs. Kirn, batting for Adams, was walked. Lowe was hit for the second time. Kirn was out at third on Cherrett's bunt, McElroy to Carew, and Murray went out, Wettlauffer to Coombs. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Lindsay—Kirn now pitching, Harrison playing first base and Rose centre field. Wettlauffer reached second on Cherrett's wild throw of his grounder. Logan sacrificed. Kirn to Harrison, Wettlauffer taking third. Ashton hit to Murray who threw to Cherrett, apparently catching Logan off third, but the umpire caled him safe. Coombs fanned and Williamson popped to Kirn No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough — Rose struck out. Swanston was retired. Logan to Coombs on his bunt and Harrison flied to Coombs. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Inning.

Lindsay—McDonald walked. Carew grounded to Harrison. McElroy was safe on Holyman's error. McDonald taking third. McElroy was out stealing, Swanston making a perfect throw to Holyman. Wettlauffer fanned. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Holyman singled to centre. Shag sacrificed, McElroy to Coombs and Holyman went to third on Coombs' bad throw to second, and scored on a wild pitch. Kirn and Lowe fanned. One run, one hit, one error.

Ninth Inning.

Lindsay—Logan was safe on Kirn's error. Ashton and Coombs were thrown out by Cherrett. Williamson at bat was chased from the game by Umpire Butler for kicking too srenuously over a called strike and Chambers who replaced him, ended the game by grounding out to Harrison. No runs, no hits, one error.

CANADIAN WOOLENS DEFEATED IN THE CUP TIE GAME 5 TO 1

M'DOWALL OPENS THE SCORING—CHAMBERS' NICE GOAL—CALEYS REGISTER FOUR GOALS IN SPITE OF CALLADINE'S GOOD GOAL-KEEPING—WOOLENS FELL AWAY—CALEDONIANS 5, CANADIAN WOOLENS 1.

On Saturday afternoon a fair attendance of spectators witnessed the first game of Football under the elimination Cup Tie Series between the Canadian Woollens and Caledonians at Nicholls Oval.

At 4 o'clock prompt Referee Coombs called the two captains together for the Woollens to lose the toss. McMillan given the choice of end decided to take advantage of the wind.

The Teams

Canadian Woollens—S. Calladine, goal, J. Cridland and J. Hillman backs J. Montgomery, J. Pickford and G. Hodson, half-backs; C. Thorpe, H. Jones, J. Chambers, E. Bell and D. Jones, forwards.

Caledonians—C. Fenner, goal, R. Willshaw and J. Willshaw backs, A. McFeat, S. McMillan and H. Frost, half-backs; R. Hannah, M. Shaw, Jas Shaw, J. Terriss and R. McDowall, forwards.

The Game.

Chambers set the ball in motion for to attack the Caley's goal like a flash, for J. Willshaw to punt to centre-field. Montgomery returned the ball straight for goal but the Caley's right back diverted it past for a corner that was put past by Thorpe. From the goal kick Hannah transfered the play to the other end by whipping across a beauty to go for nothing. On mid-field J. Shaw made for goal to be stopped by Calladine in nick of time. He punted to Thorpe who put past at the Caley's end. McDowall beat along the line to work a corner of Jackson that was fruitless. A raid by Chambers compelled Frost to hit the ball with his hand to save the situation. From he free kick Montgomery tested Fenner with a hard drive. Jas. Willshaw cleared and J. Shaw accepting the pass travelled down centre of the field to get an unproductive corner. Play returned to Woollens and for Calladine to clear with 3 men upon him.

Even Play.

Even ahd interesting exchanges took place with each side showing nice football. Matt Shaw was called up for being offside. Hillman shot the ball up to Chambers who tackled three men and letting drive with a left footer he lashed the ball over the cross bar. On a individual run on the left wing by Terriss and McDowall, the Woollens full back conceded a corner. McDonald put across a nice one for Calladine to jump up into the corner of the cross bar to clear. Through the efforts of Pickford the whole Woollens forward line played havoc with Caley's defence and compelled Fenner to clear quickly. McMillan put past from a foul-kick and a few minutes afterwards Jas. Shaw was brought up for offsides. A break away by Chambers was checked by McMillan when he was about through

McDowall Opened the Scoring

The centre-half slahed the ball out to McDowall who tested Calladine with a hard shot. The goal-keeper cleared to Hodson and the latter being slow in clearing left Hannah in possession to swing across a left-footer to the left wing McDowall beat Calladine with an unsavable shot. Encouraged by their success, they raided time and again but Calladine would always kick up the ball from the foot of some Caley forward at critical moment.

Chambers Nice Goal.

On a raid. Hillman cleared to Chambers and running the full length of the field he let drive for goal. Fenner was positive he had the ball but to his own surpise he let it go through. A great amount of mid-field play was transacted with each team making an occasional raid. Just as the whistle blew for half time Hannah received a slight injury. Half time Canadian Woollens 1, Caledonians, 1.

After a short interval the teams resumed with the Woollens being the more aggresive and hemmed the Caledonians defence down but they responded well in clean tactics. A solo run by Hannah left Hodson behind and the outside right being tackled by Hillman put across for nobody to accep the pass. Jack Cridland punted to Thorpe who ran the ball past the Caley's end. Just afterwards Chambers was played offside by the Defence and scored after the whistle sounded.

Matt Shaw Headed Through

J. Willshaw lifted the ball to McDowall and wasting no time travelled into the corner along with J. Cridland but the outside left lifted the ball over their heads to the centre of the goal. Jas. Shaw tried to head it into goal but Calladine got there before him and Matt Shaw standing near by headed through. From the centre E. Bell and D. Jones carried the ball down upon the Willshaw's to get an unproductive corner McMillan put up to Matt Shaw who tested Calladine.

McMillan's Rocket Shot.

The goal-keeper cleared to mid-field but the Caley's forwards got hold and all had a try at goal, until Cridland put out to McMillan who let drive with a long rocket shot to deceive Calladine. Not content with such a lead, the Caley's forwards returned through Jas. Shaw and beating Hillman on - tackle went straight into goal to register the fourth goal.

Woollen's Fell Away

Time and again the Woollens would try to get down into the Caledonian area but he whole defence seemed to be unbeatable. Even the close passing of Jones, Chambers and Bell went for nothing. On a visit to the Woollens' goal by M. Shaw, he sent in a rocket shot from the corner and the force of it knocked down the goal- keepers. Cridland cleared to mid-field for Hannah to give a corner but the referee gave a goal kick.

Terriss Scored the Fifth.

From the goal kick Jas. Shaw accepted the pass and beating Hillman on a tackle travelled in upon Calladine to clear but Teriss returned the ball ino goal before the Custodian had time to get back. Play dwindled down to an uninteresting stage with each side making an occasional raid. The ball was in mid field when full time arrived Caledonians 5; Canadian Woollens 1.

Analysis of the Game

The following analysis of the game gives the run of play:—

Canadian Woollens	1st half	2nd half	Total
Goals	1	0	1
Goal kicks	10	13	23
Corners	2	0	2
Fouls	2	0	2
Offsides	0	2	2

Caledonians	1st half	2nd half	Total
Goals	1	4	5
Goal kicks	5	8	13
Corners	2	2	4
Fouls	3	0	3
Offsides	1	0	1

NOTES ON GAME

On the Woollens team E. Bell, late of the Machine Gunners, played inside left and a new player named Pickford, a centre half, made a creditable debut.

Without doubt Chambers is an ideal centre forward and his distribution of play to the wing men should bring more goals. The wing men should centre quickly.

The Caledonians introduced a new inside left, Terriss, and along with McDowall produced nice combination

The goal scorers for the game were Chambers, Canadian Woollens 1; Caledonians: McDowall, M. Shaw, J. Shaw, McMillan and J. Terriss.

ATHLETES ARRIVING FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

CANADA IS WELL REPRESENTED AMONG NATIONS OF THE WORLD.

ANTWERP, July 29.— Both the main Olympic stadium and the swimming stadium will be opened to the atletes for training within a few days. The swimming stadium has just been completed, and its formal opening will take place on Sunday with a competition of Belgian swimmers.

The Olympic Executive Committees moved their headquarters from Brussels to Antwerp to-day.

May Add To Entries.

Entries in almost all events have now been closed, but it is understood the lists may be added to because of delay in the mail service.

England and the United States will be represented in all the swimming competitions, Canada and Australia will take part in many of them, while South Africa is listed for participation in several of the events, including those for women. Some of the other entries in the swimming competitions are:

Holland, 100 merte and 1,500-meter swims, diving for men and women and water polo; Finland, 200 and 400-metre swims for men and diving for men and women; Monaco, 100, 400 and 1.500-metre swims for men; Denmark diving.

Sweden and Belgium have not yet been listed, except as general competitors.

Cameron in Decathlon.

Canada has a contestant — John Cameron, of Vancouver—for the Decathlon, and the United States, Italy, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Finland, Norway, Sweden and Belgium have also been listed .In the modern Pentathlon the United States, Belgium, Egypt, Denmark, France and Finland have contestants entered.

The gymnastic entries find the following countries listed: England, Czecho-Slovakia, United States, England, Egypt, Norway, Belgium, France, Monaco, Denmark and Sweden.

Marathon Runners.

C. W. Gitsham, the South African runner who finished second in the Marathon race at Stockholm in the 1912 Olympic games, arrived here yesterday and began training at the stadium. He was accompanied by another Marathon entrant, Richardson, and by the cyclists Rattenbrun and Proclin. The other South African Olympic athletes are still in England.

The cyclists practised yesterday over a 170 metre course and found it ideal.

Open Air Swimming Pool.

Other arrivals for the games included two Japanese Marathon runners and the Australian swimmers Ivan Stedman, Wlliam Herald and H. M. Hay. The latter tried out the Olympic swimming pool, which is situated in the open air. They found it cold and the fresh water very difficult for swiming.

Running Deer Shooting.

Norway is the winner on points of the Olympic hunting arms competition as a result of her victories in the running deer shooting. Counting three points for first, place two points for second place and one point for third place the following results were obtained

Norway—First in all four of the deer shooting contests; tied for second place in one individual event, and placed third in another. Total 14 1-2 points.

United States— First, second and third places in the individual clay target contest; first in the clay target team, and third in the team single shots at the running deer. Total, 10 points.

Sweden— Two second places and one tie for second place in the deer shooting ,and one third place in the clay target shooting. Total, 6 1-2 points.

Finland—One second place and one ing. Total, 3 points.

Belgium—One second in the clay target. Total, 2 points.

GIVEN AN AUTO.

The members of Stayner and Brenwood parishes presented their pastor, Rev. Father O'Brien, with an automobile on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Encourage Sensible Buying

Sensible men, who really stop to think, prefer to buy their clothes at what they consider a FAIR price at all seasons of the year.

Wise dressers do not encourage paying excessive prices part of the time to merchants looking for sufficient margain of profits to hold "Sales" and "Mark-Downs" at certain times.

FASHION - CRAFT'S all year round policy of buying the best, cutting out unnecessary overhead expenses, and being satisfied with moderate prices, has been found the wise policy.

FASHION-CRAFT has no "hang-fire" garments to palm off. Every garment is as good as the best.

Maybe You Feel

That your business does not need the punch of better advertising.

Neither does the man from Borneo believe he needs clothes until he tries 'em on. Then you couldn't tear them away from him.

Suppose you make a trial now while the Advertising is good.

ALD. WHITEHOUSE AND MAYOR AWAY A WEEK

ATTENDED MUNICIPAL CONVENTION IN QUEBEC CITY.

Mayor A. A. McIntyre and Ald. F. Whitehouse returned from Quebec city on Saturday night after representing Peterboro at the twentieth annual convenion of the Union of Canadian municipalities held in that city on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

A resolution that provoked considerable discussion and met with the general approval of the delegates was in regard to the opposing of bonuses by municipalities to induce industrial concerns to locate in the municipality. That the principle is not a good one and does not make for the betterment of the community was the opinion of pracically all delegates and a resolution to this effect was adopted.

The Mayor and Ald. Whitehouse were away one week and during this period were greatly missed at the City Hall. Two attempts were made to raise a quorum for a Finance meeting but they both failed. A meeting will be held before the Council meets to-night.

WESTERN CROWD GREETED MEIGHEN

(Canadian Press.)

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Aug. 2. —This city to-day left off its daily toil and turned out to welcome Hon. Arthur Meighen, first Premier of Canada from the west of the Great Lakes. There was no politics in reception .The City Council and Board of Trade arranged the day's programme and the city's population was augmented by thousands from Winnipeg, Brandon, Manitou and Carberry. Premier in a speech is expected by many to make a straightforward declaration of the Government's policy.

Nearly 80,000 British Soldiers in Ireland

New Bill to Institute Civilian Court Martial.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, August 2. — Sir Hamar Greenwood to-day introduces bil to make provision for the maintenance of order in Ireland, which, it is understood will institute something like civilian court martial. The remaining stages of this bill will be taken in the Commons under forced conditions, on Thursday or Friday. The Lords will receive the measure next week, passing all the stages in one day.

DUBLIN, August 1. — Fears that the Irish situation, which is daily growing more tense, may burst into a general conflagration at any moment are expressed in responsible quarters here. At the present time there is virtually no civil law south of the Boyne river, except that administered by Republican courts but it is pointed out that each day finds the balance between miliary and revolutionary rule growing more equal.

It is estimated there are between sixty thousand and eighty thousand fully equipped British soldiers in Ireland and they are being reinforced daily by men arriving from across the channel. As a result there are more frequent and more stubborn battles between the troops and the Republican volunteers, who for a time had things much their own way. There have also been more arrests for carrying arms and seditious literature as reports to courts-martial show It is expected that the number of these arrests will increase if the government succeeds in carrying its "drastic measures" in the House of Commons next week.

Reprisals by policemen and soldiers on villages suspected of harboring men responsible for the attacks on the armed forces of the crown, are also expected here, the police being particularly aroused over the attacks made on their fellow members. In the meantime the Sinn Feiners, in carrying on their campaign, have virtually cleared the country of barracks. They are now turning their attention to country houses where military forces might be housed, and a number of these have been burned during the past ten days.

Nothing Safe in Ireland.

Attacks on the coast guard stations for the purpose of capturing explosives have been stopped. It has been established that this practice was imperilling the lives of seamen, who could not be warned of dangers except by these guards. Homes of coast that might either be used against the republican movement or that might assist it.

Irish banks which do business with the Bank of England and necessarily make periodical shipments of bullion to the latter institution, have called on the military authorities for armed guards for the lorries that move the bullion at night. This has led to reports that bank reserves are being moved to England.

In Dublin crowds gather on the streets at night, impeding traffic and frightening nervous persons on the slightest provocation, and the police stand idly by, seemingly realizing that interference might lead to something more serious. Just before midnight, the curfew hour, the orderly elements stream away to their home, but long after this there are many stragglers about the streets. As a result a score or more are gathered in for being out of their homes without permits. At street cornes, night and day, can be sen numerous "gun men" representing both sides of the conflict. They are ready for action at a moment's notice. Some of these have come from Canada and the United States.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. K. STABLER

The death occurred on Saturday morning of a well known resident of Smith Township in the person of Annie Amelia Westlake, beloved wife of J. K. Stabler of Bridgenorth, aged 68 years.

The deceased was a daughter of the late George Westlake of Smith Township and one daughter, Mrs. Robert Tedford of Bridgenorth. Three brothers William and Charles of Peterboro and John of Cavendish Township and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Tindle of Smith Township survive.

Mrs. Stabler was a member and an enthusiastic worker in the Bridgenorth Methodist Church and in the Ladies Aid of the Church she will be missed greatly.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of her daughter at Bridgenorth to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Mr. Huffman conducted the funeral service.

MRS. F. W. MILLER

The death occurred this morning of Mary Ephgrave Miller, wife of F. W. Miller, City Relief Officer, about 4 o'clock. The deceased had been ill for four months.

The late Mrs. Miller was born in Herefordshire Eng., 72 years ago, and had resided in Peterboro 46 years.

She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Ada of Los Angeles, and five sons, George and Fred of Chicago, William of Rochester and Walter and Thomas of Peterboro.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. R. Webb officiating.

NOVELTY IN AWNINGS BY J. J. TURNER & SONS

The new awning erected by J. J. Turner and Sons over the front of the Eastwood and Stock Studebaker show rooms on Charlotte street, is a novelty in awnings. The awning bears a large painting of a Studeaker car and advertising matter effectively arranged.

This type of awning serves the double purpose of an advertising board and awning and is a great saving over the billboard advertising. It has the advantage, which the billboard lacks ,of allowing the placing of the advertisement over the place of business and the paint helps to preserve the awning.

The awning has been photographed by Roy's and a cut of it will be published in the new J. J. Turner and Son's catalogue.

WILL CONSIDER THE CANADIAN CHALLENGE

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—Officials of the New York Club to-day acknowledged the rece ot of a telegram from Alexander C Ross, Canadian yachtsman challenging for America's Cup next year. An official said the challenge would be "duly considered."

Canada's Plan Impracticable.

HALIFAX, Aug. 2.—That the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron is willing to co-operate with A. C. Ross, formerly M.P. of Victoria and North Cape Breton, but now of Montreal, in his efforts to construct a yacht in this province to challenge for America's Cup, but that the scheme as at present propounded is scarcely practicable, is the substance of remarks by one of the squadron officials discussing the project. Mr. Ross suggests raising funds throughout the Dominion by public subscription, at the same time soliciting cooperation of all Canadian yachting organizations.

STOCK MARKET

(Special to the Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. — The stock market gave a good demonstration of restored confidence and an optimistic feeling at the outset to-day as a result of wholesale advances in railroad freight and passenger rates allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission houses were very heavy purchasers, buying orders flowing in from all sections of the country. Pools resumed their operations and the stock market showed more breadth and activity than for some time.

MOVED BY PICTURE.

Soviet Army Closing On Warsaw Confront Allies With Problem

EVACUATION OF POLISH CAPITAL IMMINENT—RETREAT SO HURRIED POLES DIDN'T STOP TO DESTROY BRIDGES—BRITISH MAY DISMISS RUSSIAN TRADE MISSION IF OFFENSIVE CONTINUES.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 4. — The Polish, French and Britsh military experts at Warsaw, telegraphed here last night stating that Warsaw must be evacuated within two or three days.

The Polish experts report that the Polish army along the Bug River — Warsaw's last line of defence — retreated so precipitately that they did not destroy the bridges behind them.

31 MILES FROM WARSAW

A special Russian cavalry corps,the military men reported, was driving southwest along the border of the Allenstein district, and were yesterday only 31 miles to the north-west of Warsaw. They reported that the Poles weer demoralized on the whole northern and central fronts and were falling back. The experts said they had virtually abandoned any hope of the Poles making a stand now.

AN IMPOSSIBLE DATE.

The members of the allied mission are convinced that the Soviet government does not intend to negotiate an armistice and declared their belief that the Russians had set the next meeting of the delegates for to-day, at Minsk knowing that it would be impossible for the Poles to arrive at that time, making this a pretext for further delay.

The Polish government it is now learned, is undecided as to whether it will send emissaries to Minsk.

DIFFICULT SITUATION CREATED FOR THE ALLIES.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 4. — The postponement of the armistice negotiations between Poland and Soviet Russia, is viewed here as creating a difficult and anxious situation which is likely to involve the abandonment of the proposed conferences here between representatives of the Allies, Poland, Russian Bolshevik, and the Russian Border states for the settlement of the Polish question.

The British government has issued no statement on the situation nor has it indicated in any way how it will act, but the report is current that it will suspend negotiations for the resumption of trade relations with Soviet Russia and if the Bolsheviki should continue to advance into Poland and should occupy Warsaw it wil send the Kamenoff-Krassin delegation back to Russia

SET CAPTURE FOR AUGUST 9TH.

LONDON, Aug. 3. — The occupation of Warsaw by the Bolshevists has been fixed for August 9th, says a despatch to the London Times from Berlin quoting a wireless despatch received by the National Zeitung.

ARMISTICE PARLEY ENDS.

Polish delegates are retracing their steps homeward from Baranovitch, where the conference with the Bolsheviki ended abruptly.

REDS PRESS ATTACK.

Bolshevist troops are reported everywhere to be pressing their attacsk on the entire battle line from the East Prussian front on the north nto the region adjacent to Lemberg, in Galicia, on the south.

STRENGTHEN WARSAW DEFENCE.

Inside the great battle arc the Poles are hurriedly preparing defences, particularly trenches and barbed wire entanglements, in front of Warsaw.

FEAR RADICAL GOVERNMENT.

Wireless reports received from Warsaw state that the Polish government will not be moved from Warsaw. It is said the officials fear that a radical government would be set up following their departure.

BRITISH SEND SHARP ENQUIRY TO SOVIET.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 4. — The British Government is irritated over what it believes is Soviet Russia's equivocation over the British suggestion that the Russians halt at the armistice line of demarkation in Poland, and begin peace negotiations. It has despatched a sharp note to the Soviet government demanding a yes or no answer as to whether that government intend to listen to the suggestion.

The note, it is reported, contains no threats, and is not in the nature of an ultimatum, simply requesting a quick answer as to what Soviet Russia intends to do.

After an ominous silence, the Foreign office this afternoon received a message from the British mission saying that it was still in Warsaw, but indicating that it might leave.

CHEESE BUYERS DECLINED TO BID BECAUSE OF FALLING EXCHANGE RATE

BOUGHT FOR HOME DEMAND AT 25 1-4 CENTS—1161 BOXES WERE OFFERED AT THIS MORNINGS' MARKET—FIVE BUYERS PRESENT.

One thousand one hundred and sixty-one boxes of cheese were boarded on the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning.

The following is the cheese boarded:—

	Boxes.
Warminster	110
Selwyn	100
Villiers	90
Warsaw	115
Westwood	80
Ormonde	175
Young's Point	95
N. Dummer	60
Lang	45
Stoney Lake	30
Norwood	185
Killarney	76
Total	1161

Five buyers were at the board—G. A. Gillespie, James Cook, of W. S. Cook & Son, Belleville; W. Flavelles, of Flavelles, Ltd., Lindsay; Wm Weir, of Otonabee, for the Ingersoll Packing Co.; H. R. Free, of Belleville, for the Harris-Abattoir, Toronto.

There was no bidding on the cheese. Mr. Free offered 25 cents. It is stated by the buyers that the export business has been hard hit in the last few days by the drop in exchange on the New York market. The English pound has fallen considerably and many of the companies have ceased exporting. Because of this condition buyers were nervous.

Mr. Gillespie said that he would not bid. Mr. Cook offered 25 1-8 for 300. Secretary E. Hawthorne was in favour of adjourning for two or three weeks. H. R. Free wanted to buy, stating that his company desired the cheese for the home market. He offered 25 1-4 cents for the Lakefield factories. His offer was accepted.

Cook offered to take Hastings at the same price and Flavelle took the Norwood district.

Mr. Free secured 480 boxes, Mr. Cook 390 and Mr. Flavelle 291.

The price secured two weeks ago was 27 9-16.

The board adjourned for three weeks.

MORE THAN ONE BARKIS APPARENTLY IS WILLIN'

BUT MAY BALK AT WEDDING ON STAGE DESPITE INDUCEMENTS.

"Lots of them," Mr. R. G. Furlong, manager of the Allen Theatre, stated to-day when asked if any leading inquiries had been made about the free license, ring and wedding present to be given to any couple who will be married on the stage of the theatre to-morrow evening. He said that so many prospective grooms had shown interest in the proposition, he will probably be compelled to have two weddings, one this evening and the second tomorrow. All kinds of inquiries have been made, ranging from whether there is any stipulation as to the location of the honeymoon to, as was overheard by a representative of The Examiner, "if the young lady might make her own choice of the minister." The latter inquirer Mr. Furlong assured might do as she pleased. The liveried ushers, with the crimson and gold costumes, recently supplied by the Allen Theatre, will lend an effective touch to the setting of the wedding.

FOUND BODY OF MISSING LITTLE GIRL

DISAPPEARED WITH COMPANION AT THOROLD THREE WEEKS AGO—NO TRACE OF OTHER GIRL YET.

IN SECLUDED PLACE

(Canadian Press.)

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 4 — The body of Margaret Boucock, the four-year-old Thorold child, missing for nearly three weeks, was found this morning with the clothes almost torn from her back, covered by a pile of weeds.

The discovery was made in a secluded part of the Welland ship canal by canal workmen who were inspecting a pipe line.

David McNeal, who was last seen with the little girl, is still being held on suspicion.

No trace has been found of six-year-old Katherine Beechman, the other Thorold child, missing for three months.

ROUGH PASSAGE FOR HON. MR. BIGGS

WILL BE INTRODUCED TO SOME OF PETERBORO'S ROADS.

During his visit in the city in connection with the U.F.O. picnic will be held on Thursday, August 26th, Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works and Highways, will be given concrete proof of the deficiencies of the Peterborough County roads by actually experiencing a drive over some of the main highways. He will be taken to Burleigh by the Douro road, considered the most beautiful drive in the county from a standpoint of scenery and down the Smith road. The condition of the latter it is believed will dispel any doubt Mr. Biggs may have of the need for immediate improvement.

ANNUAL STONEY LAKE REGATTA

TO BE HELD ON PETERBOROUGH'S CIVIC HOLIDAY, MONDAY, AUGUST 9TH—A DRAWING ATTRACTION.

One of the principal attractions for pleasure seekers on Peterboro's Civic Holiday, Monday, August 9th, is the anual Stoney Lake Regatta off Juniper Island. This popular attraction is held under the auspices of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association, and has never failed to influence large crowds from all sections of Peterborough. Among the list of aquatic events, four silver cups are offered for competition, in addition to numerous other spirited contests. These cups are to be awarded to the winners of the following four important races, viz., Motor Boat Race, Open Sailing, Dingy, and Canoe Paddling. The committee in charge of the races is as follows: Major Oxley, Clifford Harrison, W. S. Eddis, J. L. Dodsworth and W. F. Willoughby, with Messrs. J. S. Knapman as chairman, W. H. Fletcher, as secretary-treasurer, Mr. Underwood, Official Starter, and G. O. McCarthy as judge. The races begin at one o'clock p.m.

The Stoney Lake Navigation Co. are providing a first class service for the occasion. Arrangements have been made with the Grand Trunk Railway for a train service from Peterboro to connect with the steamboat service at Lakefield. Trains are scheduled to leave the G. T. R. station, Peterboro, on the morning of the Civic Holiday at 8.30 a.m., 12.15 noon and 5.40 p.m., connecting with steamers of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., for the regatta. Returning will leave the regatta at 4.30 so as to connect with train arriving in Peterboro at 7.00 p.m.

In addition to the above service the Steamers Stoney Lake and Manita will leave the George Street wharf at 8 o'clock a.m., returning will leave Juniper Island after the races are over. For further particulars see posters and card hangers.

THE WEATHER

No real warm weather has been experienced this summer up to the present time. The highest the thermometer has yet reached was 87 degrees. This occurred on two days early in the season. The nights have been particularly cool. Almost every night the thermometer goes down to a figure that occurs but rarely in the average summer. Last night's lowest point was 43 degrees, while that of Sunday night was 45 degrees.—W.P.

MISANTHROPIC HOBO KNOWS HOW TO WORK, BUT HAS DISTASTE FOR IT

Vagrant Russian Given Liberty on Suspended Sentence —Advised to Work on Bridge.

Constantine Rebeevice, the Russian who was remanded in Police Court last week on a charge of vagrancy, appeared in this morning's Police Court and was allowed to go on suspended sentence with the warning that if he was found out of work in Peterborough again work would be provided for him at Burwash.

Constantine naively admitted that he hadn't worked for the past two months and didn't believe in work. Asked by the magistrate if he had a trade, he made no answer, and when the magistrate named over all the trades from bricklaying to carpentry, he admitted that he knew all of these. He admitted serving 30 days in the Welland jail and told a travel tale which covered the seven years he has been in America, and had as its background most of the cities between the Atlantic seaboard and Chicago.

He had walked to Peterborough from Toronto and, asked if he had friends here, propounded the misanthropic philosophy that he didn't like anybody and hadn't any friends.

He was advised to seek work at the Hunter street bridge where it was believed there was plenty.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES QUESTION OF ENGAGING NEW ENGINEER

CITY ENGINEER PARSONS INSTRUCTED TO SUBMIT A LIST OF QUALIFIED ENGINEERS FOR THE COUNCIL'S CONSIDERATION —ALD. HAMILTON TOLD MR. BARBER HE HAD NEVER BEEN ASKED FOR A COST CLERK.

Fran's Barber may be discharged from the position of engineer on the Hunter street bridge. He appeared before the Committee of the Whole Council last night to explain an alleged discrepancy of $40,000 in his estimates and also to discuss the whole question of the cost of the bridge both the completed and uncompleted work.

Finally after a voluble and occasionally peppery discussion Mr. Barber retired and Ald. Gordon moved seconded by Ald. Copping that the bridge committee be authorized to ascertain what the fees would be to get another engineer to finish the bridge and to report to the Council upon what terms an engineer could be obtained to finish the work.

The special bridge committee went into session at once to avoid procrastination and the motion was changed that the City Engineer submit to the City Clerk a list of the names of engineers competent to construct the bridge, and that the city clerk communicate with each engineer to ascertain on what terms he would act.

The motion carried.

If a motion had been introduced as Ald. Copping threatened to do to dismiss Mr. Barber, in the opinion of some of the aldermen it would have passed.

Mayor McIntyre presided with Aldermen Gordon, Copping, Phelan, Crowe, Gainey, Morrison, Jones, Hamilton present. Mr. Barber entered the meeting shortly after eight o'clock.

Ald. Gordon read to the engineer the figures given in another section.

"I would like to ask Ald. Gordon when he made them up", said Mr. Barber.

"I made the computation to-night. The figures were available. I knew we were out something like $35,000 said Ald. Gordon.

Mr. Barber declared he had not anticipated such an array of figures for him and he was unprepared to discuss them.

"Why don't you come prepared to go into these things fully," asked Ald Gordon with a note of asperity.

"As a matter of fact whoever it was telephoned me got me at a half hour's notice". He couldn't get the papers in that time and he came without his lunch as well, he said.

"You're figures are $40,000 wrong", said Ald. Gordon.

"I have had no time to go into these figures Mr. Mayor or gentlemen. I don't say whether they are right or wrong.

He asked time to consider them. He had not expected that this matter would be brought up. He was of he impression that the Bridge Committee had discussed the figures at their recent meeting and added that neither he nor Mr. Christie had been here. Ald. Hamilton told him what they discussed at the meeting that it was irrelevant to this subject.

"As far as the figures go you will admit they take time to go into", Mr. Barber said.

The aldermen knew that his figures were not correct, declared Ald. Hamilton.

When asked whether he had arrived at the $100,000 estimate by consulting the city treasurer, Mr. Barber said he had never seen Mr. Adams, but Mr. Christie got figures from Mr. Alex. Elliott and based the estimate on them. Mr. Barber admitted to Ald. Gordon that he did not generally consult the City Treasurer for information of that kind, but obtained it from the city's cost clerk on the work.

Ald. Gordon said Mr. Barber had made a mistake a boy in the second book wouldn't have done."

When Mr. Barber asked for time to consider the figures Ald. Hamilton told him that he was just evading the question.

"I want this matter straightened up to-night", Ald. Gordon said.

Estimate on Every Item.

Mr. Barber contended that the estimate submitted to the July Council meeting was made in considerable detail. The only thing the Mayor said he could see against the estimates were that certain things were left out. Mr. Barber didn't agree with Ald. Gordon when he stated that a competent engineer assured him that they generally took interest charges and debenture charges into account in the estimates.

"I gave you an estimate on everything I could think of—every item."

"You didn't include these items," charged Ald. Gordon." Any engineer should give them in his work. I can prove it with a competent engineer if I need to.

"I may challenge you to do it."

"Well I can prove it."

No Responsibility

"It's Christi ehere made the estimates I have no figures in my office," said Mr. Barber.

"Do you assume any responsibility for Mr. Christie' actions.

"No."

I thought that was the stand you would take."

Barber reracted his negative answer and said he might or might not. It was a lawyer's question he declared and irrelevant.

When the meeting of the committee last spring entered the question and Barber's statement at the time was brought up Mr. Barber said that he told them that he didn't have any cost clerk to figure the distribution cost. "What I told you (the Mayor was that I saw no reason why it should exceed the estimate; in fact I gave a considerable detail why it should not run over."

"I didn't know whether my figures were right or wrong. We had no distribution costs."

He didn't want at that time to have the question gone into any further, to raise further disturbance so to speak. He was afraid that they might mutilate the bridge.

"Gentlemen of the council I will tell you why it can't be estimated. If I could get the price of labour and of materials I could estimate it."

Contractors should do estimates on the bridge he said. The thing is now practically impossible to estimate on he said.

Neither the engineer, the contractor or anybody else has the data on the cost to make a proper estimate he said.

Never Asked for Clerk.

"Mr. Barber never to my knowledge aid or intimated to anyone in this council that he wanted a cost clerk. It's your fault that it wasn't done," charged Ald. Hamilton.

Ald. Hamilton said that after he saw Barber in Toronto he was lead ti believe that $100,000 would finish the work.

Ald. Crowe wanted to know how it was Mr. Barber estimated the cost of the granite finish a $6,000 and it had already cost $0,000.

Mr. Barber replied that the monthly sheets showing the expenditures on the bridge had not been furnished him or Chritie. "Who gets them out? Where they are gotten out and where they get their information I would like to know."

Never Asked for Statement

Mr. Christie said that he could have got them if he wanted to. Engineer Barber denied that any of the council or aldermen had ever asked him for a statement on the granite finish. Ald. Copping and Ald. Phelan reminded him that he promised at the July meeting to send it down soon from Toronto but it had never come. He couldn't recall such a promise as ever having been made before last Thursday when he promised Ald. Copping to send a report in a few days. Then the council could go into the matter with Christie he said.

Ald. Crowe alleged that Mr. Barber wanted to build the bridge with as little regard to cost as possible.

Mr. Barber denied this.

"But you insisted on a granite finish and it increased the cost considerably?" said Ald. Crowe.

Mr. Barber wouldn't admit that it did increase the cost considerably. He said the cost was estimated at $80,000 more than the figure of three years ago.

Windsor Police Had Full House of Booze Runners Last Night

SENT THE OVERFLOW TO SANDWICH FOR DETENTION—WHISKEY TRAFFIC ON BORDER NEVER AS BAD AS REPORTED IN THE ONTARIO PRESS, CROWN ATTORNEY STATES—SOME DRUG SUSPECTS.

(Canadian Press)

WINDSOR, Aug. 4.—Although the police cells at Windsor were so full of bootleggers, rum-runners and "souses" last night that the authorities were compelled to send some of the defendants to Sandwich, Crown Attorney J. H. Rodd, of this city, is quoted in an interview to-day as declaring that the situation is not so bad on the whole. In fact, things are much better and they never were so bad as they have been reported in Windsor and the outside press.

The crown attorney said, however, that there would be a concentrated effort to clean up road houses, which, he admitted, undoubtedly had been bad. It was learned here that the United States and Canadian Federal, Provincial and State authorities have had a meeting and decided as to the nature of this concerted action. Local authorities are now paying some attention to the drug situation on the frontier. Two Chinamen, and others, are under arrest in connection with this traffic.

No action was taken by the Sandwich Town Council last night in regard to the proposed "white washing" of the local police, in regard to charges brought by Rev. J. O. L. Spraklin, who is now license inspector.

SHERWOOD CAMP WON W.O.W. JEWELS

PRESENTATION BY HEAD COUNCIL COMMANDER JARVIS.

The regular meeting of Sherwood Forest Camp No. 50, W.O.W., was held on Tuesday night, with a large number of members present. Five local young men were initiated.

Head Council Commander Jarvis was present and gave a splendid address, congratulating the camp on the splendid showing it had made in the first six months of the year in bringing in new members. A lot of this success was due, said Mr. Jarvis, to A. A. Haskill, who has done splendid work for the order. In conclusion Mr. Jarvis made a special appeal for this to do well if not better the last six months of this year as they did in the past six months. Then Mr. Jarvis presented to the Camp the jewels won by the camp in the last campaign. These camp jewels are given to the camp securing the largest number of members in the first six months of 1920. As Sherwood Forest initiated over 100 the jewels went to that camp.

Mr. Graham on behalf of the camp, thanked Head Council Commander Jarvis for the jewels and said it was always a pleasure to see the Head Council Commander in Peterborough; the only trouble was he didn't come often enough. Mr. Graham asked Mr. Jarvis to pin the jewels on the officers of the camp, a duty Mr. Jarvis was only too pleased to do.

After the presentation several of the Sovereigns and officers gave short addresses, after which the camp closed in due form. These jewels are the first to be presented to any W.O.W. camp in the Canadian jurisdiction, and will be adopted by the Canadian Order of the Woodmen of the World.

MUNRO'S ISLAND IN CLEAR LAKE AFIRE

VOLUNTEER BRIGADE CHECKED ITS COURSE TO COTTAGE.

Fire this afternoon destroyed a large part of the woods upon Mrs. George Munro's Island at Clear Lake.

The blaze was discovered about two o'clock by cottagers on the Kawartha Park shore, who knowing the cottage to be unoccupied hastened to muster a volunteer fire brigade who paddled over to combat the flames which apparently threatened the cottage. At a late hour this afternoon the efforts of the volunteers had proved so effective that while the woods are still smoking, all danger of the cottage becoming ignited had been avoided. It is thought the fire was caused by careless campers.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Demand sterling opened off 5 7-8 cents to-day, being quoted at $3.57 1-4. Demand Franks opened at $.0700, off $.0035; Lire at $.0493, off $.0021, and Marks $.0211, off $.0004.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.— Prices of stocks were weak at the opening of the New York Stock Exchnge to-day. Little buying power appeared at the opening. Unfavorable reports of conditions in Europe, due to the Polish situation, had a bearish effect.

United States Steel was off a quarter at 87; Retail Stores unchanged, at 65 1-4, and Southern Railway off 1-2, at 28 1-2.

Baldwin Loco and other equipment stocks also showed a loss. Other opening quotations were:

Baldwin 108 1-8, off 1-2; Balt. and Ohio 34, unchanged; Inspiration Copper 47, up 3-8; Reading 89 1-8, off 5-8; Studebaker 64, off 3-4; Chandler 86 1-4 ,up 1-2; Pan-American 84, up 3-4; Bethlehem B 77, off 1; U.S. Rubber 85, off 7-8; New York Central 72, off 1-8; New Haven 3 1-2, off 1 1-8; Vanadium Steel 71 1-2, up 1-8; G. N. Pref. 73 3-4, off 1 1-4; American Woollen 77 3-4, up 1-2; Northern Pac. 74, up 1-2.

A drive launched shortly after the opening failed to make much headway. Steel Common sagged to 86 5-8, against a closing price of 87 1-4, and other leaders declined similarly, but there was firm resistance to the drive and industrials rebounded.

Soon after the opening, Demand Sterling was quoted at $3.57. The drop was caused by the news that the Bolsheviki expected to continue their drive on the Poles.

SEVENTY MILLION TAX INCREASE THIS YEAR IS ESTIMATE

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Aug. 4.—The effects of Canada's new luxury taxes are clearly shown in the excise tax funds available to-day. These taxes include luxury, sales and manufacturers tax and while it is impossible to give the exact figures of the actual amount of the luxury tax, it is safe to say that already several millions have been added to the country's income as a result of the 1920 budget.

Ten Millions in July.

Collections form all sources of Inland Revenue branch for July amounted to almost ten million dollars or an increase of more than five and half million over the corresponding month last year.

On the excise tax side, the amount collected last month totalled almost seven millions as compared with $660,299 for same month last year. This abnormal increase also reflects the effect of this year's legislation. Official estimate there will be increase of approximately seventy million within one year.

To Our Neighbours In Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH is our new home. We hope to be here for many, many years to come and it is our intention to develop in Peterborough, another big, prosperous industry!

Therefore, it seems only fitting that you should know something of us, our product and ideals. In other words, this message is intended as a greeting, as well as a means of introduction to our neighbours.

We manufacture Raybestos Brake Lining for passenger cars, trucks, tractors and motor cycles. Raybestos is the original asbestos lining. It is used wherever motor cars are driven. It is the leading brake lining in popularity with the motoring public and in actual volume of sales.

To protect motor car owners fully, we guarantee Raybestos to wear at least one year and we place on every foot of our lining a silver edge which prevents substitution.

It is our contention that a fair-and-square policy invariably makes for success. We also feel that it is good business, if nothing else, to buy the finest materials and utilize expert workmanship in every process of manufacture.

So much for our product.

Long ago we recognized the remarkable growth of the automobile and accessory business within the borders of the Dominion. It seemed to us that Canada and Canadians would welcome a further development of the brake lining industry.

Thus, we determined to establish The Canadian Raybestos Company, Ltd., operated by Canadians, who would build and sell Raybestos to be used by Canadians.

It then became a question of location for the plant. After a very thorough investigation and the consideration of many cities, we finally selected Peterborough — and needless to say, we are well satisfied with our choice.

It becomes not only a pleasure, but a duty publicly to acknowledge the consideration and courtesy shown us by everyone with whom we have come in contact—from the highest city officials down to the newsboy on the corner.

We have been most hospitably received and assisted and it will be our constant effort to show appreciation by maintaining an industry of which both Peterborough and ourselves shall be justly proud.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 4TH, 1920.

JUVENILE COURTS.

The need of juvenile courts is now generally admitted and the blessings they have been the means of conveying to futurity fully recognized. Such courts are closed to the public, and the tender aged culprits who appear therein are dealt with in that fatherly consideration which tempers justice with mercy and patience. Each boy and girl whose feet have wandered into forbidden paths is subjected to that personal care which makes for reclamation and a developing into exemplary men and women for the next generation. Peterborough has a juvenile court in keeping with other important cities, a court conducted behind closed doors, and rightly so, a court where not a few erring juveniles have been treated on broad lines of commiseration, coming very near our ideal of paternal justice.

That these institutions tend to reduce juvenile delinquency is evidenced in the latest report from the New York children's court. In that big cosmopolitan city the annual number of children's cases for trial has declined from 7,927 in 1915 to 6,727 in 1919, which, considering the city's increase in population, is a marked improvement. And this reduction has continued and is continuing in spite of the war and its prophets of disaster to childhood.

But children in large centres and even in smaller cities like Peterborough, need every care and attention. Their protection through tender years, when character is in the making, must be along broad and humane lines to meet present-day needs, and every facility must be provided, as Franklin Chas. Hoyt says, for their education and training, morally and mentally.

PREACHER AND INSPECTOR.

A contemporary finds fault with Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin for assuming the office of Provincial License Inspector and still retaining his pastorship in Sandwich, Ontario. It cannot conceieve of the Man of Nazareth seeking during his public ministry to be made an officer of the law.

Well, we suppose this matter can be debated from many angles, like most other questions, but if the reverend gentleman succeeds in bringing to time rum-runners on the border between Canada and the United States he may save some members of that community from breaking the law, which his Master commanded us to observe. One of Mr. Spracklin's divine missions is to save from sin if he can, and assuming that a breach of the law like rum-running is sinful, he probably considers that he is justified in attempting an elimination of that sin, a task in which so many seem to have failed.

We have heard of fighting parsons who have driven the fear of God into, and reclaimed, some pretty tough characters in certain lawless communities by applying physical chastisement as occasion called for, and by this action winning respect and following in a district previously antagonistic toward them and religion.

Mr. Spracklin is a forceful temperance worker, and like the fighting parsons, he undoubtedly believes that the end justifies the means. With him, one may assume, law-keeping and temperance are elements of Christianity he feels it his duty to assist in promoting, and by serving as license inspector if the need calls for such service from him. In any event we find no fault with the reverend gentleman, so long as his congregation are satisfied, which they appear to be.

Our contemporary, in its severe criticism of the Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin, say it 'would hardly like to picture Christ with a policeman's baton in his hand." But perhaps this reverend gentleman and fighting parsons (we use the term respectfully) fing some precedent for extreme Christian aggressiveness in the life of their Master, who, we are told in the Bible, "made a scourge of small cords and drove all money changers out of the Temple," which he charged them with having converted into a den of thieves.

UNION SERVICES.

The gathering of Methodists and Presbyterian congregations beneath one roof for worship during the summer months fosters a spirit of brotherhood between Christian denominations of which we cannot have too much. Any endeavour which makes for unity of purpose and increased Christ-like fellowship, is to be commended and encouraged. While the Christian faith to-day includes quite a few different forms of worship, there is more and more in evidence every year a tendency to meet together in exemplification of that principle of brotherhood and sisterhood which underlies the doctrine of each denomination. We see it in the Ministerial Association, in united efforts for the uplift of the race, and in many other ways. Union services have been found practical and helpful, and may in the no-long-distant future lead to a more permanent unison.

ANOTHER GREAT WAR?

We had been led to hope that with Germany, the disturbing factor in Europe, conquered in the world-war of 1914-18, all thought of a recurrence of such armed struggles would have been eliminated from the minds of civilized races. But what do we find to-day? War of the utmost ferocity being waged between Russia and Poland, and again wide-spread disaster is meancingly visible on the eastern horizon. History is repeating itself, almost before the ink recording the last terrible European conflict is dry, and once more neighboring European states are threatening world peace. But if the Entente are drawn into this war, as well they might be, a new and insidious enemy will have to be combatted, and within their own gates is a foe, which found birth in the revolution in Russia, from whence it has flung abroad, to the south, east and west, relentless tentacles filled with the virus of Bolshevism. This is no imaginary menace; on the contrary it is very real indeed. Its circumventing whisperings are reflected in the opposition of the British laborites to Britain's interference in Russia; in a similar attitude by the French Socialists, in Germany's hypocrisy and evident readiness to seize any weapon — even Bolshevism — to evade paying the price of the conquered. Bolshevik troops to-day are uquestionably seeking to over-run Europe, they have large numbers of sympathisers in Germany, Austria, Hungary and Italy, only too ready to join forces with the victorious Reds, should victorious they be, while in France and England the seeds of Bolshevism have found some fertile ground, too much so to be ignored.

The New York Tribune sees as we all must recognize, "that the frontiers of an unrepentant Germany and of aggressive Bolshevik Russia, are in contact, and that between these two countries there is a community of selfish imperialistic interests, thus furnishing a basis for beligerent alliance," and in common with most thinking people the Tribune recognizes the fact that the only question which Germany concerns itself with, in regard to further onslaughts upon civilization is, 'Can we do it?' and 'Is it safe?'" The Russian paw to-day is raised against the world, in most countries of which her emissaries are covertly disseminating Russia's doctrine of Bolshevism, very welcome, it seems, to the lowest elements in society. Let Russia break through the barriers of Poland, let Germany but be encouraged by vacillating policies of France and England toward Russia, and she will in all likelihood, join forces with the latter in an attempt to recover what she lost in the late war, and renew her attack on world-freedom, which she only now regrets because that attack failed.

Poland, not satisfied with her independence gained through the late war, is no doubt in the wrong to some extent, in her present disastrous struggle; but for all that, she is figthing in defence of Europe against Bolshevism, and the Allies are pledged to support Poland in protection of her independence. Failing that support at the right moment, despite the comforting assurance held by so many that the war of 1914-18 would be the last, another war of perhaps even greater magnitude than the late one may burst upon the world with appalling fury. Nothing is more inciting than success; success has crowned the banners of Red Sovietism in Esthonia, Lithunia, Latvia and Ukraina, and well might one fear that an initial victory or two against the Entente would encourage that element of Bolshevism to be found in Allied countries to raise its ugly head in embarrassment, to say the least of Entente operations.

Responsibility for present conditions in Europe rest in a large measure with the United States for its attitude toward the peace treaty and the League of Nations. In this connection a weighty American contemporary unreservedly throws the blame on President Wilson who, it says, "threw apples of discord into the conference at Paris," and also upon Washington for 'lack of cooperation with the Allies," in preservation of world peace. There is no doubt that Germany's and Turkey's attempted evasion of compliance with the terms of the peace treaty, and Russia's arrogant policy toward her neighbors, were and are encouraged by America practically withdrawing from interest in European affairs. For had the United States joined the Allies in a league for lasting peace, the five great powers could have effectively policed all disturbing areas. As it is, with the great war machines of Britain and France disbanded and that of Russia daily growing in strength the outlook for a peaceful solution of the European crisis is far from promising.

ELOPING BRIDE TO-BE FINDS FIANCE IN HOTEL WITH WIFE, AS THIRD GIRL CLAIMS HIM

Startling Mix-up Features Clever Story Plot in Marshall Neilan's Great Picture.

Plans that go wrong are the cause of nearly all the trouble in the world No sane person ever plans trouble for himself, yet everyone is constantly planning ahead, and trouble develops, therefore it must be that most plans go wrong for trouble is one of the commonest things in the world.

It is experienced so often that the most nerve racking troubles are usually humorous to bystanders, and many times cause good laughs to the people involved after they are over. It would seem that people could get a source of comfort out of predicaments they are in by realizing the humor of the situation, but it is very seldom there is any humor to be seen until they are safely out.

Marriage Plan Goes Wrong

Deep trouble for the people involved, which was farcical humor for spectators, developed in Elmfield, a little country village, due to the plans of a pretty maid to avoid a marriage upon which her mother had insisted. She enlisted the aid of the best friend of the man she really loved. Her plan was simple. She would announce that she married the friend. Ergo, no other marriage was possible. After the announcement she planned to go to her own home for the night to pack. He was to go to a hotel. The next day she would accompany him to New York where he had accepted a position. There they would separate, she going to the home of a friend until her true lover could come to claim her.

The plan is complicated at the start because the young man whom she has selected to play the role of husband, has secretly married on the day he is to assume the role. The announcement is made however, and then the plans go all wrong. Her excuse to go home to pack is brushed aside as nonsense, and the couple are conducted by an impromptu wedding party to his rooms in the hotel, and left there to begin their honeymoon.

The secret bride has seen them taken to the hotel. The girl is pretty. But why attempt to describe the complications that ensue when Marshal Neilan has depicted them with all their humor in a motion picture, production entitled "Don't Ever Marry", which will be the attraction at the Allen Theatre, beginning to-day.

Open A Housekeeping Account

with The Merchants Bank, and pay all bills by cheque. By depositing a regular sum in a Savings Account, you know exactly how much is spent on the different branches of housekeeping.

When you settle by cheque, you avoid all disputes as to payment, as the cancelled cheques are receipts and prove the payments.

This business-like method of home finance often prevents paying the same bill twice.

Savings Accounts may be opened in sums from $1 up, on which interest is allowed.

New Telephone Rates Are Necessary

OUR existing rates for telephone service are inadequate. The revenue is insufficient to pay our operating expenses and secure the fair return required to attract new capital for extensions and additions to the system.

It is not strange that this should be the case. Our revenues are not keeping up with our expenses. All telephone materials and supplies have increased enormously in cost; wages have gone up; during the twelve months ending 30th June, 1920, our payrolls increased over $3,100,000.

To meet the greatest demand for telephone service in our history, we have made extensive additions to the system, which, under present day conditions, have involved an abnormal expense. Our 1920 expansion programme calls for an expenditure of over $10,000,000, and to meet the increasing demand for telephone service, we must continue to expend large amounts annually during the next few years.

The continued development of telephone service depends upon adequate revenue. Inadequate revenue means a repetition in the telephone business of what happened to the American railroads. You know their story. Inadequate rates stifled their development and every community in that country is suffering as a consequence. Inadequate telephone rates will produce similar results in the telephone field It is unthinkable that this will be permitted. Adequate telephone service is of the utmost importance to the public; without it the business and social interests of every community must suffer.

The plain fact is we have reached a point where we cannot maintain a satisfactory and comprehensive telephone service unless we are assured of sufficient additional revenue.

It will be necessary to establish new rates for telephone service, and schedules, which we hope will furnish the needed relief, will be filed within a few days with the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners. These schedules will yield only reasonable assistance. The facts regarding the necessity for the new rates will be given to the public through the advertising columns of the newspapers and through other channels.

Public sentiment and public necessity demand the maintenance of adequate telephone service. Business men particularly realize the fact that increases in telephone rates are necessary in these abnormal times to insure a continuance and extension of service.

We desire to keep our business upon a sound financial basis and we believe that when you know the facts you will support us in this endeavour.

Monte Bracken could do more things better than any man he had ever met, yet in every endeavor he remained of the second rank. All games and sports came to him easily. He played the piano with a genuine talent and comprehended music passionately and profoundly. He had an instinct for beautiful things wherever met. His taste was sure, and distinguished between the meretricious and the stark simplicity of great art. He had written occasional essays, distinguished for charm, humor, and an Old-World penetration acquired from a short diplomatic experience in Paris and Vienna. He lacked but one thing—the spur of necessity. Until thirty, he had cherished the hope that he would make his name known in diplomacy in letters. But as the years rolled on in their easy course, a feeling of disillusionment replaced the glow of early dreams. He became a brilliant flaneur, a sort of demi-hero, and he consoled himself as all such dramatic temperaments do. Love to him was a periodic and necessary intoxication. When he was in love, all the really brilliant qualities of his mind awoke, and periodically, in that narcotic state of dreams, he believed that he was on the verge of doing something worthy of what he knew he possessed. The need of love made him believe in love. He had had his share of what the French call "bonnes fortunes." Yet if he had been loved often, he had loved genuinely if without discipline. He had that rare quality of being lovable—a quality which one has or has not, which cannot be imitated and is never acquired. He attracted women by a certain element of weakness they divined in his nature, that appealed to them, and called forth their treasures of generosity and sacrifice. Women loved him instinctively, but seldom deeply, and left him with kindness but small regret. On his side, the shock was acute; he experienced a profound depression for each experience irreparably spent of the fast diminishing fabric of his youth. To-day was this revulsion that he had to come to dread the thought of any new entanglement knowing too well the exquisite nullity of pain. When, therefore, quite unprepared, he had come face to face with Amy Forrester and experienced that quick thrill of all his senses, his first instinct was to retreat.

"If I see her—if I talk to her—I know what will happen," he said to himself. "Better to avoid danger."

But if he avoided her, his eyes could not refrain from seeking her charming silhouette in the play of moving colors. He tried the distraction of conversation; he fenced with Irma, who usually amused him, and found suddenly that what he was saying had no meaning to him. From time to time his glance met Amy's. Her eyes, conscious of his scrutiny, sent him in turn their playful questioning.

"Why don't you tell me that I am charming, that I please you? What is the harm in that?"

And then she began to dance in the stately measures of the minuet. All at once he left the Chalioners and went to the shadow of a doorway, standing alone, sheltering himself behind an orange tree, his eyes fixed on the little figure in royal blue that was like the joy of the deep, clear sky through a parting storm.

In the long ballroom the lackeys had cleared the floor. The guests, against the walls on little footstools or camped on rugs, framed the dancers with the glowing tangle of many colors. Overhead, a black-blue canopy, shot with a thousand little holes, let through in starry radiance jewel-rays of light from the masked chandeliers above. The windows and the doors, framed in foliage, gave faint vistas of lake and melting hills lost in the sylvan night. Illuminated trees in the four corners of the cleared floor sent golden shaft over the polished surface. The air, rescued from the electric whiteness of the modern night, floated in harmonious and gentle flood. From the orchestra hidden in the balcony came the awakened surge of violins. The dancers courtesied, took places, and lifted their graceful arms. In the costumed throng, the murmur of voices was hushed as each guest, under the spell of rhythmic beauty, yielded to the fairyland of unreality.

At the first measure, Tody Dawson, troubled by this sudden concentration of many eyes, had a moment of stage fright. He blundered, missed his step, and, unable to recover himself, threw the figure into disorder.

Another moment, and the confusion would have been inextricable. Amy saw it and calmly, without embarrassment, clapped her hands. The orchestra came to a discordant pause.

"My fault," she said in a clear, laughing tone. "I ask every one's pardon—but such an audience is very, very terrifying! Every one ready? Begin again!"

She felt mistress of the situation, and the little amical nod she sent Dawson restored his confidence at once. This time the measure moved without a break, amid a buzzing appreciation of her tact and poise.

The moment was critical in her life. It needs only the intoxication of one waltz to change the destiny of a young girl—how much more so such a triumph before a hundred rivals! And she danced, moved in swaying grace and poised with dainty gesture, hearing the murmured admiration which centred on her own loveliness, all the profound corruption in which she had moved—corruption of Morley, daily and insidious; corruption of the young fellows in her train who had infected her imagination with the craving for excitement; corruption of shops and the argus-eyed crowd; corruption of pleasant places and brilliant audiences—all the multiple corruption of New York which had been fastening about her, as a vine makes its capture, all this corruption reached its apotheosis in the ecstacy of this theatrical moment. This was in her woman's career, her right to youth! if Andrew did not realize what he had carried off like another Paris—then Andrew was blind indeed!

She danced, her head thrown back and a little to one side, smiling with half-closed eyes—at what? At the multiple public perhaps, every one of whom she wished to draw to her, to dazzle, to coax, and to entice. Her own sex was there, her dearest rivals. For this one night she could face them and defy them to pick a flaw. Glowing, serene, and awakened, her glance ran through the brilliant audience, seeking to visualize it. All at once, from beneath her eyelashes she found the eyes of Monte Bracken set on her. From that moment she danced to him. The complex public was comprehensible now in the smile on his lips and the glance which never left her.

The minuet was over, she was caught in the crush of those who stormed about her with exclamatory compliments. She knew that he would seek her, while restless at the insistent admirers who clung to her. The general dancing had begun. Escaping the crowd, she passed into the dining room with its red and gold tent. He was not there or in the outer hall.

She came restlessly through the corridors. Why did he avoid her? Why should he alone deprive her of the one compliment she longed to hear?

"Mr. Bracken!" He had seen her coming and started to turn away. "Do you know that you are the only one who hasn't said something nice to me?" she said impatiently. "Are you running away from me?"

He bowed.

"Perhaps."

"Then you didn't like my dancing?"

"My dear Mrs. Forrester," he said in a low voice, "you must understand what I mean when I say that I was running away."

This was the tribute she needed to complete her happiness. She felt a sudden wave of joy. He was afraid—a little afraid of her.

"Please don't run away," she said smiling happily, "and do say more nice things to me. You're the one person who really knows."

She stood before him on tiptoe, looking up at him with the eyes of a child who looks out in surprise on the world, and her glance asked so plainly, 'Am I pretty; do I please you" that his caution was given to the winds of impulse.

"You are the only one that is real here," he said suddenly. "All the rest of us are actors, powdered and painted actors, without the glamour of the footlights. You are the real thing. You are France, the beautiful days, the indolence that will never come again. How do you do it? How does it come so naturally to you—the grace, the lightness, the exquisiteness, every movement, every motion. Even now as you are listening, 'nymph of the downcast eye and sidelong glance,' pleased at what I am saying to you, you are so much more charming than what I have said, that I feel as though I had told you nothing. You are so transformed that I don't know you—or rather, this is so truly you, what you were meant to be, that I can't imagine you any other way."

She colored, and drew a long, delighted breath.

"Oh! I feel like running away myself!"

"Don't!" he said hurriedly, and his hand half rose to retain her. "Let's play. It's part of the masque. We have our parts, too. It's carnival time! To-morrow is near enough!"

"I don't know who I really am," she said, with answering excitement. "I feel—well, I feel so irresponsible, as though what I did or said was some one else. Do you understand?"

"You saw me watching you?" he said, looking at her.

She nodded.

"Of course I did. You know, I couldn't find you at first. I looked for you in the gallery, and then all at once I saw you behind a tree. I wanted you to like me." She stopped. He had that dangerous quality of making women seek him, that led them unconsciously to venture further. She knew that she was on dangerous ground. Yet she could not resist the intoxication of enjoying what she had at last won in him. Besides, it was all a game, a part of the masque, as he himself had said.

"You have arrived," he said quietly. "That sounds impertinent, but it isn't so."

"You remember what you prophesied?"

"But I was mistaken in one thing."

"What?"

"You have come to be what I foretold, though a hundred times more bewitching and dazzling than I expected, but—you have kept your heart of a child."

"To-night I've been saying just the contrary," she said abruptly, sobered.

"No, No! It is there," he said softly. "It is still unspoiled—and that's what's dangerous—for others."

"You are awfully nice," she said, smiling at him. "Please always say things to make me happy."

An Analysis of the "Road Speed" of a

MAXWELL

is a tribute to its special steels

Men driving larger cars have often wondered at the "road speed" of a Maxwell.

True, in an open, straight stretch they have run away from a Maxwell.

But in any "piece of going" (and we have many such roads in Canada) in which hills, turns, curves or rough roads enter into the general average, they do not outrun a Maxwell.

The reason for this is the special steels in a Maxwell. They are made to Maxwell's own formulae, and make possible construction combining great strength with light weight.

The lightness of the weight enables a Maxwell to take a turn with more ease and less slowing up, come down a hill under better control, ascend a hill as well, and make more time over a rough piece of roadway.

The strength of its steels enables a Maxwell to stand equally as well, or better, side strains, road unevenness, etc.

In other words, a Maxwell makes speed when a larger car cannot, and thus evens up to a high average its "road speed" without breaking the speed laws.

This ability in a Maxwell is one of many that is winning new friendships daily. Nearly 400,000 of them to date; in another year 500,000.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

"When you ask me if that is right, as far as I know I will say it is."

Mr. Barber declared that from Ald. Gordon's statement he appeared to know more about the bridge than he did himeslf, yet he had never had the benefit of Ald. Gordon's knowledge.

Denied Making Statement.

Engineer Barber denied that he made a statement to Ald. Copping or Gordon in which he alleged he misrepresented the estimates to the committee last spring so that he wouldn't lose his position or have the plans mutilated.

Ald. Gordon replied that Mr. Barber told him and Ald. Copping the other day in his office that he knew at the time the moneys voted would not finish the bridge.

Mr. Barber absolutely denied that he made such a statement.

Ald. Copping corroborated Ald. Gordon and threatened to move a motion to dismiss Barber without furthera parley.

Mr. Barber stated he was not asked the question that way and he answered it in considerable detail.

Mr. Christie, who was present in Ald. Gordon's office, was asked by Ald. Gordon if that wasn't the gist of what Barber told them.

"That was the substance of it," he replied.

"You told Engineer Parsons the same thing that day," said Ald. Gordon.

"No I didn't," replied Mr. Barber. "I told you $80,000 was our estimate. You had $20,000 leeway. I believe we didn't include interest or loss on debentures, a total of about $20,000, making a total cost of about $100,000.

"And you didn't include any figure of $31,000," charged Ald. Gordon.

Disowned Responsibility.

For anyone to start in and figure without the distribution cost, Mr. Barber said, was impossible. He said in blaming him for estimates and figures the Council were holding him responsible for somethigg over which he had no control.

"Say, Mr. Barber, haven't you control over this bridge at all?" asked Ald. Jones.

"Aren't your directions final, according to your specifications?" added Ald. Gordon.

"I can only repeat what I said before. I cannot interfere with the contractors as long as the specifications are carried out. When it came to cost or the methods used my authority is at an end."

Ald. Jones said he didn't think Mr. Barber cared what the bridge cost.

"I haven't got control of it," Mr. Barber answered.

Ald. Hamilton asked why Barber did not suggest putting on his own cost clerk.

Mr. Barber said the city appointed its own cost clerk without consulting him.

"I don't mind admitting that my first feelings were those of relief," he continued. "Ex-Ald. Edgar was the only one who asked me if this was the usual practice. I told him it wasn't, but if the Council saw fit it was their own business. I wasn't prepared to object to it. Several days later they appointed the Bridge committee. They never sent me the names, never once invited me to their meetings. The work of the committee I gathered from the resolution was that it had nothing to do with me. I didn't consider I should have to suggest it after the way I had been treated." He felt it would have taken two or three cost clerks.

Has Made No Money.

"Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, just in leaving I want to say this: I took the contract and signed the agreement for the lowest sum I ever accepted, 4 p.c.; we generally get 5 p.c. I didn't make any money. You can send up a committee to see my books.

I might have designed this bridge without an architect. But I didn't. I secured the best I could get and split the fee with him."

Mr. Barber termed the bridge "the darling of his heart" and he had talked and put on what might be called an oratorical effort to see that the plans weren't mutilated.

"Perhaps now Mr. Mayor and gentlemen you will admit that I have spared no effort in this thing."

"Before you go, Mr. Barber I would like to say that I think you are up and above-board," Ald Crowe remarked. "I think you are a capable engineer to build the bridge. I don't think we have any fault to find with you except that your word isn't altogether reliable."

"If I thought you meant those words I would sue you for $50,000, but since I don't think you mean it I will let it go at that."

Ald. Crowe nodded, making an incoherent reply.

Put Out Feelers.

Mr. Barber retired and the motion of Ald. Gordon was introduced at once. "I wouldn't say dismiss Barber unless you can get a qualified engineer to do it." He contended that it would do not harm to put out a few feelers and see what it would cost. As far as the estimates went they pointed to a clear case of negligence, he alleged. He asked the City Treasurer if Mr. Barber ever showed him his figures.

Mr. Adams replied in the negative.

"You acted like a lot of kids," said Ald. Whitehouse, who wasn't present when the discussion went on. Mr. Barber has misled the city."

'Has he violated his agreement?" Ald. Crowe asked the committee.

"Yes," said Ald. Gordon.

When the vote was taken, the Mayor, Ald. Hamilton and Ald. Morrison voted against it.

"It's scabbing the job," said Ald. Morrison.

"Don't talk about scabs up here," Ald. Jones replied with a little heat.

The Bridge committee passed the motion.

During the month of August, in view of Ald. Hamilton's absence for two weeks and the trouble being encountered, the whole Council will serve of the Special Bridge committee.

ENGINEER'S ESTIMATE.

Barber's estimate on the Hunter Street Bridge—
Total expenditure to July 1	$273,600.00

Gravel pit lot	5,000.00
	18,540.78
	$392,649.00

WHERE DIFFERENCE LIES.

The City Treasurer's figures up to July 1st show an expenditure of $305,000.00, while Mr. Barber's show $273,6000 The difference, $31,400, is made up of various items, such as interest charges, etc., that Mr. Barber had not included in his estimate, City Treasurer Adams said to-day.

Ald. Gordon made out that Mr. Barber was out in his figures by $39,000 in the fololwing way:

Estimated cost by Mr. Barber	$437,189.78
Salvage to June 30th	26,000.00
Total expenditure to July 1	$411,189.78
Difference between his and City Treas. figures	31,400.00
Total	$444,489.78

	$460,579.00
Total amt. available—
Debentures	$260,000.00
Dominion Govt.	50,000.00
Dominion Railway Board	5,000.00
Debentures	100,000.00
Total	$415,000.00
Deduct $15,000.00 from $460,579.00, leaves $45,579.
Possible value of gravel pit after gravel taken out	$ 6,000.00
Leaving	$ 39,000.00

This amount, Ald. Gordon alleges Mr. Barber is out.

City Treasurer Adams stated today that in his opinion Mr. Barber as an engineer was right in not including many of the items. It was not his place as an egineer to go into all the figures, he contended. He felt the council were in the wrong in trying to hold Engineer Barber, instead of the contractors, responsible.

COTTAGERS INCREASE GRANT TO REGATTA

At the annual meeting of the share holders of the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association held at Juniper Island on Monday evening the officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President—Mr. T. H. G. Denne.

Vice President—Mr. Wm. Irwin.

Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. Felix Bronscombe.

Directors—Messrs. T. H. G. Denne Wm. Irwin, H. W. Stock, E. H. D. Hall, John Nugent, and J. D. Collins of Peterboro, S. Henderson, H. Sutherland, James Acton, and J. C. McCarthy of Toronto.

Regatta Funds.

The sum of $25 was voted from the funds of the Association to supplement the amount subscribed by the cottagers for prizes for the annual regatta to be held on Civic Holiday. Surplus proceeds from the regatta will be devoted to putting a hard wood floor on the pavilion. It was decided to make some temporary repairs to the present buildings at Juniper and increase the amount of insurance carried.

The financial statement showed a surplus after paying all accounts for the year.

Why Do People Take Monkey Glands?

Rejuvenation, both physically and mental, can be acquired, much easier and more pleasantly than by taking or eating the glands from monkeys. The French have invented a Medicine, in tablet form, that does away with all other means of rejuvenation. These Tablets are now universally sold throughout Canada, and are known as VITAL Tablets. They supply the necessary Vigor and Youth. There is no need to import chimpanzees from Africa, to take their glands to inject into people. Why go to all this trouble, and expense, when VITAL Tablets can now be procured right in your own town from your drug store? VITAL Tablets taken for a short period, disease of every description, old age with all its aches and pains, will be a thing of the past. Young men and women with their pale faces, thin blood, impure blood, blotches on the skin, run down, worn out, tired people, can be placed in a state of good health, with pure blood, strong nerves, a strong stomach, a healthy body, full of youth and vigor. Every Tablet of this new medicine contains the elements to make you feel as nature intended you to feel, no matter what your trouble is, go to your druggist and procure a box of VITAL Tablets. If they do not do you good, go back and get your money. Get on your feet away with that pale, worn out look on the face. VITAL will bring back the rose of youth. Price fifty cents per box at all drug stores.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CHASING THE ELUSIVE DOLLAR, PERHAPS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The people who walk across George street these days may be divided into two classes—the quick and the dead.

One hears a great deal about personal liberty and it appears to be the proper thing for us to allow some people to have liberty to dash around on our principal streets at the rate of twenty miles an hour. One wonders what is the occasion of all this hurry. Perhaps it might be explained on polling day, because of course, as everyone knows, everyone was racing to the polls to vote for the bridge bylaw. But what about ordinary days? Are our country friends racing into town to get the bargains at the Peterorough stores? Or has someone whispered that there is a fire around the corner, and these poor deluded people are trying to beat the Fire Chief to it?

Or have they stolen something and are making frantic efforts to get away with it? Or have they gotten the idea that George street is the Woodbine? Or have they lost control of their machines? Or is it only their senses that they have lost? How applicable are the words of Bobie Burns. "Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us, to see oorselve as ithers see us!"

Theer is an amusing side to every question, even to the new bridge—and if those high flyers could only realize how they appear to the man on the street," as they dash around so entirely regardless of the safety of their "fellow worms," they surely would slow down a little.

The conflict of authority apears to make this a difficult question.

And even if we were to make representations to the present Federal Govrnment we would probably be told that they could not possibly do anything until next April.

So the only thing for us to do in the meantime is to be quick.

J. C. Smith.

OUCH! IT HURTS

"ABSORBINE JR." Will Relieve the Pain.

The pain may come from strained, weakened ligaments and muscles—from the swelling and inflammation from a dislocation—from bruise, cut, boil, abscess, run-around—from hands and feet swollen from Rheumatism—from a stiff neck—from sore throat or tonsilitis—from toothache or headache.

"ABSORBINE JR." will give quick relief, wherever the pain. It makes the afflicted part thoroughly aseptic—destroys disease germs—yet is harmless to the most sensitive tissues and may be used, diluted, as a mouth wash.

It has a pleasant odor and does not stain or leave a greasy residue It is more than a liniment—it is a vegetable germicide that is absolutely safe.

CONDEMNS COMMUNISM.

Pope's Encyclical Says Terrible Consequences Have Followed This Experiment.

ROME, Aug 1. — Evil conditions confronting the world to-day are outlined in a circular letter issued to the church by Pope Benedict. The purpose of this letter is to proclaim throughout the world the 50th anniersary of the decree by which St. Joseph was named patron of the Universal church, and in it the Pontiff urges that catholic world to celebrate for a whole year from December next, solemn functions in behalf of the saint.

"When the end of the war came," says the letter, "the minds of men, led astray by militarist passion, were exasperated by the length and bitterness of the conflict and aggravated by famine on one side and accumulated riches in the hands of a few on the other. The war brought about two other evils— the diminution of conjugal fidelity and the diminution of respect for constituted authority. Licentious habits followed, even among young women, and there arose the fatal doctrine of communism, with the destruction of dutiful relations between nations and between fathers and children. Terrible consequences ensuing have already been experienced."

BELIEVES IN POSSIBILITIES OF AN INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BUILDING

MR. THOMAS BARRIE, SPEAKING FROM HIS EXPERIENCE, SAYS INFANT INDUSTRIES WOULD HAVE A CHANCE TO GROW IF HELPFUL QUARTERS WERE AVAILABLE.

Asked this afternoon the success of the Barrie building as an industrial development building, Thomas Barrie stated that the building could not be considered an example of an industrial development building as it had not been built for that purpose, and had been rented to industries unable to obtain the quarters, only in an effort to keep them here, and then only twice.

Mr. Barrie said that the rental from these industries had not been sufficient to cover the overhead expense. The building was intended as an office building and space had been rented to the Western Clock Company and the Otonabee Mills at about one-third of office rentals as they could not be expected to pay more than industrial rates.

Less Expensive Site.

Mr. Barrie was of the opinion, however, that a building erected on less expensive ground than the Barrie building and intended only as a manufacturing building could be comparatively cheaply constructed and would give a fair return on the money invested.

"Such a building is one of the city's greatest needs," said Mr. Barrie, and cited the cases of industries which have tried to obtain small quarters in Peterborough in which to begin business but have been compelled to go elsewhere because of the lack of available buildings.

Mr. Barrie believed that a number of diversified industries, such as would develop from the attracted by an industrial development building, were better for the city than fewer large ones, because if a slump affected one line of industry fewer men would be thrown upon the labour market.

Mr. Barrie was completely in favour of the project.

Gifts to Women Who Use Jiffy Jell

Jiffy-Jell users should write to the makers for a list of aluminum molds. Molds, spoons and measuring cups are supplied to users free.

Jiffy-Jell is the one dessert which has the fruit flavors in vials. A bottle of condensed fruit-juice essence comes in the package. So a Jiffy-Jell dessert is a real-fruit dainty. The flavor is not artificial. The sweetening is sugar, not saccharine. Women who once try it will always get it. Your grocer has ten flavors. Try pineapple and loganberry first.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

TRANSIT EMPLOYES OFFER MILLION AID

Philadelphia Company Head is Unwilling to Accept Men's Savings Fund.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Employees of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company offered their savings of $1,000,000 to Thomas F. Mitten, head of the company, to aid him in his fight for a basic five-cent fare, but Mr. Mitten refused the tender. The offer was made a week ago, when he employees took the unprecedent step of passing up their back pay until Mr. Mitten should see clear to make payment.

Mr. Mitten was much affected by the offer of the men's savings, but he told them the money was their own, and he did not consider it a company fund.

The savings were offered without interst, according to Dr. A. A. Mitten, son of the company's President, and Secreary of its co-operative welfare association.

The 250 delegates who were called in by Mr. Mitten when "the cards were laid on the table" and the precorious financial condition of the company was explained, insisted that the savings of the 11,000 employees they represented be used. But Mr. Mitten said he felt the men had done enough in foregoing their back pay.

CHILD DISAPPEARS FROM WESTERN HOME

BELIEVED KIDNAPPED—MOTHER A FORMER WARSAW GIRL.

WARSAW, Aug. 3.—Word has been received that the little two and a half years old daughter, Margaret, of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKay, of Saskatchewan, has been kidnapped. The father and mother went to the fair at Saskatoon and left the child with a maid. While the maid was out milking the child disappeared. Search was made everywhere, but no trace of the child has been found. The house is fairly near the road and a good many cars passed. Mrs. McKay was Miss Edna Grant, daughter of Mr. John Grant, and she and her husband have the sympathy of their many friends here in their distress. No chance seems to be left of the child's return but a reward has been offered. She is a very pretty, bright child. The distracted parents have one other child, a little boy of a few months.

KAWARTHA PARK REGATTA TO-MORROW

SAILING RACE AND CHILDREN'S EVENTS IN THE MORNING.

Cottagers at Kawartha Park, who make a point of never doing things by halves, haev gone to endless pains in preparing for the regatta which will be held to-morrow, and have decided to divert from the beaten path in making it an all day fete. In the morning the children's events will be run off and the canoe sailing race started at 11 o'clock in order to enable the contestants to return in time to make entries for other events. In the evening a big concert, with the programme under the supervision of Miss Pearl Brock, will be held at which the prizes will be awarded by the committee.

The Prizes.

The prizes this year will be exceptionally generous. Mr. Williamson and Dr. Zimmerman have spent more money than usual in procuring the best and are indebted to the merchants of the city for their generosity.

LABOUR SURLUS HITS METAL MEN

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—For the first time since 1915, with the exception of a few weeks following the armistice when factories were changing from the manufacture of munitions to a peace-time basis, there is unemployment in the metal trades industry. Machinists and other mechanics stated yesterday that it is now difficult to secure employment because of the reductions in the payrolls of several of the large metal trades factories.

'Even in the small shop in which I work men are being let out," said N. Phillips, a member of Local No. 235, Machinsts' Union. "There seems to be quite a surplus of labor in our business."

DRUG CLERK PUTS TANLAC TO TEST

"THREE BOTTLES PUT ME IN SPLENDID HEALTH," SAYS HERBERT KNAPTON.

"Tanlac has been of such benefit to me that I feel it my duty to make the facts known to everybody," said Herbert Knapton, well-known drug clerk of 15 Epworth Ave., London, Ontario.

"As the result of an accident about three years ago, I was laid up and had to stay in the house for seven years. I got in a very run-down condition and my blood was out of order for I broke out in pimples all over my arms. My stomach was also upset and I had to go on special diet because of indigestion. I frequently had to take medicine for constipation and had so much neuralgia pain in my shoulder that I could get no rest at night without taking a sedative to induce sleep.

"I must confess that I did not think Tanlac could help me but a personal friend of mine was so benefited by it that I gave it a trial. I was both surprised and gratified by the results. It quickly gave me an excellent appetite and so improved my digestion so that I could eat whatever I pleased without suffering any bad after effects. It relieved my constipation, purified my blood and the pimples disappeared. I haven't got an ache or a pain in my body now and ever since I finished the third bottle of Tanlac I have enjoyed splendid health. I've been praising and recommending Tanlac ever since as a most excellent medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.—(Advt.)

Milk Has Increased in Price Less Than Any Other Food

Here is a fact for you to ponder well if you would live sanely and keep your bank account healthy—

MILK IS HIGH IN THE FOUR NECESSARY FOOD ELEMENTS, PROTEINS, CARBOHYDRATES, FATS AND MINERALS.

MILK IS EXCEEDINGLY LOW IN PRICE—JUST COMPARE THE PRICE OF A QUART OF MILK WITH THREE-QUARTERS OF A POUND OF THE BEST STEAK.

They contain the same amount of nutriment but that in milk is of the better kind.

MILK IS THE SALVATION OF THOSE WHO WOULD LIVE WELL BUT CHEAPLY

Milk can be used in innumerable ways that are beyond other food stuffs—it can be used in every portion of the meal from the soup to the dessert.

Milk-cooked vegetables are greatly enhanced in food value and milk-cooked cereals are meat-dishes in every sense of the word.

Use more milk and you'll use less meat—just figure up the difference in the prices of the two commodities—remembering that one quart of milk is equal, in food value, to three-quarters of a pound of the best steak you can buy.

Of course it should be clarified and pasteurized milk, protected by every scientific precaution that we use.

POLISH PEASANTS FEAR LOSS OF THEIR SEASON'S CROPS TO THE REDS

RETURNED U.S. RED CROSS OFFICER SAYS BOLSHEVIST INVASION ENDANGERS LABOUR OF MONTHS—CITIES SHORT OF FOOD AND MANY FACTORIES CLOSED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. — Poland, now fighting for its life against the ourushing Bolshevist armies, was preparing to harvest the most bountiful crops it has had in years, and, with the spread of typhus and other diseases checked, was looking forward hopefully to greatly improved conditions during the coming winter, when the collapse of its fighting forces and their present retreat upset all calculations, said Lieut.-Col. Albert J. Chesley of Minneapolis, Minn., on his arrival here after sixteen months of American Red Cross relief work in Poland. For the last year Colonel Chesley, who is connected with the Minnesota State Board of Health, has been in full charge of Red Cross operations in Poland.

"The crisis which now confronts Poland," said Colonel Chesley, who left Warsaw a few weeks ago, "will be nothing short of heart-breaking for the peasants. They have worked from sun up till long after nightfall in the past seven months with nothing but the most primitive farming implements and were about to realize the benefits of their tireless industry in fine crops, which gave promise of stabilizing the country. Who will harvest them now is entirely dependent on the turn of events durnig the next few weeks."

Colonel Chesley says that while the sanitary campaign carried on by the Red Cross commission during the last year and the vast amount of medical supplies distributed has greatly reduced the number of typhus cases he expects a recurrence of the epidemic on a lesser scale when cold weather sets in. The undernourishment of the population, especially in the cities, will for some time to come, he said, offer a fertile field for disease.

Two of the Red Cross jobs most appreciated by the Polish people he says, were the establishment of a big orphanage at Bialystok and the equipment of many of the hospitals which had been stripped of everything by the armies which have invaded the country at various times since 1915.

Red Army Strong.

"Poland now has approximately 1,000,000 men in the field and the opposing forces are estimated at about twice that number by the Polish army officials," said Colonel Chesley. "The Bolshevist forces are well organized and are using the most modern equipment. Polish officers say that the Bolshevist units in which men of the old Russian army predominate are doing the best fighting. I had a chance to inspect some of the Bolshevist fighters when 50,000 of them were captured during the Polish advance. They were as fine a lot of fellows physically as you would find anywhere. The officers, nearly all of the old Russian forces, were of the most intelligent type.

"Conditions in the cities of Poland, both from a food and housing standpoint, are extremely bad," according to the Colonel. "Refugees have flocked to the cities and every place of shelter is crowded. Every day the supply of food gets lower, and if it is found necessary to abandon the crops now ripening the situation will be extremely serious.

"Warsaw hasn't got a foot of housing space that isn't overcrowded," continued Dr. Chesley. "Food is getting scarcer all the while except for those who can afford to pay the high prices. There is an element which can do this and they fill the restaurants and hotel dining rooms. The dancing craze, so noticeable in many of the cities in the famine and disease belt of Central Europe, is prevalent in Warsaw. Theatres and movie houses and shops are open and life appears to be moving along normal lines. When one looks beneath the surface he gets an idea of the immense amount of suffering on all sides. All the men one sees in Warsaw, with few exceptions, are in uniform. There is plenty of liquor to be had, but one sees little intoxication. I have seen thousands of Polish soldiers and I can't recall ever having seen one intoxicated."

Breakdown of transportation, with not much prospects of any immediate relief in this direction, is the principal reason for the shortage of the food supply in Polish cities. There are great agricultural areas which could supply the cities with staple food articles were the means of transportation available.

Practically all the large factories in the industrial centres of Poland are closed, according to Colonel Chesley.

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF SOUTH AFRICA ENJOYS WIDE POPULARITY

PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT WILL BE A NEW BOND IN CEMENTING THE EMPIRE—HAS EXTENSIVE KNOWLEDGE OF WORLD AFFAIRS—SERVED IN GREAT WAR.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The selection of H.R.H. Prince Arthur of Connaught as Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Union of South Africa is universally regarded in Great Britain as a step towards further cementing of the inter-Empire bonds. No successor to Viscount Buxton could have been named who is better known or more popular among Britons overseas.

In Canada Prince Arthur is widely known from the fact that his illustrous father, the Duke of Connaught, acted as Governor-General from 1911 to 1916, doing much in that period to strengthen the ties linking the Dominion to the Mother Country. The Prince further endeared himself with the Canadian Corps in France, serving as a staff officer at corps headquarters. In other overseas portions of the Empire he is equally well known and admired, so that, as some observers have remarked, he is eminently fitted to represent in South Africa not only Great Britain proper, but all of the dominions as well.

Through his extensive travels Prince Arthur has acquired an intimate knowledge of world affairs. His great popularity, his well-proved gifts of tact and address, which have carried him through more than one trying situation successfully, and his universally recognized ability are admitted by the British press to more than justify his appointment.

Prince Arthur once designed himself a business card bearing the words, "Monarchs understudied at the shortest notice." It is said that the idea originated with the King, who laughingly introduced him on one occasion as "My chief understudy." Few princes have played a larger part in the representation of the sovereign at foreign courts on official occasions.

Was Invalided Home.

From Eton he passed through the regular course at Sandhurst, and in 1901 was gazetted to the 7th Hussars. At the end of that year he went to South Africa in charge of a draft, but saw little of the guerilla warfare of the closing stages of the fighting with the Boer Republics, for he contracted dysentery and was invalided home. In the following year he became full lieutenant, and received his captaincy in the Scots Greys after a period of service with the Royal Horse Artillery Battery attached to the Cavalry School.

But his position as almost the only available English prince rendered it impossible for him to continue uninterruptedly the military duties on which his heart was set. In December, 1904, he was sent by King Edward to Rome to attend the christening of the infant Prince of Piedmont, and from that time there is hardly a country of the Old World he has not visited in the fulfilment of the duties delegated to him, while the accession to the throne of his cousin doubled the burden of his ceremonial duties, of which the Prince of Wales was then too young to take his share. By far the most distinguished work of delegation which Prince Arthur performed was, however, done at home. During the absence of King George at the Imperial Durbar in India, he was appointed the chairman of the four Commissioners of State, to whom was entrusted the enactment of the formal work that is usually carried out by his majesty in person.

On the outbreak of the Great War Prince Arthur joined Lord French's staff, went to the front with the earliest contingents, and was mentioned in despatches and awarded the C.B. and the Croix de Guerre. It is said that the list of the crowns he might have had for the mere stretching out of his hand is by no means short, but in one case the refusal was not merely passive. The Grand Duchy of Saxe-Cobourg had to be formally rejected by him before the son of the Duchess of Albany could ascend that throne.

In his work in South Africa Prince Arthur will have the invaluable assistance of his wife, the daughter of the Princess Royal and the late Duke of Fife, whom he married in October, 1914. During the war Princess Arthur worked as a nurse at St. Mary's Hosnital, tending wounded soldiers. She and her husband have one son, the Earl of Macduff, born in August, 1915.

HASTINGS NEWS HAPPENINGS

Quite a number from town motored to Presqu'ile Point on Wednesday to enjoy the farmers' picnic.

The Quarterly Official Board met on Tuesday for the beginning of the new conference year's business.

Mr. Wm. Tate, Jr., who has been for some time in the employ of the G.T.R. Co. here, has been removed to Whitby Junction as relieving agent. Mr. Tate is a young man of sterling character and will doubtless make good in whatever capacity he is placed. His many friends here, while they are very sorry to lose him from their midst, wish him every success.

Dr. King and fmily of Toronto, arrived on Saturday for their annual holiday on the shores of the Trent. Dr. King is always a welcome visitor and has made many friends in Hastings during the summer outings he has spent with us.

Monday was duly observed as Civic Holiday and the streets were almost deserted. Two steamers, the Stoney Lake and Geneva, passed through, carrying large crowds from Campbellford en route for points up the lakes. All was merry as a marriage bell, and everybody on board looked very pleasant.

A very interesting ball game was held on Friday evening between two teams picked from among the citizens. There was lots of merriment, as some had not had much practice for years and felt rather out of place.

Mr. Howard Firman, of Campbellford, has been visiting in town.

Mr. Cunningham of Peterborough, called here last week.

Miss Greta Hill returned on Monday to Toronto after a two weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hill. She was accompanied by her mother and Mrs. H. Wilson.

Miss Ella Tate of Peterborough, is the guest of her brother, Mr. E. Tate.

Mr. Aubrey Doxsee, of Palmerston, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee.

Mr. David Scriver of Toronto, is spending a few days renewing old acquaintances here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wildman of Norwood, were in town on Sunday.

Rev. G. Andrews preached in the Methodist church here on Sunday evening.

Rev. Mr. Hinton took the service in the Norwood church in the absence of the pastor.

Mr. Alex. Weir of Colborne, was in town on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Fleming of Trenton, were in town on Sunday.

Rev. Archie Thomson of Moncton, is the guest of his parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson are holidaying with friends out of town.

Miss Flossie Carter is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Geo. Buchanan spent a few days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee of Rochester, are visiting at the home of Mrs. J. Johnston.

SAW DEVASTATED FARMS AT ALAMEDA

William McIlmoyle Says Havoc By Storm Was Complete.

Mr. William McIlmoyle, of this city, returned this week from a two months' trip in the west. He states that he visited the cyclone-swept area near Alameda the day after and the devastation was terrible. Houses, barns and buildings of all kinds were smashed in, trees were carried for some distances. Many people were badly injured and several killed. Crops were torn up. Several threshing outfits were hurled through the air for some distance and parts of them found all over the country.

Generally speaking, he said, the crops looked very good. Good crops are badly needed, he said, for money is very tight. Many farmers have been refused further credit by the banks, and if the farmers do not have a good crop many of them will be bankrupt.

He visited his son, E. G. H. McIlmoyle at Glen Ewen, Sask.

WATCH FOR THIS GREAT FEATURE FILM

In these days, when moving-picture producers give to the public views of the finest scenery in the world, and from all its four corners, a picture has to have very special attractiveness to stand out as something particularly beautiful. Yet this is what has been done in regard to an automobile tour trip film which is to be shown at the Regent Theatre, in a few days. Canadians may think that they have some rough roads, but the company that sent these cars out to test their riding qualities certainly had wonderful success in finding the prize rough roads of the world. Naturally, they selected the south-western states, where deserts and mountains provide every known variety, and the sage-brush of Arizona, the mountain trails of Southern California, afforded the moving-picture operators plenty of scope for thrills. The picture makes a splendid addition to the Regent's bill.

COMRADES INITIAL APPEARANCE; LOST TO VETS IN CUP TIE 2-0

LARGE CROWD PRESENT—NORMAN OPENED THE SCORING—JOLLIFFE MISSED A PENALTY—LEACH'S FINE DEFENCE—VETS WON OUT TWO GOALS TO NOTHING.

A very large and enthusiastic crowd witnesesed the first appearance of the Comrades last evening at the Oval, when they met the G.W.V.A. in a Cup Tie game. The Comrades played as selected, but the Vets introduced N. Jones, D. Perry and J. Piggott in place of Curtiss, Bishop and Burrows.

The Teams.

Comrades—R. Moore, R. Leach and A. Nichols, backs; J. Yates, R. Joliffe and V. Hopkins, half-backs; A. Lee, M. Dunkley, B. Martin, H. Knowles and W. Warman, forwards.

G.W.V.A.—W. Jones, goal; H. Gamble and D. Perry, backs; A. Edwards, P. D. Ryan and J. Peel, half-backs; T. Monks, N. Jones, H. Norman, A. Piggott and J. Sharman, forwards.

Gamble Won the Toss.

A great surprise to the Vets players awaited them when Gamble announced he won the toss. They gave him a hand-clap. Even play was the order of the play in opening until Norman in his anxiety to get a goal, was called up for being offside. Warman on the left transferred the play to the other end for Perry to punt up the field to Monks who worked a corner off Leach. Gamble cleared to mid-field for Monks to put past after making a nice opening. An individual breakaway by Lee was crossed to Ben Martin, who was slow in getting up. Peel switched the play to Sharman, who made for Moore's goal but was compelled to put past. A few minutes later Norman tested Moore from close in. Jones was called up for offside. Leach put up to Peel, and beating along the line slashed the ball across to Dunkley, who tested Jones with a fast drive. Perry kicked to touch to clear his goal.

Norman Scored.

Monks and Jones outwitted Hopkins in nice combination, and swinging the ball across to Norman, the goal-keeper made the centre kick over the bar. Martin made a raid on the Vets' goal, but Gamble cleared to Sharman. He travelled down into the corner and lifting the ball over the full-backs head into goal Moore saved but Norman jumped upon him to get the drop ball to open the scoring. A foul against Norman was cleared by Wilfrid Jones from a drive by Jolliffe. Immediately thereafter Martin slipped the ball forward to Dunkley, who manoeuvred for position that compelled Jones to jump up into goal to clear. At the other end Sharman worked a corner off Yates that was unproductive.

Jolliffe Missed a Penalty.

On a raid by the Comrades' forwards on the Vets' goal, Perry accidentally hit the ball with his arm that awarded the green and white a penalty. Jolliffe was entrusted with the kick and walking forward put his foot right under the ball to lift it over the bar. The Vets retaliated to go past. From the resulting kick Dunkley put out to Lee who beat Edwards on the run to get a corner that brought nothing. A solo run by Sharman was checked by Yates and Dunkley, getting hold of the ball mid-field, passed to Martin for the centre to return and with a 20 yard drive he made Jones do one of his spectacular saves. Gamble punted to Norman, who was travelling into goal as the whistle blew for half time.

Half Time.

On resuming, the Vets put on the pressure, but Leach was playing a good defensive game and held them in check until Jones received a timely pass from Monks, lashed the ball across for nobody to pick up. Leach cleared to Lee that produced a tussle with Perry for the Vets man to pass up to Sharman who worked a corner off Nichols. Offside against Piggot relieved the pressure. Leach put it out to the left wing for Warman to get a corner off Peel that was put behind. At the other end Monks worked a corner off Nichols for Jones to place outside. From the resulting goal-kick Martin shot the ball out to Warman, who put across to Lee that was swing across the Vets' goal with not a player present to touch it through.

Leach's Excellent Defence.

A break-away by Norman left an open goal, and travelling in on Moore's goal, Leach jumped upon the centre forward in nick of time. Dunkley caught hold in mid-field and working in between the Vets' defence let drive, to miss the mark by a few inches. Gamble punted down the field, and following up the kick, forced the play into the Comrades' area for N. Jones running himself into offside position. On return play Norman shot wildly over the bar. Sharman beat Yates over at the touch and going into the corner received a corner-kick. He placed a beauty into goal to be put past by Piggott.

Moore's Poor Kick.

At this point of play Peel received a block injury but resumed after a little attention. On a visit to the Comrades' goal, Piggott put past and from the goal kick, taken by Moore, the ball landed at Norman's foot, who let drive to land the ball in below the cross bar for second goal. Each goal was visited in rotation with Sharman shining on the left wing by missing the mark, repeated with opportunities galore. Jus tbefore the end of the game Norman banged the ball into goal to go over the line and hitting the inside of the post went back into play for Moore to clear to mid-field, with Vets two goals ahead. Vets 2, Comrades 0.

OLD LACROSSE PLAYER'S PLEA TO ASSOCIATION

Dear Mr. Editor,—Lacrosse the Canadian National Game seems to be kept always silent. Now I would like to know why more people don't take an interest in this game and see that it is encouraged and brought back to life in our city. Now everyone knows that there is a Lacrose Club here and are in the run for championship and without any hesitation I will say our city has the best team in the League's bar none. Now why start to consider hockey as it is stated in last night's paper the Lacrosse team are in the field at present. Why not help the boys along. They had heavy expenses and will have more before the final game, let me make a suggestion which will help the Lacrosse very much. Let the Peterborough Athletic Association show their sportmanship by donating a dozen of sticks to the club for they are badly needed as I saw some of their sticks and then they have lost some by their rooms being broken into. Now another suggestion which would meet every one helping would be to donate whatever you wish by leaving it at the Examiner office or to Mr. John Sunderland, their manager.

An Old Player.

LACROSSE

Every player is urgently needed out to practice to-night at 6.30. No one to be absent. No excuse will be accepted. The following are to be out at practice: H. Scribber, Ed. Dillon, S. Mein, J. McCoy, J. Rice, L. Rice, J. Coumnor, Pete Regis, Doirs, F. Scribber, Browning, L. McCoy, B. Todd, L. Johnson, R. Lowes, G. Donnoven, Dunsford, H. Tuthope, J. Thirnbeck, F. Goodfellow, W. Maher, G. Halpin, Angus, Creighton and all others to be prepared to meet the Bracebridge or Mimico boys in the play off.

NOTICE!

Oh, it is a hor-ri-ble tale, it'll make your faces all turn pale. A feller loves a gal an' she loves him but her dad won't have him in the familee. So the feller and the gal git rit smart an' Her pa kicks the feller in—you know the part—an another gal an feller gits all mixed in another female with a Reputashun black as sin. . . . . Oh it's a horrible tale, a horrible tale. Prospective Brides and Bridegrooms especialy urged to see this one. Come and Weep. Wednesday and Thursday at the Allen.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL MEETING WILL BE HELD AUG. 16TH

FINANCIAL STATEMENT, APPROVED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON, SHOWS FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ALBERT SMOKE, PETERBORO'S REPRESENTATIVE AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES AT ANTWERP.

OBJECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION.

At the meeting of the Executive of the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association in the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday afternoon it was decided to hold the annual meeting on Monday, Aug. 16th, for the election of officers and the adoption of a constitution and bylaws, on motion of A. Dick, seconded by Gray Copping.

On motion of A. Dick seconded by D. Loomis, it was decided to appoint a committee of Dr. A. W. MacPherson, Leonard Frazer and G. H. Giroux to draft a constitution to be submitted to the executive at a meeting to be held on Tuesday afternoon next at 5:15 o'clock.

$50.00 For Smoke.

After a consideration of the above statement it was decided on motion of Gray Copping, seconded by D. A. Loomis that $50 of the balance be sent to Albert Smoke's trainer to help over Smoke's expenses.

President Outlined Aims.

Dr. MacPherson, president, in enlarging upon Article II of the temporary constitution stated that the Association's purpose was generally to promote athletics in Peterboro, and particularly to control teams representing the city in leagues, to foster and encourage city leagues, to encourage and help financially sports dying out through lack of funds, and to provide sports for those who for various reasons were handicapped, such as working men and children.

Dr. MacPherson was of the opinion that the Association should hold something of interest for all—young or old, of all classes.

Members Present.

Those present were Dr. A. W. MacPherson, president, A. Dick, vice-president, Leonard Frazer, secretary, G. H. Giroux, R. M. Glover, Gray Copping, Ald. Phelan, Willis Garrow, D. A. Loomis, Louis Yeotes.

C. G. E. FOOTBALL PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

All players associated with C.G.E. Team will practice to-night at Exhibition Ground at 6.30 prompt.

CALEDONIANS V. DE LAVAL TO-MORROW EVENING

For the second game in the Peterboro City Cup Tie series the Caledonians have selected their team as follows: C. Fenner, goal, J. Willshaw and R. Willshaw backs; J. McFeat, S. McMillan and H. Frose half-backs, R. Hannah, M. Shaw, J. Cummings, J. Shaw and R. McDowell. Reserves—J. Terrace and W. Service.

The De Laval Team will be selected before the start of the game.

The match will be played on the East side of the Exhibition Grounds on Thursday evening at 6.30 prompt. In all probability Mr. Fred Sutcliffe or a substitute will act as referee.

TO PORT HOPE SHOOT

The Peterboro Gun Club is sending two squads of five men each to the trap shooting meet at Port Hope on Wednesday next. All the Gun Clubs of this district will be represented at the meet and there should be some close contests.

AFFILIATION DATA RECEIVED BY THE FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

FULL REPRESENTATIVE MEETING—FATHER PHELAN ATTENDED AND PRESENTED A TROPHY—J. WILLIAMSON REINSTATED—BURNHAM SHIELD—PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.

A full representative meeting of the Peterborough Football Association was held last evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall, with President Cook in the chair.

Affiliation Data.

The secretary of the Association read all the necessary details in regard to affiliation and the players' registration forms. At the annual meeting of the D.F.A. in the month of January the application will be duly received and will be gladly made welcome. All players must sign the one form in one season and if he requests transfer the player must send his application to headquarters, accompanied by one dollar. Each club secretary will receive a book of rules of C.F.A. from the local Association's secretary at cost price.

J. Williamson Re-instated.

Mr. J. Williamson, of C.G.E. team, appeared on his own behalf to get his sine die suspension lifted, and after full discussion he was re-instated with caution behind it.

Financial Report.

A very successful report was given by Mr. Fred Sutcliffe of last year's business and handed over a very handsome profit to the present executive.

Peterborough City Cup.

The Association decided that the cup that the teams are at present playing for shall be called the Peterborough City Cup and the proceeds go to the Association.

A Handsome Trophy.

A committee composed of Messrs. Cains, Dick, Sutcliffe, Cook and Bates were apointed to meet the Rev. Father Phelan and make arrangements with said donor in regard to the handsome cup he will present to the Association.

The Burnham Shield.

It is the wish of the Association that Mr. Wag Hotston will appear at the next meeting to give his decision in regard to the Burnham shield that he proposes to hand over to the Association.

Presentation of Medals.

It was proposed that the presentation of medals be left over to the social evening that was being arranged by the Vets and C.G.E. at an early date. The executive will attend in a body.

Football League Starts.

The secretary was instructed to draw up a schedule for the League starting on Saturday, August 21st.

CRESSMANS AGAIN WINNERS BY 7 TO 5

CINCHED GAME WITH WESTCLOX BY SCORING FOUR RUNS IN THE SIXTH INNING.

With Herb. Wolff pitching at his best, Westclox lost to Cressmans in a ball game at the Sacred Heart church grounds last evening by the score of 7 to 5. Both teams hit the ball for some solid wallops, but Cressmans had one big innings, the sixth, when they scored four runs. Hunter, hurling for Cressman's, had good curves but was shy on control. Bartley pitched the last frame. Cressmans used Soden behind the bat, Cobb playing first base.

Score by innings:

Cressmans . . . .01000240—7
Westclox . . . .0102011—5

The teams:—

Cressmans—Hunter p., s.s.; Bartley 2b., p.; Cobb. 1b.; Soden, c.; Whitlow 3b.; Graham, m.; M. Long r.f.; H. Long, l.f.; Sage s.s., 2b.

Westclox—C. Wolff, 3b.; Shannon, s.s.; Ainslie, r.f.; Lundy, 2b.; Prosser, c.; H. Wolff, p.; DeGraw 1b.; B. Aheard, m.; Yelland, l.f.

CLASSICS COMING FOR HOLIDAY GAME

HAVE RECORD OF TWELVE WINS AND ONE LOSS IN WINNING TORONTO RIVERDALE LEAGUE.

It is Classics for the holiday morning bill. Manager Solomon was advised this morning from Toronto that Classics would be here to meet the Petes in a game on the morning of Civic Holiday. This Toronto team won the championship of the Riverdale league, with a record of twelve wins and one loss. Six of the team's regulars batted over .300, from which it would appear that the local firing squad have a real job in prospect.

Enlarging at Oshawa.

Word comes from Oshawa that the grand stand is being enlarged in an effort to look after the big crowd expected for Saturday's game with Peterborough. A win for the Petes will give them the championship, but an Oshawa victory will tie the standing and bring Belleville into the race again.

After The Holidays

Ride to school on a "Massey." Why waste time walking when you can get there so quickly and easily on a "Massey." A "Massey" is a strong easy running bicycle, and with very little exertion you can beat everything through the city traffic.

Won Football Games

The Junior Football team of Warsaw are justly proud of winning the game they played with the Intermediates on Saturday evening. The score was 5-4 in favor of the Juniors. Referee, Mr. R. G. Sinclair.

Next Saturday evening there will be a game of Soccer Football by the married versus the single men.

For the past three months the old war horses have been sitting up, taking notice, while the yelping youngsters have been hitting themselves on that they can play football. Of course the married men have the same idea. Now just to prove to the people that there are as many loyal hearts beating under the tunics of the "Irish Fusilliers", as there are under the kilts of the "Gordon Highlanders" these two teams will meet on the Warsaw Football field on Sa. Aug. 7 a 7 p.m.

The teams will be as follows.

Married.

W. Selkirk, W. Darling, A. U. Payne, Ed. Payne, A. Dodds, Art. Payne, R. Payne, C. Watts, W. Bell, W. Anderson, H. Darling.

Single Men.

W. Aitkens, M. Lounsberry, A. Partridge, N. Crowe, G. Moore, O. Douglas, O. McIlvena, R. Darling, Rev. G. Graham, Ted. McIlvena.

Admission free. Important—By request of the Single Men, the Married Men will see that their wives throw no bricks.

Ladies Aid Meeting

The Presbyterian Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Stewart Miller on Thursday afternoon. A large number of ladies were present. Considerable work was done. When work was put away the hostess served a delicious lunch and a pleasant social half-hour was spent over the tea cups. The Ladies meet again on Tuesday of this week at Mrs. Munroe's home to pick wool also to go to the manse and plan a few improvements.

The Woman's Institute will meet on Thursday afternoon, August 12th., at the home of Mrs. Robert Payne. The young girls will provide the program.

Everyone who possibly could get away for raspberries or huckleberries last week did so.

Fall wheat is practically all cut and a good deal of barley.

Grasshoppers are beginning to make themselves a nuisance.

Mr. Alex. Watts has some extra large early potatoes.

Sunday Services.

There were the usual services in the Baptist Church. Mr. Vose's text was "And He launched forth".

The Sunday School and preaching services in the Presbyterian Church were well attended. In the morning Mr. Graham's subject was "Prayer". Mrs. Foster sang, "Oh, love that will not let me go". In the evening the subject was "The Duty of being Angry:—

Rev. Battesby, who was in charge of the Anglican work in Warsaw some years ago is taking the work in St. John's Church, Peterboro, for the next five week. H will be at home on Saturday afternoons, and very glad to see any of his Warsaw friends who may find it convenient to call.

There was a good attendance in the Anglican Church yesterday afternoon. It was a communion service, Dr. Archibald officiating. There will be no service in this church next Sunday. Dr. Archibald has to go to Cobourg.

There were the regular services in the Methodist Church. The Sunday School was well attended, and the preaching service conducted by the pastor.

ANOTHER SMASH ON WHEAT MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Excited general selling brought about a sensational smash in wheat prices to-day. The wheat market opened eight to thirteen cents lower and in some cases as much as fourteen and a half cents a bushel was temporarily cut from values. Comparative steadiness returned shortly afterwards, however, with market then about 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 cents under yesterday's finish.

The rush to sell appeared based largely on unfavorable financial reports, especially from southwest.

JOHN PERRY DIED IN MONTREAL FACTORY

McLeod, one of the pioneer Presbyterian ministers in the West, and who at the time of his death twenty years ago was Principal of the Industrial School at Regina. He was a brother of Mrs. (Rev. W. L. H.) Rowand, at present of Toronto ,and was the original of the "Sky Pilot" hero in Ralph Connor's famous novel of that name.

EXUBERANT ADVERTISING SQUELCHED BY POLICE

Detective Sergeant Newhall put a spoke in the Allen Theatre's advertising campaign for the picture, "Don't Ever Mary" last night, when he ordered R. G. Furlong, the manager, to stop chalking "Don't Ever Marry" on the sidewalks of the downtown district.

The police say that the Allen is carrying its advertising too far.

To-day a line of baby clothing was strung in front of the theatre to give added force to the injunction, "Don't Every Marry."

VOL. XVLII. NO. 30 PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, AUGUST 5, 1920 PRICE THREE CENTS

1920 European War Regarded By Allied Diplomats as Grave As That Which Broke in 1914

UNDISGUISED ANXIETY SHOWN IN LONDON DISCUSSIONS—POLAND ASKS ANGLO-FRENCH MISSION TO RETURN AT ONCE AND LAY THE FACTS OF THE SOVIET MENACE BEFORE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS—BOLSHEVIK TAKE LOMZA AND BREST-LITOSH.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, August 5. — Among British officials and diplomats of other nationalities here undisguised anxiety is felt over the Russo-Polish situation. One high official said, "the situation is as grave as that in August, 1914."

LOMZA TAKEN AFTER MANY DAYS' FIGHTING.

WARSAW, August 5. — Lomza, about 75 miles to the north east of Warsaw, has been taken by the Bolsheviki, after having been defended for many days by the Poles, according to an announcement at the Foreign Office to-night.

The Poles have evacuated Brest-Litovsk, but hold forth west of the River Bug, and further south have evacuated Kovel and are withdrawing to the line of the Bug River.

KAMENOFF FAVORS ARMISTICE, REPORT SAYS.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, August 5. — L. Kamenoff, president of the Moscow Soviet, is reported to have sent a message to his government asking that Russia accept immediately the original British armistice proposals for an armistice with Poland .

POLAND READY TO SEND DELEGATION.

Canadian Press.

WARSAW, August 5. — The Polish Government has asked the members of the Franco-British Mission to return and lay before their respective governments the real situation in Poland, and give their opinion as regards suitable aid.

Poland's Council of Defence has sent a despatch to Moscow stating that Poland was ready to send a peace delegation to Minsk on condition that the Polish delegates be permitted to communicate freely with the Warsaw government and that the Soviet agree to accept in principle the terms Poland will propose.

The Russians have reached Ostrov, 53 miles north east of Warsaw.

SOVIET FORCES ARE ADVANCING SIX MILES A DAY BUT CAN BE HELD IN SOME PLACES.

WARSAW, August 5. — The Russian Soviet armies driving against the Polish lines defending Warsaw, are maintaining an average progress of six miles a day in the direction of this city. They are being held in the south, however, and in some places are being pushed back from the districts east of Lemburg. Brody, near the Galician frontier, has been retaken by the Poles.

Munitions recently unloaded at Danzig, by the British, were arriving during the day ,and tanks, rifles and artillery from France were being rushed to the front. French officers are arriving daily to act as technical advisers.

Negotiations for an armistice seem to have stimulated the Bolsheviki who with the exchange of notes between Warsaw and the Moscow governments, began their drive with new vigor.

ARMISTICE DELEGATES GONE TO MINSK.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — The Polish armistice and peace delegation left Warsaw for Minsk to-day, according to advices received here.

LLOYD GEORGE TOLD SOVIET DELEGATES THEY WOULD BE JUDGED BY ACTIONS.

Canadian Press.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — In a statement in the House of Commons to-day in regard to last night's conference with the Soviet delegates, Lloyd George said he and Bonar Law made it clear to M. Krassin and M. Kamenoff that the immediate conclusion of an armistice on fair terms was the only course which would remove suspicion that the Soviet government was insincere in its professed desire for peace and in its declaration that it intended to respect the liberty and the independence of Poland. The Premier stated that it was unwise to make a further statement but should his suspicions be confirmed he promised to make a full statement on Monday as to such further naval or military action that may be necessary to take. He said the whole object of the proposed peace conference in London had been jeopardized by the Bolshvik advances.

MAY CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS TO HELP POLES.

THE SERBIAN RELIEF FUND

Peterborough Proving Her Powers.

Peterborough has already subscribed $4,600 of the $5,000 objective for The Serbian Relief Fund. We hope that all provisional promises will be redeemed by to-morrow noon and the entire sum raised, when my final report will be handed in.

I have done my very best, under the circumstances — following the lines laid down before I came on the ground—and given more time and attention to Peterboro than I have in any town that she might attain a coveted place amongst Ontario towns on our Roll of Honour.

I wish to express my appreciation for the response of the good people of Peterboro to my appeals on behalf of the Siberian War Orphans.

Also in behalf of the Canadian Brotherhood Federation our thanks for the unfailing services of The Examiner, whose valuable columns have been ever open to us and cause; the publicity committee, the services of whose secretary, Mr. Curtis has been so much valued; the Bank of Commerce, whose manager Mr. W. H. Lunsford has so efficiently performed the task of treasurer; the local executive committee with all helpers and subscribers.

All I can say in return for the many favours conferred is that I shall use my utmost exertion to bring one branch of the many phases of our work to this city in the hope that it may contribute toward the development of the many phases of the Industrial life of your young city, which I have come to admire for its progressiveness, cleanliness and orderliness.

Cordially yours,
R. J. CAMPBELL.

P. S.—A greater favor could scarcely be conferred on Peterborough in particular, or Ontario in general than the presentation to The Brotherhood which is Interdenominational, International and chartered to have and to hold such properties for the public benefit of one or more of the handsome homes or estates of this fair city especially if surrounded by grounds capable of being turned to good account as we purpose making these Homes for the full blooded youths as well as the feeble who need brotherly help or woud appreciate companionship self supporting if possible by inculcating industrial habits.

We would turn it to any form of philanthropy agreeable to donor.
R. J. C.

P. P. S.—We are pleased to place upon our Honor Roll, M. C. S. Brown, a young farmer, who accosted one on street yesterday and voluntarily subscribed $100.00. Ideal! Also George Street Methodist Church for which we wish all prosperity, spiritually and temporal under the new pastorate also St. Paul's Red Cross Society.

TORONTO WANTS SMOKE WASHED AND LOCOMOTIVES ELECTRIFIED

Launch Application to Secure the Abatement of Smoke Nuisance Throughout the City.

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, August 5. — Toronto is going after the railways in regard to the nuisance of smoke from engines and roundhouses. Nothing short of the electrification of the roads within the city limits is to be the demand.

The Board of Control recommended to the City Council at its special session to-day the adoption of a report made by Property Commissioner D. Chisholm which advises an immediate application to the Dominion Railway Board for an order on three points:

1. That all locomotives operating within the limits of the city be electrically equipped.
2. That all railway, stationary or heating plants be equipped with first class type mechanical stoking apparatus.
3. That all railway round houses be equipped with a device for the washing of smoke.

Commissioner Chisholm has been in communication with the Railway Board for some time on this matter, and Chairman F. B. Carvell has invited the city to make the application. The City Solicitor is to argue the city's case.

SEARCH FOR OTHER GIRL AT THOROLD

NO CONFIRMATION OF REPORT THAT DAVID M'NEAL, HELD UNDER SUSPICION, HAD MADE A CONFESSION.

PEOPLE IN UGLY MOOD

(Canadian Press)

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 5. — There is no confirmation this morning of the report that David McNeal, returned married soldier, under arrest at Welland, had made confession in connection with finding of the terribly abused body of Margaret Beaucock, aged 4, yesterday at Thorold after the child had been mysteriously missing for three weeks. McNeal is being held, however, as witness for adjourned inquest. Large parties are to-day engaged in a search for some trace of Kathleen Beechman, aged 6, chum of Margaret, who disappeared about the same time.

MUST HAVE BEEN CARRIED.

Necessary to go Down Skeleton Steps And Up Another Flight on Other Side.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 4. — In order to get to the place where little Margaret Beaucock's body was found this morning, it was necessary to go down skeleton steps about fifty feet down one side of the rocky cut for the ship canal and up another flight on the other side. Whoever took the girl there must have carried her. Reuben Beaucock, her father, said to-night he believed the murderer took the girl into one of the shanties, which were vacant, as work was not in progress on the ship canal. She died from violence, he thinks, and that the murderer carried the body to where it was found. It is a wild bit of brush land adjacent to the Government railway on the ship canal, and seldom visited by anyone.

A St. Catharines newspaper of May 20 was found with the body. This gave rise to the supposition that the body was that of Catharine Beechman, who disappeared May 24, but the Beaucocks proved it was their child by the clothes. Twenty feet away from the body was an excavation in the sod as if the murderer had tried to dig a grave. Beside this spot were found two large pieces of corrugated iron which he had probably tried to use as a spade. He had for some reason given up the task. Had he buried the child the body would probably never have been found. All the searches have been made in another direction altogether.

Where David MacNeil was seen with the girl is fully a mile from where she was found. Certainly MacNeil did not have time to take her all the way to that out of the way spot in the afternoon, as he was seen on his own verandah at 3.25 that same afternoon, not very long after a woman and two boys saw him on the ship canal bank with the little girl.

MacNeil's wife, however, told a reporter two weeks ago that the night the child disappeared she and her husband went out to search for her. Her baby cried and she went back home and MacNeil continued alone.

The search will now be made in the same locality for six-year-old Catharine Beechman, missing since May. It is a place where a murderer could work for days without being seen, and especially when the ship canal work was idle.

Thorold people are greatly worked up, and it would not be safe for a suspect to be shown in public.

An emergent meeting of Peterboro Lodge No. 155, A. F. and A. M. will be held in the Masonic Lodge rooms on Saturday, Aug. 7th, at 1.30 p.m., for the purpose of attending the funeral of our late Brother John A. Perry. Brethren of Sister Lodges are cordially invited. J. Comst...k, W.M. 2d 32

FINED $1,000 IN TORONTO LIVES HERE

ERNEST LA GROSSE HAD 311 BOTTLES OF LIQUOR IN CAR—RUM-RUNNING COMPANION NOT HIS WIFE.

TWO MEN ESCAPED

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—In Police Court to-day Ernest La Grosse, of Peterborough, was fined $1,000 or three months for a breach of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Plainclothesmen McDermott and Brawn found La Grosse and his car in a lane south of Dundas street, between Palmerston and Euclid avenue. In the car were 311 bottles. La Grosse, two other men and a woman were arrested.

The woman, La Grosse's so-called wife, as Col. Denison expressed it to-day, was bailed out for $1,200 cash. A fourth man got away when the others were captured.

"Where were you married?" asked Crown Attorney Corley of Mrs. La Grosse.

"In Hamilton."

"By what minister?" insisted Mr. Corley.

"Why do you ask?" the woman countered.

Then it developed that she wasn't La Grosse's wife.

Mr. Corley: "Did you know that this man from Peterborough deserted his wife and three children in Hamilton?" "No."

Counsel W. B. Horkins withdrew the woman from the stand.

ROBBED OF $8,000 IN TURKISH BATHS

150 PATRONS DIDN'T MISS VALUABLES UNTIL THIS MORNING.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Five bandits raided the Lenox Turkish Baths early to-day, held up Manager Harry Cohen and four attendants, and escaped in two taxicabs with a loot of $8,000, most of it being the valuables of 150 bathers, deposited in the office for safe-keeping. The 150 Turkish Bath patrons were sound asleep while the robbers worked, and did not discover their losses until they arose and demanded their valuables.

Ticekts are $3 and those intending to go must obtain their tickets from Mr. Yeotes before 10 o'clock to-night.

SEND WHISKEY FROM THE INLAND CITIES

Some Shipments to the Border May Leave Peterboro.

That frequent trips between Peterboro and Windsor are being made by bodotleggers is a rumour which has been persistently circulated in the city for some time. Enquiry of the police to-day failed to elicit any information That there has been considerable boot-legging in Peterboro and vicinity is shown by the local Police Court records but whether or not there has been any communication between Peterboro and Windsor bootleggers is unknown. The rumour may be as groundless as the daily rumours of hold-ups which are becoming so common.

Balkan Nations Are Preparing to Fight Menace of Bolsheviki

HUNGARY AND ROUMANIA MOBILIZING AS MEASURE OF PRECAUTION—SOCIALISTS PRESENT A DANGER IN THE BORDER STATES—HAIL SOVIET SUCCESS.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — Despatches from Budapest announce that joint operations against the Russian Bolsheviki by Hungarian and Roumanian forces under French command are being prepared.

A. Beaumont, Daily Telegraph corresnondent at Milan, cables: "Russian penetration into Poland is creating a sensation bordering on panic in some European capitals. Bucharest, Prague, Budapest and Vienna are excited. All neighboring states are taking hasty measures of precaution, none of them knowing whether the danger may not threaten them next. From Socialization, Communism and Bolshevism Russia has within the last ten months drifted into militarism. The former pacificists, Lenine and Trotzky, have thrown to the winds all the principles on which they founded their revolution. Roumania is in dread of their legions, Czecho-Slovakia deprecates their hostility. The only state in Central Europe which is looked upon as the eventual fierce antagonist of the Russian Bolshevists is Hungary, and some eyes are actually turning in that direction, wondering whether Hungary would not venture to get into line an army of 100,000 or 200,000 men to save Europe from the Russian, as 400 years ago she saved it from the Ottoman, plague. The greatest danger of all is the delirious joy of most continental Socialists at the success of the Russian Bolsheviks. In Italy especially the advance of the Red army is looked upon by Socialist leaders as the judgment of God."

With the fresh and almost unimpeded advance of the Red armies to a point within 85 miles of Warsaw and in contact with the main railway lines over which the Polish miltary supples are received, the Polish administration, it has been learned, is contemplating the immediate evacuation of Warsaw.

Some of the archives, it was learned from a Polish source in Paris, have already been moved. These, it is reported, will file at Cracow, where they will be under the protection of the allies.

PRESS DELEGATES OPPOSE SUBSIDIES

MIGHT IMPLY GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF NEWS SERVICES—FIRST SESSION TO-DAY.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Aug. 5.—Viscount Burnham was elected without a dissenting vote, chairman of the second Imperial Press Conference, which was opened in Ottawa this morning by His Excellency the Governor-General. Premier Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, leader of the Opposition, spoke formally in welcoming the delegates, who number about 100, from Great Britain and all parts of the Empire.

The conference will last until Saturday noon, after which the press party will continue its tour of the Dominion, beginning with Niagara Falls, Toronto and other Ontario cities next week.

Discuss Cable Rates.

A discussion of cable rates and facilities for the transmission of news throughout the Empire occupied the latter part of the session and further consideration will be given the matter this afternoon. British and Canadian delegates were emphatic in their opposition to the acceptance of any government subsidies which might possibly imply Government control of the character of new services.

The Duke of Devonshire in opening the session expressed the conviction that the assembling of so many influential newspaper men in conference of so representative a character, would have the same valuable results as did the first conference in 1909 and play a big part in the problems of reconstruction.

Free From Influence.

Robert Donald, vice-chairman of the British delegates, introduced the main motion regarding cable rates. It recommends that the governments of Great Britain, the self-governing Dominions, and of India to increase communications and reduce rates. The resolution adds :

"This conference considers it essential that where any government assistance is given to the press by way of cable or other services such state assistance shall appear specifically in the estimates of public expendiutre, and that the selection and editing of news and other matter circulated within the Empire shall be in the control of the newspapers and news agencies and should not in any way be subject to official influence."

Mr. Donald declared that the public should aim high in matter of cable rates. Universal penny postage which obtained before the war was not more reasonable than the universal cable rate for British possessions of a penny a word. He proposed that the conference set this as its object. J. W. Dafoe, Manitoba Free Press, seconded the motion. He stated the cables were the nerve system of the Empire.

THE WEATHER

CHIEF GRANGE RAPS DRURY GOVERNMENT

FIRE CHIEFS OBJECT TO PENALIZING LEGISLATION.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 3.—One of the biggest and most important conventions ever held in this city opened here to-day, when about 200 fire chiefs, delegates to the big Dominion Fire Chiefs' convention, representing cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, met at the city hall for their annual gathering. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Brinkman and ex-Mayor F. A. Horton, president of the Board of Trade. The Mayor presented a handsome silver key of the city to President Berthiaume. Distinguished visitors were present at the afternoon session in the person of Chief Percy Hart, of Cheyenne, Wyoming, the millionaire fire chief; Chief John F. Healy, new president of the International Association, and wife, of Denever, and Chief Oscar Hiestand of Casper, Wyoming.

"As long as we have Labour-U.F.O. combinations running our affairs, we will have to put up with such legislation as this," declared Chief Grange of Peterborough, discussing the latest bill of the Ontario government, which compels fire departments to grant at least one day day holiday to each man each week. The bill imposes a fine of $10 and costs for every day in which the Chief of the various departments fail to live up to the new act. The matter was discussed at some length and it was finally laid over for to-morrow's meeting, when Chief Russell will be asked for the reason of the bill being passed. Chief Russell, of Toronto, it is stated, was responsible for the Act being passed. The general opinion of the meeting was that the bill is a gross injustice to the Fire Chiefs of Ontario, and it was felt that some action should be taken.

NO DELEGATES TO LABOUR CONGRESS

LOCAL TRADES COUNCIL DECIDED BENEFITS WEREN'T WORTH THE EXPENSES.

At the regular meeting of the Trades Council last night Mr. T. Lane presided and Mr. G. A. Dodds, recently appointed secretary, made his first appearance in that position.

The American Federation of Labor wrote in appreciation of the Council complying with their request to appoint a volunteer organizer, in appointing T. Lane. Another communication from the A. F. of L. condemning the cessional labour movements was received.

The Trans-Canada Theatres' offer of a vaudeville act for the grand stand performance at the Exhibition grounds and a show in the theatre at night was received. The offer for the day was considered fair and the majority of delegates were in favour of accepting. It was left for the Labor Day committee to deal with.

The appeal of the inside carpenters of Ottawa for financial assistance was received and a grant of $5 was passed.

Will Not Send Delegate.

The convention call to the Trades Congress convention to be held in Windor on Sept. 13 was dealt with. A delegate declared that they had never got any good for the money they had expended in sending a delegate to this convention. He said he couldn't see what they had ever done for the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council and they couldn't afford it, and he moved that the letter be placed on file.—Carried.

From the Hodcarriers and Builders' Labour Union of Butte, Montana., came an appeal for aid in the fight they have been carrying on in the mining city.

This appeal prompted a delegate to ask what donations the local machinists received from United States' locals when they went out on strike. A machinist stated that he could not say exactly, but he knew of at least one $25 donation from Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Another delegate felt that the American locals should carry on their own fight. He believed that there was more money went out of this country to the States in donations than they ever sent over here to help Canadian locals.

No action was taken on the communication.

A delegate reminded the Council that twelve ladies would be needed for the booth at the grounds and he asked them to see that the required number were forthcoming.

The Labor Day committee met after the meeting.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Joseph Fontaine Waived Preliminary Hearing on Charge of Criminal Negligence.

Joseph Fontaine was committed for trial before the County Judge at the next Court of Competent jurisdiction on a charge of criminal negligence in this morning's Police Court. Fontaine it is alleged, on Wednesday evening, July 28th., while driving an automobile on the Chemong Road struck a horse and buggy in which were Mr. and Mrs. William Crowley of Ennismore, killing the horse and injuring the occupants of the buggy. He was remanded on this charge last week.

J. F. Strickland, his counsel, waived preliminary hearing this morning and in view of the fact that the accident was not as serious as at first thought bail was reduced from $2,000 to $1,000.

$19.10 PER BOTTLE.

Two drunks were given a gruelling cross-examination in vain by Crown Attorney Hatton in an effort to discover where they obtained their liquor and were assessed $10 and costs of $9.10 each.

REPORT ON CHILD LABOR.

Quebec Survey Shows Small Percentage of Illiterates.

(Canadian Press.)

QUEBEC, Aug. 4.—The registration of children employed by labor or trades in the City of Quebec is now practically finished and a report is being prepared to be forwarded to the Hon. Galipeault, Minister of Labor. Out of one thousand nine hundred children examined as to their ability in regard to primary education only about fifteen were considered as illiterate, though a few had to be ordered to attend evening schools. In general girls have shown less education than boys.

RETURNING AMERICAN DEAD.

Bodies of 326 Soldiers Lost with the Tuscania on Way Home.

LONDON.—It is expected that by the end of a week all the bodies of American soldiers who lost their lives when the transport Tuscania sank off the Irish coast in February, 1918, will have been removed to Liverpool from the Island of Islay, where they were temporarily buried, for shipment home. The victims numbered about 300.

Two hundred and fifty of the bodies have been brought to Liverpool by the steamer Gronigen, chartered for the purpose. The Gronigen is now at Islay taking on the remaining bodies. All technicalities of the Health Ministry have been complied with, and as soon as a transport is available the bodies will be taken home.

SAYS BOOT INDUSTRY WORST IN TWENTY YEARS

TORONTO, Aug. 4.— "The situation in the boot and shoe industry is worse than it has been in twenty years," said Walter Brown, business manager for the union, to The World yesterday afternoon. "Twenty-five per cent. of our members are off altogether, and 50 per cent. are doing half-time work. The other 25 per cent. are working full time. Two weeks hence, 50 per cent. of the whole will be practically off indefinitely. I say this advisedly, and after 30 years of experience in the trade."

VIRTUOUS WIVES

She said this quite unconcernedly as though she had received the most trivial compliment; nor was he able to divine whether this was the art of the woman restoring the barrier between them or the unconscious soul of a child that is ignorant of the desires it sows.

"And now I must remember my duties," she said, with a pout, pronouncing that terrible word as only she knew how. "Will you come and ask me to dance later?"

"Often," he said, in a low voice.

The mischief was done, and he knew it. Had it been done consciously or not? Despite his varied knowledge of women, he felt as though her soft little hands had closed over his eyes and a voice murmured,

"If you follow me, follow me blindly."

XI

With the serving of the supper the ball had reached its height. At the telepone, a reporter was sending in the last details before the closing of the presses. Detectives wandered among the guests, watching the imported servants. In a corner of the struggling dining room a knot of reporters, in dominoes provided by Steingall, copiously fed under the direction of the head caterer, passed the mighty in review, detailing anecdotes from their secret knowledge.

"Must be a million dollars' worth of jewels here."

"Nearer two."

"Say, Bill, get the name of the foreign gink who came with the Gunthers? What is he, Portugee or Wop?"

"Mrs. Reggie's gone off badly this season."

"Grub's all right."

"Who's the sporty girl in red?"

"Mrs. Tontee, divorced Jack Albright last winter—remember the story down in Palm Beach?"

The speaker, a short, baldish, old-young man left the group and bore down on the lady in question.

'How do, Mrs. Tontee? Would you mind giving me some details about the costume you're wearing to-night?"

'Oh, do you really want to write something about me?" she said, shaking hands cordially. "The dress is nice, isn't it? It's genuine, too—worn by the Countesse de Vrilly. Came down in my husband's family."

"Which husband?" asked the irrepressible spirit of the American press.

"Well—say nothing about that," said Mrs. Tontee, much amused. She wasted no pretences on the gentlemen of the fourth estate, knowing them of old. "I don't suppose you'd want photographs, but if you do, Sanderson & Sanderson have taken some beautiful ones."

"What the foreign feller with the Gunthers?"

Mrs. Tontee gave the required information sweetly, and volunteered several bits of useful details.

"Much obliged," said the reporter "Anything you'd like mentioned?"

"No-o. I'm giving a rather important dinner. Call me up next week, in the morning—there might be something."

Irma Dellabarre passed on the arm of Jap Laracy, in search of her husband, a little apprehensive.

"I think he's in the smoking room."

'Go and see, like a dear boy."

Laracy, having located Rudolph, returned.

"Is he enjoying himself?"

"He's all right," said Laracy, who comprehended the question.

"Anyhow," thought Irma, glancing round the dining room, "whatever happens, he won't be conspicuous."

"Say, Irma, I'll keep an eye on him," said Laracy. "Leave him to me; I'll get him home at the right time."

"Thank you, Jap," said Irma, with a soft glance. 'And now run along and dance with some pretty girl."

Monte Bracken and Amy passed her, entering the ballroom, so engrossed in each other that they did not perceive her. There was a light in Bracken's eyes she knew—a certain way, too, of holding his head as though bending forward in accentuated deference. She knew she was no longer in love with him, and yet the spectacle of his awakening interest in another woman wounded her, bringing back disturbing memories. That this woman should be her close friend was particularly hard to bear. At that moment, happening to look up to the little balcony, she saw Andrew Forrester gazing down. She thought a moment and then went up. So engrossed was he in his own mood that it was not until she touched his arm that he noticed her coming.

"This is nice of you," he said gratefully, brightening up.

"How does it feel to be the husband of a great beauty."

He smiled grimly. A moment before, looking down on the fairy panorama, he had been thinking that, in one night, he had thrown into the air what it had cost him to live two year as a bachelor.

"Wonderful scene— exquisite in every detail!" she said, looking down. "You've justified your motto."

"What's that?"

"Hang the expense!"

"Oh—I'd forgotten!" he said, with a bitter smile.

'Now, as Kitty says, they'll have a chance to feel natural," she continued with a gesture toward the dancers, who were swinging into the lively measure of an ultra-modern dance, imported from the purlieu of the Barbary Coast.

The evening, which had begun in the decorum that had descended out of the stately past, burst into the riot of modern America.

"Yes; now they are more natural," said Irma, smiling. "We are not so far removed from the Zulus, after all, are we? And listen to the savagery of the music we dance to," she added, as at that moment the orchestra burst into a jumble of explosive chord, accompanied by every noise-provoking device of sand-shufflers, cowbells, clashing cymbals and drum-pounding, which, at that time, was considered the harmony of sweet rhythms. 'Could Zulu make night more hideous or dance fore grotesquely? After all, we're only a generation from the mining camp."

"It is nerve-shattering," Andrew said, laughing for the first time. "But you—you aren't dancing?"

She shook her head.

'I am too fastidious, perhaps," she said daintly, "but I prefer the old conception of woman to the catch-aas catch-can familiarity. I believe in maintaining the preciousness of oneself. I don't enjoy being pawed and mauled."

The idea was now to him. He considered it, comprehending instantly.

'You are right," he said, looking at her. Her personality at that moment enveloped him agreeably, like a delicious perfume. "But not many women would agree."

"How many of them are women?" she said, looking gently into his eyes with a glance that was all feminine. The gray, transparent eyes in the brown oval refleced the smiling seduction of her lips. He saw and admired the high pride of the throat and the long, graceful fingers closed over her fan.

"What a woman she is!" he thought but recalled to gloomy thoughts, he said,

"Whose fault is it? Ours?"

She nodded, and, to meet the new interest in his eyes, offered her profile, extending her graceful arm with a slow release of the fan, which laid the nodding white plume against the warm Spanish tints of her throat.

"So Amy has been talking to you?" he said abruptly. "Do you blame me?"

She turned, kindness in her eyes. If there was one thing she adored, it was for other women's husbands to spread their confidences before her.

"Of course I don't—I understand things he can't". There was no malice in her nature, and, an account of her instinct of coquetry, she was surer and more dangerous. "Your wife is very young, Andrew."

"That is true," he said gravely.

She laid her hand lightly on his arm, a passing touch.

"I'm sorry, Andrew."

"She can understand," he thought bitterly. He looked down on the rollicking pagans below, who laughed, danced, and made merry about his brilliant wife, and troubled themselve not at all about him in his isolation.

"There's one thing I must say," she said, for the look of pain on his forehead stirred a genuine sympathy: "You give too much importance to a boy like Tody Dawson. He is harmless."

BEWARE OF TENDER GUMS

Unhealthy soil kills the best of wheat. Unhealthy gums kill the best of teeth. To keep the teeth sound keep the gums well. Watch for tender and bleeding gums. This is a symptom of Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

Pyorrhea menaces the body as well as the teeth. Not only do the gums recede and cause the teeth to decay, loosen and fall out, but the infecting Pyorrhea germs lower the body's vitality and cause many serious ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist frequently for tooth and gum inspection. And use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

BOOM PERIOD PAST IN COBALT MINING

GOLD MINING SETTLED DOWN NOW AS RICH MAN'S GAME.

TIMMINS, Ont., Aug. 4—Canada was undoubtedly a young country in mining in so far as gold in quartz was concerned and probably was a little spolit by the superlatively easy recoveries in Cobalt. Many prospectors in the early days failed to realize that gold mining is a rich company's game and are still holding undeveloped prospects with good values and regretting the fair offers they spurned during the boom.

Lack of Capital.

Many properties started work with good surface showings, but with insufficient capital, and by superhuman efforts in the stock market eked out enough money to drag on in the hope of uncovering sensational values which might pull them through, but in the end had to close down.

Such a finish under this method was inevitable. It could work with silver, but not with gold. No doubt if most of these properties were thoroughly explored they would prove of sufficient richness to warrant a large company taking them over.

The war, too, shortened the labor supply. Now labor is equally scarce and the war taxes cut profits so that the time is most unpropitious for resumption of work on such properties. Probably the fate of most of these small properties will be that failing to get capital enough to work under present disadvantageous conditions which show no signs of early alleviation they will be absorbed by larger companies in a better position to work them.

At any rate, the boom period is long past, and any further moves in the direction of operation will be genuine mining and not mining with one eye on the "ticker."

The Town of Tmmins.

The question is often asked, "Does the life of Timmins depend on the life of the Hollinger mine?" Undoubtedly the Hollinger made Timmins, but the town has now far outgrown the needs and scope of the mine. It is an up-to-date town with sewerage and water systems, banks, fine stores, theatre, hotels, station, basement sidewalks, and all in six years. Even if none of the other mines ever opened up again which is of course absurd, by the time the Hollinger exhausts its reserves the outlying country will be cleaned to such an extent that it will be the centre of a fine farming communit- It is not generally known that the soil in this region is very productive and that farming, in a pioneer state, of course, has cleared all up and down the Mattagami river, and ten years from now little bush will be left within a ten-mile radius of this town.

Lumbering, too, has taken a great boom since the great demand for material started, and in the future no doubt this will be an important contributory factor to the prosperity of this northern town. The air is very bracing and several veterns who are gas cases have found that they can work here where most other climates do them injury.

Typical History.

In fact, the Porcupine district is typical. It has had the boom stage incident to any new discovery of precious mineral; it brought a railway into a district in record tme, whch but for that discovery would still be virgin wilderness; it has experienced the steadying down and healthy growth stage and now is consolidating the outlying districts into what will one day be a healthy farming district thriving alongsde some of the world's biggest gold mines. What has been the history of Porcupine will be the history of Larder Lake and Kirkland Lake in opening up our great North Ontario.

Half a Pineapple For One Dessert

In Jiffy-Jell desserts the fruit flavors are abundant. For instance, half a pineapple is crushed to make the flavor for one pint dessert. This is done in Hawaii from fruit too ripe to ship.

All Jiffy-Jell fruit flavors are made from condensed fruit juice. They come in liquid form—in vials—a bottle in each package. That is true of no other quick gelatine dessert.

A few cents will serve a real-fruit dessert for six people. No artificial flavor, no saccharine. It is the most delicious fruit dessert available, and it comes in ten choice flavors.

A PROBLEM TO SOLVE

The city seems to be in considerable muddle over the new Hunter street bridge, which will be both high in level and high in cost. In a rather peppery meeting between the council and Engineer Frank Barber Tuesday night, some suggestion of engaging a new engineer found place, but whether in this case it would be wise to swop horses while crossing the stream is a question which calls for earnest consideration. But one things seems quite clear and that is, if Ald. Gordon is correct in his figuring that Mr. Barber was some $35,000 out in his estimates, finishing this work with the $100,000 additional voted by the rate-payers may prove a problem difficult to solve. However, Council has to see the work through and whatever action they take should be unswerving and backed by expert advice in which they can place the fullest confidence.

This question of the non-appointment of a cost clerk to distribute costs over construction as it proceeds, for the engineer's information and guidance in future estimating enters considerably of late into discussions between Council and Mr. Barber. But why did not Mr. Barber advise such an appointment? Ald. Hamilton, chairman of the special bridge committee, emphatically declares that he did not.

Keeping cost of large structural work in detail should enter into procedings, but we are advised by an enginer of considerable standing that such is the engineer's responsibility. He asserts that the practice is for the engineer to see the work through either in person or by having a resident engineer on the job, and that whichever is in attendance on the structure will keep in touch with what the work is costing in every detail. This authority also declares that any clerk can do the clerical work entailed by this cost-keeping under supervision of and instruction by an engineer. That is to say, the present bridge accountant could serve as cost clerk providing an engineer was present to explain the method of arriving at measurements, and all such deductions as make for construction cost keeping, the engineer assuming the responsibility.

From the report of Tuesday's meeting with Mr. Barber it appears that neither he, the contracors nor anyone else has the data on cost from which a proper estimate could be made, and that is a state of affairs which is to be deplored. And the question naturally arises, had such data been kept and furnished council from time to time would not opportuntiy have been offered to retrench somewhat on ascertaining, by comparison of cost of work done with the amount of construction to be finished, that the bridge would exceed its original estimates. This seems to be the logical course which should have been pursued, but which was not.

MADE IN PETERBOROUGH.

For some years past a lrge number of American industries have adopted the policy of establishing branches of their mother factories here in Canada for the production on Canadian soil of their products in demand by Canadians. This answers three ends—it saves customs duty on the commodities, places American manufacturers within the British red belt in anticipation of a comprehensive development of the trade within the Empire principle, and gives them advantage of catering to the "Made in Canada" slogan. The encouragement of location in Canada by such American industries should be fostered, for it reflects on Canadian individual and collective interests in that our own workmen build the factories and are employed in producing goods which heretofore were produced by American artisans and laborers. Whatever commodities we need here should be the output of Canada and Canadian workmen wherever possible.

Three hundred and fifty U. S. industries had established Canadian branches before 1914, and the New York Times computes that since the armistice no less than two hundred others have located in this country or planned to do so. Peterborough has had a share of these, through the energetic efforts of its Industrial Commissioner, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, the Board of Trade and City Council, coupled, of course, with the people's endorsation at the polls. We refer to the Canadian Raybestos Co., Aladdin Co., Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Co., and the Western Clock Co. Then there is the Quaker Oats Co., which found its birth in America and which has been established in this city for many years now, as well as the De Laval company, more recently established, but rapidly growing. But still there is more room yet for additional industries in this electric city, with cheap power of its own, and exceptional transportation facilities. Therefore it behooves us to take advantage of this tendency by U. S. manufacturers to seek location within our Dominion, and leave no stone unturned to keep Peterborough conspicuously prominent across the border. The City Council and Board of Trade are spending money, and rightly so, for publicity purposes, and another commendable means of lending support in that connection is to see that products leaving this city's industries for the States are arrestingly labelled "Made in Peterborough, Ont., Canada."

ENGLISH THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

It is not surprising that the Swedish secretary of the Northern Europe Peace Union has discovered by means of a questionnaire that certain groups of Central and Northern Europe overwhelmingly "urged the adoption of English as the most suitable world language." Nor is it surprising that the professor who analyzed the vote believes that the suggestion that English be made the international language "is supported by a vast majority of judges." The prominence, if not the dominance, of English at the Peace Conference in Paris gave but a hint of its real supremacy in the diplomatic world. For all practical purposes, it is now the language of diplomacy in the Orient, while the business world also practically acknowledges English as the universal medium of communication. Over three-fourths of the mail matter of the world is addressed in English, and more than half the world's newspapers are printed in the same language.

English is rapidly usurping the place of French as the language of diplomacy, not only because it is spoken by a greater number of people than those who speak any one of the seven great tongues of modern Europe, but because back of the spoken tongue there is a great literature and a great inspiration. The figures themselves are eloquent. Even a century ago Jacob Grimm, the German philologist, foresaw that English was destined to become the chief language of the world, though at that time it was then in the fifth place numerically in use among the European nations. By 1860 however, English had surpassed all the other languages of Europe, and by 1890 was safely in the lead, with the figures for 1911 showing that it distanced its nearest competitor, German, by about 30,000,000.

This inevitable outcome of the law of the survival of the fittest instead of making for pride should make the English-speaking peoples realize that though the day of linguistic opportunity is theirs, the day of duties toward the world at large is also at hand. If we cannot escape our pre-eminence in one line we cannot escape it in another. And it behooves us to take counsel together in order that English as a universal language shall represent the thought of the free people of a free world and be something more than a convenient vocabulary for business communications. It is this feeling that undoubtedly led Professor William Lyon Phelps, who holds the chair of English at Yale, to send to the conference of American and British professors of English just held in London this message, "I hope the conference will be a factor toward the goal—where all speaking and writing English will be, in spirit, one nation, people and family. Next to music, English is the nearest approach to a universal language." This sentiment of Professor Phelps sums up the situation poetically and truthfully and leaves little to be said.—Public Ledger, Philadelphia

TWO SOUND VIEWS.

Two men whose words are usually given considerable prominence throughout the country have made recently significnt remarks pertaining to the labor and wage situation of the day. Samuel Gompers declared that the way to find money to pay the increased wages ordered on the railroads is to increase efficiency. Judge Elbert H. Gary, on the eve of a trip abroad, put emphasis on an assertion that labor is not being paid too highly. Both apparently had the same main thought in mind, for the belief is more or less common that high wages are here to stay but that if the country is to keep on an even keel there must be an increase in production commensurate with the advance in wages.

Judge Gary's ideas are particularly significant in view of the dominance of the steel industry in the wage-earning field. The mammoth concern of which he is the head has so often been regarded as opposed to the interests of the working-man that there are many persons who will find they have been getting the wrong view of the man. The New York Commercial, which also is credited with being the representative of financial interests, has the folowing to say about Judge Gary's remarks:

"Judge Gary's summarizing of current conditions prior to his sailing for Europe bears out statements made by other industrial leaders along the same line. As the largest employer of labor in this country outside of the government, his remarks on the relationship between capital and labor are especially significant of the broader minded attitude that has been taking hold of the employer class for some time.

"Judge Gary points out that labor has never before in any country been paid as high compensation in proportion to the cost of living as it has been paid during the past few years and is being paid at the present time, but he declares it has not been paid too much. This is the view accepted by all clear thinkers on present conditions. It is far better for the welfare of the community at large that labor should be amply paid, assuming all the time that labor will do the fair thing and render an adequate return. In times past labor has been offered too small a portion of that which it helped to produce. If wages can be adjusted on such a basis that workers can live comfortably in homes provided with due regard to the laws of sanitation and well-being, with enough to send the children to school and to high school and perhaps by a careful saving to college, if there is enough to buy good furniture and good clothes and provide proper medical attendance if necessary and still leave enough for a savings account, the whole community will be better off.

"Labor has had a chance at these conditions under recent liquidating scales of wages, and no one would wish to drive it back to old-time conditions. Buildings in a factory neighborhood should not be tumble-down shacks verging on slums, as has too often been the case in the past, but should be well built and airy and should carry with them the aspect of homes rather than mere places of abode.

"If labor is thus well paid it means an increased purchasing power on the part of the community, enabling the community to support these high wages in the increased cost of manufactured goods. It simply means adjusting the basis of living to a nigher level and bringing all elements of the commuity into proper relation to it."

The "Commercial" has summarized the situation very well. It is common knowledge that in the past three or four years there has been a minimum of poverty. Also in the past few months there have begun to appear more and more frequently statistics about the effect of higher wages on the general health of Americans. Some men who deal extensively with figures hesitate to say openly that the health of the nation has improved greatly because of the better earning power, but they are none the les frank about the improvement.

But Judge Gary's views can hold good and the country can continue to live better only if what Mr. Gompers suggests also is carried out. Industry can well afford to pay present high rates for labor but industry has a right to expect in return every possible increase in efficiency. If it is true that men can do as much work in seven or eight hours as has been done in nine or ten, it is up to the men and women of the country to prove it. No one will benefit more than they from such a course.—Exchange.

LITANY OF THE CAGED SONG BIRDS.

Once I swung in Heaven blue,
Once I was cradled by the trees,
Once I knew the bending branch,
Touched the pinions of the breeze.
Little Saint of singing things,
Francis! hear my flutterings.
Hear the breaking heart of me.

Mortals think I sing of joy,
Canticles of dewy light,
Roulades of the briared dell,
Of the runnel's fresh delight,
Little Saint of singing things,
Francis! hear my flutterings.
Hear the breaking heart of me.

Here I sing encaged in wire,
But my spirit's on the thorn
Of the dancing moon-white may
Near the nest where I was born.
Little Saint of singing things,
Francis! hear my flutterings,
Hear the breaking heart of me
For the loving sake of Him
Who was crowned with a thorn,
Who once died upon a tree.

Accept only "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" package which contains complete directions. Then you are getting real Aspirin—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years. Now made in Canada.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

CANADA anticipates a period of growth.

Her raw materials remain the envy of her competitors.

She commands capital and skilled workmanship.

Her position in the British Empire gives her prestige and opportunity.

But whether she realizes her hopes fully or only partially rests to no small degree upon her steam railways.

* * *

CLOSER to Orient or Europe than is any other part of the New World, Canada would lose this advantage if her railways proved unable to carry her goods quickly to these well-placed ports.

She must be prepared for any development of traffic eastbound or west—or south.

HER rail service must be elastic and dependable. It must have reserve capacity, whether to roll a bumper wheat crop east, or some other Canadian product west-bound for Siberia or the Antipodes.

* * *

Elasticity, dependability and reserve capacity are profoundly affected by the overwhelming increase in operating expenses as compared to revenue.

THIS is another reason why increased freight rates are necessary in the public interest!

Atlantic Sugar Refineries in Strong Financial Position Dividend Policy Announced

Company Handled Over $25,000,000 Business During Past Fiscal Year, An Increase of Over 133 — Assets of Company Have Gained to $13,186,347—Company Has Current Assets of $4,988,723, Against Current Liabilities, Including Provision For War Tax, of $1,188,881.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—The rapid strides which have been made in the sugar industry in Canada is reflected in the announcement made in the annual report of Atlantic Sugar Refineries, Limited, that the volume of sales of refined sugar during the year amounted to over $25,000,000, an increase over the previous year of approximately 133 per cent. This indicates the extent to which the industry is keeping pace with the expansion of the pulp and paper and other industries that have been showing phenomenal development for the past few years.

The very much larger volume of business handled by the company during the year has enabled it to place itself in a stronger financial position, and indicates that the directors, if they desire to do so, can pay off all arrears of preferred dividends in cash, and also give early consideration to dividend on the common stock.

With the larger business handled there has been a substantial increase in the profits, the profit and loss account showing refining profit for the year of $1,594,888, as against gross profits for the previous year of $986,343. This year profits from other sources are reported, amounting to $1,199,012. This evidently represents transactions in raw sugar, of which the company has very large supplies. There is also an item this year of profit on investments of $9,009, making a total of $2,802,910.

This amount was distributed as follows:— Bond interest for year $81,450; bank interest and exchange on trade paper, $131,325; depreciation, $721,031; contingent reserve, $1,199,012; making a total of $2,-152,819, and leaving net profit for the year of $670,090. From this amount dividends of 10½ per cent. were paid on the preferred shares, amounting to $262,500, leaving an amount to be carried forward of $407,590. This, added to the balance carried forward from the previous year, brought the total of profit and loss up to $1,-105,362.

Profit and loss account compares as follows:—

	1920.	1919.
Grs. Bus.	$25,000,000	$11,000,000
Net. Pro.	2,802,910	986,344

Pref. Surplus	698,772	323,439
P. & L. Bal.	$ 1,106,362	$ 698,772

The general statement of assets and liabilities shows some very interesting changes. The outstanding feature is the strength of the company's cash and financial position. Total assets of the company stand at $13,186,347, as compared with $10,-561,478 at the end of the previous year. Of this amount current assets reach a total of $4,988,723, against total current liabilities, in which is included provision for profit tax for 1920, of $1,188,881. This compares with current assets in the previous year of $3,400,000 and current liabilities of $2,148,417. Current assets contain cash $1,438,041, compared with $30,908 at the end of the previous year, accounts receivable $922,569, as against $451,305, bills receivable $1,147,519, compared with $249,864 and inventories $1,453,465, as against $2,498,098.

Working capital compares as follows:

	1920.	1919.
Current assets	$4,988,723	$3,400,506
Current liabilities	1,188,882	2,148,417

Dividend Policy.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders, the President of the company, D. Lorne McGibbon, announced in part the plans which the directors are entertaining for the re-organization of the company. He first made the announcement that a cash dividend of 28 per cent., payable September 1 to shareholders of record has been declared, thus wiping out the dividend arrears on the preferred stock. Following this, he said that the preferred stock was placed upon a 7 per cent. dividend basis with the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent., payable October 1 to shareholders of record September 20.

He then stated that the common stock was placed upon a dividend basis of 10 per cent. per annum, the first payment being the quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., payable October 1 to shareholders of record September 20.

He outlined the ideas of the directors as far as they have gone. With the dividend arrears wiped out, and this out of the approximately $1,000,-00 profit made out of raw sugar in the year, the preferred stock will be converted into common during the month of September, this being greatly to the advantage of preferred shareholders who will thus participate in the 10 per cent. dividend on the common stock, and when this operation is completed, the company will have $6,000,00 outstanding of 10 per cent. common stock.

The plan for the reorganization of the company is not yet definitely formulated, but when plans are completed a special general meeting will be called, when shareholders will be asked to approve the plan. Whether the stock will merely be divided, or whether a new company will be formed to take over the present company is not yet sure, Mr. McGibbon spoke to shareholders frankly and freely, stating that he was laying all the cards on the table. The plans as stated met with approval.

The president stated that the company was now doing a buiness of about $5,000,000 a month, the monthly business being almost equal to the total business for the whole of 1916. He looked forward to a business this year of $50,000,000.

Mr. McGibbon also said that the refineries at St. John were the most economically operated and most efficient sugar mills in the world, without exception, while he stated that analysis has shown that the quality of the sugar produced was pre-eminent and without comparison, being of the highest grade. As soon as possible the export business, stopped by the embargo on sugar exports from Canada, will be resumed.

Makes Hair Grow

All drug stores sell DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC, the Great French Hair Grower, first discovered in Paris. DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC, a positive guarantee to remove Dandruff, is sold by first-class druggists under stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A bottle costs $1.00.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS OF ONTARIO'S FRUIT CROP IN GOVERNMENT REVIEW

GOOD YIELD OF SMALL FRUITS AND APPLES AND PEACHES ARE PROMISING—ROOT CROP IS EXCEPTIONALLY FAVOURABLE AND POTATOES ARE FLOODING THE MARKET.

HEAVY CANNING OF PEAS

The following is a summary of the reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture for the week ending August 3rd:

Welland reports that oats, corn, etc., have recovered from the effects of the severe rain storm of July 23. The injury from Hessian fly has been serious in a number of the fall wheat counties in the southwest part of the Province. Norfolk reports that some fields suffered from 40 to 50 per cent. of damage from the insect. Some representatives are of opinion that the work of the fly may tend to limit the area of winter wheat planted this fall.

Barley and early oats have been cut in several counties. While well headed, the straw of the first named crop is rather short; but oats (with more than double the acreage of all the other cereals) promises a generous yield of both grain and straw. Spring wheat has not done so well.

Farmers are still drawing green peas to the Napanee canning factory, where some days as many as 30,000 cans have been turned out.

Corn Uneven So Far.

Corn is very uneven this year, and has not received as much cultivation as usual owing to long spells of broken weather. However, the main growing season is now on.

Early potatoes are pouring upon the market. The yield has been good, and they are largely free from disease, although Frontenac speaks of considerable blackleg.

Beans are doing exceedingly well as a field crop this season; the acreage, however, is comparatively small.

Flax is said to have done well in Middlesex, where the crop is now being pulled, mainly by Indians.

Owing to continued catchy weather a good deal of hay is still lying in the fields which will mean a lot of poorly cured clover and timothy. The second growth of clover however is most satisfactory. New hay is selling at from $20 to $26 a ton.

Grey reports that sweet clover is doing remarkably well both for fodder and seed.

Alfalfa has also been an excellent crop so far, both first and second growth.

Roots Are Doing Well.

The rain has forced the root crops ahead in fine style, and good returns are looked for, especially from sugar beets and turnips.

The season will rank as a good season for fruit, generally speaking. Raspberries are large in size, and are yielding well. Apples are bearing fairly in most cases, especially the summer and fall varieties, and are freer than usual from work and spot. Early peaches are now on the market. Norfolk reports these as yielding well.

Cattle are being marketed slowly. Calves for veal are selling at from 13 to 18 cents a lb.

The milk flow is good for the time of year. Frontenac reports a drop in the price of cheese during the week, sales on the board going to 25 1-3 cents a lb. Prescott and Russell states that a number of cheese factories are now selling their products on a graded basis.

Hogs are going to market regularly at from $19 to $21 a cwt. Brant reports little pigs selling slowly at $10 a pair.

Grey states that stallion owners report a good season.

Victoria reports wool values as follows: 16-18 cents a lb for coarse, 20-22 cents for medium, 26-28 cents for fine.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

(Special to the Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Stock Market opened irregular. U. S. Rubber 86 1-2 up 1-4; Retail Stores 65 1-4 up 1-4, Consolidated gas 79 up 3 3-4 Central Leather 49 1-2, off 3-8; U. S. Steel 87 3-8, off 5-8; Amn Woollen 76 1-2, unchanged, New York Central 72 5-8, unchanged, Baldwin 108 1-4, unchanged Mexican Pet. 158 1-2, off 1-2, Vanadium 70 unchanged; New York N. H. and H. 35 1-4, up 1-4; Reading 89 1-4, off 1-4; Canadian Pacific 118 1-8, off 1 1-8; B and O 35 3-8 off 1-8.

Professional traders for the most part took the attitude that no progress could be made on the constructive side of the market until foreign news became more encouraging, and renewed their hammering tactics during the first hour of trading.

Steel Common was depressed to 87 1-4, a loss of 3-4, and other active industrials lost ground in proportion. Rail issues were steady and in some cases showed an advance.

Rubber under Pressure.

Industrials acted badly during the second hour. Despite the excellent earnings statement of the first half of the year published by the United States Rubber Co., Wednesday, the stock was under persistent pressure and sold down to 83 5-8. A strong bear crowd seemed to be operating in all rubber shares. Goodrich failed to rally in announcement of the company that all present price schedules of Goodrich tires are guaranteed to November 1. The Deleware, Lackawanna and Western Stock was the feature of rails running up to 244 up 9 and a new high for one year.

A sensational break in Middle States oil came shortly after noon. The stock was off 10 to 10 1-2 points on offerings of 65, and shares. The turnover within half an hour in the stock was about five times the average turnover in a full day's sessions. The selling was practically all from one hour. The rest of the market sold off on the break in Middle States, with more severe reactions in oils. The oils averaged about a 2 point loss sugar stocks also were hammered down. Cuban American made a new low for the year at 41 1-2. Cuba was off 2 points at 41 1-4 while Porto Rican sugar was off 40 points at 220.

Exchange Rates.

NEW YORK,— Demand Sterling was off 3-4 to $3.60 1-4 at the opening of the Foreign Exchange to-day. All other quotations were slightly lower. Francs $.0723 off $.0009; Lire $.0504 off $.0004. Marks $.0214 off $.004.

WEDDING RECEPTION FOR CHANDOS COUPLE

MR. AND MRS. PHILIP TANNER HONOURED BY FRIENDS.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Tanner's picturesque home on the shore of Duck Lake, Chandos, was enfete on July 21st when a wedding reception was held in honour of Mr. and Mrs. W. Tanner whose marriage was solemnized by the Ven. Archdeacon Davidson at St. John's Peterborough on July 19th. After the wedding ceremony the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and points west and north making a brief stay at the boyhood home of the bridegroom, at Chandos. The reception was attended by a large number of guests, friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom. As they entered the home of Mr. and Mr. Philip Tanner, which was daintly decorated for the occasion, they were received with musical honours by the assembled guests after which all sat down to a bountiful repast. The ceremony of cutting the handsome wedding cake having been duly performed by the bride, the toast of the wedded couple was proposed by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence and seconded by the Reeve of Chandos, Mr. Fred Bullied.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Tanner were the recipients of many wedding gifts, testifying to the high esteem in which both bride and bridegroom are held by the residents of the township.

A very pleasant evening was spent in music and games and was brought to a close at a late hour with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY HOURS WORKED

Man Shot in Sudbury Bush, Employe of Nickel Company.

SUDBURY, Aug. 4.—The body of the man who was found murdered in the bush near here last night has been definitely identified as that of Antoine Larocque, an employe of the International Nickel Co., at Copper Cliff and believed a former resident of St. John's, Que. The identification was effected by means of a slip of paper found in his pocket issued by the Nickel Company, stating the number of hours he had worked during the last week of his employment there. Murder is suspected, as Larocque had considerable money when last seen alive and it is missing.

The entire police force are at work upon the case, which is one of the most mysterious to occupy the attention of the authorities here in recent years. In the pocket of a blue coat found near the scene of the tragedy a tattered snapshot was found, being the picture of two men and a girl. One of these men is believed to have been Larocque, owing to his unusually fine head of hair. Chief Fyvie has had an enlargement of this picture made. Measurements were taken at the place where the body was found, and the rifle which was discovered nearby was exactly fifteen feet away.

Railroad Centre With 2,000 Population Wiped Out.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 4.—Bradford, a railroad centre north-west of this city, was completely wiped out by fire early to-day entailing a loss of $1,000,000, according to reports received here. All wire communication with the town of 2,000 population is down.

PONZI HAD MONEY READY BUT DEMAND HAD PETERED OUT

RENEWAL OF CONFIDENCE BY SPECULATORS—SAYS HE RECEIVED DRAFT FOR $7,000,000.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 4.—With a sweeping return of confidence in Charles Ponzi there was no run on his School street establishment today, yet there were seemingly many thousands of dollars in cash ready for payments. The Federal Government may be about to take a hand in the Ponzi case.

Chief Accountant George W. Storch of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice has come to Boston, presumably at the direction of Attorney-General Palmer, and went into conference with Edward L. Pride, the accountant who is examining Ponzi's books. He had a talk with Assistant U. S. Attorney Shea, who, in the absence of U. S. Attorney Gallagher in New York, in conducting this Federal examination of Ponzi's affairs, and methods.

Mr. Ponzi's counsel, Leveroni, and Bailen, have begun suit against William H. McMasters, asking for an accounting for $2,200, which has been turned over to the advertising man, of which Mr. McMasters has already said he spent $1,200 for advertising and retailed practically all the rest on account. Mr. McMasters in his turn, employing Joseph Lundy as his attorney, has entered suit against Mr. Ponzi for $5,000 for his services as publicity man.

On the financial end, Mr. Ponzi is said to have received a draft for $7,000,000. This may or may not have been the same money offered by the mysterious "Levatur Canadian Bank" in a telegram which Mr. Ponzi showed to the reporters to whom he said he didn't know where this telegram came from, and thought it was somebody having a little fun. He still sticks to his assertion that he has $7,000,000 on deposit in 30 banks in this country alone.

NEGRO IS HELD IN KIDNAPPING CASE

ADMITS TAKING COUGHLIN BABY—DEMANDED ADDITIONAL SUM OF $10,000.

EGG HARBOR, N. J.— A negro, whose name was withheld, was questioned by Federal authorities here regarding his knowledge of the whereabouts of Blakely Coughlin, 15 months old Norristown, Pa., child, who was kidnapped in June.

The negro, arrested in a swamp here, admitted kidnapping the child and defrauding the father out of $12,-000 ransom money, officials announced.

The arrest was made when the child's father received a letter demanding that $10,000 additional be placed in a designated spot in the swamp near here for the return of the child. Fifty federal agents guarded the fake package.

The negro alighted from a train which arrived here from Philadelphia. Bloodhounds were placed on his trail, and they followed tracks which led in a roundabout way to the place where the money was supposed to have been placed. The suspect was overpowered and arrested.

The baby was kidnapped while asleep in his crib .The abductors entered the nursery, on the second floor of the Coughlin home, by means of a ladder placed near the window.

Several letters received by the father, signed "The Crank," demanded ransom ,and were believed to be from the kidnapper. The father, desiring only the return of his baby, took 'The Crank' at his word, and gave him $12,000, without taking authorities into his confidence.

When the child was not returned, residents of Norristown became incensed and raised a fund of $50,000 to be used in tracing the guilty persons.

FRIDAY EVENING DANCE AT CHEMONG

It Will be Under the Auspices of the Chemong Park Regatta Committee.

This week's Friday night dance at Chemong will be one of the most pleasant of the season. The Regatta Committee under whose auspices it will be held are making every preparation for it and a fine crowd is expected. This is a preliminary to the Regatta and the Regatta Dance on Thursday next, which is a big affair.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

APSLEY TO APPLY FOR A WAR TROPHY

PATRIOTIC COMMUNITY ON NORTH BORDER OF COUNTY HAS A CLAIM.

Special to The Examiner.

APSLEY, August 3. — Reeve Brown presided at a public meeting at the town hall, Apsley, on Friday evening, July 30th, which had been called by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, to consider making an application to Ottawa, for a war trophy for this district. Speeches were made in favour of the movement by Reeve Brown, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, Mr. Hall, the Methodist minister, Mr. Carr, formerly Methodist minister here and others.

Mr. Hale, though in favour of the application, would have deferred it for a time but after a full discussion a resolution moved by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, and seconded by Mr. Robt Knox, that the reeve be requested to apply to the Director of War Trophies, for a trophy to be assigned to Apsley, was unanimously carried.

This resolution together with particulars giving reasons for Apsley's claims to participate in the distribution, will be at once forwarded to the authorities, who will it is hoped, receive it with sympathetic consideration.

FEED NERVES PLENTY OF PHOSPHATE IN SUMMER

Keen Minded Men, Energetic and Successful Rely on It Asserts Prominent N.Y. Physician.

Bitro-Phosphate a Godsend.

Men and women, nervous and fretful, easily upset and often fatigued, need plenty of organic phosphate, and the sooner they heed this advice the better their health will be.

In every one of the millions of cells that make up your body, phosphorus is a most important part.

Your nervous system, your brain, your blood and even your bones must have a sufficient supply of phosphorus or weariness, nervousness and a general run-down condition, as well as back of normal mental power is sure to result.

Big men of affairs—mighty men who control industries because of sheer will power and nervous force, know this, or, if they don't are clever enough to have a physician who does.

Physicians more and more are realizing that Bitro-Phosphate, as dispensed at drug stores, is a necessity to over forty per cent. of men and women, because present day foods do not contain enough phosphate to give the body and especially the nervous system the ...ly it needs.

Speaking on this very subject, Dr. Frederick S. Kolle, Editor-in-Chief of Physicians' "Who's Who," and a nationally known author of medical text books, in a most emphatic statement said:

"If I had my way, Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital."

Later, Dr. Kolle said: "When the nerve tissue begins to lose its vitality, woman begins to lose her youth and vivaciousness. Her lively, pleasant disposition fades away—she becomes irritable, uncompanionable, moody and despondent. It would indeed be a god-send if more men and women were aware of the efficacy of Bitro-Phosphate."

Hot weather is dreaded by men and women who are weak, thin, nervous, timid and lacking in vigorous development because it saps their vitality almost to the breaking point.

To all such people Bitro-Phosphate is recommended because it is the one organic phosphate which, when absorbed by the system, will supply the element necessary for a vigorous, healthy body free from any suggestion of weakness or disordered nerves.

Your druggist has Bitro-Phosphate in the original package with complete instructions for best results.

The August Sale of Furniture

The Greatest This Store Has Ever Known

Unequalled in Price, Quality and Design

People and Concerns Who Are Proud of Their Goods Stamp Them with a Trade-mark

This is not always the case. We have known some very fine merchandise that bore no trade-mark other than its good quality. Maybe the makers considered that enough as it was quite evident.

There are trade-marked people as well as trade-marked goods and trade-marked stores also, that display their trade-mark in manner, deed or countenance.

Whenever possible, this store places its label or name on the goods it sells. The quality is self evident, but our label is our guarantee that it is all it appears to be.

The Cressman Co. Ltd.

$98.50 Rattan Chase Lounge, $68.50

This piece of furniture will bring to your home more than a true ornamental value, it will bring comfort. It is upholstered in an English shadow cloth in green tones, has Marshall spring cushions and a reclining back that suggests ease. Being rattan, it is light and portable, and can be easily drawn out to the verandah if desired.

$50 Rattan Arm Chair for $42.50

It is distinctive because of its upholstering in English shadow cloth in blue and rose tones that blend perfectly with the delf blue finish of the rattan. The seat has Marshall spring cushions.

Concerning Dining-Room Furniture

There is no dining-room furniture mentioned in this advertisement but there is a comprehensive assortment of it on sale, ranging from the lowest to the highest priced pieces in our stock. You can purchase the pieces individually or by the suite.

$20 Arm Chairs and Rockers, $13.95 Each

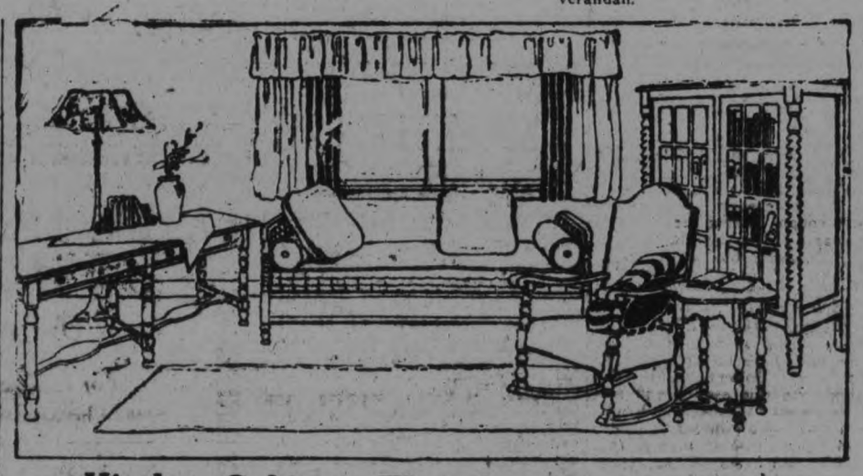
There are six only and there are three different finishes—golden oak, fumed oak and walnut. The seats are equipped with springs and upholstered in a good quality, prettily patterned tapestry that corresponds with the backs. They are good to look at, comfortable to sit in and promise to last long, for they are substantially made.

$16.50 Rattan Table, $13.25

It is the desirable round shape and is closely woven of fine quality sinuous reed. There is a hardwood shelf and the top is hardwood and is met by the wicker with a deep roll. It is suitable for living-room, den or verandah.

$45 Arm Chair and Arm Rocker, Upholstered All Over in English Tapestry, $32.50 Each

All upholstered chairs are not comfortable. We have tried many that were not, but these are. They are quite springy and the tapestry is a good-looking substantial fabric.



$70 Arm Chair and Arm Rocker, $59.75

They are upholstered all over in English tapestry and equipped with Marshall spring cushions, spring arms and back. You can enjoy a leisure hour in chairs like these for comfort has been the first consideration of the makers.

Sharp Reductions on Verandah Furniture

A large shipment of verandah furniture arrived just a few days ago—too late for this season's selling. We do not care to carry it over to next season so have priced it much lower than would have been the case earlier in the season. In addition there are many verandah lines that have been with us since spring and we are making a clearance of them, also.

A $32 Piano Lamp for $27

The shade is of old gold and rose silk and edged with a deep silk fringe. The stem is of mahogany and is shapely. It is illuminated with the aid of two lamps and is equally as pretty when lighted or otherwise.

$30 Piano Lamp for $25

There are two of these and both have silk shades in blue and rose with silk fringe. They are equipped with two lights and have a mahogany stem with a graceful round base.

Kitchen Cabinets That Are Worth Every Cent of $105, for $79

They are constructed principally of three-ply laminated materials (oak and other suitable woods). These woods are treated with a patent cement process, and under heavy hydraulic pressure, are sealed together.

They have every compartment that is desirable in a kitchen cabinet, and the hardware fittings and workmanship throughout is perfect. In fact it is seldom that such well constructed kitchen cabinets of such durable woods are seen.

Displayed for Easy Seeing on Our Fourth Floor

Two $37.50 Dressers for $29.75 Each

One is mahogany finish and the other golden oak. Both have large bevelled British plate mirrors in oval shape and two small and two long drawers.

$42 Golden Oak Dressers, $35

They have serpentine fronts, three long and two short drawers and you have choice of square or oval British plate mirrors. There are two only.

GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF RUIN IN WAKE OF WESTERN CYCLONE

LETTER BY FRANK DOWNER TO HIS BROTHER IN THIS CITY DESCRIBES THE LITTER OF WRECKAGE TO WHICH PROSPEROUS FARM PROPERTIES NEAR ALAMEDA WERE REDUCED.

VICTIMS KNOWN HERE

REGINA, Aug. 4.—The Saskatchewan Red Cross executive have accepted an offer from the Saskatchewan Government to donate $20,000 to the society if it would assume full responsibility for, and direct the administration work of re-establishing, as far as possible, the farmers who suffered loss of homes, farms, equipment and in some cases all their earthly possessions through the cyclone which swept portions of the Alameda, Frobisher, Lampman and other districts in the southern part of the Province, July 22nd. The Red Cross voted a second $20,000 from Red Cross funds to supplement the Government grant, should such additional sum be required.

The following detailed description of the damage caused by the cyclone in the Alameda district, in Saskatchewan, on July 22nd, was written by Mr. Frank Downer, son of Mr. Lewis S. Downer, of this city, in a letter to his brother, Mr. George S. Downer, Morrow street:

Frobisher, July 22, 1920.

Dear Brother, — . . . I thought that I had better write you now and let you know we are all alive after the big cyclone which swept this district on Thursday afternoon and cleared everything in its path a mile wide. I just escaped the path of the storm, although there was a strong wind here, and no rain. The nearest to me was Laurie's and Eric Carlson, who had their granaries torn to match wood, and some doors were torn off Laurie's big barn. I was over the stricken ground the next day. I am writing a list of the places destroyed, not counting granaries for there are none left. It is awful to try even to describe it.

The loss of life was at the Holmes place. Mrs. Holmes was sick in bed with a new born baby and Mrs. Bob Byers was over waiting on her. They were both killed and nothing has been seen of the baby yet. Guy Holmes is hovering between life and death. Every rib on one side is broken, and his lung is pierced with a rib. There was another woman there who was was badly shaken up but I heard last night that she was in a condition to be taken home to-day.

The other Holmes lad was at the barn and was blown into a bluff near the barn, and managed to land in the bushes. He was pretty well shaken up but is all right and was around as soon as the storm passed.

Were Going into Cellar.

The rest were in the house, and Mr. Holmes picked up his wife and Mrs. Byers the baby, and they were all starting to go down into the cellar when the cyclone struck the house, and that ended it.

There is a piece of the wall about 6 x 12 lying where the house was, and there is not another whole board or piece of furniture left. The biggest piece that I saw was the leg of the table and the body of the cream separator. The place is simply in matchwood and all over the farm. The barn floor and some of the walls are piled up in a heap and the only piece of machinery I see not broken up is the chopper which has a dinge in the tin hopper.

The big steam engine is the only thing not moved, but it is stripped of the canopy roof, and every rod and casting, governor, guage clock and the big iron door in the front of the boiler, was torn off. I found it about two hundred rods away. The biggest piece of the threshing machine is the cylinder, which is about 400 yards away.

Visited by Crowds.

There were hundreds of cars from all over the country to-day viewing the ruins of the storm. There were pieces of the threshing machine all over the farm, big wheels broken in pieces and heavy iron shafts twisted like wire. The binders were twisted in a heap of scrap. I saw the big wheel which was pulled off the gang plow about 100 yards from the plow. Emma picked up a hockey skate about 100 yards east of where the house was. It was sticking in the ground and badly twisted. Eric Carlson found the mate of it about 400 yards north east of where the house was. I saw a big pig, about 300 lbs, lying dead one half mile east of the barn, and there was a mate to it a mile farther on, lying dead with a piece of scantling driven through it. A wheel off the cook car is lying at Lang's, two miles east.

Baby's Body Found.

Holmes' baby was found this afternoon about a mile away, near Berkie Stenson's.

Allen Moffatt's barn was burned by lightning last summer, and he built a big new one. All the upper part was torn away with the cyclone.

Now to Mr. Woods—his barns' roofs are all torn off, machine sheds torn down, windmill down, big granaries all in pieces, threshing machine torn to pieces, house all torn to slivers except about half the kitchen which is lying a piece away from the foundation. Mr. Wood is in the hospital at Estevan badly bruised, and in a serious condition.

Langs all went into their cellar and thereby saved their lives for there is not a board of their house left on the farm. The stable is all in pieces, the threshing machine upside down and ruined. The gasoline engine is badly shaken up and most of the machinery all torn to bits. Mrs. Lang looked out of the cellar after the house went and was struck by a flying board from the barn. I saw a pool of blood where the stable ruins are, whatever had been killed. The only thing I saw belonging to the house was some of the stove, the piano covered with mud and pretty well torn to pieces, a shot gun and a piece of a bob sleigh which they had picked up and piled against the stove—what was left of it. I think every bit of bedding and wearing apparel is hanging on the trees in the bluffs across the road. The trees are littered from top to bottom with rags. That is all that I could see of either the house or the furniture.

Next comes Bill Quinn's, Harry Armstrong's place, right next Lang's. Nothing was left. Mrs. Quinn was shaken up some and one of the boys had his leg broken.

I could write all night if I tried to tell you all so here is a list of what I have seen and there are some buildings east of Josh Mulligan's that I saw scattered all around but do not know whose place it was.

Every telephone pole from the northwest corner of Allan Sherwin's farm around to his house, 1 3-4 mile, is torn down; his Page wire fence on the same sides, twisted into rope, his hen house, pig pen, threshing caboose and cook car, portable granaries, and big barn, torn to bits, and his big granary leaning over.

Part of Will Deyell's stable, Amos Leggott's house and barn, the big barn of "Black Billie" Deyell and his sheds gone, and the house badly damaged; Wilfrid Boyd's big barn, stone foundation and all blown to bits, and two horses killed. The roof off A. Moffatt's barn. Holmes' house and barn, and W. Lang's new barn on the place he bought alongside of Bob Byers.

Next Dave King's big barn, all in kindling and the house badly damaged. One boy's arm was broken and Mrs. King hurt. At the place north of Long's house no trace was left—only the cellar to mark the spot. The stable was a pile of ruins. The next place north, Bill Quinn's, the house and barn have disapepared. Next Berge Stinson's barn, Mrs. David McKnight's barn and Sam McKnight's barn, and Fred Miller and his brother, W. Miller, within a quarter of a mile of each other—both big barns are all in splinters, and the house badly damaged.

Blown with Barn.

Will Miller and son, and hired man were in the barn and 15 head of horses, and it lifted the barn clear, took it in the air and tore it to bits. The hired man was badly hurt, but the other men and the horses escaped. Mr. Miller told me he was whirled along ground toward some trees about 30 yards from the barn, and managed to crawl on his knees, and grab hold of a tree. His big granary was torn to bits and a gasoline engine embedded in cement was torn up and moved about 10 yards away. His machinery shed disappeared and left his binders sitting there damaged, his car the same.

Next was Martin's great big barn, sheeted with tin. Fimlin's across the road from the south Alameda school, nothing left, and every wire fence east for 1-2 a mile or more has tin all twisted around the wire. Tin everywhere east of Dunnigan's. South Alameda school and stable scattered all over the country.

Luckily it was a holiday or the loss of life would have been greater. Jno. Deyell's big barn near the school all gone into bits. Next Dunnigan's big barn a mass of ruins; their threshing machine all in bits, their big granary and machinery shed gone, their machinery a mass of tangled iron and their big new $160 auto amongst it. The fine brick house was badly damaged inside, the roof was lifted off the walls and set down again, with the little iron railing. Bert Deyell's house had the roof torn off. You can see right through between the top of the walls and the roof.

Well now I will go back to C. Wallace's place at Frobisher. His wind mill was torn down and the learn to torn from the barn her house and granary badly wrecked.

Louis S. Downer Lucky

I will let Mr. Louis S. Downer off with about $300 damage done and he may count himself lucky at that. Three windows blown in the brick house, summer kitchen just moved 2 inches from the brick wall; the ventilator torn off the barn and a few shingles off the south sidt; granary doors torn off, one rafter broken and one brace torn off inside. The barn has been lifted some at the west end for it is about two inches out of place as some pieces of stone have apparently rolled under the sill and kept it from going back in its place. I don't see how it did not go except that the granary kept it from breaking. There is a little of the tin rooffing of the house loose, just raised up a bit. The telegraph poles on the C.P.R. along from Mackie's to the east side of McKinnon's place are all down—not one left. At the McKinnon place the portable granary is in kindling wood, eevn one of the 6x6 skids is broken in two. The cow house is torn to bits and the barn and the hen house are moved about one foot north east off the cement foundation, and the north plate of the roof is torn up from the studs so that you can see beneath the plate—about a four inch space—so that the roof came near going. The big barn is over about a foot to the east of being plumb. It will need to be jacked back somehow or another storm will take it. Mackie's cow shed was torn to pieces and his cow rolled over and the right side up pretty badly damaged, and the the hen house taken. The cutter he got from father was taken across the road and smashed to bits, and his buggy smashed to pieces.

Well, George, words cannot describe the havoc caused and the many different freaks of the storm. Well I will close. You may show this letter to the Examiner. This is some account, but a book could be written to describe all. Good bye.

Brother Frank.

Cuticura Is What You Need For Your Hair and Scalp

Dandruff kills the hair. Cuticura kills dandruff. Try this treatment. Before retiring rub Cuticura Ointment into partings all over the scalp. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse with tepid water. Dandruff usually disappears, hair stops falling and becomes thick, live and healthy.

PAPER SUITS MAY BE ALL THE RAGE

May Be Purchased for Sixty Cents Each—Will Arrive from Germany.

WASHINGTON, Aupg. 3.—A suit of clothes for sixty cents, and a new suit every week will be the latest fad in America if Germany sends paper suits here.

The Commeree Department was advised to-day that 40,000 paper suits were sent from Germany to England last month, and Germany is now preparing to send large numbers to the United States.

These suits are ready made, cut in English styles. They are made of strong paper.

Easiest Way to Remove Ugly Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

Here is a method for removing hair from arms, neck or face that is unfailing and is quite inexpensive: Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water and spread on hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes, rub it off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. No harm or inconvenience results from this treatment, but be careful to get genuine delatone and mix fresh.

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL LEAD IN PLAYGROUND LEAGUE BY 4 1-2 POINTS

Yesterday made it anybody's pennant on the playgrounds. King Edward and Queen Mary got 40 points each at King Edward, while Central climbed closer to first place at Queen Alexandra.

Thae standing is as follows: Queen Mary 213, Central 208 1-2, King Edward 191 1-2, Queen Alexandra 175.

Fire works started at King Edward with the base-running relay, won by Queen Mary. Then followed an interesting game of ball. Owing to the large number of events, this is limited by time, not innings. When time was called the score to even innings was a tie, giving half points to each grounds. King Edward girls lived up to their reputation in winning their baseball game. In the obstacle race Queen Mary boys won out but King Edward came back in the charliot races, taking both the senior and the junior. Queen Mary junior girls won the club snatch and throw and catch, but the seniors succumbed to the superior speed of the King Edward girls.

Central Still Gaining.

Central boys and girls were visitors at Queen Alexandra's field day, held yesterday.

The boys' events were close and interesting. In the baseball the teams were even for the first and second innings, but in the third, aided by errors and good pitching, Central was able to pile up seven runs. The final score was 9 to 3 in favour of Central.

Queen Alexandra won the obstacle and chariot races, while Central won the relay.

In the girls' events the baseball game was very exciting, the final score standing 25-25. The tie was not played off owing to lack of time. The club snatch was also very close, Central squeezing through by one point. In the run and catch Central girls showed good training, and won quite handily. The final score for the grounds was: Central 44, Queen Alexandra 36.

The Finals Next Week.

At Central Queen Mary will fight to hold the pennant, while King Edward pays a visit to Queen Alexandra.

The boys' events are: Baseball game, baseball throw, horse and rider and three-legged race.

The girls' events are: Baseball game, base-running relay, club snatch and obstacle race.

One week from Wednesday there will be the annual playground swimming meet at Lake street bathing

CLOSE SEASON TIED FOR SECOND PLACE

KEENE AGAIN DEFEATED NORWOOD BEFORE BIG CROWD.

Keene defeated Norwood before a big crowd of fans at Keene yesterday afternoon, by 12 to 6, and tied up the second position in the Eat Peterborough Baseball League, each team having won five games and lost three. It was the second defeat sustained by Norwood at the hands of the Otonabee team.

Keene got the drop on their visitors by sending over five runs in the first innings. After that the result of the game was never in doubt. George O'Dette had the better of the argument, with George and Gerald Heffernan who did the twirling for Norwood.

The winners were at full strength, with Reid at first base, while Norwood did not play the regular team. Several difficult points in the rules came up for decision and Alex. Kay who umpired the game, took the occasion to instruct the players on the rules governing the plays in question.

CLASSICS HERE MONDAY ARE HEAVY HITTERS

Classics, who will meet the Petes here on Civic Holiday morning, are a formidable ball club. Their showing in the Riverdale League stands out strong in the league statistics which follows:

"Chuck" Glover, the star pitcher and pinch hitter of the champion Classic team, of Riverdale Senior League, leads the hitters with the healthy average of .389. Frank Newman, of the same time, is hitting .462, but has only been in three games. Everett Reading, Simcoes' comedian and centrefielder, leads the run-scorers with 11 times over the plate. He also heads the base-stealers with 12 thefts. "Vick" Valient, Classics' good catch, is second in runs scored with ten. Five players are tie for third place in runs scored with nine. "Herb" Kelly, of Univesals, and Geoge Reading, of Classics, are tie for second place in te base-stealing with 8 each, with Valiant following close behind with seven steals. Harry Carl and Jack Comper, of Classics, and Eddie Ashton, of Universals, are all tie for the largest number of base hits, each having banged out 14 hits.

Classics are leading the league in base-stealing, having purloined 38 bases. Simcoes come second with 31 steals, with Universals right behind with 30 thefts. Royal Canadians have only stolen 10 bases. Classics have six regulars hitting over .270.

QUAKERS HANG A BIG SCORE ON THE BANKERS

In a nine innings game at Riverside Park last evening the Quaker Oats Office team romped away with the Bankers Baseball team to the tune of 17-4. The Quakers are wondering if it was the turnout of the fair sex of the banking institutions of the city that caued the downfall of Ritchie and Company as the money handlers have a fairly well balanced team. The pitching of Lefty Turner for the Quaker was a puzzle to the financiers The Quaker Oats Company office team would like to meet any office baseball team in the city. The Quakers comprising the whole plant would also like to accommodate any commercial team in the city, the games to take place preferably at Riverside Park.

Line-up for last evening's game:—

Quaker Office.

A. Butcher, 2nd., C. Turner, p, V. Morphet, 1st., G. Butcher, c.e G. A. Macdonald S. S., W. Jones, L. F., C. Thackeray, R. F. C. Carruthers, C. F. R. Villeneuve, 3rd.

Bankers.

Herbison, S.S., Young, C., Tudhope, 1st., Harkness, L. F., Ritchie, 3rd., Brownscombe, Thirnbeck, P., Cross, L.F., McWilliams, C.F., Thompson, 2nd.

Fred Malane officiated as umpire in a satisfactory manner.

BASEBALL NOTES

(Port Hope Guide.)

Freddie Goyer's benders were no puzzle to the Ohawa crew on Saturday, and they slammed his offerings to the four corners of the lot, and just to rub it in, mixed up a couple of home runs during the slaughter. They started off in the initial innings, and when his ump called the third man out Oshawa had crossed the plate five times, making their victory sure. Belleville was never dangerous, and their only signs of coming back was in the sixth innings when they scored two runs, one of them being a gift through Buck Wilson's wild heave to third base. Belleville scored one more in the seventh, and Oshawa added a couple making the final 7 to 3. It was a clean-cut victory and Patton, Oshawa's box artist, had it all over Goyer. He allowed only two hits, while Oshawa collected fourteen. This victory places Ohawa in line for the championship, and if they play the same brand of ball next Saturday they will have no trouble in disposing of the Solomonites of Peterborough. In this case it will be a three-cornered tie with Belleville, Peterborough and Oshawa.

When it comes to a real ball player you have to take your hat off to Mills, the Belleville catcher. Notwithstanding Oshawa's big lead on Saturday, Mills worked like a Trojan until the last man was declared out in the ninth innings. His throwing to bases was perfect, and he walloped the old ball every time up. Mills is easily the classiest player in the Central League, and is also the mainstay of the Belleville team.

HUSBAND OF A DAY FOUND TO HAVE TWO MORE WIVES WHOM HE IS UNABLE TO RECALL

Marshall Neilan Has Score of Equally Riotous Situations in Big Success, "Don't Ever Marry."

Tabulations of the divorce records of New York County, taking in the cases which are for separations or other suits in which the wrecking of married life is the goal sought, show that the one greatest reason for discord among husbands and wives is jealousy. This does not mean that there is no cause underlying the action when it reaches the court but that the testimony in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred shows that the first rift in the clouds of happiness came through unfounded jealousy by one party to the marriage contract.

Best Way Is "Don't Ever Marry."

Jealousy, if unfounded, always leads to unjust accusations. Hard words are bound to follow and the first serious quarrel is the result. The quarrel usually is made up, and many after that are made up, but the memory of the unkind words linges and it is seldom that a marriage remains one of happiness once jealousy has entered the mind of either the husband or the wife. The man who is continually scolded by his wife about absences will seek his solace from some other woman, or else will take up his home somewhere apart from his wife. A jealous husband will drive his wife into the very actions he is fearful of, merely through a desire on her part for association with the other sex wthout a continual quarrel.

Jealousy Often Humorous.

Jealousy, however, has its humorous side to those not affected. Innocent escapades or predicaments which cause friction between married couples furnish most of the humor of the world, and it is a delightful humor as Marshall Neilan shows in his latest production for the screen "Don't Ever Marry." It is the story of the happenings which take place within twenty-four hours after a secret mrriage, when for reasons best known to themselves, two other women claim the young groom as their lawfully wedded husband.

The fun happens fast and furious from the opening scene to the end where tranquility is once more restored. "Don't Ever Marry" will be the attraction at the Allen Theatre for the last time to-night.

MANY SOLDIERS STILL IN UNIFORM

About 3,000 Men Remain —Great Military Stores Being Disposed of

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—Although demobilization has ben going on steadily and Canada's half million men have been absorbed into civil life with remarkable quickness and lack of friction there are still about three thousand men in uniform and it will probably be April next before the last of them has put off the uniform.

There are about three hundred men still in Great Britain looking after stores there and clearing up other details.

There are two military hospitals in operation with a considerable number of soldier patients.

Canada still has five or six million dollars worth of military stores and material which is gradually being disposed of through the war purchasing commission.

Studebaker
And the Association of Ideas

For some considerable time there have been schools opening up for the purpose of developing the brain, especially the power of thought and the faculty for remembering things thoughts and faces, etc.

In nearly every instance the first step in developing the memory is by the "Association of Ideas."

It is a well-known fact that certain odors bring immediately to mind some previous happening where that odor has developed. Drugs of some kinds at once suggest to the mind the interior of a chemists shop. The odor of burning rubbish suggests an incinerator.

So do words in the same way suggest other words. The word "river" and one immediately thinks of the Otonabee. The words "Civic Holiday", Regatta and "Peterboro" brings the words home town to mind; "Street" and at once we have Charlotte Street and Motor Row is at once suggested: "Car" or "Automobile," and the first and only thought is, Studebaker. The three words "Studebaker," "Tires" and "Accessories," bring to mind in a flash the new Studebaker Show-Rooms where the novel awning with a full sized Studebaker portrayed on it in natural colors shows the motorist where his every requirement can be met and his every wish granted.

There are a number of words which suggested Studebaker to the intelligent mind:

"Power"
"Endurance"
"Reliability"
"Beauty"
"Control"
"Perfection"

All are synoymous.

Studebaker

Come and visit our new Show Rooms To-Day and allow us to demonstrate why Studebaker stands supreme. CHEMONG PARK REGATTA COMMITTEE.

CLUBBED WIFE IN LINDSAY TANNERY

GEORGE ALLPORT, RETURNED SOLDIER, IS PRACTICALLY INSANE AT TIMES.

(Canadian Press.)

LINDSAY, August 5. — Intimating that he had a "surprise" for her, Geo. Allport, a nightwatchman at a local tannery, invited his wife to visit him at work last night, and when she arrived there he clubbed her with a heavy instrument of wood and steel. The woman's scalp was almost torn off and she is now in the hospital in a critical condition.

Allport, when arrested, said that he knew nothing about it until he saw blood. He is a returned man, and according to the authorities is, at times, practically insane.

A two weeks' old child with Mrs. Allport, at the time of the assault, was not seriously injured.

FIRST WOMAN GEOLOGIST IS COLLECTING FOSSILS

Miss Alice Wilson on Long Trip for Ottawa Department.

(Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 4.—Miss Alice E. Wilson, of Ottawa, the first woman to be sent out by the Geological Department of the Canadian Government, is making a 200-mile trip down the shores of Lake Winnipeg by rowboat to collect fossils for the department in Ottawa.

Miss Wilson has as her assistant a young school teacher who was graduated from Royal Victoria College, Montreal, in 1919. The two geologists will begin their explorations starting from Berens River. They plan to make the return trip in six weeks, going south following the east shores of the lake. They are carrying with them their tent, camp outfit and provisions, as well as their geological tools, and are provided with fishing tackle, gun and revolver.

WEDDING BELLS

BIGELOW—SWAIN.

The Cavan Methodist church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday, July 29th, when Margaret Annetta, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Swain, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold D. Bigelow. Sharp at one o'clock the bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. She wore a suit of sand gabardine and large leghorn hat daintily trimmed, with touches of blue, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Little Miss Helen Swain, the youngest sister of the bride, acted as the flower girl, and led the way to the altar carrying a basket of sweet peas and roses.

During the signing of the register, Miss Myrtle Swain, sister of the bride, sang, "Love's Old Sweet Song."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride after which the happy couple left for a honeymoon to Niagara.

SARRACINI—ASTA

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning in the Sacred Heart Parish church, Peterboro, when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Asta, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Domenic Sarracini of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Parish Priest, Rev. J. J. O'Brien.

The bride was prettily dressed in white satin and georgette and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bride was assister by her sister, Miss Madeline Asta, the groom by Mr. Joseph Bell of Toronto.

After the honeymoon to Niagara Buffalo and vicinity the happy couple will reside in Toronto.

Many pretty presents were received by the bride, from friends in this city.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARIA MADDEN

Maria Kingdon, relict of the late John Madden, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Davidson, 33 Aberdeen avenue, after an illness of about nine weeks duration. Deceased was born in Peterboro in the Kingdon homestead which stood on the site of the present Salvation Army Barracks, 72 years ago and had resided in the city practically continuously since.

She leaves of the immediate family, one daughter, Mrs. Andrew Davidson, one sister, Mrs. W. Hill, Union street, and one brother, George Kingdon, George street.

The funeral will take place on Saturday at 3 o'clock from 33 Aberdeen avenue to Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be conducted by Rev. F. E. Malott.

MRS. A. BREAULT.

The death occurred last Friday morning at 3 o'clock at 65 Lansdowne street, of Mrs. A. Breault, of Norwood, formerly Miss Lilly Brennan, of this city, aged 51 years. The deceased had been ailing for some time with heart trouble. Her husband died only six weeks ago from heart failure also.

The deceased will be remembered by many of the older residents of Peterborough. She was a sister of Dr. Brennan, who practised here some thirty years ago. She had resided in Norwood for 28 years, during her long residence making a wide circle of friends. She had come to Peterborough to take medical treatment.

She leaves her mother of Brooklyn, N.Y., and two brothers, Dr. Brennan, of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Charles of Brooklyn. Two sisters, Maude and Eurgett, also reside in Brooklyn.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Catholic cemetery, Norwood.

POTATOES ARE 50c.

Market is Easy at that Price—Peaches Coming In.

"All root crop prospects are favorable," stated a local fruit and vegetable dealer this morning. He believed that the prices of all root crops were due for a drop. Potatoes are selling at 50c a peck and a drop in that price is expected. Old potatoes are almost entirely off the market.

Peaches are coming in and cherries are rapidly going off the market. Cherries sold to-day at $1.75 a basket for the best quality. The berry crop, with the exception of blueberries, is nearly exhausted.

Cucumbers are coming in at from 5 to 15c.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 4.—The Dominion Fire Chiefs' Association in convention here to-day unanimously passed in favor of the adoption of the uniform telephone number 100 throughout the Dominion for fire call purposes and requested the Dominion Railway Commission in a resolution to have the number adopted and the necessary legislation passed.

Chief James Smart, of Calgary, made the suggestion.

NEGRO CONVENTION CHEERED BACK TO AFRICA MOVEMENT

WANT THEIR OWN PLACE IN THE SUN FOR FOUR HUNDRED MILLION BLACKS.

NEW YORK.—Madison Square Garden fairly rocked with the frenzied cheers of 15,000 negroes who packed the building Monday night to hear Marcus Garvey, president-general of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and African Communities League, declare to the world that the black race "has determined to suffer no longer," but "will organize 400,000,000 strong to draw up the banner of democracy on the continent of Africa."

The Garden has housed other picturesque and memorable gatherings in the years of history, but few if any could surpass the drama that was enacted there last evening. Thousands of negroes from all parts of the world cheered to the echo the man hailed as "a man of God who has stood on Olympian heights" to lead his race back to their native land.

There were half a dozen bands which vied with one another in stirring the crowd to an enthusiastic pitch before the meeting started; there was a battalion of negro guardsmen—their own organization—from Philadelphia; and there was the customary busy yet quiet distribution of flags, convention souvenirs, and convention newspapers which always precede such an evening so eventful to those who participated. Of the genuineness of the enthusiasm, and the orderliness of the crowd there could be no doubt. There was squads of policemen in evidence in and around the building, but they had little to do except listen and smile as the spectacle unrolled.

Clad in a brilliant robe of pink and green, President-General Garvey rose from behind the railing of the decorated speakers' platform and waited for the tumult to subside before he could begin the convention keynote speech. Three times as he lifted his hand for the crowd to be silent, the movement was only the signal for renewed applause, madly happy cheering and unrestrained hilarity. His message was at his tongue's end and he plunged immediately into a formal declaration for the restoration of liberties for the negro and "Africa for the future home of the black race."

"Our purpose is to enlighten the world that we are assembled here as descendants of a suffering people," he said. "We are also met here as a people determined to suffer no longer.

"For more than 500 years our forefathers in Africa suffered from the abuse of an alien race. It was claimed that we were a backward people and knew not the arts of civilization. That might have been true eighty-five years ago, but when we remember that eighty-two millions of negroes were set free and fifty years ago that the negroes of America were set free we declare that what is good enough for the white man is also good enough for the negro.

"They as a race claim freedom, liberty and democracy. For that freedom, liberty and democracy they wasted Europe for nearly four and a half years. In that bloody war to make the struggle for democracy they called out 2,000,000 men from Africa to fight for them. We fought as men, but after the battle was won we were deprived of our rights and liberty. We shall now organize 400,000,000 strong to plant the banner of democracy on the continent of Africa.

"Freedom is the common heritage of mankind! We shall dispute every inch of ground to find out why we also shall not enjoy the benefits of liberty. We as a people do not desire what belongs to others but others have always sought to deprive us of what belongs to us. Our fathers might have been satisfied to be deprived of their rights, but we new negroes, we young negroes who were called out in the war shall dispute until the last inch of right is given to us.

"The time has come for 400,000,000 negroes to claim Africa as their native habitat. If Europe exists for the European, and Canada exists for the white Canadians, we say it and we mean it, and we pledge that we shall plant the standard of black freedom and democracy there. We have been dying for 500 years for an alien race. The time has come for the negro to die for himself.

"The hour has come when North, South, East, West and Central Africa shall be the home of the black peoples of the world. We shall not seek to ask England, France and Italy why they are there. The only command we will give is 'Get out of here!'

"We believe in justice and equity, and that is why we are in sympathy with Ireland, the Zionist movement and the nationalist movements in Egypt and India. We have no animus against the white man. All we desire is to have a place in the sun, and 400,000,000 people are not too many to have a place in the sun. If you believe the negro should have his place in the sun, rise and sing our national anthem."

SYRIA SUBMITS TO THE FRENCH

Situation in Cilicia Has Also Improved Considerably.

BEIRUT, Syria, August 3.—The situation in Cilicia has improved considerably. The French troops which recently left Adana won a notable victory at Yenidje, the advices stating that the enemy left more than 400 dead on the field.

The situation in Syria is excellent, according to news from various quarters in the region. The French have occupied Homahawa (probably Homs the ancient Emesa, about midway between Damascus and Aleppo, together with the entire railway. Damascus is completely calm, and in general throughout Syria, submission by the population to the French authority is reported.

BELIEVE UNIONISTS MORE COMPROMISING

WOULD FAVOUR BROADER GOVERNMENT OF IRELAND, IT IS BELIEVED.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Premier Lloyd George was told at his conference with the Irish deputation he received yesterday, that great progress had been made among the Irish Unionists during the last few months in favor of a broad policy giving government to the people of that island, says the Times in reporting the meeting. The deputation was unaimous and strong in its denunciation of the government's Irish Crime Bill, and was also strongly opposed to any scheme for the participation of the island. Fiscal autonomy was also demanded.

Guarantee to Britain.

(Canadian Press.)

BELFAST, July 5.—"Provided the independent status of Ireland is recognized, Irishmen will be prepared to furnish International guarantee, properly incorporated in the peace treaty, to safeguard strategic interests of the British Empire."

This, according to Belfast Telegraph, is the proposal for peace forwarded Sunday night to Premier Lloyd George.

PREVENT LANDING OF BRITISH CABLE

UNITED STATES DESTROYERS PATROLLING MIAMI HARBOR.

(Special to The Examiner)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—With five United States destroyers patrolling the harbor of Miami Fla., to prevent a British ship making a cable landing there, further development in the South American cable controversy between the United States Government and the British cable interests were looked for here to-day.

A British cable ship, the Colonial, has been chartered by the Western Union Company to land the United States end of the cable which would connect with a British cable line from the Barbados to South America. At the State Department it was stated to-day that the British Embassy had been asked to inform the master of the ship that such a landing would be in violation of the law. Officials explained that there was no significance in the fact that the vessel was British; that she probably was the only cable craft available to the company when she was chartered.

Await Conference.

Work on the cable line from Barbados was begun last summer. Some time ago the Western Union Company applied to the State Department for an executive permit to land the wire at Miami, but officials said action on it had been delayed pending the holding of the International Communications Congress called to meet in Washington September 15.

A British cable company, it was explained, now has a monopoly of cable rights in Brazilian waters. A concern in the United States desires to construct a direct cable line from the United States to Brazil, and it was stated that the United States Government desired to know before issuing the permit to the Western Union Company whether the arrangement entered into by that company with the British concern, the Western Cable Company, controlling the line from Barbados to Brazil, would add to this monopoly.

Refuses to Show Contract.

In this connection it was asserted that at the forthcoming International Communications Congress the whole theory of international communications was to be examined in a "very different temperament" from that existing in the past.

There were reports to-day that after the Western Union Company filed its application for a permit, the State Department requested that a copy of the contract with the British cable concern also be filed, and that the company had refused to comply. No information as to this was obtainable at the department.

PRISONERS IN DANGER.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Thousands of prisoners of war in Russia, Siberia and Turkestan must die, according to Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, who was sent recently by the League of Nations to Russia to handle the question of repatriation of prisoners. Dr. Nansen added that there were 175,000 prisoners remaining, and that it would be necessary for the interested nations to supply $2,750,000 to repatriate them.

Declaration of War By Britain Impends; Navy Ready to Sail

SEMI-OFFICIAL REPORT SAYS CABINET LATE TO-DAY MADE DECISION THAT VIRTUALLY AMOUNTS TO WAR—LLOYD GEORGE SAYS SOVIET HAS BROKEN FAITH.

CASTING DIE FOR WAR.

LONDON, Aug. 6. — (12.30 p.m.).—It was semi-officially reported to-day that the British Cabinet had decided to take action against Russia, which virtually amounts to war.

NAVY READY FOR BLOCKADE OF RUSSIA.

(Special to the Examiner).

LONDON, Aug. 6. — (12.30 p.m.).—Britain's Navy is ready to impose an absolute blockade upon Russia within 12 hours after it is ordered to do so, the Admiralty states to-day.

PREMIERS WILL CONFER.

(Special to the Examiner).

PARIS, Aug. 6. — (4.30 p.m.). — Premier Millerand of France and Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain will confer at Boulogne on the Russian situation, probably on Sunday, the Foreign Office informed the United Press this afternoon.

WILSON HOLDS CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—President Wilson to-day called Secretary of State Colby and Under Secretary Davy in conference with him at the White House on the Polish crisis. The conference lasted for more than an hour.

PREPARE TO HELP POLES.

(Special to the Examiner).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Premier Lloyd George considers that the Bolsheviki have broken faith in continuing their advance against Poland, it was stated. Preparations for aiding Poland have been ordered rushed, according to this information. The blockade will be re-established and munitions will be sent if the plan decided on is gone through with.

The reported plan calls for the Soviet Government to be notified that British aid will continue to be sent to Poland until it is certain that Russia will grant Poland a just peace after which the sending of this assistance will be stopped. The Cabinet was in session throughout the morning.

FRENCH GENERALISSIMO.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The Temps correspondent at Warsaw telegraphs that General Weygand, Marshal Foch's assistant, has said he would consent to assume supreme command of the Polish forces and take the responsibility for their active operations. Gen. Weygand represents the opinion that the situation is far from hopeless, the correspondent says.

SOVIET REFUSES.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Russian Soviet's reply to Great Britain's call for a halt of the Bolshevik advance in Poland is a refusal, according to The London Times. The newspaper says the ground taken is that the armies would not obey an order to halt, and will only be content when they reach Warsaw, which has been promised to them for loot.

The Times says the note to the British Government was received by M. Kameneff, one of the Bolshevik delegates here, Thursday night, and will be handed to Premier Lloyd George this (Friday) morning.

Want to Continue the Advance.

According to The Times, the note says the Bolsheviki are entitled both by military and international law to continue their advance until an armistice is concluded. The are, however, prepared to sign an armistice and cease hostilities immediately the Polish delegates return to the appointed place with power to arrange an armistice of peace.

The Bolshevik answer says it is felt this action is necessary because the Bolsheviki fear that without such an undertaking the armistice negotiations might be prolonged merely to enable Poland to receive reinforcements.

The answer further points out, says The Times, that the Soviet Government is prepared to offer Poland terms, including complete independence and wider boundaries than are provided for in the Treaty of Versailles.

Want Separate Peace With Poland.

The Soviet Government declares in the answer that its delegates now in London are empowered to sign a peace with Great Britain or an other Entente Power, but that a separate peace with Poland is insisted upon.

The Soviet Government repeats its willingness to join the proposed London Conference, but refuses to agree to the admission to it of any of Gen. Wrangel's representatives or other Russians who have taken up arms against the Soviet.

POLES FIGHT WITH "BACKS TO THE WALL."

PARIS, Aug. 5. — Inspired by a wave of patriotism in the rear, and encouraged by the arrival of arms and munitions, the Polish army seems to be stiffening in its defence against the invasion of the Bolshevists, who are virtually at the gates of Warsaw, Poland's capital.

Although but vague and somewhat contradictory reports have reached Paris to-day, it is regarded here to-night that the Poles still have a chance of stopping the Red drive and limiting the extent of the disaster. They apparently have not altogether abandoned the line of the Bug River. The Brest-Litkovsk forts at last accounts were still in the possession of the Poles, and denial is made that the Bolshevists have reached Ostrolenko. The Polish Staff, even, has been able to launch two counter-offensives in the north, in the region of Lomza and in the extreme south of Galicia.

One Factor in Favour of Desperate Poles.

Another factor held by military observers to favour the Poles is that in view of the imperfect transport of the Bolshevists their rate of progress necessarily decreases as the length of their line of communication increases.

The Allies have not yet, as far as is known, decided on what course to pursue in the Polish situation, but exchanges of views were going on all day to-day between the French and British Governments.

SOVIET'S REPLY.

(Canadian Press).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Leo Kameneff, of the Russian Soviet delegation here, sent Lloyd George last night a long communication, giving the Soviet Government's reply to Great Britain's note of Tuesday with regard to the delay in the armistice negotiations between Russia and Poland.

M. Kameneff's statement declares that the Soviet Government never desired to combine negotiations for an armistice with negotiations for peace, but that it demands that the terms of an armistice include reasonable guarantees which would prevent attempts on the part of Poland to use the period of armistice for the renewal of hostile act.

A PLEASING PERSONALITY.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN FRUSTRATED

Engineer of Freight Saw Obstruction in Time to Stop.

(Canadian Press.)

FERNIE, B.C., Aug. 6. — An attempt to wreck a C.P.R. train, near Sentinel, Alberta, a short distance from the scene of last Monday's hold up, was frustrated on Wednesday night when the engineer of a freight saw a steel rail obstruction placed across the tracks, in time to stop his train.

It is thought here that it was intended to wreck the east-bound passenger train, No. 68. Trace of the bandits who robbed train No. 63 last Monday, has been found. Posses of mounted police have benetrated into the Flathead wilds and will be out of communication for a week.

Heavy Loss Inflicted on British

MANCHESTER REGIMENT SUFFERED 300 KILLED IN ENGAGEMENT WITH ARABIANS.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Information reached the Daily News to-day indicating that the disaster to the British force in Mesopotamia, reported Wednesday, is much more serious than the meagre reports supplied by the War Office indicated. Three hundred casualties were suffered by the battalion of a Manchester regiment, and practically all the 300 were killed.

The column was composed of a battalion of Manchester's six-gun battery, some sappers and miners. The colonel in command and practically the whole of three companies were among the killed. A few stragglers were all that returned, but four guns of the battery were saved.

A fresh division has been ordered from India to Mesopotamia.

Inquiries to the Ashton-Under-Tyne depot of the Manchesters showed that the second battalion was commanded by Col. Wright, who went to Mesopotamia in March.

The Kufah garrison, on the Lower Euphrates, is still holding out. The town has been partly burned up. The Arabs lost 130 dead and many wounded in a new attack north-west of Hillia.

SERVE LUNCHES ON OSHAWA SPECIAL

BASEBALL TRAIN LEAVES G.T.R. AT ONE O'CLOCK.

Arrangements for the special train to Oshawa for the baseball game tomorrow have been completed by Louis Yeotes.

A special car will be provided for the ladies and light lunches and refreshments will be served on the train for those unable to find time for lunch at noon.

The train will leave the Grand Trunk station at one o'clock.

DISPATCHES INDICATE SOME IMPROVEMENT IN THE SITUATION NORTH-EAST OF WARSAW BUT OFFICIALS ARE MAKING READY TO MOVE THE GOVERNMENT.

COUNTER THRUSTS IN THE SOUTH

(Canadian Press.)

WARSAW, Aug. 6.—The defensive line east of Warsaw has been pierced in several places, according to reports from the front. Preparations have been begun fro transferring the government, if that move is necessitated by the Russian advance. Officials, however, still hope that the Soviet troops will be checked somewhere east of the Vistula. No announcement has been made as to what place the government would move to, but it is reported it would be Posen or Czestochowa, 143 miles south-west of Warsaw, near the Silecian frontier.

BREST-LITOSK MAY DECIDE POLAND'S FATE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 6.— Russian Bolshevik forces which have been attacking the Poles north-east of Warsaw for the purpose of cutting communications between that city and Danzig, seem to have been checked, for the time being, by the desperate defense of the Polish armies. Despatches received here seem to indicate an improvement in military situation in that section.

A Critical Struggle.

Observers, are inclined to look with some concern on the fighting in the region of Brest-Litovsk. It is felt that the outcome of the battle now being waged in that district may decide the fate of Poland.

It is possible that the apparent slowing down of the Bolshevik attack in the north may be due, however, to difficulties encountered in bringing forward munitions and reinforcements to the front, over the country roads that are believed to have been thoroughly wrecked by the Poles.

The Poles fighting in southern sectors of the line, have struck back at the Bolsheviki and have driven them from territory they had won in Galicia.

Roumania has begun concentration of forces in Bessarabia.

EXHIBITION BOARD'S HOLIDAY PROGRAMME

BIG PURSES WILL ATTRACT BEST HORSES IN THIS DISTRICT.

Lovers of the race track will have the oportunity on Monday of seeing some of the fastest horse races which have been offered in Peterboro for some time. The $1300 in purses for the three races ensures a fast field.

The Guelph Jazz Band, a unique organization, which interprets classical music as well as jazz, and which has obtained considerable fame will provide the music.

Peterboro people have developed a deserved appreciation for the holiday programmes provided at the exhibition grounds by the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition Board, and Monday should outdo the programme of previous holidays in providing entertainment for the thousands who spend the holiday in town.

BUY GERMAN MARKS WITH LIFE'S SAVINGS

Appeal to Canadians of Teuton Origin to Help Fatherland.

TORONTO, Aug. 6. — Making a double appeal to Canadians of German birth or descent that they can help to put the "Fatherland" on its feet, and at the same time make a handsome profit for themselves, two salesmen of German origin and apparently working for New York curb workers, have, it is understood, recently been making a heavy hole in Canadian banking accounts, by seling German marks or coupons therefor. Their argument is that marks will be negotiable at par in the near future.

Two old Mennonite ladies, it is said, converted their life savings of ten thousand dollars into marks at two or three times their current price.

Will Prove Rural Loss to Cities

UNITED STATES CENSUS EXPECTED TO SHOW MORE PERSONS NOW LIVING IN URBAN CENTRES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—For the first time in the history of the United States, the 1920 census returns will show that more persons live in the cities and towns than in the rural territory, officials of the Census Bureau estimated to-day.

When the final tabulations are completed, the officials declared, they expect it to be shown that 51 or possibly 52 per cent. of the total population of the continental United States reside in urban districts.

That the urban population would exceed the rural has become increasingly evident as the tabulations of the past several weeks were completed, census officials stated. With the population of about one-third of the cities and towns, including practically all of the larger cities, and about one-third of the counties, tabulated and announced, the bureau statisicians feel certain that the rural population will be shown to be less than the urban.

"There has been a very great tendency toward large increases in the cities and towns, which we cannot account for, unless it has come from the country," said Samuel L. Rogers, director of the census. "This tendency toward the cities has been apparent for some time."

RESULTS OF MIDDLE SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS FOR NORMAL EETRANCE.

C More Collegiate

Following is the list of successful local pupils at the Middle School examinations for Entrance into the Normal Schools:

The entry (Hon.) shows that the candidate passed with honors, and the entry (Sup.) indicates that the candidate requires to write a supplemental examination in one subject in order to qualify for a Middle School certificate. This he may do at any subsequent examination when he will be required to obtain 60 per cent. on that subject. The name of the subject will be shown on the official statement.

The certificate and the statements of marks obtained by unsuccessful candidates are in course of preparation and are being mailed to the principals to whom all condidates are referred for the reports in detail.

Violent Rioting in Two American Cities

DENVER AND WEST FRANKFORT REPORT SEVEN KILLED AND SCORES INJURED AFTER DISASTROUS DISTURBANCES.

(Special to the Examiner.)

DENVER, Aug. 6.— Denver was quiet early to-day after a night of rioting on the part of street car strikers, their sympathizers and strike breakers, during which two persons were killed, thirty-four injured and thousands of dollars property damage done. Two thousand volunteer policemen are expected to prevent the recurrance of trouble.

Rioting began late in afternoon and it was not until one this morning that mobs were dispersed. Eight cars were wrecked, the office of the Denver Post partially demolished and damage done to car barns.

Five Believed Dead

WEST FRANKFORT, Ills., Aug 6.—Following night of rioting in which five persons are believed to have been killed and scores injured, comparative quiet was restored to-day. Approximately five thousand foreigners against whom rioters directed their attack had left town and this coupled with arrival of 150 milit amen of the ninth intantry tended to restore order

Mob Beyond Control.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 5.—Governor Frank O. Lowden at 10.30 o'clock to-night received a call from West Frankfort, Ill., for troops. The call was signed by the sheriff and mayor of the town, who declared that a mob, numbering more than 3,000, was beyond control of the local officials, and is threatening to drive

A photographer who attempted to the discovery yesterday of the bodies of Amiel Calcaterra, 19, and Tony Hampel, 18, who had been murdered Forty persons have been injured.

A photographer who attempter to take pictures of the riot to-night was beaten to death by the mob.

At 10.30 o'clock to-night, the mob began settiing fire to the homes in Frankfort Heights, a section occupied by foreigners according to reports reaching here. Other homes thruout the place also are being fired, it was stated.

Automobiles laden with armed parties are reported in great numbers. All of the city officials and Sicilian residents are said to have been given 24 hours to leave town.

Bitter Dual Between Asquith and George Over New Irish Bill

PREMIER DECLARED THAT ANY DOMINION SOLUTION REQUIRED DEFINITE ASSERTIONS REGARDING ARMY, NAVY AND PORTS AND ULSTER'S POSITION—SPEEDING THE BILL.

ANOTHER SCENE TO-DAY.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—In an exciting scene in the House this afternoon, during a discussion of the Government's bill for restoration of order in Ireland, Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member for Belfast, was suspended and sent from the House. He was followed by other Nationalists, a great majority of the Labour party and some of the Independent Liberals, amid jeers of members supporting the Government.

Mr. Devlin had delivered a speech, denouncing the proceedings as "sham and humbug." He was called to order for irrelevance, but declined to resume his seat.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—After a debate which developed great heat and a personal scene between Mr. Lloyd George and Herbert H. Asquith, the government at 11 o'clock to-night defeated the motion of John Robert Clynes (Laborite) for rejection of the new Irish crimes bill, and the measure passed its second reading by a vote of 289 to 71. The voting was carried out under a motion moved in the house early to-day by Andrew Bonar Law, providing for passage of the bill by 6 o'clock to-morrow evening.

At the very opening of debate, the days of Parnell were recalled. Mr. Asquith started an angry duel with the premier by declaring the situation in Island needed Cromwellian treatment, but that he could see no Cromwell in the government. The premier retorted by describing Mr. Asquith as Cromwell when he was in power.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, opened the discussion by explaining it was not intended for the bill to supersede the ordinary courts; it would only apply to disturbed areas at the discretion of the Irish Government, and would not be operated in a revengeful spirit.

Mr. Asquith then spoke, blaming the Government for the present position in Ireland. This met with angry cries of dissent. He declared he was not scared by the spectre of an Irish republic, because he believed to concede dominion home rule to Ireland would cause the cry for a republic to dwindle away.

Heated protests were made that Asquith had never offered a solution of the difficulty.

"No," he replied, "but I am prepared to offer one now."

Mr. Lloyd George, in his attack on Mr. Asquith, stated it was useless to make vague, ill-considered suggestions about dominion home rule, and challenged Mr. Asquith to present the name of anyone in Ireland able to speak for the Irish people, who would accept his dominion proposal.

There was not a single dominion, the premier added, but possessed an army and power to possess a navy, and asked whether Mr. Asquith would give Ireland an army and navy.

The Irish ports, Mr. Lloyd George asserted, were the most dangerous spots in the empire. Were these to be handed over to the dominion parliament?

"Mr. Asquith is merely shirking the difficulty and making worse the situation," declared the premier, "by allowing it to be made known throughout Ireland and the United States that though these things are not intended, British statesmen are willing to give Ireland self-determination."

League With Germans.

Throughout his speech the premier was subjected to interruptions from both sides of the House, intervention of the Speaker frequently being required by preserve order. In the course of his reproaches against Mr. Asquith's speech that Ireland was a paradise in 1918, whereas, he declared, the facts were that in that year there was an army of 150,000 enlisted men in Ireland engaged in treasonable conspiracy in negotiations with the German. He said this army had undertaken to attack Great Britain two months after the German offensive, of which it had been informed.

"It was in the same year," he went on, "we discovered documents in the pockets of men who are now leaders of south and west Ireland, showing there was an arrangement between them and the Germans to attack us at the moment of our greatest peril."

Mr. Lloyd George's general argument was that the Government was prepared to make great concessions for the sake of peace, good-will and partnership, but, he said, any dominion solution required definite assertions regarding the army, navy and ports, and the position of Ulster, which could not be forced into a home rule parliament.

No Alternative But Bill.

No disposition to accept such a solution, continued the premier, was apparent in south and west Ireland. On the contrary, he said, the south and west were demanding something Britain could never concede, except as a result of disaster and defeat. He believed there were hopeful indications of changing views concerning these extravagant demands, but while the campaign of outrage and murder continued, he stated, there was no alternative but the bill the government was now proposing.

The rule to confine the debate in the second reading of the Irish crimes bill to four hours, with final action to-morrow evening, was adopted after some discussion, by a vote of 273 to 68. T. P. O'Connor, Sir Donald Maclean, Mr. Clynes, and others, who attacked the "hurry up" method, declared their attack was not aimed against the bill itself, but contended a measure "removing constitutional rights of British citizens by the denial of trial by jury" should be granted freer discussion.

Mr. O'Connor asserted that with twenty coercion bills passed by parliament in the last 120 years, the least time for debate on any was 21 days.

Mr. Bonar Law pleaded for quick action because of what he termed "necessity for setting up a sort of court system in Ireland immediately."

BRITISH INNOVATION IN WEAVING

It is very rarely that anything really new in weaving machinery makes its appearance. Nevertheless a British firm has just introduced a new type of loom which involves many radical departures from the traditional type. From the practical standpoint its main feature is that it can be tended by a young girl, who can be taught the necessary operations

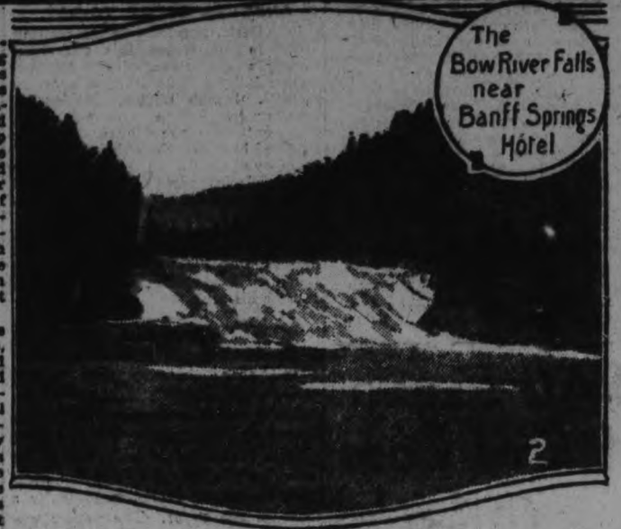
Attractions in the Canadian Rockies



Lake Minnewanka, near Banff, Alberta, attracts many motorists during the entire summer (the winter sees the ice-boats gliding across its smooth surface). It is an ideal evening drive from Banff to this lake, and on the way it is interesting to stop at the animal enclosures where the Government has established the wild animals of the country. As the car speeds along on the trip, the sight of the browsing elk is specially attractive. In the spring the stately mother elk stalks proudly about with her young; in the fall the mating note of the bull re-echoes down the open valley. Many a battle-royal is fought by the males at mating time.

The Bow River is the headquarters of the lover of water sports. Canoes, row-boats and launches are to be had any time of day. Plenty of good fishing is to be found a short distance up the river. For an ideal canoe trip there is nothing more picturesque than paddling up the Bow River to Shadow Creek, which drains the Vermillion Lakes. As the canoe glides into the mirrored waters, the swamp willows meet above the heads of the paddlers; an occasional trout darts from one shadow to another in the depths below. Little bursts of sunshine brighten the winding waterway till the canoe glides out again into unbroken sunshine and the wide sweep of the first Vermillion Lake.

The Bow River is a typical mountain stream and has its rise sixty-five miles west of Banff and north of Lake Louise. Its head waters, the Bow and Hector Lakes, are fed from great ice-fields, which, in the first days of warm spring, cast their tribute into the river, and the turbid waters gathering strength with each mile, tear madly down the narrow confines bringing with them uprooted trees and all the debris lying within their reach. The lover of the water may obtain valuable information of several beautiful and exciting canoe trips at the boat-house.

The old tote-road of construction days west of Banff is almost obliterated, and in its place the Government is rapidly completing a highway which will link the eastern provinces with British Columbia. If the trip be made in early spring or late August it is scarcely possible to fail to see the wild sheep which abound in large flocks on the sunny slopes on the north side of the valley. During the summer they wander back in the hills, though an occasional few may be seen any time of the year. In the early spring the baby lambs trot along beside their mothers; in the fall the great horned rams join the various groups, and, as among the elk, terrific battles take place among the males — the horns crashing and banging together, making a racket which can be heard a long distance in the otherwise silent hills.

Crossing the Canadian Pacific tracks at the Banff railway station, the car travels westward passing a chain of lakes (three in number) known as the Vermillion Lakes. About five miles distant a draw may be seen which marks the pathway of Healey Creek; the Bow River glides in and out of view, occasionally a glimpse of the steel rails shows up; a bear, a coyote, or a deer, may appear. A picturesque range of mountains aptly called "Sawtooth," are easily recognized on the right of the road and in an open stretch the first glimpse of Castle Mountain and the mountains about Louise are recognizable. Passing a game-warden's house, the road leads up, around and over the Hillsdale Hills,—a group of hills beautifully wooded and a natural park in themselves.

Coming down the winding road among these hills a short run brings the car to a small bridge under which runs a small mountain stream. Just east of the bridge is a well-kept camping ground, the only restriction to the user of it being: "Keep your camp-fire in control". A little open fire-place leaves no excuse for doing otherwise. On the west side of the bridge is a tiny tea-house nestled securely under the shadow of the pines. Built of logs, its rustic style is in complete accord with its surroundings.

Johnson's Canyon is well worth the three-quarters of a mile stroll up its easy trail, across rustic bridges, above the turbulent little stream which gives forth an attractive picture at every bend of the path. Leaving the canyon, a three-mile run brings you to the site of the one-time village of Castle situated at the very base of the mountain of that name. It sprang as a mushroom in the night in the old construction days of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Word went forth that lead, silver and copper were to be found in the old giant of the Rockies in paying quantities, and prospectors poured in. As they came, so they went; the mountain refused to give up treasure; the deserted homes fell to decay.

A mile beyond the site of this village the road forks, the right-hand turn leading to Lake Louise and the left-hand turn to the summit of Vermillion Pass—the last link of the trans-continental motor-road. Neither road should be missed though neither is yet absolutely finished. The left-hand road leads to Marble Canyon, at the top of the Pass. The drive and the canyon are well worth the time spent in seeing them.

As far as the road is finished, under and about the shadows of Castle Mountain, it is a glorious drive. The site of the internment camps used during the war is still visible.

In winter it is no colder at zero in the dry climate of Banff than at twenty-two above on the sea-board. In fact, one is far more uncomfortable where dampness prevails. The vigorous, snappy climate of the Rockies is better than any medicine for the people of a warmer country, from the Orient, even from the nearest sea-level. Winter sports at Banff are being brought to greater perfection in every direction. Specialists in all winter sports are coming more and more for the annual contests in skiing, skating, swimming in the warm sulphur pools, tobogganing, curling and hockey.

Canadian Press:

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 5.—Indications point toward a strike here. Statements made by Silby Barrett, and James B. McLaughlin, augur a serious state of affairs between mine operators and employes. New wage scale demands are to be submitted, and it is doubtful whether the men will accept the decision of the Royal Commission. Efforts are being made to have a conference of the U.M.W. called before the session of the Royal Commission scheduled for August 9, when these fresh demands regarding increases of $2 or $3 a day will be taken up.

TAXES ROUSE VIENNA.

60,000 Business Men Hold Meeting and Threaten Civil War.

VIENNA, Aug. 3. (via Geneva, Aug. 4).—A mass-meeting of 60,000 shopkeepers and business men was held here to-day to protest against the intolerable business taxes imposed by the municipality of Vienna, which they say is paralyzing business life, most taxes, including the house tax, having been trebled.

There was talk of civil war and the resignation of the Socialist Bergomaster was demanded. All business places and cafes were closed this afternoon.

The deficit of this city is estimated at 1,200,000 crowns this year. All sources of municipal taxation have been tried to the breaking point and now the city government plans to cut down the civil list. Younger employes able to get other work will go first and the pruning will go through all departments. It is found that for 190,000 children in the primary grade of the Public schools there are 19,000 teachers and many of these must go.

In 1913 the Vienna city budget was 237,500,000 crowns. For the current year it is placed at 2,500,000,000 crowns. A loan of 83,000,000 marks bw Germany during the war represents part of this. On present crown mark exchange this means a loss of 250,000,000 crowns.

RETURN FRENCH CANNON.

Germans Took Them From Strassbourg in 1870.

(Canadian Press.)

STRASBOURG, Aug. 6. —In conformity with article 145 of the Versailles treaty, the German government has surrendered to the municipality of Strasbourg 36 old cannon removed from the city by the German troops in 1870.

PRINCE GLOBE-TROTTING.

TO FORGET HIS WIFE

Roumanian Heir in the Orient on Two Year Tour.

(Canadian Press.)

SHANGHAI,—Carol, Crown Prince of Roumania, with a suite of ten members, passed through Shanghai recently on his way to Japan where he will remain for several weeks before going to the United States on his way home. The tour of the world that Prince Carol is making follows his separation from his morganatic wife, Zizi Lambrino and according to announcement made at Bucharest was to continue for two years. The prince was in China three days, paying a visit to the city of Nanking.

THE DISCOVERY OF "VITAMINES"

The study of beriberi and pellagra led to the discovery of a group of food essentials known as "vitamines." They are necessary to normal nutrition and to normal growth. They are found in the whole wheat grain. In making Shredded Wheat Biscuit all the vitamines are retained—all the elements that are needed for building a perfect body. Two of these little loaves of baked whole wheat with milk or cream (or hot water) make a nourishing, satisfying meal for a few cents.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, AUGUST 6TH, 1920.

WELCOME NEIGHBORS.

One's attention could not but be irresistibly arrested and held by the Canadian Raybestos Company's advertisement in Wednesday's Examiner—not by reason of its size, but because from its wording there emanated a spirit of coming Canadian citizenship and community brotherhood, in keeping with the ideals in most men's minds these days in this announcement we find reflected business sentiment which embraces not only company interests, but breathes of the fullest measure of regard for the welfare and progress of the Canadian home in which that important American industry has established its Dominion branch.

It should be distinctly understood that this concern, of which Peterborough will have every reason to be proud, is incorporated and capitalized in Canada, as the "Canadian Raybestos Company Limited, who will manufacture and sell asbestos products to be used by Canadians. The gentlemen at its head come here, their loss regretted by an American community, and their gain to this municipality highly appreciatd and recognized by all with whom they have come in contact since residents in this city. They are men who have taken an active interest in the city from whence they came and in whom one finds the highest type of desirable citizenship.

In the advertisement above referred to the Company's heads say "it becomes not only a pleasure, but a duty to publicly acknowledge the consideration shown us by everyone with whom we have come in contact—from the highest city officials down to the newsboy on the corner." And the Examiner is, we are confident, only voicing the sentiments of this community in accepting that acknowledgement coupled with the assurance that such hospitality as the Raybestos people have found in Peterborough, has, we fear, fallen far too short of the worth of its recipients.

Then we like especially that kindly reference to the newsboy on the corner, and can see in it a consideration for humanity in general which indicates that open hand and heart so urgently needed these days of reconstruction and advocacy for the uplift of the race, let it be American or Canadian.

In conclusion this paper, again speaking for itself and readers, welcomes most heartily our new neighbours—The Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, with every confidence that this new industry will grow and prosper, and incidentally assist in the expansion of Peterborough city and the increased prosperity of its people.

SOVIET BUSINESS

The Soviet Government has it seems, not only already placed $5,000,000 with a Canadian Syndicate for trading with Canada, but now it is indicated that J. G. Oshal, a representative of the Commercial Department of the Russian Socialists, has intimated that he is in Montreal to get in touch with a number of Canadian business firms and examine the shipping facilities of the part of Canada's metropolis.

While Canada welcomes facilities for trade expansion, it does seem by reports from Europe that Russian gold as yet is tainted with that principle of Bolshevism just now threatening world peace and a forcing upon the British Empire and her Allies of another great war. Bolshevik Russia no doubt needs badly trade agreement with both Great Britain and her colonies, Canada included, to assist in readjusting her economic conditions. But so far Russia has given no encouragement to the world to place credence in her assurances, political or otherwise. These "trade" doves of peace who she is sending forth from the ark of a government holding power by murder and terrors unspeakable savor of attempting to hoodwink the Allies into unobservant somnolency until her red armies gain positions, practically dominating Europe, from which it would be difficult indeed to dislodge them. Russia's attitude lends itself to no other conclusion so far. She is more threatening to the peace of the world to-day than Napoleon was in his time, and she is treacherous where he was politically honorable. Britain, Canada, and the United States, would no doubt welcome the opening of trade relations with a country of such vast opportunities as there are in Russia, but before we rejoice in the offering of Russian gold by men representing the Russian Soviets in any capacity, let us make sure that we shall not soon be faced with a need for sending armed forces again to Europe to stem the tide of Bolshevik militarism, exceeding in ferocity and cruelty that militarism so recently subdued.

SPIRITUALISM VS. TRICKERY.

With the passing away of Prof. Crawford of Belfast, Ireland, British spiritualists lose a self-constituted authority on mysteries which are hidden by a merciful all-wise providence. In the case of men like Prof. Jackson the world has been lenient in accrediting him with an unbalanced mind, while in the case of some other spiritualists, who extort money for conducting spiritualistic seances they have been adjudged unmitigated frauds preying on the credulity of weak-minded dupes.

To our find exponents of spiritualism, who in a large measure resort to table rappings but occasionally promise 'cular manifestations from the departed, are clever tricksters and many of them have been exposed as such. This sort of trickery, under the guise of the supernatural, is dangerous in the extreme, and many believers in such unscrupulous men and women have been driven into insane asylums by resorting to spiritualistic seances. Opportunities occasionally arise of witnessing entertainments, which for mystery discount any table-rappings and manifestations possible by spiritualists. And those opportunities come perhaps too infrequently to most of us, for at them the performer, exemplifies the wonderf and puzzling extent to which trickery can be carried?

Perhaps one of the most remarkable exponents of trickery, jugglery and slight-of-handwork was J. N. Maskelyne, who for years in the Egyptian Hall, London England, astonished the world with his wonders, in the name, however, of trickery, not spiritualism. He was a bitter enemy of spiritualists and conferred incalculable benefit on society by exposing the notorious spiritualists, the Davenport Brothers. The story in brief runs thus: At a hall in England, in which the Davenport Brothers were giving spiritualistic seances, Maskeleyne was invited to represent the audience in the platform during a cabinet seance. The cabinet was a long shallow affair with three doors, one at each end, concealing the brothers, and one in its centre When this centre door was opened the Davenports were in deep shadow and their movements could not be seen. But on this occasion a small piece of green baze covering the windows became untacked and the sunlight shining through cast a ray into the cabinet directly upon Ira Davenport, at that moment busy throwing tambourines out of the cabinet and performing other "mystifying" evolutions. This was enough for Maskelyne, who exposed the spiritualists to the audience so completely that their nefarious business was ruined.

Had it been intended that the living should have visible, written or oral communcation with the dead, it only seems reasonable to assume that such communication would be direct and not through spiritualistic mediums. One can hardly reconcile the pjrofessions of spiritualists with the teachings of Christianity, there is no authority for it. There is a curtain beween here and the hereafter never yet drawn aside, so far as can be proven, to allow the human eye or senses to penetrate into the unknown. Many spiritualistic imposters have been exposed, and spiritualism properly ranks with witchcraft of the ages past and fortune-telling of the present. The strong-minded man and woman pays no heed to the professional spiritualist, the weak-minded and credulous are unfortunately victims of a delusion which may have far-reaching and unbalancing effects. We have seen much of this world, its humbuggery and trickery, and the only tangible or discernible spirits to our knowledge are those that are worrying the O.T.A. officials just now in the neighborhood of Windsor and Border Cities.

CANADIAN CHALLENGER.

This is what the New York Times has to say of the proposition by Mr. Ross, of Sydney, Cape Breton, to challenge for America's Cup next year:

"Apparently we shall not have to possess our souls in patience until 1922 for another race for the America's Cup. Mr. Ross of Sydney, Cape Breton, has given notice of his intention to compete for the Cup in July, 1921. He is going to have a boat built on this side and paid for by Canadian subscriptions. Evidently he counts on a stronger national yachting patriotism in the Dominion than can be found here; for the Canadian boat is not to be a staunch and "real" all-weather craft, bu another member of the sensitive and temperamental class to which Resolute and Shamrock, those highly nervous sea nymphs, belong.

His boat is to be manned by Nova Scotian fishermen, bold and hardy sailors. It will be remembered that Resolute's crew was composed of American citizens from Scandinavia. American interest in Canada and the relations and friendships of the two nations are so close that possibly an American-Canadian yacht race for the Cup may revive an ancient enthusiasm whose edge was somewhat dulled by the last series of races. For the moment, perhaps, Americans are a little weary of scientific marine toys."

A QUESTION OF SPELLING.

The editor of the "Independent" proved to an applauding Chautauqua gathering that the spirit of a fighter abides within him. He enlisted there in a spelling bee, and as the ranks to the left and to the right of him wavered and thinned he withstood the orthographic fire until all but him and his fellow finalist had fled.

"Litotes!" thundered the chief inquisitor, aiming a merciless eye at the finalist at the editor's side, and down he went. But the skipper of the "Independent" with no small degree of proper pride, displaying a not unremarkable quality of courage as well as no slight possession of book learning, replied in a voice in which confidence and decision of not inferior quality were blended, snapping back the correct sequence of the letters.

We are happy to record this glorious victory, yet cannot be quite happy until we learn how the inquisitor pronounced the, so to say, eighteenth hole word: lit-o-tez, Century; li-to-tez, Stormonth; li-to-tes, Webster? No sporting event of dignity enough to interest the earnest endeavour of the editor of our esteemed contemporary should be pulled off under rules any less specific than those which control a race for the America's Cup.—The Sun and New York Herald.

SURVIVAL OF THE FIT.

Anthropologists noted long ago among the characteristics of the human race that accounted for its attainment of dominion over all of the earth's other inhabitants its capacity for adapting itself to diverse environments, including those of climates ranging all the way from tropical to arctic. The only animal, or perhaps one should say the only other animal, that has this capacity to a degree approaching man's is the dog, but to some extent it marks all of the creatures he has subjected to what is called "domestication" — a euphemism for the sort of exploitation that does not involve immediate slaughter.

But what the animals seemingly do not share with man—probably because they do not need to share it—is his ability to adapt himself to all sorts of political governments, including the worst or wickedest. Some men, that is, have this ability. The rest, lacking it, die out when despotism becomes too savage and life depends on physical strength and utter unscrupulousness in getting the necessaries of existence. The fittest always survive, but, as has been well said, the survivors may not be better than their defeated competitors in any way except their fitness to survive.

According to a letter printed in The Times last Sunday, the survival of those who in ordinary times and places would be called the worst, and the extermination of the best, is now going on in Russia, and the process as described is an appalling one from any standpoint except that of the Bolsheviki there, and of their admirers in other countries. Nicholas Iordansky, the writer of the letter, edited a Marxian paper in Petrograd, and would pass for more than sufficiently radical with the conservatives of other countries, but to the present Russian Government he seemed to be a counter-revolutionist, so his paper was suppressed and he was himself lucky to escape to Finland with his life. His account, therefore, of Bolshevism is not that of a man by temperament opposed to political and economic innovations. — New York Times.

VISIT TO BULGARIA.

The Bulgarians who are attacking the Greeks once more have had a checkered national career during the last half century. Their conutry, which has been little altered by the war, forms roughly an oblong area between Rumania on the north, the Black Sea on the east and Greece and the Aagean Sea on the south, and Jugo-Slavia on the west. Its frontiers were determined by the Treaties of Bucharest and Constantinople in 1913. The present area of the country is about 43,000 square miles, and it occupies about one-fifth of the whole of the Balkan peninsula. The Black Sea is more hospitable than the Aegean, and contains two important ports, Varna and Burgas. Dedeagatch, on the Aegean, which came into prominence during the Great War, and which is the only port of importance on the sea, is shallow and unprotected. It is served by the Danube, the Kamchik, the Maritsa and the Struma. The inhabitants are mainly a fusion of Bulgars and Slavs, and their language was simplified in structure by the Turkish conquest. It was in the middle of the seventh century that the Bulgars first appeared in the Balkans, but from 1018 to 1186 Bulgaria was a depedency of the Greeks. Later it was overrun by the Turks. The year 1908 was the great year for Bulgaria. The agreement between Russia and Austria came to an end, and Russian and English diplomatists met at Reval, as a result of which the independence of Bulgaria was proclaimed with Ferdinand as the first monarch of the country. Bulgaria took part in both the first and the second Balkan wars, and while she gained much territory from Turkey, she was forced to cede some to Rumania .The bulk of the people of Bulgaria belong to the Greek Orthodox church, but there is liberty of belief to other religions. For many years the education of the country was entirely in the hands of the Greek clergy, but the progress of recent years has been striking. In 1888 only eleven per cent of the population could read and write. To-day probably forty per cent. is literate. The country is largely agriculturist, both cereals and live stock being exported, as well as some cotton, sugar and tobacco. There are some minearls, including some heavy deposits of oil shale, which still awaits development.

ManagerMitchell of Cubs Says Confidence is Responsible.

Wherever and whatever baseball fans gather the topic of conversation invariably turns to the increased batting in the two major leagues this year. Many and varied are the reasons advanced for the increased slugging. In spite of official denials the belief still obtains among a great many that a livelier ball is responsible for the heavier and more consistent batting. In this respect it is interesting to hear what Fred Mitchell, manager of the Chicago Cubs, has to say on the subject.

Manager Mitchell expressed the belief it was a matter of confidence at the plate and pointed to the fact there was no such appreciable increase in slugging at the start of the season as there has been since the middle of June. The batsmen have learned, he says, not to look for freak pitching any more, so they go to the plate, take a toe hold, and swing with the confidence bred of the knowledge they have to look only for a curve, a fast ball, or an occasional spitter. They are therefore hitting harder when they do hit the ball than last year when they chocked their bats and took shorter and more cautious swings at the ball.

" 'Harmless'? Is he?" he took up moodily. "Oh, in a sense, yes. In another, no. It's his kind that have surrounded her, that have corruped her. It's this empty, pleasure-seeking life, restless, always on the go, always wanting to be amused in some new way. It's the habits of excitement such young cubs give women —that starts all the harm!"

"Yes; what you say is true," she said gravely, and she was so impressed that she nooded twice.

"It's not a question of him," he said hastily. 'It's a question of my dignity is something he holds to!"

"You must make her understand," she said gently.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"That's only a little of it!" Then he looked at her, moved to confidences. "It's queer, but it was just the accident of our visit to Chilton changed my life."

"How so?"

"It did," he replied nodding his head. "It showed me what money could do. It was a revelation. I wanted what you had." He stopped, frowned, and, for a moment, plunged into the past.

"Don't say anything—if it is hard," she said, as he remained silent.

"I admired you," he had not heard her. "Your taste, the quiet, the real elegance of your home, the order in the household, the way your children were brought up. I wanted a home like yours. I wanted her to be like you."

She was immensely flattered, for she adored to be told that she was a good housekeeper and a perfect mother. She was so grateful that he appreciated these qualities that, in the genuine liking she felt for him, she determined to try and help him.

"Do you realize how young she is?" she asked. 'Isn't that a little your fault, too? You needed a woman to understand you and help you, and you chose a child."

"A good deal my fault—yes," he said loyally. 'I know nothing about women. I've never had the time to study them. A cleverer man, I suppose, wouldn't have made the mistake I've made. Now the mischief's done."

'Are you sure?"

He nodded.

"She's out of my hand now. Oh, we'll go on—other marriages go on. But—" He shrugged his shoulders and glanced down at his hands which which lay locked on the ballustrade. "Well, I've readjusted myself: that's over."

"I don't think she realizes this," she said slowly.

"No; probably not. She will." He paused and then said emphatically: "The trouble is, women don't realize what's important in marriage. We are the ones who fight the battle. We are the ones who build Do anything else, but don't interfere with that!"

As he said this, his voice became hard and his face set in sternness. She comprehended in a flash the lack of compromise in his character, and what he must have suffered to come where he had come.

"What a pity!" she said, looking at him, "And a woman could do so much for you!"

"The right woman, yes!" he said abruptly. "You won't think I'm trying to pay you only a compliment. But if I had you for my wife— Good Lord, how much I could do!"

It was not a declaration; it was more—an appreciation, and it stirred her and lifted her to spiritual satisfaction as nothing had ever done before.

"The pity is, it's all so much a a question of accident," she said meditatively.

"You turn to the right instead of the left at one certain moment," he said, nodding, "and your whole life hangs on it."

'I wish I could help you," she said impulsively, looking away from him.

"You have."

"I'm afraid you idealize me."

He shook his head obstinately.

"Not you!"

"I shan't forget what you said. I understand how you said it," she continued. "I can understand—because—well, because you are not the only one who has had to readjust."

He looked at her in amazement.

"You?"

"Are you blind?" she said gently, her eyes far away. The trains of a languid waltz floated about them, and the firefly glow of the mellow lights among the swimming colors below awoke dangerous moods.

He frowned, and a picture of Rudolph Dellabarre's watery little eyes and calculated steps retiring into the library for the night came to his eyes.

"Good heavens, you!" he said hastily. "I forgot."

She drew back, wondering herself at the impulse which had led her thus to match confidence for confidence, glancing around uneasily, fearing eavesdroppers.

"I wish I could help you," she said. "A man like you, a man who really counts, needs strength."

He looked at her, his eyes deep into hers.

"What a pity!" he said abruptly.

"It's all a question of accident," she said again pensively. "The right person comes at he wrong moment, as you say. I'm sorry, Andrew."

She nodded and left him. Presently he saw her below, stopping to greet some one. He liked the straight, graceful carriage of the body, and the dignity with which she offered her hand. There was a quiet, a gentleness about her—and she had a mind. Curious thoughts came to him as he followed her movements through the gay crowd—

The ballroom below him was still riotous wih the gaiety of succeeding dances. The sound of women's laughter rose in shriller note. Perhaps if he had been happy his only emotion would have been of pride; but sorrow had touched him with its clarifying vision. He remembered that other crowd in which he had stood in the great terminal, the surging, purposeful sweping towards the future of mingled America. How inconsequential all this luxury was in the great scheme!

"Let her dance, if that is all she understands," he said grimly, "so long as it doesn' interfere with what I build.

HUSBANDS NEEDED FOR FRENCH WOMEN

PARIS DOCTOR PROPOSES THAT AMERICAN MEN SETTLE THERE.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—An international marriage bureau to find husbands for 2,000,000 French women who were left without mates is proposed by Dr. Paul Carnot, a Paris physician. He believes that many Americans would like to marry French women and that all that is needed to bring about that desired result is proper machinery for bringing wifeless Yankees and husbandless mademoiselles together.

Dr. Carnot tells his idea in The Matin. He has received from California and other States, and from Canada and Argentine, he says, letters from hundreds of young men who want French wives. But the problem is not one of transportation. What France needs is men who will settle and marry here and rear families of French children.

"Every one admires France," writes the Doctor, 'so surly, with a wife thrown in, we could attract immigrants."

From his experience in America he says he is sure that there are many men who would prefer to settle on this side of the Atlantic, and he urges the establishment of a bureau of information abou wives and work. A beginning should be made, he says, with correspondence between the mademoiselles and their admirers. They are the best people to give all necessary information about the prospects and habits they would find here. Once a beginning was made in this way he is confident the rest would be easy.

"Letters I have received," he goes on, "are filled with energy and expressions of love for our country and admiration of our women. The writers all ask what kind of a reception they would get and if they came whether they would find work and be able to settle down and found a family. Alas, my laboratory cannot be changed into a matrimonial agency, but someone else should take on the work. What a race might we not be able to raise here in France of children by our women for whom the war has left no husbands and those magnificent Californians!"

JACKED UP AUTO AND STOLE GOOD TREAD TIRE

LINDSAY, Aug. 4.—Mr. Arthur P. Beal left his roadster alongside the warehouse office on Wellington street, near the bridge, and took a trip down the Scugog in his yacht.

On returning at ten o'clock or thereabouts, he jumped into the car, applied the "juice," and was surprised when Henry failed to move forward with the usual "pep." On getting out of the car to make an investigation he found one hind wheel jacked up and a good tread tire missing. He also found that three other tires were deflated and it is evident that the thieves were frightened away and that they intended to strip the car of tires.

Murder of Count Tisza is Being Investigated.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 3.—The trial by court martial of the persons under accusataion in connection with the murder of Count Stephan Tisza, who was shot and killed in November, 1918, began here to-day. Lieutenant Huttner, one of the defendants, admitted the charges against him. He declared the murder had been prepared with the connivance of Stephen Friedrich, the former Premier, who paid the expenses of the assassination plot, amounting to 15,000 crowns.

BRIGHT POLISH GIRL FOR DEATH BATTALION

Frail Sister Enlists For Hospital Service, Young Brother in Arsenal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—"Yes, I'm going home to help my people by joining one of the Polish Women's Battalions of Death," said Miss Mary Krupowiak, a bright-faced girl of about 22 years of age, who has just arrived from Winnipeg, when interviewed at the Polish Consulate today. "My elder sister, although very frail, has enlisted for service in one of the military hospitals to make clothes for the soldiers. My youngest brother is in despair. He is only 14 years of age, and he cannot, therefore, bear arms. He has, however found work in an arsenal."

PROSECUTE PROFITEERS

United States Gets Action Against Coal Operators.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., —Fifteen coal operator and brokers were arrested here on charges of profiteering and will be prosecuted under the Lever act. Between fifty and sixty more, it was learned to-night, are to be arrested in the next few days for making exorbitant profits on coal.

The margin of profits in the individual cases vary, but in one the Government alleges that the defendants sold coal in carload lots at $7, $7.50, $8 and $8.50 per ton which cost $2.90 per ton to produce.

Those arrested to-day gave bonds to J. Pike Powers, United States Commissioner, or arranged to do so. Preliminary hearings are expected to start the latter part of next week.

NEED VOLUNTEERS FOR COLONIZATION

BIG TASK TO PREPARE PALESTINE FOR FUTURE IMMIGRANTS.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 6.—Ten thousand volunteers, chosen from veterans of the world war, the Jewish Legion and skilled workmen, to enlist at once for 18 months' service in a Jewish industrial army in Palestine, are necessary for the basic reconstruction work of the Jewish National Homeland, according to Bernard A. Rosenblatt, president of the American Zion Commonwealth, who is now in Palestine in the interests of "Balfouria," the colony of the American Zion Commonwealth.

Mr. Rosenblatt recommends a regular army organization with a general staff of three which, as a Jewish Industrial Commission, will supervise the work of the Jewish labour army in rebuilding the Holy Land.

"Our biggest task, once the call is issued for volunteers, will be in sifting out the applicants and determining upon the 10,000 to go," he said. "They could all be occupied in the one task of building houses for future immigrants. The army should work only on land belonging ot the Jewish nation, lands secured from the Palestine Government, from the Jewish National Fund, the American Zion Commonwealth or other agencies of the Zionist Organization."

In addition to the construction of houses, he points out that such an army would be busied in preparing land for immediate settlement, irrivation, afforestration, sanitation and engineering works necessary for the development of industry and commerce.

"The nucleus for such an industrial army is already in Palestine in the co-operative groups, working on the lands of the Jewish National Fund and in the group that is developing 'Balfouria,' the first colony of the American Zion Commonwealth," he concluded. "I am convinced after two visits to Palestine that only through such a huge disciplined Jewish labour army, will we be able to reconquer the land of our forefathers."

RED CAVALRY IN TATTERS BUT ARE WELL ARMED

GERMAN CORRESPONDENT FOUND BUDENNY'S KNIGHTS A MOTLEY CREW, BUT UNDER IRON DISCIPLINE.

CHICAGO.—The Chcago Tribune published a dispatch from Eugene Szattamary, a German journalist, who is representing the Tribune on the East Prussian frontier, giving an account of a vist to the Russan army now invading Poland.

Herr Szattamary writes from Grajevo, a town of 4,000 population, about twenty-five miles southwest of Augustown, just over the East Prussian frontier in the Polish Republic. His dispatch follows:

"Grajevo, Poland, Aug. 3.—To-day we crossed the East Prussian frontier to Grajevo, where we found three regiments of Russian cavalry and front-line troops. Now that I have seen both sides, my wonder is increasing how the Russians could have won the war.

"Before going across the line I was told by Lithuanian guards that the Russians were an army of beggars, but I did not expect to find Budenny's legendary knights, who have blazed the way from the Crimea to Kiev and from Kiev to Grodno, such a ragged, starved, dsreputable-lookng crowd as they are.

"One of the cavalrymen was dressed in mufti, while his companion was in a uniform. I saw round hats, bearskin hats (the temperature is about 80 Fahhenheit), derbies and slouch hats, sport clothes, fur coats and those peculiar caps that the Polish Jews wear.

"I saw one British uniform and seven Polish hats and uniforms on the first few Russians that I met. Surely it was a nondescript lot, but they had one thing in common—the red star insignia of the Red Army, which each wore on his blouse or cap.

"The men were dirty and ragged, and the small Cossack horses were not groomed, but were caked with the mud of a thousand miles. I saw 300 horses and their riders, but not a one of them was dressed or fitted according to the standard of either side of the war in France. Only rifles and ammunition were in plenty and one Cossack showed me a Japanese carbine and bullets, and even a knapsack, proud souvenir of a Bolshevist raid in Siberia.

"An iron discipline everywhere prevailed. The officers were well dressed in unforms. Wth them was a civilian commissar who is really superior to the officers and watches them. When the Russian pulled out of Grajevo they requisitioned supplies but they paid in Soviet rubles and did not plunder or confiscate anything. Only one car of flour was broken into.

"On looking over the Russian army I cannot understand what has been urging them to victory throughout the last two years. Perhaps it is their discipline. Perhaps it is fear of starvation if they do not win. I know the men feel they have to conquer new territody in order to obtain food because there is none at home. That is why I am doubtful if the army will quit conquering when an armistice is signed and word is given to return to Russia."

FORMAL LIQUIDATION OF MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL CO.

Assets Sold to the Canadian Company.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—Justice Sutherland to-day granted an order for the voluntary winding-up of the Matthews-Blackwell Co., on the application of R. H. Parmenter, for the company. D. M. McClelland was appointed interim liquidator with a reference to J. A. C. Cameron, official referee.

This application for a winding-up order indicates no financial embarrassment on the part of the Matthews-Blackwell Company. In June, 1919, all the assets of the Matthews-Blackwell Company were sold en bloc to the Canadian Packing Company, Limited, which, since then, has been operating the plants. The sale included the packing bssiness of the company in Toronto, Montreal, Peterborough and elsewhere. Mr. T. F. Matthews, who was a director of the Matthews-Blackwell Company, is president of the Canadian Packing Company. The application for a winding-up order to-day is merely a formality.

Nervous-Trouble

Nervous troubles are, without a doubt the most discouraging form of sickness to the sufferer. You are tired and ill but cannot say what is wrong, no pain except frequent headaches, you are fretful, cross and irritable without a cause, no ambition or desire to continue your daily routine, you feel a picking or itching of the limbs or body and feel that some terrible calamity is about to overcome you, cannot enter into your former pleasures and prefer solitude to the company of your friends. In such cases the whole nervous system is deranged and requires the most careful attention. Take one of Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets every night or every second night and if there is any tendency to Stomach trouble take one Special Stomach Tablet three times a day before meals.

DIVORCE IN RUSSIA.

Obtaind Simply by Registering Desire of Dissolution.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Soviet Russia has solved its divorce problem by introducing the time clock system into marriage.

A Soviet pair desiring to marry simply go to tre office set aside for the purpose, register their intention to be man and wife, and presto — the marriage is a fact.

If perchance there is a falling out between the two later on, either of the aggrieved parties makes his way back to the place of registry and goes through the same motions, only this time he registers out. It is the time clock system, punch your ticket when you enter marriage, punch it when you go out.

The only obstacle raised between married folks and divorce is a delay of two weeks between the declaration of the desire and the accomplished fact. This is done in order to give the quarrelers a chance to regret their impulse to separate and make up.

Judge Harry M. Fisher, of this Moral Law Court, of Chicago, who together with Max Pine, a prominent socialist of this city ,has returned from a prolonged stay in Bolshevik Russia, told about marriage and divorce and other Soviet customs at the Hotel Claridge yesterday.

'What about the children, Judge?" we asked.

"The children are the property of the state," came the reply. "At all times, theoretically at least, the state owns the children and provides for their maintenance. In the rare cases where offenders against Soviet Government are confined to concentration camps, the Government takes over the care of the offspring."

Poison gas weighing 15,000 tons was supplied to the British armies in the field in 1918.

PORCELAIN MONEY.

Will be Used on Hamburg Elevated Railway.

(Canadian Press.)

MEISSEN, Saxony, July 20.—(By Mail.)— The first German porcelain money is being manufactured here and will consist of 300,000 twenty pfenning pieces for use on the Hamburg elevated railway. The city of Meissen as well as several other towns have ordered porcelain coins for local use, with a view of solving the small change scarcity as well as obviating the present unclean and easily tearable paper currency. The German republic is said to be about to introduce poreclain coins ranging from 10 pfennings to five marks.

COUNTRIES STUDY CIVIL AVIATION

FRANCE AND ITALY HAVE SPECIAL ATTACHES IN CAPITALS OF WORLD.

LONDON, July 20.—(By Mail).—Progress in civil flying made by the various countries of the world since the armistice is discussed in a detailed report just made public by Sir Frederick Sykes, Controller-General of Civil Aviation in Great Britain.

Despite the fact that Germany, Austria, and Hungary are forbidden, under the terms of peace, to manufacture or import aircraft engines, the report points out that these three countries are in process of organizing departments of government to deal with civil aviation. At the present time Sir Frederick says, there are twenty-five air transport companies in Germany and the number is increasing monthly.

Shortage of fuel and the general chaotic economic situation is retarding aviation in Austria, says the report. Belgium has organized an Air Ministry and has established air attaches in Paris and London. The Government, it is said, has appropriated 2,000,000 francs for development of flying in the Belgian Congo.

Great progress is recorded for France which has air attaches in all the chief capitals of the world, whose duty it is to study the aviation in various countries.

France, he says, has acquired five aerodromes and 24 landing grounds for the use of civilian flying and is also planning to connect all her colonial possessions by airlines.

Italy has appointed 16 air attaches in as many countries, says the report, and is spending large sums of money in order to keep herself in the front rank of aviation development.

It will be a record crop. Last year 1,453,000,000 pounds wereproduced from sugar beets and the average production for the five years, 1914-18, was 1,577,200 pounds.

DRAFT EVADER GIVES UP

Loneliness Forces Surrender After 3 Years in Oregon Mountains.

PORTLAND, Ore., —Three years of wandering in the mountains of Southern Oregon in efforts to escape a charge of evading the selective draft were ended with Alfred Fattig, 27-year-old farmer, in jail here. He surrendered because of loneliness. During his wanderings he lived chiefly on game and berries.

Fattig and his brother Charles fled to the mountains in 1917 because of conscientious scruples against war. They took clothing, food and weapons and a prospector's pan. They pretended to be prospectors when they met miners or other people. About Chrismas, 1918, they heard the war was over. Charles Fattig has not been apprehended.

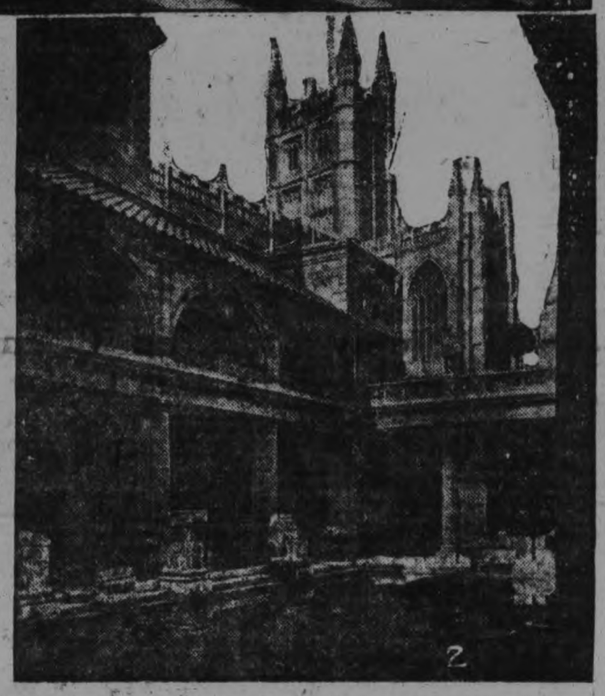
Hot Springs at Banff and Bath



Recently the Canadian Pacific Railway film of the tour of the Prince of Wales in Canada was shown three times a day for three days at Bath, England. The mayor of the town and thousands of the residents of the town and district were exceedingly interested in those pictures, which not only showed the doings of his Royal Highness in the Dominion but also gave vivid details of many of the beautiful scenes of our country.

Those who have visited the hot sulphur springs at Banff in the Canadian Pacific Rockies or the Halcyon springs on the Arrow Lakes and derived healthful benefit from them will be glad to learn something about the springs at Bath which are the only hot springs in the United Kingdom.

About the middle of 1755 the old Priory or mediæval Abbey, which stood at the south-western corner of the existing Abbey at Bath, was pulled down to give place to a suite of baths for the Duke of Kingston. In removing the foundations, a number of stone coffins were found, and, on sinking further, the hot mineral water gushed forth and interrupted the work. The latter being drained, Roman masonry was disclosed, and subsequently a number of baths and sudatories. That there lay buried still further remains of what must have been an extensive Roman bathing system, indications were unmistakable. The rectangular bath, now commonly known as the Lucas bath, was uncovered, and at either end of it a semi-circular deep bath, entered by seven steps. The sudatories lay on the eastern side, together with a number of square baths and other apartments which apparently bathers used preparatory to entering the hot chambers. Some of these rooms were paved with flag stones, others were beautifully treated with various colored tesserae.

Excavations were not then pursued; other buildings were quickly erected over the site, and during the next hundred years no attention was given to the place.

It was the year 1878 that marked the most important epoch in the rediscovery of the baths. Engineering works were at that time undertaken to remedy a leakage from the principal spring, and it was discovered that from this leakage the Kingston Baths, then in private hands, derived the whole of their supply. Interruptions ensued, but the Corporation enforced their rights in respect to the water escaping from the King's spring, and the draining of the site and other necessary works proceeded. It was then perceived that the foundations of a number of the modern houses rested upon what was little better than a morass, and Major Davis, to whose unwearied zeal and skilful excavation the city is so much indebted, found, after further exploration and careful tunnelling, that he had at last alighted upon the hidden treasures. Difficult and costly as was the subsequent work of uncovering these remains, the late Major Davis set himself with indomitable perseverance to push it forward. The facts that the baths were some 20 feet below the street level and that continuance of the excavations necessarily involved the demolition of much valuable property were serious considerations which all had their effect in retarding progress.

Later on public interest increased and the houses were removed, the immense deposits of other ages carted away and the large area of Roman structures revealed. About 1878 when the great rectangular bath was opened up portions of the culvert of the outfall drain were discovered. In 1883 the hypocaust on the western side of the circular bath was discovered, in 1885 the circular bath itself; in 1886 the latrines and circular hypocaust; in 1887 the bath beneath the basement of the modern baths, and in 1896 another rectangular bath was excavated.

That the builders of these baths were attracted into the valley by the hot springs about the middle of the first century, certainly not very long after the Romans first occupied Britain, we have fairly conclusive evidence. A coin of Claudius was found in such a position as to suggest to some authorities the theory that it might have been specially placed to commemorate the foundation of the baths. At any rate from the stones and altars dug up from time to time (one stone bears reference to a definite date A.D. 77-8), and the characteristics of a few of the sculptured remains, some vigorous occupation of Bath can be ascribed, with tolerable accuracy, to the last 30 or 40 years of the first century.

STEEL AMALGAMATION

Japanese Expedient to Tide Over Present Trade Slump.

(Canadian Press.)

TOKIO, July 2. (By Mail).—Amalgamation of all the steel works in Japan in order ot tide over the present trade conditions, is reported under consideration by the Japanese government the authorities of which are said to be investigating the possibilities of a nationwide merger.

The iron market continues weak, owing to the slump in quotations and the decrease in demand, although the amount of iron imported from the United States aggregates nearly 2,000 tons a month in accordance with the contracts signed last year.

In these circumstances, pessimistic views are being now entertained by some of the iron dealers, and a number of the steel works have been obliged to close. The output for the first half of the current year, therefore, is expected to result in a decrease of nearly 30 per cent, with even worst prospects for the latter half of the year.

SHE DID HER SHARE.

And It Was Not Upon the Blood Soiled Field of Battle.

During the first days of that most lamentable conflict that we now know as the war between the states a little woman down in South Carolina gave her husband and their four grown sons to fight for the cause that to her seemed just. She was not belligerent; she was brave. A few years later a neighbor brought her word that all but the youngest boy had been killed.

At the end of the war the youngest boy returned. He was a captain and not a captain merely by courtesy. As he rode through the old plantation he saw to his intense surprise that it was in a fair state of cultivation and that foodstuffs had taken the place of cotton. He had expected to find those broad acres filled with weeds and briars. As soon as he had proudly greeted his mother and been in turn proudly greeted by her he spoke of this.

"That was my part," she told him. "You couldn't fight without having something to eat, could you?"

It was then that he noted the marks of toil on her hands, and he knew that the faithful old negroes had not done all the hard work. He brought his heels together in the military fashion and lifted his hand to the rim of his hat.

"Mother," he said not very steadily, "I salute you, the greatest soldier of us all."

SEE THE FUNNY SIDE.

Use Your Sense of Humor When Distressing Situations Arise.

Humor proves to be the saving clause of many a distressing situation. The trouble with most of us is that we take our troubles altogether too seriously. We fail to see the funny side of things that for the moment concern us, even though we are quick to grasp it when we are mere onlookers.

In the face of gathered clouds that seem to shut out the sunshine forever it is not a bad idea to remind ourselves that this old mother earth has been revolving on her axis for countless ages, that generations of men have come and gone for thousands of years and that the march of human progress has gone right along in the forward direction despite what seemed to be occasional setbacks.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you." There is humor in nearly every situation if we can only see it from the right angle. Those of us who try to smile in adversity and think how much more laughable it would be if conditions were reversed at least feel less uncomfortable over it and take pleasure in looking forward to the time when the shoe will be on the other foot.—Omaha Bee.

The Drum of the Ear.

The reason deaf people cannot hear is that the drum of the ear is imperfect or has been destroyed. Sound is nothing but the vibrations of the air acting on the drum of the ear. When people are quite deaf it is because the ear-drum will not respond to these vibrations, but they can still feel these vibrations even if they cannot hear them. When a number of deaf mutes are sitting in a room together and one wishes to attract the attention of another he strikes his heel on the floor, and every one in the room feels the vibration and looks around to see who called. In the large asylums for the deaf and dumb the doors are hung very loosely, so that if you shake them it sets up a vibration like stamping on the floor, and that is the way they wake up deaf people that sleep too late in the morning.

Ether and Matter.

The densest matter is more or less porous. Gold will absorb mercury as a lump of sugar will absorb water, showing there must be interstices or interatomic spaces in it, but the ether shows no such property. If a drop of water could be magnified sufficiently one would ultimately see the different atoms of hydrogen and oxygen that constitute the molecules of water. If a small volume of ether could be thus magnified the indications are that the ultimate part would look like the first, which is the same as saying that it is not made up of discrete particles, but fills space completely. This is expressed by saying that the ether is a continuous medium and incomparable with matter.

Safety First.

I was returning home the other evening about 6:30 o'clock when I saw Tommy, my neighbor's boy, playing with a crowd of other boys. I knew that his family always had supper at 6 o'clock sharp, so I said, "I'll bet you 5 cents you'll miss your supper, Tommy."

He grinned up at me saucily and replied: "Then you lose your bet, 'cause I got the chops right here with me. Ma sent me for 'em at 5 o'clock."—Everybody's Magazine.

Too Mean a Trick.

"See here; I wrote and asked you when you were going to pay that old account and even inclosed a stamp, but you never answered."

"My dear sir, wouldn't it have been a mean trick to use your own stamp to disappoint you?"

A Warning.

"Don't be too ready to bandy wit with a chemist."

"Why not with a chemist?"

"Because he always has a ready retort."

WHEN "SUNBEAM" AND "MARY ELLEN" WERE FLAGSHIPS ON STONEY LAKE

A REMINISCENCE OF THE OLD DAYS WHEN EXCURSION STEAMERS SNUBBED SCOWS TO THEIR SIDES FOR THE DANCING OVERFFOW OF PICNICERS.

(Special to the Examiner.)

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 5.—Scarcely a summer passes that some one does not return to Stoney after an absence of years and express surprise at the advancement and comparions of the "days of old", and the present.

"I remember when" is a phrase often used by these old timers, and as Stoney Lake is comparatively young, a person can remember it in almost its primeval state and still not be a Methuselah.

A number of persons are still living who made the first trip in the first steamer to ply these waters. This was the "Chippewa" or "Colonel Strickland" (both names were painted on her) it was owned and run by the Strickland Co. She was a small craft but was considered a wonder in her day.

The late Mr. P. P. Young of Young's Point, (father of Mr. P. P. Young), was the pilot.

The advent of a steamer was a great event and marked a new era for Stoney Lake and occurred about forty-five years ago. Another of the early steamers was the "Fairy" owned by Mr. Young on which Capt. Scollard (now the veteran captain of the fleet) served The "Tiger" owned and run by Mr. F. J. Lillicrap was another of those pioneer boats and also "The Dawn" which was Captain Eden's venture. The latter craft plied between Lakefield and Bobcaygeon for a time but was obliged to give up as the it was not a paying venture. That is still the reason that there is no Bobcaygeon to Burleigh line to-day, as it is a losing proposition and though it has been tried by several companies it has always failed.

The "Cruiser" built by Mr. Thomas Gordan and captained by Mr. Charles Grylls was a neat little craft that was made over and a deck added and it became the second decked steamer, the "Chippewa", a side-wheeler, being first. Capt. Sam Reynolds bought it, enlarged it and named it "The Golden City". This boat was burned some years after. Capt. Reynolds was drowned in Deer Bay and Capt. Will Reynold built as a successor the "Empress." Later he sold it to the Trent Valley Navigation Co., who still later sold to the Stoney Lake Navagation Co., who are now using it.

"Alas Poor Mary!"

The "Mary Ellen" was built by Mr. P. P. Young of Young's Point, as a successor to the "Fairy". This was also a deck steamer and a very trim little craft. It was enlarged, improved and re-named the "Majestic". Some twelve or fourteen years ago it was entirely rebuilt and named "Islinda". It was burned a few years ago but this year it was again rebuilt and is the "Islinda" again making the afternoon run under, Capt. Pat Young, grandson of the first pilot.

The Commodious "Stoney"

On July 1st 1904, the steamer "Stoney Lake" made her first trip under Capt. Scollard. For a few years this boat ran regular passenger trips but after the purchase of the "Empress" by the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., the larger boat was reserved exclusively for the excursion traffic and year by year she has carried excursions over the greater part of the Trent Valley route. From Lake Simcoe to Healey's Falls, the "Stoney Lake" is known.

The "Sunbeam" owned by Capt. Eden and Mr. G. B. Hillard was the pioneer excursion boat. It began as a side wheeler but was rebuilt along more modern lines later. The "Sunbeam" was sold a number of years ago and passed out of the Stoney Lake region.

The "Lintonia" which was run for a few seasons on these lakes by Capt. Charles Gray is now running between Sturgeon Point and Lindsay.

The "Manita" which was an importation from the Bobcaygeon line is a comparative new comer and since the re appearance of the "Islinda" has resumed the Peterboro to Stoney Lake route.

In the early days of excursions and small steamers it was customary to lash a scow ot the side of the boat to accommodate the overflow. This had many drawbacks and about twenty years ago it was abandoned.

From time to time strange craft visited the lake with excursoins. Some of these were the "Otonabee," and "Geneva," and "Rainbow," of Peterboro, and the Esturion of Lindsay. These visits marked the high days and the holidays of the summertime.

Veterans of the Wheel.

A reviewer of the history of the Stoney Lake navigation could not overlook some of the veteran captains who piloted their boats over these waters before the government saw fit to buoy the lake. The present well regulated traffic possesses little of the excitement that marked the earlier days when logs floated down the river at will or were boomed where the lumbermen fancied. One fiery captain of the pioneer days had a reputation for jumping booms which interfered with his plans. This furnished nervous ladies with all the excitement that they desired and perhaps more.

Then it was not uncommon for the steamers to discover a rock and remain stranded until another steamer could be summoned to its aid. Now with the buoys set in all the danger spots and channels dredged and charted the excitement is largely eliminated.

Among the pioneer were J. P. Strickland, captain of the "Chipoawa," Mr. Charles Grylls, and Mr. Couch Grylls, Capt. Eden, Capt. Reynolds, Mr. Isaac Garbutt, Mr. P. P. Young and Mr. F. J. Lilicrap.

Few Wharves Then.

In those early days the ports were limited in numbers as there were very few cottages. Mount Julian or Julian's Landing, is one of the oldest landings on the lake.

It is connected directly with the northern townships where extensive lumbering operations were carried on with Apsley as a centre and Mt. Julian as a port.

Burleigh is the gateway of the upper lakes and was long a port of call, also McCracken's Landing, which was the port of the township of Dummer. Crowe's Landing is comparatively recent as a port.

If the old mariners who have passed away could have seen the present condition of things with the steamers running on schedule time, connecting with the railway and carrying tourists from all parts of the continent to different points on the lake, they would be surprised and much delighted to know that their pioneer efforts had such results.

ENGINEER'S WIFE IS OUT WITH THE FACTS

Had Suffered From Indigestion Until Life Was a Perfect Misery, She States—Is Now Well and Happy.

"I never made a better purchase when I took my friends' advice and bought Tanlac, for my present excellent health is entirely due to that remarkable medicine," said Mrs. D. Castenguay, wife of a well known C.N.R. locomotive engineer, residing at 125 Des Fosses, Que.

"For the past six years at least I had been in a very run-down condition and suffered so from indigestion that my life was a perfect misery. I just felt tired all the time and frequently had headaches that made me almost blind with pain. I was a great sufferer with rheumatism and the result of so many troubles was that my nerves got into such a state that I couldn't sleep at night. I simply had to let the housework go and thought I should soon have to give up altogether.

"Several of my friends were so much helped by Tanlac that I decided to give it a trial too, and it seemed to do me good from the first dose and now after taking three bottles I can honestly say that I am like a different woman. I have a splendid appetite and never have any trouble with indigestion. I have become so much stronger that I can do all my housework without any trouble. Headaches are a thing of the past and the rheumatism seem to have left me entirely. My nerves are now as steady as can be and I sleep so well at night that I get up in the mornings feeling fresh and strong. I have already recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends, and am glad of this chance to tell a wider circle of people what an excellent medicine Tanlac is."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Wane Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by C. Pringle & Son.—(Advt.)

AVIATORS KILLED FLYING FOR FILM

MAN WHO FIRST JUMPED FROM ONE AIRPLANE TO ANOTHER WAS "STUNTING" FOR FOX FEATURE PICTURE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Lieutenant Omar Locklear, famous as a "stunt" aviator, and his aid, Lieutenant Milton Elliot, were killed Monday night when after "stunts" for a motion picture film, in which Locklear was being starred, their plane, in flames, crashed to the ground.

The tragedy came as a finale to the motion picture, "The Skywayman," which was being made by the William Fox Studios. The last scene of the scenario, for which Locklear had suggested many hair-raising "stunts," called for the "Skywayman" plunging to his death his machine in flames. Locklear, with Elliott, left the earth about 10 o'clock and in fifteen minutes he dropped the colored lights which told the waiting camera men on the ground that he was ready for them to start "shooting" the last scene.

Locklear dropped a rocket and swift it to a tail spin after it. It was a magnificent exhibition of skill, according to the spectators on the ground. But their admiration for his skill was turned into horror when they saw the plane 200 feet from the earth attempt to right itself and then crash down in flames.

Some hurried to the crashing wreck, while others called the Fire Department. But the two aviators were already dead. Elliott, who wore a leather coat, was not burned about the upper part of the body, but Locklear, who wore a tweed suit, was burned beyond recognition.

A friend of Locklear sent a telegram to-day to Mrs. Locklear, who at present is with his parents in Fort Worth, Texas, informing her of the death of her husband. No reply has yet been received.

Made Many "Stunts" for Film.

Locklear, who came to Los Angeles in February, was the originator of many of the thrillers now performed by other fliers. In the "Skywayman" he was filmed changing places at night with the aid of a searchlight, landing on the roof of a freight train and seizing the plane again as it flew over him, and performing many acrobatic stunts stantding on the wing of a plane. He and Elliott were inseparable, and Locklear, it is said, would never attempt any of his "stunts" unless Elliott was piloting the machine.

Two possible causes of the accident are given by the spectators. One is that the pilot was blinded by the five strong searchlights playing on the machine as it dove earthward. The other is that the rocket which Locklear released before going into the fatal spin set fire to the plane.

That Locklear had a premonition of his death is told to-day by friends, who say that just before he took his seat in the plane he said:

"I have a 'hunch' that I should not fly to-night."

Elliott laughed, they assert, and said: "It is too late in life for you to be getting old maid ideas. Let's go."

A sealed special delivery letter addressed to his mother was found today in the pocket of the coat worn by Locklear. The letter, scorched at the edges, was one of the few things which escaped the flames which destroyed the plane.

With the discovery of the letter it was learned that Locklear, who was a confirmed fatalist, invariably carried two articles with him in his flying. One was his identification tag, given him while he was an army aviator, which he wore around his right wrist; the other a letter to his mother containing, it is believed, his farewell message to her.

RECORD-BREAKING OATS.

With oats five feet ten inches in height, carrying 128 kernels to the head, Joseph Greenham, Addison, believes he has the record for Leeds County in 1920. The oats are O.A.C. No. 72 and a very fine variety.

CLOTHING TRADE TRIES TO BOLSTER DECLINING PRICES

U.S. DEPARTMENT LEARNS THAT MANUFACTURERS AND JOBBERS MAKE GUARANTEES TO RETAILERS.

WASHINGTON.—Coupled with a statement that already proposals for higher clothing prices are being circulated by manufacturers and jobbers, Howard Figg, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, stated to-day that the Department of Justice was investigating profiteering in clothing and would prosecute lawbreakers who attempt to fleece the public.

"The Department of Justice," said a statement by Mr. Figg, "is advised that manufacturers and jobbers of men's and women's apparel are circulating propaganda designed to uphold high prices and to discourage any tendency toward lower prices. These interests are sponsors for statements circulated in the retail trade that prices are going higher, expecting by this trite plan to stampede retailers and the public to create a renewed fictitious demand such as was used to mulct the public during the recent speculative conditions.

"This speculative market toppled by its own weight this spring, when the public refused or was unable to buy at the unconscionable prices asked for wearing apparel.

"The department's sane and economical buying campaign was, no doubt, a vital element among the causes which culminated in the sudden price-slashing wave last spring.

"This weapon of public power still is available, and the department will not hesitate to use it to the fullest extent in defending the public against the profiteer.

"Manufacturers and jobbers are even going to the length of 'guaranteeing' the retail trade against a declining market. These 'guarantees' are being given very generally, and seemingly in furtherance of a concerted plan, despite the wording of the Lever law fixing severe penalties for conspiracy to exact excessive prices for any necessaries.

"A vigorous and thorough investigation is now in progress to uncover violations of any of the provisions of the Lever law by manufacturers and jobbers of wearing apparel.

"The department is putting this investigation into the hands of men of unusual ability. It is confidently anticipated that the lawbreakers will be found out, and in every case determined prosecution will follow.

"In some instances mills have been closed arbitrarily, the officials appearing callously oblivious to their earlier justification of market conditions on the plea of 'underproduction.'

"The closing of mills is, in turn, being used in the price propaganda, the dealer being threatened with further curtailment and higher prices if he does not accept goods and order on the present market.

"The Department of Justice is fully advised of the several phases of this carefully planned campaign, and it only remains to fix personal responsibility before applying the criminal provisions of the Lever law."

Such Staunch Merchandise Is Seldom Sold at Such Low Prices

MUCH IN THE WAY OF HOLIDAY ATTIRE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

"The Maze" at Hampton Court Gardens

is a series of narrow serpentine paths enclosed by tall shrubbery that obstructs your view to right of left...It covers a very small area, not larger than two building lots, yet you can wander about, looking for the entrance or exit, for many minutes—taking the paths that lead to nowhere. If you adopt the plan of keeping to the left at every turn you will rapidly unwind yourself from this confusing net-work.

There is many a life and many a store lost in a maze of perplexities because, when starting out, they failed to adopt a plan, but wandered aimlessly about in a labyrinth of blind paths that result in discouragement.

This store has always had a plan and a purpose—a plan to sell honest merchandise and give good service and a purpose that strives to make to this establishment more of an institution than a store.

The Gressman Co. Ltd.

THE AUGUST SALE OF FURNITURE

A man who travels the country over and does business with the furniture dealers in every important city in Canada came into our department the other day and was amazed at the low prices we are asking for our furniture pieces.

He advised us to mark up our goods to correspond with present-day prices. "It is being done all over the country," were his exact words.

We refuse to mark up merchandise that was bought when the market was lower. Some may call it bad business. It may be, but nevertheless the fact remains that our furniture is underpriced even without the August Furniture Sale reductions.

FEELING HIGH IN THOROLD

M'NEAL REMANDED IN WELLAND AS A PRECAUTION—HELD IN CONNECTION WITH GIRL'S DISAPPEARANCE.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 6.—David McNeal held in connection with the disappearance of four year old Margaret Boucock, whose body was found Wednesday near the Welland Ship Canal, was not brought to Thorold to-day for his formal remand to jail. Feeling has been high in that town against the prisoner since the discovery of the body of the child. Police Magistrate Munroe of Thorold went to Welland and Executed the remand at the county seat.

POLACK'S SHOWS HERE NEXT WEEK

WILL OPEN ON CIVIC HOLIDAY WITH BIG CARNIVAL ARRAY.

Polack's Carnival Shows will open in Peterboro on Civic Holiday with the best of last year's attractions augmented by many new ones. The Exhibition Board has been in communication with these shows for some time and negotiations have just been completed.

The Polack shows made many friends in Peterboro last year, and their old friends will not find anything to disappoint them in this year's high class shows.

A big day is now promised those who attend the fair grounds on Civic Holiday. The horse races are attracting much attention from horsemen. "I've never had so many enquiries", said Secretary F. J. A. Hall of the Exhibition Board to-day. Enquiries have come from as far away as Collingwood and Kingston and the best races that have been seen here in many moons are assured if as many entries are forth coming as enquiries.

Polack's shows will also prove a big attraction for the day and at night it will replace a night performance.

ORPHAN FROM THIS CITY IS MISSING

(Special to the Examiner.)

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 6.—Wilfred Sestal, a boy of twelve years, secured a few months ago from an Orphan's Home at Peterborough, was to-day reported as missing a week from the farm of H. Armstrong, Grantham Township, near Port Dalhousie.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS FIRST YEAR WAS GOOD

EARNINGS OVER $300,000 AFTER DEDUCTING FREFERRED DIVIDENDS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.— The first annual report of Canadian Woollens, Limited, which is now going forward to shareholders, shows the results of the company's operations in the first twelve months of its existence, and indicates that the period has been a successful one. Profits from operations after deducting all manufacturing selling, and general expenses, and providing for Government taxes, but before making provision for depreciation, interest on bank loans and organization expenses, etc., amounted to $599,072; provision for depreciation of buildings and machinery, $107,188; interest on bank loans, $25,999; organization expenses, $10,000; reduction of investments to market value, $12,650, and provision for employes' pension and insurance fund, $20,000, when deducted, left income for the year, $423,227.

After deducting preferred dividends, net earnings were $300,727, indicating over 17 per cent. earned on the 17,500 common shares. The balance sheet the company in good financial position. Total assets $5,581,208; current assets are given at $2,346,394, as against current assets amounting to $1,290,174: a surplus of current assets (net working capital) of $1,056,220.

In his report to shareholders on behalf of the board of directors, A. O. Dawson, the president, says: "As will be seen by the balance sheet and the profit and loss account, the company has made an excellent start. Out of net earnings, $122,500 was paid as dividends on the preferred stock, and a balance of $300,727 has been carried to the credit of profit and loss.

"It will be a satisfaction to the shareholders to notice that the current assets exceeded current liabilities by over $1,000,000. Important additions to the plants are nearing completion, and these will be of material assistance in increasing the production and the profits of the company in the future. The output of the mills has been eagerly sought for by the trade, and the goods produced hape given excellent satisfaction to the consumer."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 6.—Prices were generally irregular at the opening of the stock market to-day. Prices: Canadian Pacific 116 1-4, off 3-4; Central Leather 49 5-8, off 3-8; Industrial Alcohol 80, unchanged; Bethlehem B 74 1-4, up 1-4; New Haven 33 3-4, unchanged; Retail Stores 63 5-8, off 3-8; Studebaker 62 1-2, off 1-2; General Motors 20 3-4, off 1-8; Baldwin 105 1-2, up 1-4; Crucible 128, up 1-4; U. S. Rubber 83 1-8, unchanged; U. S. Steel 85 1-8, off 1-8; Southern Pacific 91 1-2, unchanged, Mexican Pet. 154, up 1 1-4; Texas Co. 40 1-2, off 5-8; Sinclair 24 1-4, off 1-4; Pan Amn. 78 1-2, up 1-4.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Foreign exchange was easier at the opening today. Demand Sterling opened at $3.61 1-4, off 1-2; Francs were .0770, off .0004; Lire .0506, off .0002; Marks .0215, off .0002; U. S. Dollars on Canadian demand 88.50.

New Rumours of War.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Industrials in many instances made new lows for the year immediately following the opening of the New York Stock Exchange to-day. Vanadium opened from 66 to 67 and subsequently reacted to 65 1-2. This represented a decline of 32 points from the high of the year. The opening of U. S. Steel at 85 1-8 was identical with its low for the year. It later established a new low at 84 7-8. Mexican Petroleum, after opening up 1 1-2 points, soon lost this and an additional point when it sold at 151 3-4.

Pierce Arrow made a new low, off 1 1-8, at 40 1-2.

The decline was due to the European situation, and followed reports that the British government had decided on action in the Polish-Russian situation, which is approximately actual war.

DELAWARE'S BIG GAIN.

(Canadian Press)

NE WYORK, Aug. 6.—A sensational advance was made by D. L. and W. shortly after noon. The stock, which opened up six at 225, ran up to 240 on the transfer of about 1,000 shares. The whole market was influenced by the advance and practically active issues were up 2 points or more. U. S. Steel sold at 86 3-8, compared with a low of 84 3-4. Mexican Pete gained 5 points, Pan-American 3, and Reading 2.

NO GARAGE COLLECTION ON MONDAY.

Monday being Civic Holiday, there will be no garbage collected.

THOUGHTS ON TENDERNESS.

When death, the great Reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.—George Eliot.

Tenderness must spring from a high principle or a feeling heart; the more defenceless and humble the creature, the greater is the merit of treating it kindly.—Chatfield.

Without tenderness of heart, the soul cannot be attuned to friendship or social intercourse; destitute of this emanation of Deity, a created being would be unequal to the endearing titles of lover or of friend. — F. Bartlett.

Tenderness is the extreme susceptibility of the softer emotions and passions. It implies the refinement of pity, the sensitive delicacy of love, the culture of sympathy, and the most complete embodiment of a fervent, deep-seated, and impulsive gentleness. —A. M. A. W.

STONEY LAKE NEWS

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane, of White Plaines, Ohio, are guests at Glenwood.

Mr. John Dodds, of Toronto, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Gourin Cock, at "Sand Haven."

Miss Edith Fenton and Miss Keefer, who are guests at "Viamede," have been very much interested in the wild flowers that are blooming in such profusion in the neighborhood. They have discovered fifty-eight different varieties in bloom at the present time.

"Help! Help!" screamed the man in the water. "I cannot swim!"

POST OFFICE WILL BE OPEN FOR TWO HOURS

But There Will be no Letter Delivery in the City.

For Civic Holiday the Post Office will be closed except between the hours of 8.30 a.m. and 10.30 a.m., during which period the lobby will be open. Postage stamps will be on sale, and the general delivery and registration wickets will be open. All money order, savings bank and postal note wickets will be closed.

There will be no delivery by letter carrier, and all outgoing mail due for despatch after 12 o'clock noon will be closed at that hour.

Two collections only will be made from the street letter boxes, commencing at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Intended for residences as well as stores a new door knob rings a bell when it is turned.

NEW EUROPEAN AIR ROUTES.

Service from Amsterdam to German and Scandinavian Cities.

THE HAGUE.—The regular air mail between London and Amsterdam is about to be extended to a whole network of mail services in northern Europe beginning Aug. 10 so that it will be possible to start from the London aerodrome at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, spend the night in Amsterdam and start the following morning at 7 o'clock for Bremen, Hamburg and Copenhagen. Alternative routes can be taken by changing at Hamburg for Berlin by airplane or for Warnemunde and Malmoe by hydroplane, making train connection for Stockholm and Christiania.

While the Airco machines are being used for the London-Amsterdam and Hamburg-Copenhagen routes, the German Luftverkehr Gesellschaft is providing machines for the remaining routes.

All these aerial services will continue until October.

CYCLONE HITS ESTEVAN.

Several Buildings Blown Down and Damage Done Last Night.

REGINA, Aug. 5. —The southern district of Saskatchewan around Estevan, swept by a cyclone a few days ago causing over $100,000 damage, was again visited by a cyclone last night. Several buildings were blown down, and at the Fair Grounds, where preparations were being made for the opening of the exhibition to-day, temporary buildings were blown to pieces. Telephone poles for a quarter of a mile are down, and 'phone communication is impossible. While no one was injured the property loss is considerable.

HAS WOOL TO BURN.

One of the Kingston dealers in hides and wool stated on Thursday morning that the trade in these commodities in that city is very listless at the present time. The wholesale markets have been very quiet for some time and farmers in the surrounding district cannot understand why prices have taken such a drop. For instance, wool which sold as high as ninety-two cents a pound during the war is now bringing from fifteen to thirty cents with little demand and coarse hides have also taken a slump. It is stated that one farmer made the assertion that he was content to let the moths eat his stock of wool or burn it rather than bring it into town.

CARRYING A PISTOL MEANS JAIL TERM IN KENTUCKY NOW

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Law triumphed over tradition when Governor Morrow announced that hereafter all "pistol-toters" must serve jail sentences.

His ultimatum, contained in a formal statement asking assistances of courts and officials in redeeming "the State from the disgrace of its homicides," is the sequel to a long contest for the mastery of statute over precedent.

Although the 1912 Legislature, in response to urging of the bench, enacted a law for jailing offenders, records show that Governor McCreary, under whose regime it was passed still heeded the custom of another day. Nearly all cases were pardoned. His successors in office apparently applied the "doctrine of contemporaneous construction" to applications for clemency. In at least one case in this district a pardon was obtained by telephone within an hour after sentence was pronounced.

Governor Morrow declares that not only will he see that those convicted serve out their time, but he will investigate any reports that fines are being collected in lieu of the full penalty.

DROWNED AT CAMERON LAKE, NEAR FENELON FALLS

FENELON FALLS, Aug. 5.—Byron Todd, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Todd, of Albert street, Lindsay, was drowned in Cameron Lake yesterday afternoon near this village. The family have been camping near Rosedale and the fatality occurred while the boy was returning to the camp from the village with some people in a launch. In some way he fell over the side and before help could reach him he drowned.

DAY OFF EACH WEEK APPRECIATED BY MEN

THANKS SENT TO MR. TOOMS FOR HIS INTEREST IN FIREMEN'S WELFARE.

Appreciation of the "one day off each week" provision for firemen, which Mr. Tooms was chiefly instrumental in adding to the statutes, is expressed by the Toronto firemen through Capt. D. H. Lamb as follows:

"Dear Sir,—

"On behalf of the Toronto and Ontario Fire Fighters I wish to convey to you our many thanks for the kind and untiring work that you have performed for the Fire Fighters relative to the successful passing of the Act providing for one day off each week for the Ontario firemen. It has been proven to us that this success can only be credited to you as the member who fathered our Act and also other good friends, that the firemen enjoy the good will of, have done for us.

A favor of the nature that you have performed for us a person naturally realizes that the ones affected by it shall appreciate it, but deep down in ourselves we feel as if the word appreciate does not cover in the full sense the real amount of appreciation, nor is there a word in the dictionary that seems to show outwardly how much we really do appreciate the kind and efficient work that has been done in our behalf.

Hoping that we may always have the pleasure of enjoying the good will and friendship of yourself and wishing you every success. I remain,

"Yours in appreciation,

"D. H. LAMB."

EDINBURGH WOMEN STUDENTS REVOLT

MASSON HALL GIRLS DEMAND UNRESTRICTED USE OF LATCHKEYS IN THEIR RESIDENCE.

(Associated Press.)

EDINBURGH, Scotland.— Young women students of the University of Edinburgh have revolted against what they regard as "childish" restriction in the use of latchkeys after the regulation hour for closing the hall in which they live.

Thirty-three students of Masson Hall, one of the numerous hostels in which women students reside, have gone on record as refusing to obey instructions regarding the use of night keys. The girls assert that they are being treated as children rather than as young women well able to take care of themselves.

The protest resulted in a petition to the University requesting a change in the warden of the hall. The view of the management is that too much liberty was given the girls under the previous regime, and that unless they alter their petition the girls must leave the hall at the end of the session.

The Pall Mall Gazette of London in commenting on the incident says:

"With the merits of the particular case we are not concerned but there is a principle involved which sooner or later will have to be decided. When women won their right to compete with men in the professions they practically won all the rights that appertain to the acquirement and practice of these professions. Those who imagine that young women will submit to the exercise of authority which would not be tolerated by their brothers, make a great mistake, a mistake which, if it is persisted in, will do an immense amount of harm, for opposition to liberty is the surest fosterer of license."

TEXAS MOB HANG NEGRO

Associated Press.

CENTER, Texas, Aug. 2.—A mob of more than one thousand men this afternoon stormed the county jail and took out Lige Daniels, a negro charged with the murder of a white woman and hanged him to a limb of an oak tree in the court house yard. The negro has confessed the crime.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind on the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion." Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the somach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and takes a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten and stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent is formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

HAVE YOU GALL STONES?

Don't try to deceive yourself. Perhaps your pains are in the stomach, side or back; perhaps billiousness or indigestion. All are sure signs of gall stones or developing appendix trouble. You can do the same as Mr. J. B. E.——, of Brealeau, Ont., did. He tried Marlatt's Specific. Read what he says:—

Dear Sirs:—For many years I have suffered from stomach trouble. I could not eat or sleep. Nervousness, pains in the right side and under my right shoulder blade and I was unable to rest at any time. I have used "Marlatt's Specific" for gall stones and appendicitis and it has cured me of all my trouble. I can eat well and feel like a young man. Am 57 years of age and weigh 225 pounds, thanks to "Marlatt's Specific." My family have also taken the medicine with good results and we will always recommend it to others who are suffering.

"Marlatt's Specific" is for sale at all druggists throughout Canada. If your dealer cannot supply you write for free booklet to J. W. Marlatt and Co., Toronto, Ontario.

MEXICAN SOLDIERS RETIRE FROM SERVICE

EFFECT OF MOVEMENT TO ABANDON THE RIFLE FOR THE PLOW.

MEXICO CITY, —More than 5,000 officers and privates in the Mexican army retired from military service in the first week of July, according to EL HERALDO.

This general withdrawal from the army is the result of a campaign recently launched by the government to induce a large part of the soldiers of Mexico, "to abandon the rifle for the plow," as the Mexican press is fond of phrasing it.

The government's campaign for a smaller army is due to the realization that vast tracts of valuable agricultural land are in urgent need of development and that many factories in Mexico are short of help. It is pointed out that the present military situation is such as to require the services of not more than 50,000 men, thus permitting the other thousands of men under arms to devote themselves to the task of economically rehabilating the country.

The recent uprisings of Generals Carlos Osuna and Jesus H. Guajardo have not altered the government's determination to reduce the personnel of the army. According to General Antonio I. Villarreal, Secretary of Agriculture and Development, these two movements do not "present a military problem."

THE WINDS OF CHANCE.

The Windsof Chance; each day they blow,
Now fierce and loud, now soft and low,
Now warm as summer's first caress,
Now cold with Arctic iciness.
They sent us smoothly on our course,
Then hurl us headlong with their force;
They buffet us, they twist and turn,
Until at last the truth we learn,
There is no fate, no accident,
The Winds of Chance are by God sent.
His purpose holds by all their strife,
To drive us into fuller life.

—Mary Wright Moore.

HOT DAYS FOR THIS MONTH OF AUGUST

The new sign of Dawson Bros., corner of George and London streets, combines utility with art attraction. It is a two-faced electric reflector, 8 ft. x 3 ft., overhanging the side walk and advertising City Dairy (Toronto) Ice Cream, for which there is a big demand at Dawson Bros. The painting, done by J. J. Turner & Sons, this city, is of a high order of brush and color art, the excellence of which is reflected in the confection it advertises. On a yellow background the words "City Dairy" in blue and heavy bankers' script stands out in bold relief from "Dawson Bros." and "Ice Cream" in red Roman lettering. By night and day this sign will arrest and attract a discriminating public to an ice cream parlor where attention and quality make for steady patronage.

Dawson Bros. are enterprising business men who started in the grocery business at the corner of Park and McDonnel streets in 1907. They opened up in their present premises in 1914, converting a small, unattractive store into roomy, bright and cheerful quarters, where efficiency and service, together with dependable groceries and provisions have won for them a large and ever-growing business.

Dawson Bros.' ice cream parlors present the acme of comfort, and are acceptably conducted. Here one will find City Dairy (Toronto) ice cream in rich, delightful purity. Hot days are coming, and here may be had also cream sodas, sundaes and such like invigorating drinks, mixed with a catering skill quite irresistible to the palate. For they are "cooling as the breezes of lake and hill, refreshing as the inviting shades of hill and dale."

Dawson Bros. also conduct a flourishing grocery at the corner of Rubdige and Townsend streets, where a cream soda fountain is maintained.

C. N. R. TO ENTER KAMLOOPS

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Aug. 2.—President Hanna, in an interview with the city council Friday, promised that within thirty days all Canadian National Railway passenger trains would enter the city. Mr. Hanna gave little ground for hope of the completion of the branch line from the city to the Okanagan this year, stating that he feared it would be impossible to procure the rails in time for laying.

MANITOBA LEGISLATURE TO EXPLORE MINERAL REGION NORTH OF THE PAS

FIFTY MEMBERS EXPECTED TO COMPRISE INVESTIGATING PARTY WHO WILL TRAVEL ON FOOT AND BY CANOE IN SEPTEMBER.

AN UNUSUAL TRIP

WINNIPEG, Aug. 2.—Manitoba's new legislature is to travel by foot and canoe 100 miles into the wilerness beyond the northern terminus of farthest north railway line on a sight-seeing expedition next autumn.

At the invitation of the Northland Association, an organization of business, professional and mining men in The Pas, the farthest outpost of civilization in this province, the legislature will go in a body to inspect the great mineral region north of that town. Of the 55 members of the assembly, it is expected that at least 50 will go, including Premier T. C. Norris and all the members of his cabinet. In addition, there will be a score or more of business and professional men of Winnipeg who also have been invited. September 1 has been set tentatively as the date for the beginning of the excursion.

Unusual Trip.

The trip will be the most important ever made by members of the Manitoba Legislature and, in some repects, the most unusual ever made by any public body in Canada. Upon the observations which the party will make depends the question of whether the Provincial Government will build a railroad from The Pas to the mineral region in which the Famous Flin Flon and Mandy copper mines are situated. A proposal to build the road is to be submitted to the legislature at its next session, beginning in January.

Never before has such a large party undertaken to travel 100 miles through the wilderness of bush, trees, rock and streams that lies between the agricultural belt and the barren lands. But the association that is planning the trip assures its guests that the trip will be made in comparative comfort. Every guide and every Indian canoe expert in that part of the country will be engaged to pilot the party, carry the huge load of supplies that will be required, build the camps and do the paddling. It is expected that a week will be spent in making the 200-mile journey from The Pas to the mineral region and back.

Expect Prospecting Rush.

The building of a railroad into the mineral belt is expected to result in a rush of prospectors and miners into the district, to attract thousands to the north country and put The Pas on the map as one of the most important mining, lumbering and paper manufacturing centres in the country. Development work in the mines already established has reached a point where Dominion government mining experts declare the area contains one of the largest copper deposits in the world. Diamond drills have delineated an ore body sufficient to keep a 2,000-tons-a-day smelter going for 30 years. Furthermore, the region is thickly wooded and there are millions of cords of pulpwood for paper manufacture.

The only means of transportation now is by foot and canoe. The richness of the ore is indicated by the fact that all produced in the mines there now has to be shipped by a long, circuitous route through half a dozen lakes and rivers, loaded and reloaded twice during the 1,000 mile journey, then sent by railroad from The Pas to the nearest smelter at Trail, British Columbia, 1,500 miles away, where after all expenses are paid, it nets the mine owners an average of more than $10 a ton.

Great Development.

If a railroad is built to tap the district, private capital will erect a smelter at The Pas. Other interests have assured the Provinial Government and the Northlands Assoiation that, when the railroad is constructed, they will erect pulp mills. These are the reasons why the association has invited the entire legislature to visit the district.

The Provincial Government is deeply interested in the project because it has the possibility of adding millions of dollars annually to the wealth of the province and of assuring the rapid settlement of the north country.

The party will be conveyed from Winnipeg to The Pas in a special train on the Canadian National railway.

THOMAS G. MICHELTREE.

If you are fond of listening to a masterful piano player, do not fail to hear Tom Micheltree. The moment he touches the keys you feel that the musician and the instrument are one. You will forget all your home worries and your business cares, and be transported to the realm of keen enjoyment.

Aside from one or two of the great masters, it has never been our pleasure to hear a pianist, who has such a wonderfully delicate and sympathetic touch and who can handle the great subjects in such a truly interpretative manner.

Besides Tom Micheltree does a lot of light and airy work, and is a humorist in addition to his serious work, upon the piano. He will give a sketch entitled "An Imitation of a Country Choir," that will make you bubble with laughter from beginning to end. He is a "character" as well as a musician.

INFANT'S BODY FOUND AMONG WEEDS AT YARKER

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 4.—While cleaning weeds from the dam at Yarker, stewart Alton found the nude body of an infant in the weeds. The infant had a piece of dress goods tied about its neck in a hard knot. Coroner Dr. Cowan was notified and after viewing the body he ordered an inquest. A jury was empanelled and after viewing the body, it was ordered buried. The inquest was adjourned for a week. The whole matter has been placed in the hands of the Crown and an investigation is proceeding. The affair has caused great commotion in the village and district.

FIFTY-TWO MURDERS IN NEW YORK THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—Fifty-two murders have been committed in New York City in the seven months since January 1, setting a homicide record unparalleled in many previous years, it was stated last night at the District Attorney's office. The death list includes the mysterious murder of Joseph B. Elwell, wealthy turfman and whist expert.

In the six convictions returned in these cases, none has been for murder in the first degree. In 16 of the 52 murders no arrests have been made.

OLD RESIDENT OF MEAFORD DIES WHILE SETTING TABLE

LONDON CONCERT PARTY.

The London Concert Party will render a unique program. There will be ensemble singing, but the individual work of the artists will be especially stressed. Miss Mitchener will be the Soprano, Miss Dewey will be the Contralto, Mr. Willgoose the Tenor, and Mr. Brouwer, the Baritone.

Miss Mitchener will appear as a soloist in several selections, in both a heavier and a lighter vein. She has an usually clear lyric soprano, which, accompanied by a vivacious manner, will greatly please. Miss Dewey is a violinist of rare ability, and will render various selections. Mr. Brouwer is one of the best baritones in Canada. He has a very robust voice. In addition to his solo work, at the evening program, he will lead Community Singing, drilling the audience in rendering together several of the familiar songs. Song Sheets will be distributed, giving a verse or two of each. This will be one of the most enjoyable events of Chautauqua Week. Mr. Willgoose will preside at the piano, and assist in other ways.

For an opening number the work of the London Concert Party is an offering that will please greatly, and will start the program with a splendid swing. They will give a full concert in the afternoon and a prelude of some fifty minutes in the evening.

Peterborough, Monday afternoon a nd evening.

URGE CABLE RATE OF PENNY A WORD

PRESS CONFERENCE IN FAVOUR OF UNIVERSAL RATE.

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Immediate action by the Empire Press Union looking to the establishment of quicker and cheaper transmission of news throughout the British Empire is called for in a resolution unanimously adopted by the Imperial Press Conference in session here to-day. The resolution originally proposed by Robert Donald, chairman, was carried over from yesterday and re-drafted to include suggestions from practically every delegation of the conference. It constitutes the most important item in the agreement. The resolution urges the Government to use its influence to increase cable facilities and reduce rates for news messages. It definitely endorses the principle of a universal cable rate of one penny per word in the British Empire.

Resolutions opposing the control or influence of newspapers by any other than newspapermen was carried unanimously after a discussion in which the war censorships was severely criticized. Another motion adopted opposed the entry of news carriers, telegraph, cable or wireless, into the business of competing and distributing news.

The session was opened by an address from Senator P. F. Blondin, Postmaster-General.

Prior to the discussion of "Empire Partnership" was opened by J. W. Dafoe, Manitoba Free Press, who urged equal status for the nations of the Empire. Sir Gilbert Parker, Sir George Toulmin, Lancashire Daily Post, Hon. J. W. Kirwen, Australia, and Sir Harry Brittain also took part in the discussion.

MOTORISTS WARY OF DISTRESS SIGNS ON COUNTRY ROADS

DRIVERS MADE NERVOUS BY REPORTS OF HOLD-UPS—SOME CARRYING ARMS FOR EMERGENCY.

Hold-ups, real or imaginary, have put the scare into motorists in this district, and each new rumour of daring robberies adds to their disquiet. Not only is this condition limited to motorists, but drivers of "Old Dobbin" are also in fear of being stopped and separated from a well-lined purse or other valued possession. An American tourist driving to Buckhorn the other night is one at least who can testify to the noticeable aversion that motorists are displaying towards their fellows drawn up at the side of the road. He did not take the right turn above Young's Point to go to Buckhorn, and to ascertain the proper road to take, he stopped his car at the side of the road, thinking he could stop the first car that came along and find out the right road to take.

He soon found this was all right in theory, but would not work in actual practice. As each car hove in sight through the gathering darkness, and they saw his car at the side of the road, instead of stopping they stepped on the gas and tore past as if all the fiends of Hades were at their heels. Car after car passed in the same way, and his shouts only added speed to their fight. Finally a Peterborough man going south stopped and had the American's plight related to him. He put him right as to the road. The American could not understand why the cars were all afraid of his automobile, in view of the fact that Canadians are noted for their friendliness and hospitality. He laughed when he was told that he had been mistaken for a modern 20th Century Dick Turpin.

It is said that there are many motorists, and those who do much night travelling, are carrying firearms, and that those who have occasion to travel with large sums of money are carrying it in special purses and hiding places around the cars.

"When a feller needs a friend" might well be applied to a poor innocent driver stuck on the side of the road for lack of "gas," or with a puncture and needing a patch, trying to stop the apparently terror-stricken motorists. It's hard luck on the hapless one, but it takes a very real apparent case of breakdown to halt the fleeting flivvers.

MISS D. RATHBONE WINS GOLD MEDAL

AND WARM CONGRATULATIONS FROM DR. A. S. VOGT OF TORONTO CONSERVATORY.

The following pupils of Mr. J. H. Renwick were successful in passing the Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations:

Associateship (A.T.C.M.) singing—Miss Doris Rathbone, first-class honors, winner of gold medal for the highest marks in the Dominion for 1920. Miss Myrtle Succee (Hon.).

Intermediae Singing—Mrs. F. E. Allen (Hon.). Miss Isabel Baird (Hon.).

Junior Singing—Miss Doris Pilling (Hon.).

Primary Singing—Miss Eva Tremaine (Pass).

Primary Piano—Miss Ruth Fanning (Pass).

Won High Honour.

Miss Doris Rathbone has received the following enviable reward and the congratulations of Dr. A. S. Vogt, musical director of the Toronto Conservatory of Music:

"Dear Miss Rathbone,—

"An analysis of the markings in connection with our examinations for Toronto and throughout the Dominion, including our 1920 mid-winter and mid-summer examinations, reveals the fact that you have scored the highest number of marks awarded to any candidate in our associateship singing examinations this season. You are therefore entitled to the Conservatory's Associateship Singing Gold Medal for 1920. The medal will be forwarded in due time.

"I desire to congratulate you and your teacher on your well-deserved success, and at the same time permit me to wish you a continuance thereof in your musical studies.

"Believe me,

"Sincerely yours,

"A. S. VOGT."

STRANGER'S CHEQUE A SCRAP OF PAPER

PASSED ON ED. ARMSTRONG WHO GAVE OWN CHEQUE IN CHANGE.

(Specail to The Examiner.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 6.—An unknown man entered the clothing store of Edward Armstrong here last night shortly after 6 o'clock and, after purchasing goods valued at $15, handed Armstrong a cheque for $80 in payment signed Coleman. As the store safe was closed Armstrong could not cash the cheque but gave the man his personal cheque for $65 as change. A commercial traveller cashed the cheque for the stranger and then left for Barrie.

When Armstrong attempted to cash the stranger's cheque he found that it was bogus and the police at once instituted a search. Coleman could not be found but the traveller was intercepted at Blackwater after a motor chase and forced to give up Armstrong's cheque.

Thus the traveller is out $65 and Armstrong $15.

CHARGE ALIENATION WIFE'S AFFECTIONS

NEWARK MAN SUES W. C. PARKER, OF MORRISTOWN, FOR $100,000.

TRENTON, N. J., August 5. — Suit for $100,000 for alleged alienation of affection of his wife, led here by Charles B. Chisholm, of Newark, N. J., against Wiliam C. Parker, of Morristown, N. J., to-day, revealed a new angle on the love triangle.

Chisholm said that when he learned of his wife's alleged friendship with Parker, he called the couple into conference and made a clean cut proposition fors ettlement of the difficulty.

"I told Parker he would have to take my wife and marry her or leave her for me, or face a suit for alienation," an affidavit filed by him said.

Parker replied, according to Chisholm's complaint, that he could not take the woman because he was already married and had two sons to educate.

After giving Parker ten days to think the matter over Chisholm's complaint said, his wife and her friend agreed that they would never meet again.

Says Pledges Broken.

He claimed the promise was broken as were several later similar pledges. He declared that on July 8 the couple planned to elope but after getting under way they changed their minds, and returned to their respective homes. Parker then offered to post a bondthat he would not see Mrs. Chisholm again, the complaint stated, but the husband stated he had decided the affair had gone too far to stop in that manner and filed the suit for alienation.

The friendship between Mrs. Chisholm and Parker started when the two families had adjoinng summer cottages in 1918, the affidavit filed by Chisholm said. The papers declared Chisholm first learned of the affection between his wife and Parker from his wife's maid.

Chisholm and his wife are living apart ,and Parker and his wife are also separated.

PLUMS ARRIVE AS RASPBERRIES GO

AND TOMATOES ARE BECOMING MORE PLENTIFUL EVERY DAY.

Raspberries have passed the height of their season and are swiftly on the decline, rising in price as they become more scarce. Today what few were on hand at the local stores sold at 25 cents a box for both red and purple berries. Huckleberries are at their best at prescent and are selling at $2 to $2.50 a basket and pail. The first consignment of local plums arrived at the wholesale houses this morning and although still fairly scarce are wholesaling at $1.50 a basket. Cherries are being hurried off the market by means of lower prices selling at $1.50 a basket and 20 cents a pound.

Tomatoes Plentiful

The past few days "done the trick" with tomatoes and crops practically despaired of have been saved to such an extent the price of basket dropped in two days from $3.25 a basket to $1.50 wholesale with every prospect of their selling at half the price nevt week.

Staking his tomatoes proved a good business venture for one market gardener, Mr. P. Card, who by staking managed to ripen one hundred baskets of them to sell when the prices were high, clearing fully fifty per cent. more than the fellow gardeners who trusted to luck with their patches. His tomatoes are exceptionally large and generally perfect.

Potatoes Still Sliding

New potatoes are still on the downward gradc with no prospect of stopping in their drop. Wholesale men quoted them to-day at $2.25 a bag and they are retailing at 45 and 50 cents a peck. The market to-morrow will probably help them still lower.

Cauliflowers are practically an unmarketable vegetable in the city and though temptingly priced at 15 and 20 cents each are not selling. The wholesale men say that this condition will prevail until the pickling season opens up when they are bought in larger quantities.

KILLED CALF AND CARRIED OFF HALF

LATEST DEPREDATION REPORTED FROM DOURO FARM.

The latest and certainly one of the most unique robberies ever carried out in this district was executed on the farm of Bartholemew Leahy, Douro, in the early part of this week, when a valuable two-year old heifer was killed and the front quarter stolen by an unknown person. The hind quarter, skin and head of the beast were left to be discovered by the Leahy's soon after.

Why the hind quarters were left and why this time of the year when meat will not keep long, was selected for the slaying, are questions arousing many varied conjectures by those acquainted with the case.

OLD ENGLISH ESTATE TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Town of Beaumaris, South-east of Aglesey, Rich in History.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The town of Beaumaris and a portion of the Baron Hill estate, including some one hundred farms and small holdings, will go under the hammer in October by instructions given by Sir Richard William Bulkeley. The Baron Hill estate extends to about 5,000 acres, lying in the south-east of Anglesey and overlooking the Menai Straits.

The town of Beaumaris was incorporated by Edward I., and was in early days the Holy of Holies of the Druidic religion, until in the last century Roman Conquerors cut down the sacred oak groves and expirpated the priesthood. The Baron Hill estate is connected with the Arthurian legend, for in it is a hill called "Edward Arthur" (Arthur's Round Table) on which may be seen the remains of British fortifications, and in the Church of Llaniestyn is a tomb said to be that of "Lestyn, Son of Geraint,' a noble knight of Arthur's Round Table, slain by Saxons at the "Siege of London."

RECRUITING FOR THE TERRITORIAL ARMY.

Better Conditions for the Men Attracting Larger Numbers.

(Canadian Press).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Recruiting for the Territorial Army in England is now increasing steadily in nearly all parts of the country. The modification of the conditions of service which permit trained men enlisting for twelve months and renewing their engagements from year to year, has brought into the ranks a considerable number, who found it difficult to commit themselves for a period of three years.

A further concession which has now been sanctioned will enable men who served for six months or more before the war, and are fit for general service, to enlist, even though they may not reach in all respects the physical standard required of other recruits.

MAKING ENGLAND ARABLE.

Steady Increase in Acreage — Growing Foodstuffs.

(Canadian Press).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Since 1915 there has been a steady increase in the arable area of England, due to the Government policy of encouraging the production of foodstuffs.

A record hay crop is expected this year, but the outlook for the fruit crop is poor. Of apples and pears, only 20 per cent. of the average is expected, and the small fruit crops are also below average.

AIMING A BIG GUN.

A Task In Which Figure Chemistry Mathematics and Physics.

Today there is about as much difference between aiming a big gun and aiming a rifle as there is between sailing a superdreadnaught and sailing a steam yacht. It was not very long ago, however, that a gun was aimed similarly to a rifle in that the direction in which it was pointed was obtained by sighting along its barrel.

But now things are not done that way. The gunners are often farout of sight of what they are shooting at, and the remarkable hits that they make are only explained by the use they make of careful scientific calculations.

To direct the fire of one of the bigger guns, for example, requires that no less than fifteen complicated corrections be made, says Popular Science Monthly. Each correction requires an average of five adjustments, all of which must first be exactly figured out by those in command. The most important corrections which are made are for the influence of the resistance of the air, the influence of the earth's curvature and the attraction of gravity on the distance the bullet may be carried.

In place of the guesswork of previous times is the use of the most advanced developments in the fields of mathematics, physics and chemistry.

HAITI CLEANS HOUSE.

Changes That Were Brought About by the American Occupation.

Five years ago in Haiti there was on the whole island not more than one mile of macadamized roadway, and the new streets, taking the place of combination trails and sewers, are the most noticeable changes brought about by the American occupation.

But more remarkable than the streets is the astonishing sight of squads of Haitians actually cleaning the streets. Under the old regime the chief occupations of the male citizens of Haiti were cockfighting and politics.

The refuse and smells have departed, and, better still, most of the children have disappeared from the streets. They are actually at school, where by Haitian law they are supposed to be, but where by Haitian lawlessness only about 10 per cent of them ever used to be.

About 4 o'clock every week day you will see this newly mobilized infantry coming home in squads clean and, unfortunately for the picturesque value of Haitian highways and byways, now thoroughly provided with clothes.

Humor Found Everywhere.

Among those pre-eminently gifted with humor were Abraham Lincoln, Disraeli, Goethe and Heine, the late Lord Salisbury, Arthur Balfour, Dickens, Thackeray, Fielding, Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth, Henry VIII., Charles II., Dr. Johnson, Charles Lamb, Emerson and Byron. The only persons who lack it altogether are madmen. Criminals as a whole are never without it. There is the case of one murderer at the bar in London who on being asked if there were any reason why sentence of death should not be passed upon him replied, "No; I am disgusted with the whole proceedings." Another in a similar situation on being asked whether he had a last request to make said, "Well, I should like to learn to play the piano."—Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree.

Pleasures of Irritability.

Learn how to be irritable. When any one says anything to you always imagine he is trying to insult you. Few appreciate the innocent enjoyment to be had in snapping and snarling at those we meet through the day. Have things get on your nerves. If things get on your nerves you will find it an easy matter to be sour and surly. After awhile you will find that most anything gets on your nerves, especially people who are happy and cheerful. The idiots! Some people are born irritable, others acquire it, and they all should have curses closed upon them.

TAKE HON. MR. BIGGS TO KAWARTHA PARK

Cottagers at Kawartha Park are eagerly looking forward to the promised trip Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Highways will be taking on August 26th., down the Smith road, hoping that some changes may result. At a meeting of the Cottagers Association held recently it was pointed out that while during the past five years, yearly $5000 has been paid into the townships, by the sixty-one cottagers which amounted to $700 a year, all the benefits received near the park was a mud track hardly distinguishable from a cow path. It was stated that the warden halted the use of gravel on the road cautioning the workmen to practice economy, resulting in so fine a sprinkling of gravel being laid it will prove of po avail once it commences to sink.

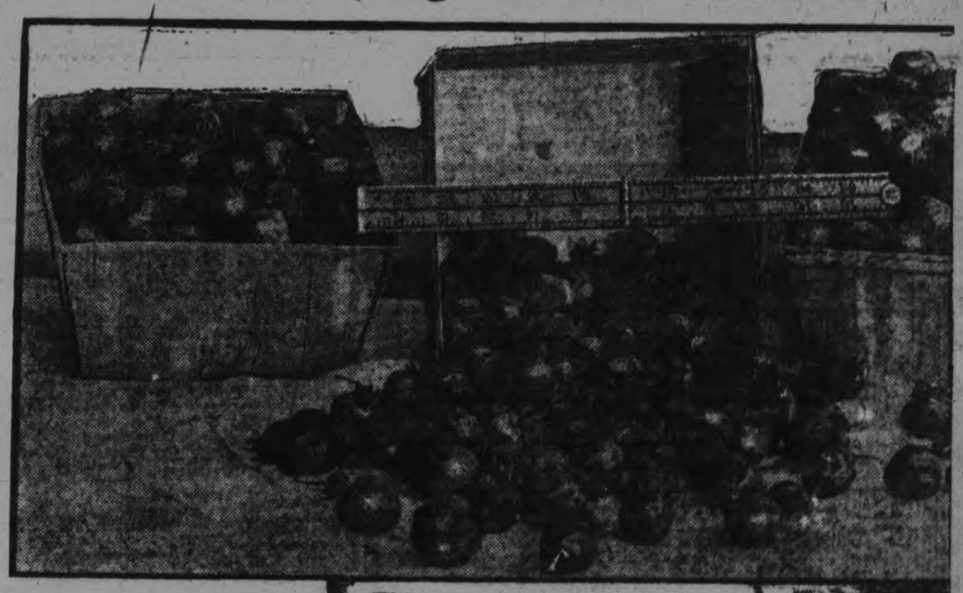
Shortsighted Policy.

One cottager stated yesterday that he township council pursues a short sighted policy in neglecting road worfl as American tourists who would otherwise spend thousands of dollars in the country ,become disgusted with hte roads and refuse to return.

Thank Firms.

The programme committee the Kawartha Park Regatta wish to thank the Peterboro Canoe Company, the Canadian Canoe Company, the Lakefield anoe Company, the Brown Boat Company, the McClennan Hardware, Mr. Charles McClelland, Mr. E. B. Warne, the Kingan Hardware management, Mr. Copping and J. J. Turner and Sons for their co-operation and generosity shown them in making arrangements for the Kawartha Regatta.

Fruit Growing on the Prairies



Long before the advent of the wheat grower hundreds of varieties of small fruits grew in the sheltered spots of that great north-west of the American Continent, now known as the Canadian Prairie Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Several varieties of wild currants and berries, of a most delicious flavor, are still found throughout these three provinces, and fruit-picking excursions form one of the most delightful diversions in the life on the farm there. In the woodlands, beside the creeks, lakes and rivers, it does not take long during the season for the women-folk and the children to pick sufficient wild strawberries, raspberries, saskatoons, red, black and white currants, gooseberries, etc., to keep the family well supplied in preserves until the following season.

Where the wild varieties of fruit grow so profusely it is natural to expect that some, at least, of the cultivated varieties will grow equally well; and this expectation has been realized by hundreds of farmers in Western Canada who have made a hobby of growing small fruits. Their success shows that with reasonable care and attention there is an opportunity to develop fruit raising on the Canadian prairies into something more than a vocation of a few farmers. It could possibly be developed into an important industry.

Much valuable information concerning varieties of the different kinds of fruit most adaptable to the conditions prevalent on the prairie farm has been gathered by the horticultural departments of the Provincial Universities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and by the experimental stations scattered throughout the country. At the University of Alberta, at Edmonton, which is more than three hundred miles north of the international boundary, a large number of varieties of currants, raspberries, and strawberries, have been grown with conspicuous success for many years.

At least a dozen varieties of currants have done well, growing very hardily and giving heavy yields of extremely delicious fruit. Ruby Castle, Red Cherry, Red Dutch and Stewart have proved to be about the best of the red kind. White Grape and White Dutch of the white, and the Black Maples, Prolific, Victoria and North Star of the black currants. Several varieties of red, black and golden raspberries, particularly the red, have also been grown with success at Edmonton. The Sunbeam and Cuthbert are the favorite raspberries. Their flavor is fine, they yield heavily, and the former, particularly, ripens very early in the season. The Herbert, Turner, King and Louden varieties have also been very successful. The Caroline has proved to be the best of the yellow raspberries. Blackberriers have not been so satisfactory as the red and the yellow at Edmonton, but in other parts of the country they are being grown with more or less success.

Strawberries are quite at home on the Canadian prairies. They are, indeed, the most popular of the small fruits grown in the farm garden. It seems safe to predict that before many seasons have elapsed these lucious berries will be grown and marketed on a commercial scale in many parts of Western Canada hitherto reputed for wheat raising and stock raising only. For many years strawberries grown on the Demonstration Farm of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Strathmore, Alberta, were supplied to this company's dining car and hotel services, and their delicious flavor was very highly spoken of.

The grower of strawberries on a commercial scale in this northern territory will have a great advantage. His berries will ripen later than those grown further south, and he will be able to bring them on the market after the supply of berries grown elsewhere has become exhausted. Besides, the flavor of these berries is such that the fruit would be able to hold its own even if there were any competition. From the middle of July until the end of September, and sometimes later, strawberries from the Canadian prairies could be bought on the market.

One of the most interesting surprises prepared for the Prince of Wales during his tour through Canada last year was the presentation of a box of strawberries at Lethbridge, Alberta. These berries were grown by John Hamilton on his farm at Coaldale, near Lethbridge and were picked in his garden on the morning of the presentation to the Prince early in October. Fresh strawberries in October are certainly a novelty in the northern hemisphere, but they really are a possibility in Alberta.

CALEDONIANS DEFEATED DE LAVAL IN SECOND CUP TIE MATCH 3 TO 1

DICK EVANS' GREAT DISPLAY OF GOAL-KEEPING—M. SHAW SCORED, THEN HANSOX EQUALIZED—AN EVEN FIRST HALF—CALEDONIANS ADDED TWO MORE GOALS—DE LAVAL'S IMPROVED TEAM.

The second Cup Tie between the De Laval and the Caledonians was played last evening at the Exhibition grounds before a very gratifying attendance of spectators, when the teams were lined up by Referee McKinley. The De Laval introduced the old reliable, D. Evans, in between the goal posts and depended upon mostly all last season's players. Cummings at centre forward for the Caledonians, was the only new player.

The Teams.

De Laval— Dick Evans goal, E. Styles and W. Godfrey backs, H. Hartshorn, G. McDonald and A. Rutter half-backs, J. Rhaum, A. Cutmore, J. Long, A. Hanson and J. Lindsay forwards.

Caledonians —C. Fenner gaol, J. Willshaw and R. Willshaw backs, J. McFeat, S. McMillan and H. Frost half-backs, R. Hannah, M. Shaw, J. Cummings, J. Shaw and R. McDowall forwards.

Linesmen —Brunton, Caledonians, and W. Brown, De Laval.

De Laval Won the Toss.

Even and interesting exchanges were the order of play in opening until McFeat gave De Laval a free kick for a foul charge. McDonald punted for goal. McMillan cleared to McDowall who made Styles kick to touch to clear his goals. From the throw-in, M. Shaw was called up for offside, but in a few minutes later Hannah made himslef conspicuous by driving a hard one for goal, and in a spectacular manner Dick Evans saved for Hartshorn to give a corner. McDowall landed a beauty into the goal for Godfrey to let Lindsay away on the left wing.

McMillan Missed a Penalty.

J. Willshaw checked nicely to Frost who put forward to McDowall and Hartshorn to tackle but unfortunately the De Laval pl. . hit with his arm in the dreaded area for a penalty pick. McMillan placed the ball nicely to his liking and walking forward he skied it up over the cross bar. A raid by the De Laval was stopped by R. Willshaw, but G. McDonald returned to Caleys' goal for Fenner to clear.

Goal Each in Five Minutes.

McMillan worked his way down the field, and sliping a nice pass out to Hannah, the outside right gave M. Shaw on oportunity to score for De Laval defence to jump upon him but Caleys' man held on until he put it through for first goal. Quick as a flash the De Laval transferred the play into Caleys' half for R. Willshaw to concede a corner. Rhamm placed the ball nicely to Hanson's head to catch Fenner off his guard to even up the score. The Caleys retaliated in great fashion and likewise G. McDonald of De Laval held them to mid-field play. A foul against Lindsay spoiled an excellent opportunity to get through for Caleys' man to put over touch and from the throw in Rutter gave a foul throw. McMillan had a try for goal to make J. Shaw offside.

Dick Evans Returns to Form.

From the resulting kick Godfrey pounted to Long who lost the ball to Frost and touching it out to Hannah and M. Shaw outwitted Godfrey to run into goal. He was about 6 yards out when the parting shot left his foot like a rocket and to witness one of the old-time daring sayes of Dick Eavns that was met with great praise from the spectators. Rhamm made an attempt to break through, but Long arrived in time to beat R. Willshaw on the run. The centre made straight for goal to give Fenner a peculiar shot to hold. Frost tapped the ball in midfield to pass it on to M .Shaw, who tested Evans again with a hard and fast shot. The De Laval goalkeeper threw out to the field for Caledonians to keep the ball up in the air by heading into goals repeatedly with Hannah headed past as half-time arrived.

Half Time.

After a few minutes' interval they resumed at a great pace in their endeavor to get the deciding goal. On a raid, led by Long into Fenner's goal, Cutmore lost a sure goal with a soft parting shot. Play was travelling from end to end with D. Evans getting the most work to do. Nice combination by the Caleys' right wing awarded them a corner and Hannah landed the ball into the middle of the goal for some one of the Caleys forwards to score.

J. Shaw's Beautiful Goal.

Play was confined to mid-field with each team putting up good half-back play to hold the forwards down, until McDonald accidentall hit the ball with his hand. From the parting shot by McMillon it travelled across to J. Shaw who sent a rocket shot from about 20 yards out into the far corner of the goals to give Evans no chance whatever. From the centre the De Laval right wing went down upon R. Willshaw, to be stoped in time, but the ball went across to Lindsay, who tested Fenner.

Last Minutes in Darkness.

Play was confined mostly to the De Laval area with D. Evans holding the Caleys' shots easily that came from every direction. In the last few minutes of the game darkness set in and it was very difficult to follow the play. On a raid upon the Caleys' goal the De Laval scored on an offside decision and immediately thereafter the issue was settled by full time awarding the Caledonians the game by a score of 3 to 1.

Analysis of the Game.

The following will give an approximate idea of the run of play:

Caledonians—	1st Half.	2nd Half.	Total
Goals	1	2	3
Goal kicks	4	3	7
Corners	3	1	4
Fouls	1	3	4
Offsides	1	0	1
	1st Half.	2nd Half.	Total
Goals	1	0	1
Goal kicks	6	7	13
Corners	2	0	2

Summary.

In the opening exchanges the play was very fast, with the respective teams showing an excellent class of football. McMillan mised a penalty and immediately thereafter Matt Shaw scored from a corner ticket taken by Rhamm. Hanson beat Fenner from a header. The first half ended with very little difference between the two teams, but during the second half the De Laval did not play the combination that was shown in early stages, thereby losing by the small margin of 3—1. Dick Evans deserves great credit for his display in goal.

G.W.V.A. VS. C.G.E. SATURDAY AFTERNOON

FOOTBALL GAMES WILL BE PLAYED AT THE OVAL—KICK-OFF 3 P.M.

To-morrow afternoon at the Nicholls' Oval the Canadian General will play the G. W. V. A. in the Peterboro City Cup Tie Games. The draw favoured the G.W.V.A. in the two games so far scheduled, and in the first game the Vets defeated the Comrades by the small margin of two goals. As for the C. G. E. team they were awarded the first cup tie game scheduled with the Machine Gunners by default. In the first league match last season the C. G. E. won by four clear goals but in the return game the Veterans won by one goal to nothing. When the league championship finished the teams were even, that necessitatd a replay and when the game was played it ended in a draw, 2-2. In the final game the Vets defeated C.G.E. by 3 goals to 1, and won the League championship.

This will be the first time the teams have met since the final and will be well worth witnessing. In all probability the association will request Mr. Alex. McKinley to act as the official referee. He has good credentials in every respect and is fair and square in the football team.

The G.W.V.A. team will be chosen from the following players: W. Jones, H. Gamble, A. Bishop, A. Edwards, H. Burrows, P D. Ryan, J. Peel, J. Sharman, H. Norman, T. Monks, J. Jones, J. Piggott and J. Perry.

The players for the C G E team will be selected from H Turner, C. Davis, C. Hotson, J. McDonald, C. Griffine, H. Mann, W. Ridley, W. Williams, H. Bestard, A. Gash, A. Manders, E. Bartley, E. Hotston and J. Williamson.

EVERYTHING FOR WEDDING BUT THE BRIDE AND GROOM.

Prospective Nest Builders Not Seeking the Calcium.

The wedding that was to have been held on the stage of the Allen Theatre last night did not materialize for the very good reason that there was no bride or groom. There was the minister, the ring and the present, and a cab waiting to hurry away and convey the lovesick ones to the altar—that is the stage. It was a case of the "church" waiting for the bride, instead of the bride waiting for the church.

There had been many enquiries but in all cases they displayed a marked aversion to giving their names to the manager. No definite arrangements would be entered into but the management confidently expected that at least one couple out of all who enquired would turn up. But they didn't.

Mr. R. G. Furlong, the manager, had to make the hated announcement that the wedding could not be carried out because of the timidity of Peterboro couples, but he extended an invitation to any couples in the audience who were matrimonially inclined to step up and be married. None accepted. He stated that the offer would still be open till next Wednesday night, and while the picture will not be here to accompany it, the wedding will be consummated without it, whenever the couple desires. If there has been no wedding then, Mr. Furlong will give the presnt to the first couple that appears on condition that after th.y are married they will give him the wedding cake. The cake will be cut up into small pieces and one piece will be doled out to each family at the show that night.

A crowded house last night saw the picture, three shows being necessary to accommodate them.

STOP! YOU WILL HURT HENRY FORD; AWES ANGRY MOB

Mention of Well Known Auto Manufacturer's Name Saves Jack Pickford From Violence.

The Llano Kid arrived in Buenas Tierras after an unpleasant sea voyage from Texas. Standing on the antiquated wharf scanning the picturesque little tropical town which lay before him, he drew a comparison between the stillness of Buenas Tierras and the riotous atmosphere of Laredo when the Corilitos and the Bar X men came thundering in to town on pay day. The "kid" was unhappy, and longed for the excitement that seemed so lacking in the little sunbaked city.

The Fight.

A crowd of native stevedores and the customary gathering of dock loafers annoyed "the kid." Only a few unpleasantries spoken in Spanish were exchanged, when the "Llano Kid," the little terror from Texas, was in a fair way to taking a thorough thrashin from a crowd who never heard of the famous English gentleman, Marquis of Queensbury.

The Captain Interferes.

Fortunately the Captain of the ship that brought the Kid from Texas, happened to notice the melee, and hurried to the spot just in time to save the "Kid" from a complete subdual with a subsequent revival in the ocean. He said a few words to the 'battle royalers" who backed away, scuffling their feet, and profuse in Spanish apologies. Grateful for his sudden reseue the Kid turned to the Captain and asked him how he did it.

With a wry face and in a low voice the captain informed him that he had told the natives the man they were hitting was the famous Americana, Senor Henry Ford.

A delightful incident in Goldwyn's screen adaption of O. Henry', well known story, "A Double Dyed Deceiver," starring Jack Pickford, which comes to the Allen Theatre, commencing.

LEARN TO SAVE MONEY.

Banking Merely a Dollar a Week Is a Good Investment.

"It is mighty hard," said an unfortunate workingman some time ago to the writer, "to save up a thousand dollars by laying aside a dollar or two a week and then to take it out of the savings bank and lose it to a get rich quick swindler, as I have just done."

The poor fellow could work and save, but he had not had even a kindergarten education in finance, else his story would have been different. He had never given a thought to interest and so was absolutely ignorant of growth through compound interest and, of course, had never heard of that wonderful process of accumulation known as "progressive compound interest."

One dollar deposited in a savings bank that pays 4 per cent will amount to $2.19 in twenty years. This is simple compound interest. Now, if you deposit $1 every year for twenty years, or $20 in all, the sum to your credit will have grown to $30.97.

Any wage earner can put by $1 a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will have increased to $1,612. A deposit of $5 a week will have grown to $8,000, and this at 4 per cent will be $320 a year. There is no secret, no mystery, about this. It is as clear as the cloudless sun, and the method is just as clean and honest

HOW THINGS DO CHANGE!

Modern Improvements in the Lifetime of One Observer.

In the American Magazine Irvin S. Cobb has an article entitled "Looking Both Ways From Forty," in which he says:

"I've seen the Kansas cyclone find a worthy successor in Billy Sunday. I was present on the spot, so to speak, when the audible celluloid cuff, E. P. Roe, the pug dog, the congress galter, the hammer gun, the safety bicycle, the mustache cup, parchest, the catcher who took 'em off the bat with his bare hands, the peach kernel watch charm, the pousse cafe, the operation for dehorning the human appendix and the Dowie movement gare way, inch by inch, to the spitball, the automatic ejector, the rest cure, the cold storage egg, Henry Ford, the cabaret, Orville and Wilbur Wright, eat-and-grow-thin, pay-and-grow-thinner, rural free delivery, the imported Scotch niblick, Elinor Glyn, middling meat at 42 cents a pound and stewed prunes at 4 bits a portion in any first class restaurant.

"And if I have luck I shall no doubt be an eyewitness to the fading away of these things into the background of the past and the oncoming of yet more timely evidences of the onward and upward march of progress, following along, one behind the other, in a mighty procession."

Warding Off Old Age.

A famous French general when asked how it was that he had such an erect carriage replied that it was because he bent over and touched the floor with his fingers thirty times every day. If he had acquired rigidity of the spine so that he could not do that he would have had with it weak abdominal muscles, which result in portal congestion. This portal congestion interferes with stomach digestion and with the action of the liver. The poison destroying power of the liver is lessened, autointoxication results, and arterioscleroais and old age come on at a much earlier day. But by keeping the spine flexible and the abdominal muscles strong and taut the portal circulation is kept free and old age is held off.

How Your Hair Grows.

According to an authority, the hair grows half an inch a month until it reaches its natural length. With men the natural length is from eight to twelve inches. With women it grows anywhere from eighteen inches to their heels.

Where Ingenuity Counts.

The bigborn or Rocky mountain sheep can travel as far over the mountain peaks in a few minutes as a hunter can go in two hours.

AMERICAN SCOUTS WIN.

Beat Belgium Boys in Tug-of-War at London Olympia "Jamboree."

LONDON. — Thousands of Boy Scouts from all parts of the world attending the international conference of Boy Scouts took part to-day in a "jamboree" opened at Olympia by the Duke of Connaught. The "jamboree," which will continue for a week, consists of scenic displays illustrating various forms of scout work as pastimes and athletic competition.

The American boys to-day won from the Belgian team in a tug-of-war contest, the only event in which they took part.

DISCUSS STREET SIGNS.

City Plan Committee Will Emphasize a Local Deficiency.

Street signs for Peterborough will be considered at the meeting of the City Planning committee of the Board of Trade this afternoon.

The placing of street signs, which will eliminate the necessity of automobilists having to get out of their cars to look at the sidewalks and of having to scrape the snow from the walks in the winter in order to find the name of the street, is proposed.

The committee will also consider improvements to the Crescent street bathing beach.

And the Association of Ideas

For some considerable time there have been schools opening up for the purpose of developing the brain, especially the power of thought and the faculty for remembering things thoughts and faces, etc.

In nearly every instance the first step in developing the memory is by the "Association of Ideas."

It is a well-known fact that certain odors bring immediately to mind some previous happening where that odor has developed. Drugs of some kinds at once suggest to the mind the interior of a chemist's shop. The odor of burning rubbish suggests an incinerator.

So do words in the same way suggest other words. The word "river" and one immediately thinks of the Otonabee. The words "Civic Holiday", Regatta and "Peterboro", brings the words home town to mind; "Street" and at once we have Charlotte Street, and Motor Row is at once suggested; "Car" or "Automobile," and the first and only thought is, Studebaker. The three words "Studebaker," "Tires" and "Accessories," bring to mind in a flash the new Studebaker Show-Rooms where the novel awning with a full sized Studebaker portrayed on it in natural colors shows the motorist where his every requirement can be met and his every wish granted.

There are a number of words which suggested Studebaker to the intelligent motorist.

"Power" "Endurance" "Reliability" "Beauty" "Control" "Perfection" } All are synoymous with Studebaker

Come and visit our new Show-Rooms To-Day and allow us to demonstrate to you that Studebaker stands supreme and in a class of it own.

KAWARTHA PARK REGATTA DREW CROWDS FROM ALL PARTS OF PARK

MORNING AND AFTERNOON PROGRAMMES OF BOTH LAND AND WATER EVENTS—EVENING CONCERT COMPLETED A FULL DAY'S PLEAURES.

ONE MINOR ACCIDENT

Breaking all previous records for attendance, entries, fine weather and financial results, the Kawartha Park regatta held yesterday afternoon was a great success and not one of the thousand spectators had a moment to feel bored, the committee having arranged everything to go off like clock work. Each of the events was so closely and expertly contested that the judges, Dr. W. A. Morrison and Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald, experienced some difficulty in making decisions at the finish. Mr. G. W. Green filled the post of referee to the satisfaction of all, likewise Dr. George Zimmerman and J. W. Williamson the post of starters.

Land Events.

In the morning the land events, a new feature of all Stoney Lake regattas and one which will undoubtedly be adopted at all further such events, were run off on the lot behind Mr. R. B. Rogers' cottage and the winners in these were:

Girls' race, under 10 years— Jean Fair weather, Doris Budreo.

Boys' race—Bruce Read, Billy Peardon.

Girls' race under 12 years—Margaret Hart, Dorothy Jory.

Boys' race under 12 years— Jim Peardon, Bruce Reid.

Girls' race under 16 years—Eileen Peardon, Isobel Peardon.

Boxing contest, blindfolded, under 12 years—Bob Beall, Bruce Read.

Girls' race under 6 years—Helen Ellis, Minnie Peardon.

The big event of the morning was the nail driving contest in which each lady was given a wire spike to drive into an oak log, the contestant making the fewest blows in sinking the nail straight being winner. Mrs. Alan Wilson carried off the honors, accomplishing the driving of the nail in 17 blows. The maximum number was 44. Second in popularity was the fat men's race in which Mr. H. G. Fitzgerald took first place.

Aquatic Events.

In the aquatic events anywhere from three to seventeen entries were made, the contestants representing all parts of Stony and Clear Lakes. The winners were:

Boys' single skiff — Stanley Dodworth, Sam Sherin.

Ladies' single canoe—Blossom McKenzie, Vera Stock.

Girls' tandem canoe—Blosom MacKenzie and Eileen Douglas, Isobel Peardon and Doris Clegg.

Mixed tandem skiff—Vera Stock and Donald Fitzgerald, Stanley Dodworth and Ruth Knapman.

Crab race —Roslyn Russell, Eric Finley.

Girls' single skiff—Ruth Knapman, Helen Edmison.

Boys' tandem canoe — Sam Sherin and Jack Redpath, Bob Beall and Alec. Edmison.

Men's single skiff—Roslyn Russell, Donald Fitzgerald.

Ladies' tandem canoe — Phyllis Denne and Blossom MacKenzie, Ada and Clara Adams.

Single oar skiff—Donald Fitzgerald, Heber Rogers.

Boys' single canoe, 16 and under — Sam Sherin, Jack Redpath.

Ladies' single skiff—Vera Stock, Hope Thompson.

Boys' tandem skiff, 16 and under—Sam Sherin and Alec Edmison, Jack Redpath and Stanley Dodworth.

Men's single canoe—Harry Blewett, Heber Rogers.

Girls' single skiff, 13 and under — Dorothy Jory, Olive Scobell.

Gunwale race—George Zimmerman, Hebe: Rogers.

Ladies' tandem skiff— Vera Stock and Phyllis Denne, Helen Edmison and Helen Morphet.

Men's tandem canoe—Harry Blewett and Donald Fitzgerald, Hugh and Kenneth MacKenzie.

Boys' single skiff, 13 and under — Cyril Hallam, Jim Peardon.

Mixed tandem canoe—Harry Blewett and Clara Adams, Heber Rogers and Ada Adams

Mixed tandem canoe, 16 and under—Sam Sherin and Ruth Knapman, Stanley Dodworth and Isobel Peardon.

Girls' swimming——Blossom MacKenzie, Isabel Peardon.

Boys' swimming 16 and under—T. Chapman, Jim Peardon.

Canoe sailing race—Bob Beall, Dr. Zimmerman.

Sailing yacht race—Eddis, Oxley.

The Concert.

In the evening in a huge marquee gaily decorated in Chinese lanterns, evergreen boughs and flowers, the prizes which were particularly generous consisting of paddles, mahogany clocks, canoe cushions, lazy backs, etc., were presented to the winners by Dr. George Zimmerman and Mr. J. W. Williamson. Following the presentation a short and very cleverly selected programme was given, the chairman, Rev. J. H. Edmison, introducing this by a brief address, thanking all for their co-operation and congratulating the winners on their hard earned success. He spoke of the many things accomplished by the Kawartha Park Association of which he is president and stated that it is now the intention of the Association to instal a direct telephone line to Peterborough. He also referred to the "lovers' walk' along the shore of Kawartha, which is being built at present.

The Programme.

The programme, which Miss Pearl Brock of Toronto, arranged with splendid discrimination, consisted of solos by Mr. Morphet, Miss Brock, Mrs. Alan Williamson, Mr. Douglas Carlisle, Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald and Miss Galvin, piano solos by Miss Ferguson and recitations by Miss Hazel Davidson. Each item was warmly received and amptly merited the enthusiastic encores which were given.

Mrs. Blackmore, Miss Helen Mrophet and Miss Sela Bryce acted as accompanists for the different numbers.

Painful Accident.

No water accidents happened other than a few canoes upsetting. However, on the land, while running to get her boat to enter one of the races Miss Violet Stubbs of Toronto, tripped over a wire holding a wharf to the land and fell, cutting her head very severely. Miss Phyllis Denne, R.N., administered first aid and Miss Stubbs was taken home.

NO PURCHASERS FOR UNITED STATES WAR EMERGENCY FLEET

406 VESSELS OF VARIOUS TYPES PRESENT PROBLEM TO SHIPPING BOARD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Disposal of more than 1,500,000 tons of wooden shipping— 406 vessels of various types—built as a part of the government war-time merchant marine programme, is one of the most difficult problems facing the Shipping Board. Twent-one of the craft, aggregating 82,000 deadweight tons, were offered recently, but no buyers were found.

Only 194 of these wooden craft are now in operation. Seventy-three are tined up at various ports under managing caretakers and 139 are in storage yards. One hundred and seven of those in "storage" are finished hulls, while 32 are converted barges.

Officials of the board say that when the serviceability of the wooden fleet has been demonstrated, little difficulty will be experienced in turning it over to private ownership at about $90 a ton. These vessels were built in an emergency, many of green lumber, and some of them made poor showings a year and two years ago, but now that they have "seasoned," officers of the board consider them practicable cargo carriers.

Creditable Performances.

Because of the bad record of some of the vessels operators have condemned them all, officials declare, whereas, the records of those now in operation show very creditable performances. One wooden ship out of six round trips across the Atlantic, at sea 500 days and in port an equal number, was laid up for repairs only 22 days.

To date 532 wooden and composite ships, aggregating 1,948,250 deadweight tons, consisting of 322 cargo ships, one tanker, 115 finished hulls, ten sailing craft, 56 hulls converted into barges and 20 standard barges, have been delivered to the board. A total of 114 of these vessels, aggregating 397,285 dead-weight tons, has been sold and 12 totalling 44,546 tons have been lost at sea.

The total cost of the construction of this fleet, estimated by the board at $170 a dead-weight ton, was approximately $333,000,000. Sale of the 1,500,000 tons now held by the board at $90 a ton would yield $135,000,000. Those already sold brought about $28,000,00, so that if the 406 remaining in the government's possession are disposed of to private owners the total loss through the wooden ships venture would be something like $170,000,000.

How Coal Was Named.

The name of coal was first applied only to fuel made of charred wood or what we call charcoal, says an exchange. When the use of mineral coal began it was called sea coal, because it was at first only found along the seashore along with seaweed and other wreckage cast up by the waves and thus supposed to be of marine origin. From its resemblance in color and burning qualities to charcoal, it finally received the simple name of coal.

Humor.

Humor is the true sixth sense. Lacking it, one misseth the joy of living. It lurks under the serious affairs of life as a violet lurketh under the trees of the forest and when so found is more to be prized than that which shouteth itself from the housetops.

Potatoes.

The stem end of a potato is the end that was attached to the vine; the opposite end is the seed end. The seed end might be called the top of the potato and the stem end the bottom. The buds at the seed end swell and grow first.

His Threat.

"He must be a perfect savage."

"Why?"

"He threatens his wife with his club when they have a difference."

Executive Ability.

Little James—Father, what is executive ability? His Father—The faculty of earning your bread by the sweat of other people's brows, my son.

Tree Juice.

Intoxicating liquors have been made from the sap of the birch, the willow, the poplar and the sycamore.

Too much rest itself becomes a pain.—Homer.

CHARLES CRAWFORD GORST.

Have you ever listened to the records of Charles Crawford Gorst upon your phonograph? If not, buy some of them, and you will realize what a rare treat you are going to have in listening to the imitations that he gives of the feathered songsters, and in looking at the pastels that he draws. Gorst pretty nearly talks in "birdick" for he understands their language completely. There was never a greater treat given to a Chautauqua audience than Gorst will afford. He will take you two octaves higher in the scale than the voice of the humming-bird can reach, and that is the highest note pitched in bird talk.

Peterborough, Tuesday evening.

CZAR AND KAISER.

Both Titles Mean the Same and Are Derived From Caesar.

It seems strange that two words so different in sound and spelling as czar and kaiser are the same. Both are but changes made in the course of nearly 2,000 years in the word caesar.

All the Roman emperors took their title from the first emperor—our old friend of schoolboy days—Julius Caesar. When Charlemagne founded the holy Roman empire and was crowned emperor, he took the name caesar or, in the frankish form, kaiser. When the modern German empire was established in 1871 the German emperor, William I., grandfather of the present kaiser, took the same title—kaiser.

Similarly the rulers of the eastern empire at Constantinople, successors to the old Roman empire, called themselves caesar. Every petty chieftain or prince in the territory surrounding the eastern empire copied the custom and called himself caesar or czar. In the course of time, however, the greatest of these, the czar of Muskovy, conquered the other czars until he was the sole or practically the sole ruler called czar. However, the king of Bulgaria, when a few years ago he had himself crowned as king, took the title of czar

The Gordian Knot.

As the old legend goes, the father of the Greek King Midas, once king of Phrygia, was originally a poor peasant. The people of Phrygia being much disturbed, an oracle had informed them that a wagon would bring them a king who would put an end to all their troubles. Not long after this saying, Gordius (Midas' father), suddenly arrived in the midst of an assembly of the people, riding in his wagon. At once, to the great surprise of Gordius, they made him king. In his gratitude Gordius dedicates the wagon to the god Zeus, and it was placed in the acropolis at Gordium. The pole of the wagon was tied to the yoke by a knot of bark, and a second oracle declared that whoever untied that knot should reign over all Asia. It was Alexander who untied the knot by cutting it with his sword, thus assuming himself to be the man referred to by the oracle.

Made For Concealment.

Stick insects, which are so called because of their resemblance to dry sticks, have two forelegs, which they fold over their eyes when disturbed and evidently think that in so doing they are lost to view.

The eggs of these insects take over six months to hatch. They are only one-tenth of an inch in their widest part, yet an insect which at hatching is three-quarters of an inch in length is packed into them.

The stick insects destroy the weaklings soon after they are hatched by eating their legs.

Restless Nature.

Nothing in nature is absolutely permanent. Changes are going on slowly, but steadily, every moment, parts of the earth being elevated above the sea, parts sinking below it, the ocean wearing away the coast in one place and building it out in another, and so on to infinity.

Asphalt.

Asphalt, with which so many roads are paved, was found by accident. Many years ago in Switzerland natural rock asphalt was discovered, and for more than a century it was used for the purpose of extracting the rich stores of bitumen it contained.

In Constant Training.

"That ballet dancer is wonderfully expert."

"Well, she never gets out of practice for a minute. She is always kicking."—Kansas City Journal.

One of Those Questions.

"Pop!"

"Well, what is it now?"

"Say, pop, did the dog star ever have the dipper tied to its tail?"

To Be Sure.

"The planet Saturn has two rings."

"Only two! They must be doing pretty well with municipal reform."

Man is his own star, and that soul that can be honest is the only perfect man.

TORPEDO BOAT DESTROYERS.

They Are Unarmored and Are Helpless Against Gunfire.

Every one is familiar, of course, with the ordinary torpedo boat, a swift vessel of from 400 to 600 tons in displacement, carrying no defensive armor, but armed with tubes for discharging the deadly torpedoes.

To counteract these wasps of the sea, according to the Popular Science Monthly, a type of vessel was designed of about double the size of torpedo boats, a little greater speed and in addition to torpedo tubes, armed with rapid fire six to twelve pounder guns, for the avowed purpose of destroying torpedo boats. Lately all the great nations have stopped building torpedo boats as originally designated and are building torpedo boat destroyers.

Recent engagements have developed the fact that torpedo boat destroyers are used almost wholly as torpedo boats. So they are really battleship destroyers. To defend the capital ships from torpedo attack the dreadnaughts and battle cruisers are armed with secondary batteries of rapid fire guns from four to six inches in diameter. One well placed shell from a gun of that size will ordinarily put a destroyer out of business, as the destroyers have no defensive armor whatever.

Well, No, We Hadn't Noticed It.

Have you ever noticed how an extremely fat woman always acts as if she was very much afraid some one was going to steal her and how an extremely thin girl always acts as if she was afraid some one wasn't?

Too Much.

"Well, I didn't like him. Every time he moved my head he wanted to use my ears as handles."

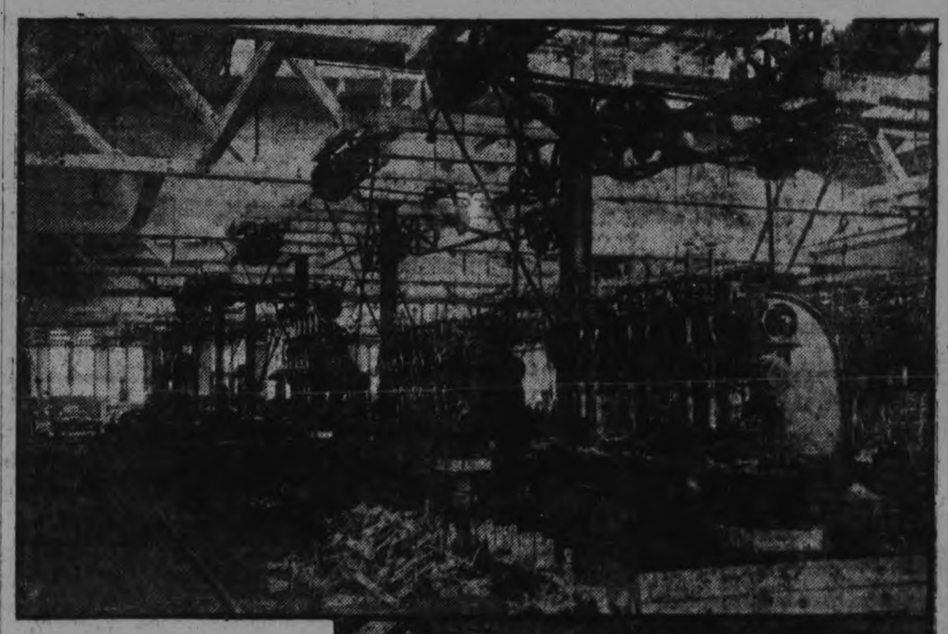
BRITISH SHIPPING AT FORMER STRENGTH.

Has Regained Nearly All of Eight Million Tons Lost in War.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—After a loss of nearly 8,000,000 tons of merchant shipping during the war, Great Britain's commercial tonnage is now about 20,500,000, almost equal to the pre-war tonnage of 20,534,000. Of the present merchant fleet, 1,334,000 tons are former German ships. A number of new shipping companies, both large and small, have been registered in the last few months.

EXTENDING C.P.R. WORKS



(1) Some of the machinery in the Angus Shops.
(2) Cars for passenger service turned out at Angus Shops.

In order to speed up on the construction of equipment required for the rapidly expanding traffic on the Canadian Pacific Railway, large extensions are being made at the Angus Shops in Montreal, which are already the most elaborate and comprehensive of their kind on this Continent. These extensions will cover a quarter of a million square feet and are expected to cost approximately a million dollars. The largest addition will be made to the passenger car shops, amounting to 71,000 square feet, while over 58,000 square feet will be added to the locomotive shops, and 42,400 to the freight car shops. The following are the detailed particulars of the extensions:

Locomotive Shop.—The extensions to the Locomotive Shop will consist of an addition at each end of the present shop to give an additional floor area of 58,000 square feet. The construction will be steel frame, concrete foundation, brick walls. Mastic floor will be placed on the west end extension and wood block floor on concrete in the east end extension. The east shop extension is to be used as a running shed, and for this reason pits with mill type smoke jacks will be installed. All of the skylights will be constructed in wood as metal has been found to deteriorate very rapidly, and for the same reason mill type ventilators will be used throughout this shop.

Freight Car Shop.—Consists of an extension to the present building at the west end, 106 feet wide by 400 feet long, giving an additional floor area of 42,400 square feet. The construction will be steel frame, concrete foundation, brick wall, wood floor and roof similar to present building.

Pattern Storage.— This shop will be extended at the west end 75 feet, and will be 50 feet in width, and is a three-floor fireproof building. The construction will be steel frame, concrete foundation, brick walls, steel sash, concrete roof and floors.

Passenger Car Shops.—Consists of an extension of 102 feet by 161 feet between Shops 2 and 4, and 127 feet by 161 feet between Shops 1 and 3; and 127 by 239 feet east end extension of shop three, giving a total increased area of 71,000 square feet. The construction will be concrete foundation, brick walls, mill type roof, concrete and mastic floors.

These shops will be all served from the present transfer table, the pit of which is being extended.

Car Electrical Shop.—This is a new building 62 feet wide by 362 feet long, giving a floor area of 22,000 square feet. The construction will be steel frame, concrete foundations, with brick walls and acid proof mastic floor.

Planing Mill Shelter.—A shelter 126 feet by 144 feet long will be built on the west end of the present planing mill for the purpose of keeping material under cover as a weather protection and will give an area of 18,000 square feet for this purpose.

Dry Kiln.—Four new stalls will be added to the present west dry kiln, increasing the area by 7,400 square feet. The construction will be special with ventilating ducts in walls built in brick and concrete foundation.

Track Scale.—A new heavy service tapered floor track scale will be installed at the west end, of a capacity large enough to weigh locomotives. The construction will be of the most modern type with self-registering beam, scale shelter and concrete pit. The floor of the scale will be steel beams and stands, with a mastic scale platform.

Tracks. — A number of track changes and additions will be made at both ends of the yard to provide extra car capacity. There will also be installed a 50-ton mechanical coaling plant as well as a new standpipe for the use of switching engines.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CADETS FOR CAMP

A great deal of misunderstanding exists as to what cadets are expected to attend the camp at the Exhibition grounds during the latter part of August. It is not for Collegiate Institute boys alone but all boys who were in the Public school cadet corps before the summer holidays are expected to attend if possible at all. Full instructions were on the front page of yesterday's Examiner. Kindly notify Mr. F. E. Kerr, 586 Gilmour street. Telephone No. 841J if you expect to attend and please do so this week if possible.

BOY NEARLY KILLED, PLAYED WITH PISTOL

SHOT THROUGH THE BODY CLOSE TO THE HEART.

COBOURG, Aug. 5.—Master Robbie Jackson, the eleven-year-old son of Mrs. S. J. Jackson, of John Street, had a narrow escape from instant death this afternoon when he accidently shot himself while trying to unload an old revolver. The revolver had been in the home for some time and was lying, unloaded, in a drawer. The lad found it and amused himself by loading it. This accomplished, he was called away by his mother, who was unaware of what he was doing. Bobbie put the loaded gun back in the drawer and promptly forgot all about it. Later in the evening he remembered it, and, thinking that his mother might come to harm by picking it up, not knowing it was loaded, he got it out and tried to take the bullets out.

In doing so, the revolver was discharged, a bullet passing through the boy's side, just above the heart. He was hurried to the home of the family physician for treatment. Tonight he was reported to be progressing favourably.

CHARLIE'S SOCIALISM SPOILED HOME LIFE

Mrs. Chaplin Says He Preached Theories and Made Her Practice Them.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. — Charlie Chaplin's socialistic theories did as much to wreck his own home as ever his custard pies did damage in the kitchen of the films. This was the statement made by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Harris Chaplin, who admitted yesterday at the Hotel Chatham that she had brought suit for divorce on the grounds of "mental cruelty" in the Los Angeles courts.

"I wouldn't say anything to hurt Charlie," she said, "but it is true. I thought everybody knew that he is interested in socialism. He brought his radical friends to the house, and I didn't like them. I wouldn't eat with them.

"The trouble with Charlie's socialism was that he wanted to do the preaching and let me do the practicing. He talked a lot about how wrong it was to spend money on luxuries. That was why he wouldn't let me have a car. But he had a big machine himself. I had to take taxis, and then he found fault with the bill.

ALL CONVENIENCES IN MODERN PRISON

HOT AND COLD WATER, CAFETARIA AND PLENTY OF SUNLIGHT.

(Associated Press)

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 6.—Sunlight for every cell and individual washbowls with hot and cold water are conveniences to be found within the new cylindrical state prison at Statesville, Ill.

The prison house, the first of its kind in the world gives one the impression upon entrance of being in an aviary. Every cell has been provided with 90 minutes of sunlight, coming through a skylight. This universal distribution of sunlight, coming through a skylight. This universal distribution of sunlight accomplished by a slight curve in the skylight was figured by Forest Ray Moulton, professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago.

A cafeteria system, another new idea for prison life, has been installed. Most of the eatables are supplied from the 2,200 acre honor farm upon which the prison is located.

The 248 cells which are all alike are built of concrete with cork insulation in the walls. The doors of the cells are doubley locked. They can be automatically locked by a hydraulic oil control and then the gaurd comes around and locks each cell separately. They can be opened individually.

In the center of the prison is a tower from where the guards can watch the movements ow all prisoners.

At night the outside of the prison is lighted up with electric lights by which he guard in the center of the round prison house can see everything that is going on in front of the windows.

The prison is surrounded with a circular concrete wall 33 1-2 feet high, 14 inches thick at the top and 24 inches thick at the bottom. The New York State building commission has adopted this idea and expects to enclose Sing Sing with a similar wall.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Milien O. Pearson, who was killed Aug. 6, 1918:

The home has been darkened
By the shadow of a death.
It was one, a loving brother,
And him we'll ne'er forget.

The gates of heaven were left ajar,
A voice had wihspered "come"
And in the early morning light
God took his loved one home.

Short and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all,
The buow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
And only those who love can tell
The pain at not saying the last farewell.

A vacant chair now tells the tale
Of the debt that he has paid,
Angels bright watch day and night
O'er the grave where he is laid.

The silver cord is broken
A life well spent is o'er,
At rest asleep in Jesus
He rests forever more.

WEDDING BELLS

PORTER—DODDS.

(Toronto Star).

A summer romance was culminated in the marriage of Miss Florence Helen Dodds, daughter of John Dodds, of Toronto, and Charles George Porter, son of Mrs. C. F. Porter, also of this city, at Sand Haven, Stoney Lake, the summer home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James Muir, Gouinlock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Archbold, D.D., of Lakefield, on August 2, in the late afternoon in an arbor of cedars on the shore of the lake where the romance was commenced four summers ago. The bride wore a gown of white embroidered faille and carrying a shower bouquet of white water lilies and ferns, as she came down the woodland path, on the arm of her father preceded by her little niece, Ruth Gouinlock, who was a veritable nymph of the woods in pink organdie and carrying a dainty basket of sweet peas. White ribbon streamers were carried between the trees by the two small nephews of the groom, Masters Charles McLeod and Ferguson Porter, and formed an aisle for the bridal path. The guests included the families of both bride and groom, who all have homes on the lake and many young friends of the happy couple who motored down from Toronto for the event. The bride and groom paddled away on their honeymoon as the sun was setting and after September first will be at home at 23 Moore Avenue, Toronto.

Allied Conference To Discuss Sending Poles Military Aid

IMPORTANT MEETING ON SUNDAY AT WHICH THE COURSE OF FUTURE ACTION WILL BE DELIBERATED—EMERGENCY MEASURE OUTLINED.

NO RUPTURE YET

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Polish crisis is still grave, but as a result of yesterday's developments it is regarded as being easier. There has been no rupture in the negotiations with the Russian delegation. Much, it is now held, will depend on the attitude of France.

It has been decided that Premier Lloyd George, who will be accompanied by Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, will meet M. Millerand, the French Premier, and Marshal Foch on Sunday, either at Folkestone or Boulogne, to decide upon future course of events.

Five Hour Conference.

After the Cabinet Council yesterday, held to consider the answer of the Soviet Government to British representations sent through M. Kameneff of the Russian delegation, and which was regarded on the whole as conciliiatory, Mr. Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law were in conference with M. Kameneff and M. Krassin, another Soviet representative, for more than five hours at the Premier's official residence in Downing street.

The entire situation was exhaustively reviewed and the Government's view communicated to the Russians. Especial emphasis was laid on the necessity for stemming the advance of the Red Army into Poland proper.

As a result of the conference, M. Kameneff will now be in a position to communicate with Moscow and get the Soviet Government's answer by Sunday, when it can be considered by the Allied conference and a decision taken which will be communicated to the House of Commons Monday, as already has been promised by Lloyd George.

Will Meet at Hythe.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Premier Millerand will leave to-night for Hythe, England, where he will confer with Lloyd George relative to the Polish situation. Newspapers here declare Marshal Foch will be present at the Premiers' conference.

Military aid for Poland, consisting of one or two divisions each from France, Great Britain, Hungary, Rumania, Letvia and possibly other nations, is one of the emergency measures to be discussed by the two Premiers.

This plan, as well as other measures, has been recommended by the French and British missions at Warsaw. It has been pointed out that Hungary, particularly, can send good cavalry into the field. All these divisions, it is understood, would be fully equipped, and it has been proposed that these reinforcements take the field before Warsaw to defend the capital of Poland.

TRY DR. BANTA'S KIDNEY AND RHEUMATIC PILLS

This is the advice that hundreds of people are giving to their friends who are suffering from kidney or rheumatic ailments.

Every few days some one is wishing to give a testimonial regarding the benefits obtained from the use of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills have given him more relief in a few days than all the other remedies he had taken.

Have no hesitation in trying them, and if they should not help you, return the box to your dealer and he is authorized to refund your money.

DENTIST'S OFFICE WAS BROKEN INTO

NO TRACE OF THIEVES WHO STOLE $200 WORTH OF GOODS.

Nothing further had been discovered this morning as to the identity of the thief or thieves who "jimmied" their way into Dr. W. A. Morrison's dental office some time between last Saturday night and Monday morning, and after going thoroughly through the apparatus and gold cabinet, got away with about $200 worth of gold crowns, bridges, fillings, etc.

It is believed that tracing the thieves will be difficult, as they showed by the way in which they picked out only the valuable solid gold that they had a knowledge of dentistry and metals and should be able to dispose of their booty by melting it.

The police are working on the case, but the cleverness of the thieves and the careful way in which they went through everything, leaving nothing displaced, precludes an easy capture.

RAILROADS STRONG IN WEAK MARKET

INDUSTRIAL SHARES FELL OFF BADLY THIS WEEK.

(Canadian Press).

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The Stock Market this week suffered from drastic liquidation and bear selling, which depressed industrial shares 3 to 28 points, with partial recoveries at the end. Constructive factors, such as railroad rate increases, big crops, easier call money and the intention of railroads to spend $700,000,000 for necessary improvements and equipments, had little weight in the face of hurried selling.

The gravity of the Polish situation, and the sensational weakness in sterling exchange, which fell 15 cents, with a recovery of about half the loss, were instrumental in driving down prices to the year's lowest mark.

The railroads were well sustained, investment inquiry for these stocks showing to intimidate shorts in some of the specialties which were reputed to have been oversold. Leaders in the downward movement comprised oils, steels, shippings, leather and paper issues.

FIRE RAGING IN MANITOBA TIMBER

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS DAMAGE REPORTED LAST NIGHT.

(Special to the Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, August 7th. — Thousands of dollars worth of timber were burned last night in two forest fires raging in Northern Manitoba, one on the east side of Lake Winnipeg, at the head of the Manigotogan River, and the other on the east side of Lake Winnipegosis, north of Lake Pickerel, according to word reecived by the Winnipeg office of the Dominion Forest Service. The north country is drier than it has been for 20 years, the officials said.

The fire on the Manigotogan River spread from fires in the Ontario forest along the Manitoba boundary.

LIQUOR SUPPLIES ONLY TRICKLE HERE

License Inspector Stewart, when seen by the Examiner to-day and asked if he believed there was much liquor coming this way from Windsor, discounted such a story. He couldn't see why thirsty ones should get it that way when they could get it as readily from Montreal and chaper too. In one week at the Canadian Express office there was only three single cases came through and the Dominion Express Co. handled only a few more. The importation has fallen to unprecedented figures, he says. Lakefield in one month get in only three cases of ale. Peterborough city and country residents have evidently found a substitute for the fire water.

Mr. Stewart pointed out that an order-in-council is now in force by which municipalities can pass a by-law restricting the sale of two and one-half per cent. malted beer to hotels exclusively. At present restaurants and other places sell the beer, taking away much of the business that, it is alleged, should go to the licensed hotels as a slight compensation for the closing of the bars and the cut in revenue thereof.

CAVAN CARS AFRAID TO GO OUT IN DARK

RECENT HOLD-UPS IN VICINITY OF BAILIEBORO AND MILLBROOK PUT DAMPER ON TRIPS.

NO ARRESTS MADE

A series of hold-ups along the Gravel road near Bewdley, Bailieboro, Centreville, Fraserville and over near Millbrook have terrified residents in that part of the country until night pleasure rides in an automobile are Whether they are supposed to add a day trips are made the travellers keep a wary eye open for any cars drawn up along the side of the road, ostensibly with a hole in a shoe or some other trouble. These fears are not groundless for there have been numerous hold-ups and more numerous attempts. The ruse in every case is about the same—tire trouble, etc., and a noticeable fact in practically them all is that one, two or three females are in with the highwaymen. Whether tehy are supposed to add a touch of innocence to the car-in-the-side-of-the-road stuff or supposed to vamp the men victims has yet to be determined. O. Johnston, the storekeeper at Centreville, was held up recently. Fred Waterman of South Monaghan, was relieved of $2 (fortunately all he had with him), near Fraserville, and W. H. Byam, general merchant of Millbrook, was nearly relieved of $1500 in cash lately. Mr. Byam was armed and threatened to blow the robbers brains out and escaped. The long swamp at Bewdley famous years ago for hold-ups, has once again came into its own and several attempts have been made there to stop travellers. A week ago last night the hold-up men stalled their car right in the centre of the road thinking the victim couldn't get away. An unknown man in a big car came along, sighted the car right in the centre of the road, surmised what was up, took to the ditch filled with old corduroy, mud and water, pulled past the car before they knew what he was about and got away.

Motor Cyclists Suspected.

Several fast motorcycles have been noticed tearing through Bailieboro and the villagers have concluded that these unknown speedsters are conneced with the hold-ups.

Farmers' houses that haven't had ther doors locked in years, are now securely bolted, old shot guns have been cleaned and loaded and midnight visitors are assured of a rather warm reception if the robbers take to house breaking.

REPORTS FROM DOURO.

John Garvey, a well known farmer living near Indian River, was the victim of a hold up two weeks ago that had some very strargt features to it. Garvey was driving his car along the road near Shearer's cheese factory, about 10 o'clock in the morning, and was stopped by a man in a car with two women in it as well. The man asked for a match which Garvey gave him. It is stated that Garvey was a little suspicious about the looks of the other car and its unknown occupants, and wanted to drive away as fast as he could. This did not meet with favor from one of the women, and to make sure that their victim did not get away, she shut off his car in spite of his protests. In some way when he was cranking his car they lifted $35 from his pocket. He demanded back his money. While they wouldn't give him it all back they compromised by accepting only $1 for their work. The Indian River resident considered himself lucky to get away so lightly.

Ray Lee, a 15-year-old Douro lad, believes that an attempt was made to hold him up last Monday night. It might have become the real sensation if Ray had not been able to run faster than the four men who took after him from the corners near the rifle range, at nine o'clock at night. It is said that the men jumped out of a car and gave chase to the lad when he was going home, but he soon outdistanced them, and when they neared the house the alleged highwaymen gave up the chase. The opinion is current in that part of the country that it was only a practical joke. The lad will not accept this conclusion for his story, and contends that the four men meant business.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday's highest temperature was 63 degrees. Perhaps you thought it was warm, but the thermometer has a long way to go before it reaches 97 to 100 degrees, which is the real thing in the way of a hot day. Last night was a warmer night than usual for this summer. Fifty-nine degrees was the lowest point reached during the night.—W.P.

Bolsheviki Driven Back Over the Bug By Counter Attacks

STIFF RESISTANCE BY POLES SLOWS UP THE ENCIRCLING OF WARSAW—NO NEW ADVANCES BY SOVIETS REPORTED.

FIGHTING IS SEVERE

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Russian Bolshevik armies hammering the Polish lines northeast and east of Warsaw seem to have encountered stern resistance. With the exception of the area around Brest-Litovsk, east of the Polish capital, no new advances by Soviet troops have been reported, and even there they have been limited by the desperate fighting of Poles.

Polish forces have been forced to retire from Terespol, about four miles west of Brest-Litovsk and have lost Muramiec about five miles to south. It is probable, however, that a further advance of Soviet in this region will be slow.

Along the Bug River, northwest of Brest-Litovsk, Poles have launched vigorous counter attacks and have succeeded in driving back across river detachments which had succeeded in reaching left bank of stream.

In the southern sectors of the front fighting of a serious nature is going on and the Poles seem to be gaining ground at some points.

OFFENSIVE AGAINST WRANGEL.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Bolsheviki have begun an offensive against General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevik leader, in Southern Russia, who in his recent campaign advanced some distance northward from his base in Crimea. In Friday's official statement from Moscow the capture by the Russians of Alexandrov is claimed, with further advances by Soviet troops.

The statement reads "In the Crimean in the region of Alexandrov, our troops, having assumed the offensive, occupied the town of Alexandrov, crossed the river Konekaya and are continuing to advance."

GERMANS THREATEN STRIKE IF FRENCH TRY TO CROSS.

BERLIN, August 7. — A general railway strike will be declared throughout Germany if the French attempt to send troops across this country to Poland, it was reported to-day.

COX CHAMPIONS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

SUGGESTS CONDITION OF "INTERPRETATIONS" FOR UNITED STATES SUPPORT.

DAYTON, Aug. 7.—Peace for the United States and the world by this nation's entrance into the League of Nations with "interpretations" not disturbing its vital principles was pronounced to-day by Governor J. M. Cox, Democratic Presidential standard bearer, as his paramount policy.

In his address here accepting the Democratic nomination, Gov. Cox militantly championed the League as proposed by President Wilson, with interpretations ensuring good faith and understanding, and denounced what he termed the dishonourable proposal from Senator Harding, his Republican opponent, for "separate peace with Germany."

PROGRAM OF G.W.V.A. CONCERT ON SUNDAY

The G. W. V. A. band, will (weather permitting) render the following programme of music in Victoria Park to-morrow (Sunday) evening:

March, "G.W.V.A." composed by Mr. W. F. Leader.
Overture, "Poet and Peasant."
Cornet Duet, "Mountain Echoes. Messrs Peryer and Robinson.
Selection, "Maid of the Mountains"
Gavotte, "In the Garden."
Selection, "Nautical Airs."
March, "Machine Gun Guards."
Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."
God Save the King.

Owing to the sudden change of weather during the last concert of the G.W.V.A. Band, which compelled a good many people to leave the park the band has been requested to perform the above programme.

SAYS CHIEF GRANGE WAS INJUDICIOUS

LABOUR BANNER REMINDS HIM OF STRONG SENTIMENT HERE.

If Chief Grange, of Peterborough Fire Brigade, is reported correctly in the Toronto World, it is about time that some of his friends were whispering in his ear and advising him to talk a little less injudiciously than he has been dong at the convention of the Dominion fire chiefs, which convened in St. Thomas during the present week.

Chief Grange is reported as saying, as long as we have Labor-U.F.O. combinations running our affairs, we shall have to put up with such legislation as this, referring to the latest bill of the Ontario Legislaur, which compels fire departments to grant at least one day holiday to each man each week.

Chief Grange should bear in mind that his sarcastic reference to Labor-U.F.O. combinations was not in good taste and entirely uncalled for, more especially coming from a servant of the people employed in a city which is presided over by a Labor mayor and is represented in the Ontario Legislature by a Labor-U.F.O. memeber.

Such remarks will not be relished by hundreds of the citizens of Peterborough, who pay taxes to raise the chief's wages. Every man has a right to his own opinions, but he should have enough common sense to voice them in at least respectful language.

It might be stated for Chief Grange's information that the Labor-Farmer Government of Ontario has been praised for the progressive legislation it enacted during the recent session of the Legislature, and even papers in the United States have referred specifically to the measure passed which quarantees to every fire fighter in the Province of Ontario one day off in seven.

If Chief Grange has been wrongly reported he should publicly state so for his remarks certainly do not read nice, if the newspapers have got him right.

FAMOUS "KNEE BREAK" USED AS LAST RESORT

It Was Against All Rules, but it Saved David Raine's Life.

In a bear-pit in the arctic David Raine faced the hulking, bruitish giant of a mountaineer. Like cave men of the stone age, they began their battle for the possession of a woman. One saw her soul, the other her body.

Pitted against this mountain of flesh and bone David's chances were slim. Blow after blow he landed on the brutish hulk; twice they circled the blood-spattered arena. David's face was warm with the gore of his enemy. But, battered and swollen, the giant came on and on. David was not battling for victory, but for his life. He was literally beating himself to pieces, like a ship hammering on a reef.

Like a maddened monster, the giant kept coming on, always trying for that fatal clinch. And David knew it. There was still one last chance—one hope. It was the terrible trick of the bush country—the so-called "knee-break" that he had seen used before with terrible effect.

Suddenly he shot himself out—160 pounds of bone and sinew — straight as an arrow against the brute's knees, and the gory giant went down like a stricken deer.

This is one of the big scenes, just one of them, in "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," Vitagraph's special screen production of the wonderful story by James Oliver Curwood, which will be shown at the Allen Theatre on Monday and Tuesday. It is a strong, virile story of the great Canadian North-West, where men are men and women are women and heroism and danger are but a part of the daily routine.

POTATOES DOWN TO 40 CENTS TO-DAY

At the market this morning prices showed an inclination to drop, butter selling at 60 to 65 cents a pound. Eggs sold at 56, 58 and 60 cents a dozen, chickens at 45 cents a pound and ducks at 40 cents a pound.

Outside Market.

Apple trees which have long since ceased bearing apples have this year borne huge crops, the farmers stated this morning, and in spite of this condition they sold at 45 cents a peck.

Potatoes sold at 40 and 45 cents a peck and the quantity brought in was not as large as was expected.

Cauliflowers sold at 15 and 20 cents each, cabbages of huge dimensions sold at 10 and 15 cents each. Large quantities of carrots, beets, onions and lettuce were sold at 5 cents a bunch. Raspberries were fairly scarce. What there were were selling at 25 cents a box.

SOLDIERS IN CONTROL OF DENVER NOW

MAYOR PROCLAIMS MARTIAL LAW AFTER ANOTHER NIGHT OF FATAL RIOTING.

FIVE ARE DEAD

(Canadian Press)

DENVER, Col., Aug. 7.—Denver was placed under military control early this morning in a proclamation issued by Mayor Bailey after a conference with Colonel Ballou, of Fort Logan, and state officials. Troops already had begun to arrive from Fort Logan.

Two hundred soldiers arrived early from Fort Logan just as the leaders of the Tramway Men's Union voted to recommend calling off the strike of the street car men which has been followed by days of violence resulting in the death of three men and wounding of a dozen persons last night.

Rioting of last night brought casualties to five dead and fifty known injured.

WEEK-END SERVICES OF SALVATION ARMY

The week end services will be conducted by Corps Cadet Guardian Mrs. Lang, assisted by her brigade of Cadets. Three former soldiers of the local Corps in the persons of Capt. Lang, Lieuts. Edwards and Currie, who are home on furlough, will also take a prominent part in the meeting.

The morning open air commencing at 10.15 sharp will be held on Gilmour street.

Corps Cadet Sunday is always a very interesting day at the Temple, and those who are interested in the training of young men and women to preach the Gospel should be sure to come. There will be special singing by the Cadets in the form of solos, duets and arios, also by the Band and Songsters.

Everyone is cordially invited to these services.

KIDNAPPED BABY MAY BE FOUND SOON

PARENTS HAVE NEW HOPE FOLLOWING ARREST OF AUGUST PASCOE—BELIEVED TO BE ALIVE.

WOMAN ACCOMPLICE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5. —August Pascol, the prisoner charged with kidnapping the infant son of George H. Coughlin of Norristown, was identified thi safternoon as Augusto Pasquale, said by the police to be a former jail bird and a notorious crook. The announcement was made by George H. Leonard, Chief Postal Inspector.

Pasquale has a long criminal record. He did time in Elmira and Newark. He was released from prison in this city about four months ago. He is 36 years old. According to Leonard, Pasquale said to-day he was hired by a man to go to New Jersey and hang out the white sheet which was to serve as a signal to the father of the kidnapped child.

When the father saw the signal from the railroad car window Monday he threw out the decoy bag supposed to contain the $10,000 ransom money. Pasquale appeared from his hiding place, picked up the bag and was arrested. This is the only information that could be extracted from Pasquale after seventy hours of grilling. He refused to explain having so much money four months after he had been released from prison in a penniless condition.

Pascol refuses to reveal the whereabouts of little Blakely Coughlin unless immunity for the kidnapping is granted to him. He is bartering now to exchange his freedom. He is said to have admitted that the 1-month old baby is hidden in Atlantic City.

An air of expectation surrounds the home of George H. Coughlin, the missing child's father, on the Plymouth Boulevard, outside of Norristown. A woman long suspected of having a part in the kidnapping looms up afresh to-day. An acquaintance of Pascol's during the six weeks following the kidnapping in which Pascol occupied a room in a house here, says he knows Pascol had a woman friend. The State police and the postal agents are now on her tracks and believe that she has the child.

Pascol, the police learned to-day, opened an account with a Philadelphia bank on June 21, four days after the father of the kidnapped child had placed $12,000 in a hiding place near his home. The mysterious letter writer signing himself "The Crank," had directed that this be done as a preliminary to the return of the child.

The first deposit was $1,000. Later large sums were added. On Monday morning before his arrest Pascal paid the balance due on his new home in New Gretna with a certified cheque of the Philadelphia bank.

Pascal is described by the lodging house keeper with whom he lived in this city for six weeks as being very agreeable.

"He came to me early in June," he said. "He was a good-looking man and well dressed. There was nothing about him to excite suspicion. He did not seem to be a bad man, though he got drunk occasionally."

Pascol's parents are French. They came to this country from Bridgeport, N. J.

The kidnapped baby is now said in most highly authoritative sources to be alive. The principal accomplice of Pascol is said to be a woman whose arrest is expected momentarily. Her finger-prints, obtained from the window sill of the Coughlin home, are in the hands of a handwriting expert.

State Troopers, accompanied by postal inspectors, are now searching for her. With her arrest they expect to get the child.

FIELDS HUMMING WITH MACHINERY HARVESTING CROPS

CUTTING WHEAT, OATS AND BARLEY IS BECOMING GENERAL LOCALLY.

Farmers in Peterborough County are progressing well with their harvesting and the golden grain is pouring into the mows already laden with the sweet smelling hay. "We shall come rejoicing bringing in the sheaves" runs the old hymn particularly adaptable this year. The farmers are rejoicing with open hearts for they have had much to contend with and many setbacks. The long cold spring chilled the young and tender grain and the hopes of the farmers at the same time. Followed by the very reverse with weeks of hot weather that cooked and baked the fields, fairly roasting the crops, the outlook was bleak enough for a while. Finally the long delayed rain came and since then, although some of the crops have not grown as they might, the majority have pulled right along and the farmers have been able to rest easy at night and wear a smile in the day time. They have worked and worked hard because of the shortage of farm hands and this situation is particularly acute at the present time when the problem is to get the crop off.

Most of the fall wheat is cut and some of the spring wheat. The big cutting o fthis though will not take place till next week. The oats are ripening up fast, and while some farmers have cut some the majority will not take the binder to them till next week. The barley is ripening and some has been cut. The oats are the best crop, according to many farmers; the barley is a close second they state. The fall wheat did not turn out as heavy as was expected at first one farmer reports, but the crop be said, was fair. Some farms have good crops of fall wheat. It just seems to depend on the conditions of each farm and to arrive at whether the crop is good, bad or indifferent as a whole is hardier than it would seem. The root crop is good, it is said. The corn is not very long because of the cool nights, but it is expected to be at least a fair crop. Some threshing of alsike has been done out in Smith.

The farmers declare that the grasshoppers are bad, in fact worse than in many years, but no serious damage can yet be traced to them. In the northern townships and back on the ranches it is stated that they are in millions and have cleaned up the shrubs and the crops, causing considerable loss.

THE LAST TRUMP.

A colored dough-boy who had hit Paris on AWOL and supplied himself generously with the Vin sisters, mingled with stronger waters, woke suddenly in a still befuddled condition in the great urban cemetery of Pere la Chaise, whither his uncertain steps had taken him. To make it worse, there was an air raid going on.

The brother looked around him out of half closed eyes. On every side stretched long rows of white monuments. Sirens shrilled from the city streets. Dazzling beams of white light stabbed the heavens. There could be but one conclusion.

Hastily searching his pockets, he drew forth his remaining possessions —a bottle of vin blanc, a pack of greasy acrds, a much-worn pair of ivories—and hurled them from him.

"Git me away f'um me, evidence," he muttered. "Now, come on, Mistuh Gabriel, I'se ready."—The American Legion Weekly.

BON MARCHE CO., WHITEWEAR MAKERS, ARE NOW EMPLOYING 25 OPERATORS

STARTED SEVEN MONTHS AGO WITH THREE AND EXPECT TO DOUBLE OUTPUT THIS YEAR—WILL OCCUPY ANOTHER FLOOR OF BUILDING.

Starting seven months ago with three employees, the Bon Marche Company is now employing twenty-five and is preparing to occupy another floor of its building on Simcoe street. J. E. Bates, managing director of the company, told The Examiner yesterday that the company expects to increase its output by 100 per cent. this year.

The company is a Peterborough one, backed by Peterborough capital, and employing Peterborough labour. Edgar Worth is president, Bruce Fowler, vice-president, Douglas Lawrie, secretary-treasurer, and J. E. Bates, managing director.

Make Whitewear.

Whitewear and stamped goods are its products and it is the only company in Canada manufacturing "envelope" goods, that is whitewear completely finished except for the embroidery and sold in an envelope with needle, thread, and book of instructions for embroidering.

Mr. Bates told The Examiner that no difficulty had been experienced in employing local labour other than the necessity of training operators on the machines which are of a type never before used in Peterborough.

Increase in Whitewear Prices.

That next spring, if not the fall, will see higher prices in whitewear was Mr. Bates' opinion. The mill prices of cloths, he stated, have increased, but on account of belated deliveries an increase in prices of the finished produt may be delayed.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

A Sure Sign That the Blood is Watery and Impure.

People with thin blood are much more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbance of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this effectively, and the rich red blood made by these pills will remove the headache.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rehumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition every symtom of the trouble will disappear. There are more people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than to any other medicine, and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH IN UNKNOWN MANNER

Farmer Found With Head Crushed Between Shaft and Wheel.

GUELPH, Aug. 5.—John Clifford, a well-known farmer, who resided near Morriston, met a terrible death yesterday afternoon when he had his head crushed to a pulp in a very mysterious accident. He had been out driving through the country all morning and shortly after 2 o'clock his horse wandered back home with Clifford's dead body stretched across the floor of the buggy. His head was pinned between the shaft and one of the wheels, and the side of his face had been completely lacerated from the pressure of the moving wheel. When his wife went over to the rig she was horrified to find that her husband had met death in this way.

Neighbors were immediately notified and before the body could be removed from the buggy the wheel had to be taken off, the man having been wedged in between the side of the vehicle and the wheel.

The cause of the fatality is a mystery, and how the man came to his death may never be known. He left home about 10 o'clock in the morning, but did not say where he was going. So far as is known the only place he was seen was on a road about two and a half miles from Morriston, where he had been talking to a man running a road roller about 1.10 in the afternoon.

He was about fifty years of age and married.

Coroner Dr. Savage of Guelph opened an inquest at Morriston.

DRAGGED TO DEATH.

Boy Tied on Runaway Horse is Frightful Trampled.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5.—Dragged and trampled by a runaway horse yesterday in St. Christophe Parish, Ernest Major, 13 years of age, a boy in the employ of a farmer of St. Vincent de Paul, was found dead when the horse was finally stopped in the centre of Pont Viau Bridge by a painter.

The boy had tied himself to the horse and when the animal took fright fell off its back and was dragged at furious speed for a quarter of a mile, the horse striking him with its hoofs at every stride.

U.S. COMMERCE VOTES OPEN SHOP

ALSO IN FAVOUR OF MAKING LABOUR UNIONS LEGALLY RESPONSIBLE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—By an overwhelming referendum vote the membership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has adopted a platform on industrial relations which among other things declares for the right of "open shop" operation of industry and for making labor organizations the same as organizations of employers, legally responsible "to others for their conduct and that of their agents."

Answering two allied propositions submitted at the same time, the members took a position that strikes in public utility operations should be forbidden by law, and that tribunals should be set up with power to fix wages and working conditions for employees of utilities. The results of both votes were made public to-day by the chamber.

The industrial relations platform, which was submitt ed to the referendum of the constituent bodies of the chamber in twelve sections, upon each of which a separate vote was cast, was drawn up after the close of President Wilson's first industrial conference last fall by a committee of which the chairman was William Butterworth, president of Deere & Co., Moline, Ill.

Leading provision of this platform include declarations that limitation of commodity output by either employee or employer, when done to create an artificial scarcity, constitutes an injury to soiety; that an "adequate means" should be provided for adjustment of industrial relations and disputes; that employer and employee have a mutual interest in the "successful conduct and full development of their particular industrial establishment," recognition of which and co-operation upon which "constitutes the true basis of sound industrial relations;" that municipal, State or national Government employees have the right to be heard as to their occupation and its requirements, but no right to enter "combinations to prevent or impair the operation of Government," and that "all men possess the equal right to associate voluntarily for the accomplishment of lawful purposes by lawful means."

Most of the separate platform propositions were accepted by votes of nearly 1,700 in favor to 2 or 3 against. The highest negative vote was 54, cast against a section which said that after collective bargaining had been established and employers and employees dealt with through representatives in any plant, it would be considered proper by either party to ask that "these representatives shall not be chosen by or controlled by any outside group or interest."

ANGLO-AMERICAN HITCH OVER DEBT

LONDON, Aug. 6.—That there is a serious hitch in the Anglo-American negotiations concerning the finding and subsequent repayment of the British debt to the United States was admitted by an authority fully competent to state the British Government's international financial policy.

Broadly speaking, the point at issue is a conflict between the British policy of covering the American debt as part of the American Government's insistance that Great Britain's debt to America should be considered and settled independently of the fact that Britain has a large sum owing to her by other Allies and Germany.

Although negotiations on this point still continue in a desultory fashion, officials here say they do not see any chance of settlement as long as America maintains her present position, and it is considered likely that no solution will be reached until after the Presidential elections.

In a round sum Europe owes America $9,500,000,000, of which the British share is $4,000,000,000. On the other hand, the British loaned the Allies about $6,000,000,000. The official argument is that in view of this fact and because the British borrowings from America were largely on behalf of the other Allies, the American Government should agree to some plan for British payments in conformity with the Allied and German reparation payments to Great Britain.

JUNIPER'S JAZZ OF NATIONAL ANTHEM IS OBJECTED TO

Kawartha Park cottagers are on the lookout for the party who had picnic lunch on Munroe's Island, Clear Lake, previous to the outbreak of the fire last Wednesday which, but for the intervention of a bucket brigade from Kawartha Park, would have destroyed the cottage and island. It was undoubtedly, in the minds of the Association, the picnickers who started the blaze through criminal negligence, and if the supposed guilty party is caught, he will be dealt with accordingly.

Each of the residents along the shore had a complaint to register of careless smokers or picnickers who, disregarding the serious consequences which would ensue should the shore take fire, drop matches indiscriminately about and fail to make sure camp fires have been thoroughly extinguished. A rigid watch is being kept for the next offender detected.

Jazing the National Anthem at the Juniper Island Pavillion for the regular hops has aroused the wrath of several of the more patriotic cottagers. "Let them jazz the Star Spangled Banner or the Watch on the Rhine all they want," one husky Canadian remarked on the steamer Islinda yesterday, "but next time God Save the King" is jazzed I'll beat the musicians up."

CHURCH DECORATORS ARE BADLY INJURED

Part of Scaffold Collapses, Preciptating Them Twenty-five Feet.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 5.—Clavel C. Atkins and Chas. Cochrane, decorators, were very seriously hurt today in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church when a scaffolding collapsed. They were redecorating the ceiling in front of the organ. A large section of the scaffold gave way, precipitating the workmen 25 feet below. No one was close at the time, but workmen outside, hearing the crash, rushed in. They carried out the men, who were lying helpless.

Atkins is suffering from fractured ribs and a possible fracture of the hip and internal injuries, besides a general shaking-up. It is thought that the wall of the lung may be torn. The outcome is uncertain.

Cochrane will likely recover. He was badly shaken up.

HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE WHEN TRAIN HITS TRUCK.

OSHAWA, Aug. 5.—George H. Banner, 285 Albert Street, local agent for the British-American Oil Company, miraculously escaped death when the large oil tank truck he was driving was struck near Ebenezer, east of here, by a westbound C.P.R. freight train. He is, however, at present in the Oshawa General Hospital suffering from a sore right side and chest, and with his right leg and arm badly skinned. He is only able to move his head and left arm.

The engine hit the truck behind the front wheels, just in the cab, and threw Mr. Banner onto the fender. He was carried on the cowcatcher a distance of about 150 yards. The truck is a total wreck.

PRICE OF COAL IN FRANCE NOW $40

MANY PEOPLE PAY MORE FOR IT THAN FOR RENT—GREAT GRAIN CROP.

NEW YORK, July 29.—"The people of England, France and Belgium are working with surprising vigor and need no credits from us," said Rolland J. Hamilton, secretary of American Radiator Co., who has just returned from a trip abroad.

"Our company," he said, "is far behind in its orders and would be swamped if it were not a cessation of new building in Europe now from the real shortage.

"While our boilers are from 70 to 75 per cent. efficient and only 25 per cent. of the fuel used is wasted. English grates are but 25 per cent. efficient and French grates 35 per cent.

"There will probably be a deflation of values in France, but with a banking system to which industrial credits are almost unknown, panics are unlikely. Excess profits taxes which were very unpopular and only mildly productive, were removed July 1 and indirect taxes substituted. The May strikes were largely political and were frowned on by the people. What discontent exists is due to the fact that while the cost of living has risen 400 per cent. since 1913; wages have lagged somewhat behind. The coal shortage is France's most pressing problem. Coal is now $40 a ton and many people pay more for it than they do for their rent. It will be 18 months before the destroyed mines in the vicinity of Lens can all be restored. On the other hand, the crops are the best since the record year of 1872 and owing to the loss of manpower in the war, labor is in high demand.

"Financial conditions are sound in England and the British have accomplished more in deflation by regulating bank and credit rates than we have. Great Britain has increased her excess profits tax.

"Little Belgium is outstripping France. The Germans spared the Belgian glass and lace plants as they did not compete with German industries. Already a temporary house has been erected for every Belgian dispossessed during the war. They are opening new coal mines which could not be profitably operated before 1914.

"Conditions in Germany, Italy and Austria are very uncertain and reconstruction is retarded by numerous strikes. Our factories in Germany were left absolutely intact during the war."

When asked what Europeans thought of the League of Nations, Mr. Hamilton replied that "their courteous silence was eloquent." He added that the French and the Italians were a great deal more concerned about our prohibition amendment than about our keeping out of President Wilson's League. The closing of our markets to their liquors has hurt their efforts to restore the pre-war balance of trade.

A GOOD piano is a fine thing to own; but a good Player Piano is better.

The Player stands ready at all times for hand playing or for reproducing, as desired.

It is interchangeable in a moment from one instrument to the other. The member of your family who cannot read a note of music (but who may be a very musical person nevertheless) can play the music of his choice. Another member who is skilled in music can come next and play just as if it were a piano. And, for the rising generation it makes easier the road to a successful musical education.

The Williams Player is a Canadian-made instrument, through and through—made by Canadian craftsmen who would refuse to do anything but their best.

JOHN BARRYMORE WEDS MRS. LEONARD THOMAS

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—John Barrymore and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas were married to-day in the apartment of Mrs. John McCulloch in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Details of the ceremony are meagre, but it is known that it was conducted in the presence only of the immediate relatives of Mrs. Thomas and Mr. Barrymore. Rev. Dr. Bullard was the clergyman.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs, parents of Mrs. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Charles de L. Oelrichs, her brother and sister-in-law; Mrs. Russell G. Colt (Ethel Barrymore), sister of Mr. Barrymore, and Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Barrymore, his brother and sister-in-law.

Mrs. Thomas is well known in New York society. She is the former Miss Blanche Oelrichs, member of a prominent New York family.

POLES AND CIVILIZATION.

Away back in May the Polish situation was a debatable question in the Imperial House of Commons, where Bonar Law declared Polan's aggressiveness was not approved of by the British government. Whether approved of or not, 'tis a pity that the Allies did not exercise at that time such firm diplomatic intervention as would leave no doubt in Russia's mind of what attitude the Entente would take should the Red armies attempt to over-run Poland. It is lack of agreement between the Allied governments on a policy in conformation with the widely-advertised understanding between at least the big European members of the League of Nations to enforce a peaceful solution of international disputes in Europe at all costs which has encouraged both Russia and Poland in their present beligerent operations the one against the other. But apart from any other consideration Poland in days gone by earned the sympathy of Christian races in her present plight. For it was a Polish army which, under King John Sobieski, saved Europe from the Turks by defeating and crushing their armies then besieging Vienna. This was in the seventeenth century, and no matter how much Poland may be, equally with Russia, in the wrong in this war, she certainly stands between an enemy to Christianity and civilization quite as unspeakable, aye, and more so, than the Turks.

In past history, Russia was invariably at enmity with Britain and had to be watched with a sleepless eye. Deep down in the hearts of Russians as a nation there never did exist any real love for the British, and that any British statesman should have placed reliance in the assurances of Russia unless backed by concrete evidence of her good faith is amazing. That evidence of the Russian Bear's national sentiment toward Britain, when she treacherously concluded peace with Germany in 1917, repudiating her pledges to the Allies and thereby releasing hundreds of thousands of German troops to all but crush the British armies, should have been an object lesson to Britain. Russia's defection and subsequent exemplification of blood-red Bolshevism should have been met with a firm and finishing hand while the Allies had their mighty war machines available for the purpose.

The situation in Europe is again so menacing by reason, in a very large part, of Britain's government failing to recognize that in reality Poland is once more championing the cause of civilization and European peace, as she did in the seventeetnh century, that the Empire is more or less humiliated in the world's eyes.

CONTRACTORS KEEP COSTS—DATA OF BRIDGE

In fairness to Russell-Townsend Co., contractors on the new Hunter Street bridge, the Examiner acknowledges an error in an editorial on Thursday which stated in part, "it appears from the report of a council meeting with Mr. Barber that neither the contractors nor anyone else have data upon which to furnish an estimate of costs." Having been shown the books and accounting system which obtains in the contractors' works office we find a method of cost-keeping which defines exactly how the costs of this work can be distributed over the whole or any portion of the structure since its inception. The methods adopted cover workmen's wages, cost of material, levels, etc., and all incidental expenditures which enter into the operations, kept account of in such a manner as to readily show at any time exactly cost of progress. In their office we found drawings explanatory of the cost of sections of the work as far as proceeded with, together with the original estimates for same and extra work entailed for any cause. From day to day, and week by week the contractors are thus keeping track of costs as spread over the construction, and any portion thereof.

This information was cheerfully offered us, and the whole cost system in use by the contractors explained; and we are advised that all such cost data in the contractors' office has been and is available to proper authorities."

FREIGHT RATES

We are led to believe that the cost of living will not be materially affected by increased American freight rates, as the connection between rates and prices is far less than between wages and prices. Mr. Lauck, the American miners' cost expert, argues that those increases ought to, and probably will, come out of profits and that the charge against consumers should be infinitesimal. With higher rates it is hoped that railways will be able to improve their service to such an extent that profits on new business will absorb rate increases. This is good argument, for all industrial concerns when faced with increased eppenditures for wages or otherwise turn their best endeavors toward increased efficiency, better service and bigger business. Should freight rates be kept below the cost of service, disorganization of transportation follows and loss of profits results from inability to do business, and trade generally is affected. When millions of dollars worth of steel and goods and coal are tied up for lack of railway service, and building and other industries are affected by an embargo on coal, a country suffers loss in trade, earnings and profits which perhaps warrants an increase in freight rates following wage increases, if by such action freight congestion is to be relieved and transportation improved to the extent of increasing production.

The New York Times summarizes this question, which affects both Canada and the United States, as follows:

When the railway wages were last raised it was remarked that the increase was the final phase of the wage rise, for another could not be endured. The same may be said of the rate increase. In both cases the increases have been capitalized at the time when they will do most good to those who will receive them and least harm to those who must pay them. The efficiency of labor will be increased when workers are no longer incited to arrest by uneconomic wages paid to war workers from tax money on a scale which no commercial business can rival. Railway workers no longer will be dissatisfied because they are underpaid in comparison with ship riveters. And in many other trades from now on wages will be leveled to what business can afford, not to what duress can stand.

Canada is considerably affected by these new American freight rates, which become effective, August 26th, and Canadian railways think of applying to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to make these new charges effective from the Dominion to the United States.

RETURN OF THE FUR SEAL.

The value of conservation has never been more swiftly and decisively illustrated than in the case of the herd of fur seals whose home and breeding place is the Pribilof Island in Bering Sea. Eight years ago the herd was threatened with extinction, but it now yields an annual revenue which Mr. William T. Hornaday, writing in the current Science, calculates at $4,000,000.

In 1873, six years after the Alaska purchase, an agent of the Treasury Department estimated the herd at 3,193,420. The privilege of killing was limited to 100,000 young males annually. The herd would have been well protected except for its luxurious habit of indulging every winter in a tour of southern waters. Penetrating the Aleutian Islands, it swung east by south toward the coast of California, returning by a northerly passage along British Columbia and Alaska to its summer breeding home. For ages this winter outing had been as enjoyable and quite as safe as Palm Beach is for New Yorkers. But in 1872 the company that had the privilege of killing on the Pribilof Islands devoted $100,000 to a campaign for making "sealskin sacques" fashionable in London, and in the following decades the Pacific waters witnessed a carnival of "pelagic" or open-sea slaughter. Many seals were wounded and escaped to die. To discriminate between male and female was impossible; and when the female was killed her pups died of starvation. The cruel and wasteful traffic was conducted on the high seas; Canadian, American and Japanese seal hunters rejoiced in it. Even in the summer months some of them would lurk about the Pribilof Islands without the three-mile limit and kill the mothers that went to sea in search of food. By 1912 the herd of more than 3,000,000 had been reduced to 215,738.

The art of curing and dyeing the sealskin was a mystery and monopoly of London. Moreover, England could not bring pressure to bear upon Canada without risking resentment from a sensitive and high-spirited Dominion. When, in 1893, the case was passed upon by the Paris Tribunal, the result was futile and worse than futile. Japan, Russia and China were not parties to the Tribunal and so their seal hunters continued to enjoy the freedom of waters that were forbidden to Americans, Canadians and Britons. In the six years from 1890 to 1895, inclusive, we spent over a million and a half patrolling the Pacific, and then had to pay $473,000 as "damages" which the Paris Tribunal awarded to men who took our seals and were caught in the act. In 1910 the Camp Fire Club started a movement as a result of which, in 1912, England, Russia and Japan agreed to stop pelagic sealing in consideration of a share in our gains through legitimate killing on the Pribilof Islands. Japan receives 15 per cent. and England 10 per cent, of all net profits, and for each close season which we see fit to establish each country receives $10,000.

In 1912 there were only 215,738 seals of all ages and at the end of the five-year close season the number had increased to 468,692. In 1919, in spite of renewed killing on a small scale, the herd had increased to 530,237. When the herd grows to its former proportions we shall be able to take 100,000 skins yearly, the value of which will probably be some fourteen millions—75 per cent of which will belong to the United States. The original cost of the entire Territory of Alaska was only $7,200,000.—New York Times.

EDITORIA LCOMMENT.

The Ottawa Journal says that the Mexican villain Villa, instead of being hanged from a tree, as expected, has been given a pension for life, an estate, and a farm for each of his bandit followers. Well there's another villain—in Europe—who has escaped his deserts in an equally unfitting manner. Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, may not have been pensioned, but he's certainly not wanting the comforts and luxuries of life.

Railroad men are agreed that hoboes are on the increase. These gentry, when caught, should be made help get in the harvest when labor is scarce.

The Mail and Empire says sporting writers are doing more than scientists to enrich the English language with new words. It's a pity they do not introduce an anathema sufficiently expressvie of the mess of European conditions arising out of a vacillating policy toward Russia and Poland.

Reports say that in case of war between Great Britain and Russia the former will make a blockade by her navy the chief weapon. But the part her armies will be called upon to play, will, we venture to say, prove far more costly in human life than the operations of Britain's splendid fleets.

TRANSMIGRATION.

Do we return according to our rating
Over life's highway in another guise—
Go limping, over-burdened, broken-hearted,
Gayly to pass again with love-lit eyes,
Or faring onward, coldly self-important,
Giving no aid and deaf to each appeal,
Come back to find a world of feet about us,
And cringe obedient at a master's heel?

. . . . . .

What was I once—a vagrant without shelter?
Surely I knew life under an open sky!
Gray memories come and go, dim and uncertain,
Of prowling nights with others such as I;
Of streets in the pale dawn, blank-eyed or shuttered,
Down which I plodded on my aimless way;
Or bare bleak countrysides with scanty hedges,
Where I crouched shuddering to wait the day.

. . . . . .

Poor little mortals, laughing, fighting, weeping,
Over life's highway to the Styx we go;
Deep shadows all behind us, and before us
Perchance another pilgrimage of joy or woe.

Ethel Wolff.

THE PLOUGHMAN.

Sorrow the Ploughman, goes his awy,
Across, across my heart he drives,
And turns and breaks its stubborn clay,
And finds my soul that hidden lay,
And leaves it bare to take his knives,
To meet the tempest and the gleam
That falls like blessing, after rain,
While Sorrow passes with his team
Whose names are Loneliness and Pain.

All clear and open to the sky
Receptive lies the broken sod,
I shall not count the cost too high,
Nor grudge the suffering, nor cry
For future reckoning with God.
Nor mourn the grass where flowers were found,
The small gay field-flowers children find,
And love, if from that harrowed ground
Some good grain springs to feed mankind.

CHINESE PHILOSOPHY ON ECONOMICS.

Industrial discontent in Australia is puzzling the arbitration judges, federal politicians and basic wage commissions, and even in the northern territory there is disturbance. Mr. Lindsay, the well known explorer, had the whole question summed up for him most ably by an old Chinaman in the teritory. Repeating the conversation to a representative of the Melbourne Argus, Mr. Lindsay said: "A Chinese who was a young man when I went to the territory in 1878, and is now keeping a store there remarked to me: 'When you and me young men, no wages, plenty fruit, plenty fish, plenty vegetables, every body happy. Now, high wage, no fruit, no fish, no vegetables, everybody growl, nobody happy."

VIRTUOUS WIVES

XII

They were seated in a little bower of wistaria, Amy Forrester and Mrs. Bracken, and, by the gravity of their expression, the conversation must have been serious. Behind them, the low white bulk of the Colonial house shone over the lawns rich with the deep gren tinge of early May. Before them an old-fashioned garden, with early note of cricus, tulip, and narcissus, wound in pleasant surprises out toward the fields, where the farm hands were harrowing the red soil for the early planting. In the paddock to the left Allan Bracken was giving the first lessons to Bob, aged eight, balanced on the back of a fat pony, while the three younger children, perched on the fence, were watching with tense admiration. Above them, in the arbor, the first clusters of wistaria were swelling in the bulb. A weeping willow and a grove of maple trees in full leaf caught the slight impulse of the young breeze, redolent with the perfume of budding time. A lazy, fluffy clod hung motionless against the blue span. It was pleasant to every sense, vaguely roubling to the imagination. It was in the full awakening country, and it was spring.

"I envy you more than any woman I know," said Amy Forrester, glancing toward the distant roll of hills, where the blue flash of the bay came rippling up with a myriad glancing helmets. "I wish I could live like this away from New York, out among real things. I used to—and," she added, with a laughing glance at her striped skirt, her chiffon blouse, and arched white slipper that gave her the air of a Dresden shepherdess, "and I used to dress in overalls and ride home on the hay wagons."

"I wonder if you'd be happy now," said Mrs. Bracken frankly. She was in heavy boots, khaki skirt, and broad-brimmed hat, and her knitted sweater was covered with green reinsmans, while her hands were stained with the flowers she was sorting in her lap.

"I wonder," said Amy, pensively. She stirred up the gravel with the tip of her lace parasol without looking at her companion. In the two days she had spent at the farm she had more than once been on the point of taking Claire into her confidence. Yet each time she found the opening difficult. "I don't see why you like me," she said at last, without warning.

Claire Bracken laughed her happy whole-hearted laugh.

"In the first place, because you are a lovable person," she said directly.

"I think I am all wrong," said Amy, frowning.

Mrs. Bracken studied her a moment trying to make out how genuine was this confession. Then she said, smiling,

"Yes, I think you are."

"What! You do think so?" said Amy, startled, for she was far from thinking so herself.

"Yes; but you are no worse than all the rest—and the pity is with you, there is so much real good in you You really ought to count."

"If I only had a home like this heavens, how willingly I'd give up all the rest!" said Amy, impulsively.

"I'm not so sure of your repentance pretty lady," said Claire, smiling.

"Why not?"

"I think you've come to a great climax, and now everything is relaxed—a little tame perhaps. It's the end of the season, but the appetite will return."

Amy laughed in confusion.

"Heavens! It's much easier facing conscience than facing you!"

"Well, am I right?"

'Yes, I think you are," she admitter, serious all at once. "I've had a taste of excitement, and I crave it. I suppose it's my destiny and I'll go on burning myself out. And yet—I'm restless—I'm not really happy!"

"Why don't you have children?' said Claire.

"So soon?", said Amy, aghast, for she was far from expecting this answer. She started to defend herself by talling back on Andrew, but she was in the mood for confession, which also is a dramatic impulse of the coquette. "Frankly, I don't want them now—because I'm selfish, because I want to enjoy my youth. Now you know the worst about me. I adore society; crave excitement, and I can't give it up. Can you understand a selfish little beast like myself"

"I can understand a good many things," said Claire calmly. "I think I may see you better than you do yourself. You are the kind that can do a lot of harm in this world or a lot of good."

"I once felt the way you do—whn I was first married—I wanted children, but Andrew, my husband, did not want them."

"Why?"

"Because he was foolish enough to want me to play!"

"And yet you are not happy?"

Ay shook her head, then she corrected herself.

"That is, I am restless."

At this moment, across the fields came the galloping thud of horses' hoofs. Monte Bracken and Fifi Nordstrum came racing up to the paddock wih the result that Master Bob, in the excitement, went sprawling onto the sod.

"He's fallen!" exclaimed Amy, jumping to her feet.

Mrs. Bracken glanced up without agitation.

"Bob's a good soldier," she said simply. "The sod's soft."

The next moment Monte Bracken had swung the youngster up into the saddle in front of him and came cantering along the fence.

"All right; no bones broken. A chip of the old block," he said, waving his hat in delight at the laughing

"All right; no bones -:- youngster. Then, wheeling, he rode back to where Fifi, who had rounded up the fat pony, was waiting.

"I wish Monte would marry your consin," said Mrs. Bracken suddenly.

Amy opened the parasol and closed it again, her eyes on the paddlock. Just why this should throw her into confusion suprisd her. Since the ball she had carefully avoided Monte Bracken and, despite te intimacy of the house party, she had managed never to be left in tete-a-tete. Yet she found herself resenting Mrs. Bracken's suggestion

"They will never fall in love with each other, I'm afraid."

"Why not?"

"They are too much alike—and too good friends," she explained. 'But you do surprise me. I though Fifi would be the last person you would pick out—with your ideas. I thought you would look on her as a wild, harum-scarum tomboy, who would never settle down." She felt that she was puking on much emoion ino her objecion, so she added, "That's not my belief."

"She has two qualities that will make her marriage a happy one, said Claire, without looking at her companion. "She is loyal, and she has pride. Whatever belongs to her, she will make a success. I like Fifi very much."

"Is this aimed at me?" thought Amy. She hazarded a glance. Mrs. Bracken was bending over her flowers.

"Perhaps you are right about Fifi. The trouble is I don't think she would ever think of marriage, unless she were head over heels in love—or your brother-in-law either."

"That is the trouble. It's a pity. They are so suited to each other. She would be a real force behind him. Afterward they would grow together.

"That's rather the continental point of view than ours, isn't it?" said Amy, smiling.

"There is a middle ground between the two. Do you wish me to speak frankly"

Amy hesitated, and again the point of her dainty parasol traced arabesques in the gravel.

"I am a little afraid of you," she said, raising her glance. "You are too harpy."

"You need never be afraid of me, whatever happens," said Mrs. Bracken. She leaned over and laid her hand on Amy's with gentleness in her eyes such as only those who have borne a secret cross can know. "We have wanted to talk to each other from the first, haven't we? Why not now?"

"It is very hard—just now," said Amy. Her eyes filled with tears. She rose, took a few steps, and came back. 'I am very foolish. Don't mind me." She sat down, stared ahead a long moment, and then said slowly: "Mrs. Bracken, what is a girl to do who has married blindly and then suddenly wakes up to the fact that there is no longer anything in common with her husband, neither love nor sympathy nor understanding of any sort. What is she to do with her life—and particularly if the moment comes when she meets someone else who she knows would mean happiness in every way—if she had only known how to choose? What is she to do?"

"You are not there yet."

"No, no— but it will come; of course it will come. A woman really must love sometime!" She turned terrified at what she had said. "Do you know it's horrible what I've told you. I've never even thought it myself."

"I don't admit that things are so bad," said Mrs. Bracken, shaking her head. "And I don't think you are right in your estimation of your feelings toward your husband."

"I am—I am," she said obstinately, her eys obscured.

"You feel too much what you say not to care," said Mrs. Bracken quietly; 'and as for him, I know he loves you." She came near adding. By the look of pain I've seen in his face," but unwisely she refrained

SAYS PROHIBITION TOO RESTRICTIVE

LORD DEWAR DECLARES IT IS MAKING THE U.S. A NATION OF LAW BREAKERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Prohibition is making the American people a nation of lawbreakers, Lord Thomas Dewar, the Scotch distiller, said just before sailing for England on the White Star liner Olympic.

Lord Dewar and Sir John and Lady Ferguson, who also sailed, came here for the cup races as Sir Thomas Lipton's guests, and the indefatigable challenger was at the dock to see them off. Lord Dewar made it plain that he did not oppose regulation of intoxicating beverages, but said he thought the law here was too restrictive for most people.

"I have watched the prohibition and restriction laws as they have been inaugurated in various countries," he said, "and my belief after coming here for the first time in fourteen years is that the American people have had something passed that is too drastic for the majority. I do not question that regulation of the sale of liquor was quite necessary, but I have not seen that it was necessary here to create a 'bone dry' situation which results in the law being constantly broken.

"In England the hours are now five a day instead of fifteen for the sale of liquor in public places. Alcoholic content has been reduced and the business is in the hands of men of as high standing as are engaged in any trade."

Sir John Ferguson, who is a director of Lloyd's Bank in England, said that the extravagance displayed here astonished him.

The farewell word of Charles Nicholson, designer of the Shamrock IV., also on the Olympic, was:

"We wabbled it this time. Next time we'll get it."

COLOURS FOR FALL COPPER AND OCHRE

THE BRUNETTE SEEMS TO BE COMING INTO HER OWN AT LAST.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—At last the brunette is coming into her own. Retail milliners at their fall show have decreed that the colours for the fall season shall be copper, ochre and cochin, colours which favour the brunette. The blonde and henna headed sister of the brunette has at length been forced to give way.

Prices for fall hats will be lower, say milliners.

There are hats which can make the lank girl look sweet and alluringly plump, and the fat padded type look willowy. These hats were exhibited and their effects on the contrasting types shown clearly at the fall fashion show of the retail milliners' association in the Hotel Astor.

Some of the bonnets displayed had the effect of a thatched hut. There is something barbaric and something mediaeval in all the styles shown. A new colour was introduced into the fashion world in the show, namely, folly, which is nothing more than a vivid cherry red. The thin women first appeared wearing tall hats which accentuated their thinness and their height. They appeared in the company of stout men who served as an escort. Their second appearance in bonnets reduced this accent to a minimum and made them seem women of exceedingly graceful form. The same is true of the stout women. Milliners were actuated by the slogan: "A million men have married for a hat."

Old-time treatments were harsh and inefficient. Blue-jay is gentle, quick and sure.
Now all corns are needless. All these pains can be avoided. To let corns remain while you pare and pad them is folly.
You can stop a corn ache the moment it appears. You can end a corn completely before it can develop.

SEALS MULTIPLY UNDER PROTECTION

NUMBER INCREASED THREE TIMES AND PRICE IS MUCH HIGHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The annual census of the seals, now being taken by the Bureau of Fisheries is expected to show about 600,000 of the animals, or three times as many as when the government undertook the custody of them a half score years ago.

Although the seal spends much of its life at sea, its habits make the census-taking comparatively easy. Hugh M. Smith, commissioner of the Bureau of Fisheries, explains the "count of noses" is of importance to prevent "blind killing" of the animals for their furs, possibly resulting in their extinction.

Under present government control, Mr. Smith asserts that the seals are increasing about ten or 122 per cent. of their number annually. Last year's count showed 550,000 of which 26,000 were killed for their pelts.

In the middle of Bering Sea, lying 40 miles apart, are two islands—St. George and St. Paul—the only land to which the seals ever resort. Every spring they visit the islands to raise their young, leaving in the fall to winter the north Pacific and it is during the summer that the census is taken.

The killing of the animals is also done in the summer, this under law being confined to the surplus males. Last year lack of labour resulted in 10,000 fewer animals being killed than government officials had planned. Japan and Great Britain along with the United States, share the revenue produced from the seal-kill, a treaty giving this country seventy per cent. of the animals, with the other two countries receiving each 15 per cent.

"In the old days," says Mr. Smith "when 1700,000 seals were being killed annually the government obtained $10 per skin, while now we are getting $140, which nets us about $120 per skin. Increase in the value of furs and the different method of conducting the business explains this."

Besides the sale of pelts, the government is operating a fertilizer plant on the islands for disposing of the carcase, from which there also is extracted an oil used for dressing tops of automobiles.

ELECTRIC IRON WAS CAUSE OF BLAZE

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—An electric iron left turned on when the power was off Tuesday afternoon during a storm resulted in an outbreak of fire, when the "juice" came back, and two stores and a cottage, situated on the outskirts of the city, were completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

The name "Bayer" identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

BRITAIN SPENT MORE IN LAST SIX THAN IN PRECEDING 226 YEARS

FROM 1688 TO 1914 EXPENDITURE 50 BILLIONS—SINCE 1914 HAS SPENT OR LENT 55 BILLIONS—TAXES BECOMING INJURIOUS TO INDUSTRY,

LONDON.—The most significant fact of the week was the announcement by the Government that $1,500,000,000 of the excess profits duty is in arrears.

This is the heaviest blow that has yet been dealt to the Chamberlain system of taxation. It shows that the excess profits duty is uncollectible and that it is being fought by passive resistance.

There is also an open and active resistance to the excess profits duty. Last week a full page advertisement appeared in the leading newspapers, calling on taxpayers to protest against the "frenzied finance" of Chamberlain.

This advertisement was paid for by the "National Union of Manufacturers." It distinctly threatened that unless the excess profits duty were lowered or abolished, hundred of factories will close their doors.

The fact is that most firms have been compelled to use their excess profits as capital. They cannot borrow any more from the banks. One bank, last week, demanded 16 per cent. from a firm of high repute.

One Midland firm has received a letter from a Government lawyer, threatening proceedings unless $90,000 of over-due excess profits duty is paid in seven days. The firm replies that it has no money—that it was forced by Government orders to enlarge its equipment and that it has borrowed up to the limit.

Also, it has just been made known that the Government will be compelled, during this year, to pay back $100,000,000 of excess profits duty, because a large number of firms are now being run at a loss.

So, the problem is—how many bricks can you take out of a house, without tumbling the whole house down?

Many signs show that taxation has now reached a height at which it is destructive. An excessive tax kills itself; and the excess profits duty is being found to be suicidal. It is inflicting a loss on British industry which is far greater than the amount of the tax itself.

Orders for 76 large ships were canceled last week, for instance. Several Bradford mills have stopped half of their looms. Messrs. Sperilng & Co. have withdrawn from an arrangement to buy Baldwins, a $10,000,000 steel company, alleging that the 60 uer cent. excess profits duty makes the purchase impossible.

In short, the situation is that the British taxpayer has balked. He has buttoned his pockets. He is on the defenisve, against a government whose appetite for taxes is insatiable.

Every week some new exposure is made of the wastefulness of the Government departments. It has just been learned that there are 210 officials who are receiving salaries of $10,000 a year—that one error in a railroad contract cost $5,000,000 a year—that the various departments employ 3,658 charwomen, and so on.

The total expenditure of the British Government, from 1688 to 1914, was only $50,000,000,000 in round figures. Since 1914, the British Government has spent or lent $55,000,000,000.

More has been spent in the last six years than in the previous 226. Fifty-five billions in six years!

The British are good losers, but this is too much. Now that trade and commerce are becoming normal, there is a demand that taxation, too, must become normal.

A strong public opinion is forming in favor of the historic British policy of "Peace, Retrenchment and Reform." The average Britisher feels that enough blood and treasure has been spent by this generation. He wants quiet and a chance to save a bit.

Above all else, at the moment, he wants a statesman who understands finance, who will save his credit without destroying his trades and industries.

HIT SHELL WITH STONE.

And Bullet Lacerated One Boy's Knees and Injured Other's Side.

KINGSTON, Aug. 6.—Picking up a bullet from a 22-calibre revolver on the street this afternoon, Tommy Bristlon and Harold Dumpsy hit it with a stone and both were badly injured, the former having both his knees badly lacerated and the latter suffering injuries to his right side. While their condition is serious, it is expected both will recover. Dr. R. J. Gardiner happened to be calling at the home of one of the boys when the accident happened and attended to them.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

PROGRAM OF EVENTS FOR THE HOLIDAY

ATTRACTIONS AT EXHIBITION PARK AND STONEY LAKE REGATTA ARE FEATURES FOR MONDAY.

BASEBALL IN MORNING

The approach of Civic holiday finds the citizens confronted not with the difficult of amusing themselves on the holiday, but with the difficulty of picking a means of recreation from the many offered. The following information may be of assistance in picking a holiday outing.

At Exhibition Grounds.

In town the feature of the day, one which should add to the stay-at-home class, will be the programme offered by the Exhibition Board at Exhibition Park. This will consist of three horse races, for which, because of the attraction of the $1,300 in purses, there should be entered one of the fastest fields ever seen here. The Guelph Jazz Band, one of the outstanding organizations of its kind in the Province, will provide the music. This band not only plays jazz selections, as its name would indicate, but is proficient in the classics. Peterborough has had plenty of opportunity to judge of the excellence of the Exhibition Board's holiday entertainments, and this should equal any previous programme.

The Chautauqua.

Then there is the Chautauqua, whose excellence is well known locally. On Monday, the first day of the Chautauqua here, the afternoon programme will consist of a concert by the London Concert Company, piano, violin, soprano, baritone, and a mixed quartet. The evening programme will consist of another concert by the London Concert Company and a lecture by Capt. R. J. J. Watt on "Britain and Her Problems."

Polack Brothers' Shows.

The Polack Shows will open at the Exhibition Park on Monday, and after their performance last year, will need no introduction to Peterborough.

Classics vs. Peterborough C.P.C.

The morning at 10.30 o'clock will see one of the fastest baseball games played in Peterborough this season, when the Classics, of Toronto, winners of the Riverdale League, meet the Peterborough Central Ontario League team. Both teams have a long record of victories, and a merry little scrap should ensue when the two teams clash.

Stoney Lake Regatta.

Outside the city the premier attraction will be the Stoney Lake Regatta. This is always the outstanding regatta of the season, and attending it has become an annual custom with many citizens. Special boat service to Juniper Island will be run. Steamers "Stoney Lake" and "Manita" will leave the George Street Wharf on Monday morning at 8 o'clock. Meals will be served on board, and music will be provided for dancing. Steamers will connect with the Grand Trunk trains at Lakefield for Juniper.

Trip to Hastings.

The Catholic Order of Foresters are running a trip to Hastings per the steamer "Rainbow." This is an excellent opportunity to enjoy the cool breezes and beautiful scenery of the lower Otonabee, Rice Lake and the Trent River.

Trip to Harwood.

The steamer "Geneva" is running a special trip to Harwood and Gore's Landing, leaving the George Street Wharf at 9 o'clock. This trip to these beautiful Rice Lake resorts should be most enjoyable.

Miscellaneous.

Boating and canoeing on the river and trips to Chemong and other summer resorts always provide a pleasant holiday recreation.

SECRET OF MOOR.

Body Found after Three Hundred Years.

Embedded in tht turf of a Caithness moor, a few mils north of Wick, a body was found which is believed to have been buried during the later years of the 17th century. It is that of a man in the full drss of the period. He wore a coat and undercoat, knee breeces and underbreeches, but no vestige of any underclothing, a habit that was quite common among the Scottish peasantry centuries ago. The clothing was sent to the Antiquarian Museum in Edinburgh. An examination of the coins found in the pockets confirmed the belief that the man died towards the end of the 17th century. He may have been the victim of a murder.

Clean Milk

All the milk we sell is cleansed and purified by means of a De Laval Milk Clarifier, a centrifugal machine.

The scientific application of centrifugal force removes every particle of undesirable matter. The best milk in the world is improved by this process. No strainer or filter can accomplish anything like the same result.

Clarified milk is simply pure, clean natural milk containing every essential food element without change of any kind. The cream is not separated and nothing is added.

You will find this milk more palatable and satisfactory than any milk any one has ever furnished. We know you will appreciate its greater cleanliness, purity and wholesomeness.

We know that you would use more milk in your home if you knew how our milk is produced and handled.

LAWN AND GARDEN CONTEST ENTRIES BY TUESDAY NEXT

THOS. M'VITTIE, GARDENER FOR SIR HENRY PELLETT, WILL BE THE JUDGE.

Considerable numbers of entries are expected in the Annual Lawn and Garden Competition to be held as usual under the auspices of the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

All residents of the city are eligible to make entries, for which no fee is charged; but must be made in writing to the Secretary, Peterborough Horticultural Society, Board of Trade Chambers, on or not later than August 10th.

The competitions will be held between August 16th and 21st, and the Society is particularly fortunate in the almost certain possibility of securing the well known horticulturist, chief gardener for Sir Henry Pellatt, Mr. Thos. McVittie, to act as official judge.

It would be discouraging to Mr. McVittie and the Society if only a limited few entered the competition as it is at a considerable inconvenience that he is able to visit Peterborough.

So it is earnestly desired that as many citizens as possible make entries in the various competitions. The parents will particularly notice competion, Class "E" for children; and factory, church and school officials should make as many entries as possible in Classes "F," "G" and "H."

Competitions.

Class A. Open to all for best kept grounds surrounding premises. 1st prize, the F. W. Adam's Cup for one year; 2nd prize, $5.00, and 3rd, $3.00.

Class B. Amateurs only, for best lawn and surroundings. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class C. Workingmen only, for best garden and surroundings. 1st prize $5.00, 2nd $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class D. Best display of window boxes, hanging baskets or urns. 1st prize $5.00, 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class E. Best flower-bed cared for solely by boy or girl, 16 years of age or under. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3,00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class F. Best kept factory grounds. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00, and 3rd, $2.00.

Class G. Best kept church grounds. 1st prize, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; and 2rd, $2.00.

Class H. Best kept school grounds. 1st prize $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; and 3rd, $2.00.

Fall Bulbs.

Through arrangements made by the Society Executive, fall bulb options will be delivered to the members from an order placed in December of last year with the largest bulb dealers in Holland, Van Meeuwen and Tegelaar. This arrangement will ensure to the members as early a delivery of bulbs as would be possible.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Clergymen in more than thirty churches in London have pledged themselves not to re-marry persons who have been divorced or who have obtained a divorce.

THE COMMON STREET

The common street climbed up against the sky,
Gray meeting gray; and wearily to and fro
I saw the patient common people go,
Each with his sordid burden trudging by
And the rain dropped; there was not and sigh
Or stir of a live wind; dull, dull and slow
All motion; as a tale told long ago
The faded world; and creeping night drew night.
Then burst the sunset, flooding far and fleet,
Leavening the whole of life with magic leaven.
Suddenly down the long wet glistening hill
Pure splendour poured—and, lo! the common street,
A golden highway into golden heaven,
With the dark shapes of men ascending still.

The August Sale of Furniture

Have You Joined the Throng of Satisfied People Who Have Purchased During This Sale?

Some people have been surprised at the magnitude of our stock and others at the quality of it If they come to-day or to-morrow, or any time during this sale, they will be surprised at the low prices. Of course those who come early will have the best selection.

We made preparations for this sale as we never did before, and, judging by the way the furniture is moving, we were justified.

We went to great trouble to secure stock and made investments six months ago, that enabled us to secure this furniture at old prices, and we pass it along to you, and you benefit by our expenditures of six months back.

QUARTER OF AN HOUR LEFT FOR THE ALLIES TO STRIKE

IGNACE PADERWSKI, FAMOUS POLISH PIANIST AND FORMER PREMIER, SAYS POLAND HAS NOT BEEN THE AGGRESSOR—REVIEWS RECENT HISTORY.

SEES GERMAN TRIUMPH

Ignace Paderewski, former Premier of Poland, said to Charles H. Grasty on Wednesday :

"The world should clearly understand that there has been no Polish invasion of Russian territory. The Bolshevik, with their world-wide propaganda, have succeeded in driving that lie home. All Polish military activities have been crossed it has been purely for the purpose of checking Russian aggression in another quarter. Such moves have been simply ordinary military strategy pursued in every war. Poland has no designs of conquest or aggrandizement. She has simply been trying against tremendous odds to preserve herself as a free country and remain faithful to her alliances.

"These later military operations, of course, have been carried on under another government than mine. As Prime Minister I had to refuse to end hostilities by accepting an opportunity for making peace with the Soviet Government. When that opportunity was presented about a year ago I came to Paris and laid the matter before the Supreme Council, as I was in duty bound to do. It was Clemenceau who spoke for that body, with the assent of the other members. 'For Poland to make peace with Bolshevism is impossible,' he said. I took these orders back to Warsaw, and they have been carried out to the full extent of Poland's power to carry them out.

"What have been the conditions under which we took over the burden of maintaining our newly organized State and making it a barrier for Western Europe against Bolshevism. With the defeat of Kolchak and Denikin, Moscow's internal authority was established and the Government retained vast supplies of every kind. We had the moral authority of the Entente, but we lacked everything else except men and patriotic spirit. Our people were ready to make a stand with adequate arms and food to preserve their newly acquired freedom.

Lack of Arms and Military Experience.

"But we could not obtain sufficient means for meeting the common enemy, flushed by victory, fully equipped and supplied, well trained and well led. Dantzig had been denied us and we were without a seaport. Trains loaded with supplies for us were frequently detained by Czechoslovakia when despatched by her railroads. Although once possessing great military traditions, these had been lost during our period of slavery. Our soldiers were insufficiently trained and we lacked officers.

"Under such circumstances we took our stand against our brutal enemy. The Bolshevik have practised against us atrocities never before heard of. These have not been merely excesses here and there but ordered as a part of their campaign against Poland, whose inhabitants are peculiarly the object of their hate. I will not attempt to give details which are unpublishable. Of the organized mob thatour people, almost naked and unarmed, have been put up against. This is the kind of civilization which with its boot on the neck of prostrate Poland, will have unbarred the way to the West.

"I say unbarred, for I don't count Germany a bar. Germany is playing her own game, not as a desperate and defeated country, but as a people still possessing chaarcteristic cunning and energy, and in a high state of organization. Don't believe for an instant that Germany is planless. I said long ago that the Allies' victory on the western front might prove to be a German victory. Germany went into the war for the uncondiional conquest of Europe. She would have succeeded but for America. When America came in and showed her strength it compelled the Germans to fall back upon the second plan which they held in reserve. That was to control Russia. Not for a single moment has Berlin modified or abandoned that plan.

"It is a wonderfully able plan. It has the very logic of nature and events behind it. Nothing can prevent its realization. If the worst should happen in Poland ,except such drastic measures as only something like a general panic would enable the generous peoples of Western Europe to carry out.

"Time fights on the side of Germany. All the deep forces converge toward her success. Bolshevism prepares the ground for her by levelling down the whole framework of old Russia, but leaving all the materials which German genius and energy will know how to mold into an empire along with the empire she has lost will be as a pigmy to a giant. The powers of resistance will have been dissipated in Russia's effort to infect the world with her evil spirit. She will be exhausted and reactionary and reary for strong and sustained mastery with Germany, only superficially beaten and with her spirit absolutely unbroken, is preparing to project over the whole east. She will find there the material, inanimate, which even the United States cannot match for the development and upbuilding which at first the west, in its fear of Bolshevism, may welcome as the better choice of evils.

Resolrces Open to Germany.

"Germany can mobilize the greatest supply of labor the world has ever known, from sixty to eighty millions of men, in China and India, men who can and will work for a shilling a day and a handful of rice. If that direction is to be looked for the future German Empire, reared in the ruin of England, the ruin of France and perhaps even the ruin of America.

"It is not merely a hope. It is a definite plan. It is the mind of every thinking German. Ambition has suffered nothing by military defeat. It has only been inflamed and intensified. With vindictive hearts they bide the time when their superior power to wield collective action and patiently to sustain it in the face of all obstacles will enable them to rise again from the military defeat which they regard as attributable to casual circumstances.

'Germany may and probably will set up such opposition as will send Bolshevism to the south. It will come westward around Germany and by way of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, Jugo-slavia and Italy.

You ask me whether Germany can cope with Spartacanism and thus exploit Bolshevism against her own enemies, keeping herself intact. I believe that she can and will. The differences among Germans are skin deep and mostly fake. Down underneath is Germanism held in common and drawn upon by the people more than ever because of unsympathetic association with other peoples. They are distrusted, ostracized. 'Very well,' they say, 'we know ourselves, we have shown what we can do. We will co-operate. We will stive. We will build as erate. We will strive. We will build as mistakes again.'

Germans Will Triumph.

"The Germans live within themselves and for themselves and are contemptuous of the contempt of others. They wil dig their way out of their difficutlies and in the end triumph over their enemies. Prussianized Germans possess certain bad qualities which are the source of their strength. I am trying to consider them objectively and without prejudice. If in addition to these qualities they had certain others they might be the ruling race in the world .They lack sensibilities and fellowship. They are always out of touch with the finer instincts of their fellows.

"The utter self-centredness of the ruling class made Germany blind to the higher considerations which actuated other nations and resulted in her defeat. But it is this very self-centredness that enables them to persist in circumstances that would lay any other nation in the dust. She has no sense of humiliation. The moral side of her unsuccessful attempt to impose her might upon the world does not come home to her. But by the same sign she is able to live to herself and do without outside esteem and sympathy. All her patience, persistence and cunning remain unimpaired.

"These qualities in one degree or another are possessed by all Germans and unite them in a solidarity of feeling and action that nothing can shake. To expect Germany to do anything for the common good is the merest moonshine. She should be disarmed to the very last gun for she would never use her military for anything from which the Allies could derive benefit.

Allies Must Fight Bolshevism.

"If any successful move against Bolshevism is to be made the Allies must make it now. There is a last quarter of an hour when it is possible to crush out this sinister thing at one blow. The Bolsheviki have military forces not of two or three millions but only of two or three hundred thousand. A good allied army of that number can put an end to the Bolshevist advance in the west. Lenin and Trotzky are bluffing. They hope to make an appearance of military strength and by success in Poland to work up sympathy and prestige along their route and westward that will provide the necessary new momentum to carry forward their movement:

This is the last qaurter of an hour in the war after the war, fraught with greater consequences than the war itself. By swift, strong, concerted action Germany and Bolshevism in alliance can be checked.

"To what our Allies will contribute in this emergency Poland will add its all. She will give her life and property. She has had sacrifices, suffering and poverty. She will exchange them for desolation and extinction if need be, if upon her blood-soaked soil may be ended her long slavery and to her posterity may be bequeathed liberty to live and privilege to be associated on terms of equality with the free and enlightened peoples of the earth."

WOMAN'S NO. 6 FOOT WINS BEAUTY PRIZE

DISPROVES OPINION THAT SMALLNESS IS ESSENTIAL.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 6.— At a recent foot competition at the Canadian Exhibition, Islington, it was established that a woman's foot not be small to be beautiful. The prize in the competition, which was arranged by C. H. Babor, was awarded to the wearer of a size 6 shoe, Miss Phyllis Bowell, a stenographer.

Miss Bowell's foot was described by Mr. Babor as almost perfectly proportioned according to the measurements drawn up by the Canadian bootmakers. For the size 6, fitting 1, the measurement should be: Instep, 8 3-8 inches; waist (round the hollow of the foot) 7 5-8 inches; ball 7 3-4 inches.

The winner's foot differed scarcely 1-16 of an inch from these measurements. The runner-up lost the prize because her instep was just 1-8 inch too high. There were nearly 100 competitors with feet of all sizes from children's 13 to women's 8.

Mr. Babor who is the London agent for the Canadian Shoe Manufacturers, gave out the ideal proportions for a woman's and a man's foot. According to Canadiai measurements a woman who takes o 5 1-2 shoe, he said, should have a foot of the following proportions: Instep 8 1-4 inches; waist, 7 5-8 inches; ball, 7 6-7 inches.

The correct proportions for a man who takes an 8 1-2 shoe should be Instep, 9 inches; waist, 8 3-8 inches; ball, 8 1-2 inches.

"English women's feet are just as beautiful and well proportioned as those of the women of other countries." Mr. Baber said. "The average English girl, however, makes the mistake ofr wearing too small a shoe, so that the foot looks clumsy and squatty, when it should look slender and graceful."

SOCIETY MAIDENS WEAVING APRONS

THE APRON GOWN IS NOW THE SMARTEST THING.

By Margaret Robe.

The apron no more makes the maid,
It makes the grand dame hifty,
And nowadays it's being worn
By sweet sixteen and fifty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. — Just at first it's rather a rude shock to glimpse blue blooded Percy Von Gotrox dining at the Ritz with a chic parlor maid all done up in her lace trimmed collar and cuffs and unmistakable sheer lawn and lacy edged apron, nother blow is to see young Gerald Manhattan doing a first night with a companion as aproned as one of the young usherettes. Truly this seems carrying proverbial American democracy a bit too far. However, if we must give up the limousine evenings and turn the drawing room over Thursdays and Sundays in order to keep the help, perhaps we shouldn't balk at going a bit further and offering our male relatives as escorts for little social junkets at the smart hotels and restaurants occasionally.

Still, it's really rather a relief to discover that Percy von Gotrox's chic parlor maid is Mrs. von herself or that Gerald Manhattan's aproned companion is no other than Lady Vere de Vere. For the apron is no longer the badge of service or domesticity, it has become the smartest touch on the season's newest frocks. The favored apron gown is developed in either black satin or black taffeta with the apron of sheerest organdie, embroidered with striking effect on such sombre background. The skirt of the apron gown is always short and buffant and the bodice of the basque order, with short above-the-elbow sleeves. These sleeves are often finished with a tiny cuff to match the apron and a round collar or fichu effect to match outlines the low neck line. Sometimes a bib to match the apron is carried up to trim the bodice and nothing seems lacking then save the cap to make that perfect first act parlor maid who dusts the gilded chairs of every current musical comedy.

Next to the black apron frocks those of grey crepe de chine with deep cuffs and wide round collar of thin organdie to match an all-over apron, that goes quite around the skirt like a voluminous apron of the nurse-maid type, are deliciously demure and Quakerish in their ensemble. .Brown taffeta dresses aproned in beige net or coarse meshed ecru filet are also good and even evening frocks of pastel taffeta, do not despise the apron touch, if it be built of gold or silver lace, garlanded in French ribbon flowers.

Some smart navy blue models show aprons of heavy linen lavishly embroidered in gay colored wools like the aprons of the Roumanian peasants and even thin wash summer dresses of organdie, linen, dotted swiss and voile, where they do not boast virtual aprons, simulate this newest pet of the mode by outlining oval apron shape in narrow flutted rufflings or in the case of the heavier linen, by an appliqued outline of braid or embroidery.

A WORD TO WIVES

Perhaps as many as two hundred people were sitting, after dinner, in the long hotel parlor, and on the verandah. Most of them were married couples past forty. Probably not one of them could have qualified as a plutocrat; but they belonged to the prosperous class—were abel to run away from th eNorthern March and sun themselves in a friendlier climate until spring came on at home. They were materially successful people and the observant doctor remarked that as a whole the men had achieved a decidedly higher material success than the women had in the matter of health. As a whole they looked younger, more vigorous, better set up. There were women who looked sound and vigorous, too. Others, more common than among the men, looked flabby ,their faces aged and ailing.

Except for a couple of valetudinarians, the men weer physically active during the day. Most of them played golf; even about the hotel they were on their feet. The average of bodily activity among the women was lower. Some of them, who plainly needed exercise most, spent hours in rocking chairs or permitted themselves to be hoisted in and out of automobiles.

You can multiply that hotel by thousands. The country is sprinkled with sanitariums. They are pretty much inhabited by middle aged women. The number of women by no means old according to the calendar, who could not walk five miles along a level road without going to bed for the rest of the day or the week is appalling. They are virtually decrepit at forty-five: so nearly used up physically that any unusual exercise floors them.

It is the result of bad living—or immoral living, for laziness is a vice. For years they saw to the housework; then dressed up and sat around when they ought to have been out plowing or spading the garden, if they could find no pleasanter way of exercising their muscles. When a middle aged man marries a young woman the bodily disparity between them is often much less than that between a middle aged man and a middle aged woman.—Saturday Evening Post .

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED
Face Was Badly Disfigured. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.
"Small red pimples and blackheads began on my face and my face was badly disfigured. Some of the pimples festered while others scaled over and there were places where the pimples were in blotches. They used to itch and burn terribly.

"I saw an advertisement for Cuticura and I tried them. They stopped the itching and burning and I used four cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment which healed me." (Signed) Miss V. A. Hayne, Stormont, N. S., Dec. 26, '19.

HOSPITAL RECORDS OF OLD

In its long history since the 12th century, when it was built, St. Bartholomew's Hospital and Church have undergone many changes. Henry VIII. destroyed part of the nave, and the central tower was pulled down and replaced in 1628.

The crypt was turned into coal and wine cellars. In the north transept a blacksmith's forge was set up, and the smoke from his fire can be seen on the blackened walls to this days. Part of the triforium was turned into a Nonconformist Sunday School, and another part served as a lace and fringe factory. In the Lady Chapel a printer set up in business, and here —it is vastly interesting to note— Benjamin Franklin set type during his first sojourn in London.

Another part of the church was turned into stables. Desecration such as this went on until fifty years ago, when a process of restoration began, and has continued until now, reverently and carefully, so that as one stands in the ancient building to-day it is easy to pass backward through the centuries and imagine oneself in the presence of Rahere himself, superintending the early stages of his noble work.

Seven Great Men.

Sir Norman Moore speaks of seven great men who have added to the fame and usefulness of the hospital. First there was Rahère, of whom we have spoken. The second was Rahere's immediate successor, Thomas of Osyth's, who, as the author says, "is to us more than a venerable canon regular of the Order of St. Augustine, since, by his regulation of the relations of the Hospital and the Priory, he gave to the former that independence which enabled it to weather the storm of dispossession which raged in the reign of King Henry VIII." The third was Alexander of Smithfield, a century scribe, whose fine vellum, unfading ink and beautiful hand writing preserved so much of the social history of his time. John Cook, a brother of the hospital, wrote its cartulary, and so preserved most of its history up to the end of the reign of Henry VI. The famous Dr. John Caius was a tenant in the hospital, and had a profound influence on it as president of the College of Physicians.

Suggested Shylock.

Under the new order a physician was specially attached to St. Bartholomew's, and the first was the notorious Dr. Roderigo Lopus (Lopez) a skilful Portugeuse Jew, who became physician to the Queen's Household and was executed at Tyburn in 1594, after being convicted of plotting to poison Queen Elizabeth. Marlowe and Middleton refer to him by name, and it is suggested that Shakespeare had him in mind when he drew Shylock.

Wooden Legs, 32 Cents.

In the ledgers of the hospital, Sir Norman Moore found numberless facts of interest and importance. In 1547 the hospital received £1 1s 4d for letting "booths" within the hospital during the time of Bartholomew Fair. We find payments made to the surgeons for treating the cases "For healyng of Jone Smythe of a sore arme; for healyng of Agnes Charwarde of the byting of a dogge, 5s." Sometimes the patients on leaving the hospital received grants of money. "Item to an Yrishe man and two maides at their departing, 2s 4d." Wooden legs were also supplied, and the usual price was 1s 4d.

One of the greatest contrasts between those distant days and these turns on the relative values attached medicinally to various kinds of food and drink. Consider the diet in 1687. On Sunday the patients were allowed ten ounces of wheaten bread, six ounces of boiled beef without bones, a pint and a half of beef broth, a pint of ale caudel, and three pints of 6s beer. During the week the beef was varied by mutton, cheese or "sugar soppes," but the three pints of beer were never omitted.

"Bart's" To-Day.

And what of "Bart's" to-day. As full of life and interest as ever, if we may judge from Sir Norman Moore's ponderous but delightful tomes. "One day," he says, "you see a woman from Madras with a jewelled stud fastened to her nose; another time a Malay from Singapore; icemen and orangemen, who speak curious dialects of Italian; and sometimes Welsh patients, who know little or no English, but are familiar with the Bible in its fine Cymric version, and with other parts of their native literature.

"An old man was brought into a surgical ward, having been knocked down by an omnibus while selling nuts from a barrow. He spoke incoherently, as if he did not understand the question put to him, but when addressed as his name suggested in Irish, at once explained that his coat had been taken away, and that he must have it back. He had come to London from a remote part of County Cork thirty years before, and had since sold nuts in the street without learning more than a little English. His coat had sewn into it £170 in notes and gold.

Sister's Sacrifice.

"I tried to persuade a young woman an out-patient, to come into the hospital. 'I cannot,' she said, 'for my brother is in now, and who would wash his clothes for him if I came in?' She promised to come when he was well, but she postponed her treatment too long and lost her life."

40,000 FARMERS TO OUST MIDDLEMAN

NEBRASKA ORGANIZATION HAS ELEVATORS AND GENERAL STORES.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 7.—What is said to be the largest co-operative organization of farmers in the United States has just been formed here. It will market the grain of the 40,000 members of the Nebraska Farmers' Union and eliminate middlemen and brokers.

The organization, known as the National Co-operative Company, with a capital authorized at $2,000,000 according to G. H. Gustafson, of Lincoln, president of the state union and organizer and president of the company, has 1,500 locals, 300 grain elevators, 50 general stores, three creameries and two flour mills, besides nearly a hundred shipping associations.

The union also has a live stock commission office in the yards of Omaha, Sioux City, St. Joseph and Denever, and a big wholesale exchange in Omaha that carries everything from farm implements to groceries to supply its retail stores.

The corporations, Mr. Gustafson said, expects soon to build or lease a big terminal elevator in Lincoln or Omaha and negotiations are in progress for seats on the Lincoln and the Omaha grain exchanges.

A regular commission business will be conducted for local companies participating. Mr. Gustafson said, and net profits will be pro-rated on the basis of business done, after the company pays eight per cent. dividends on its stock.

The corporation also plans to find a market for all farm products, to locate and build elevators and to give technical assistance in bookkeeping and accounting methods to participating members

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC. It Makes the Hair Beautiful and Lustrous.

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy the Pest Dandruff.

That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person. Dandruff is the root of hair evils. DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in ten days, or money back.

The manufacturer guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning grey, and adds life and lustre. DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC is a hair dressing that has become the favorite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only $1.00 at leading druggists everywhere. The name "DELMAY'S FRENCH HAIR TONIC" is on every bottle.

PONZI PREPARING FOR BIGGER DEALS

SAYS HE WILL START A 200 MILLION DOLLAR COMPANY.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 6.—The Chas. Ponzi affair both deepens and expands as the days go on. The wizard now announces that the Chas. Ponzi Company will open for business next Monday, that a new corporation of $200,000,000 capital is being launched to be known as the Commonwealth Trading and Securities Company, this concern to constitute a string of banks, an export business and steamship lines. In the event of this concern starting business, his present concern, the Securities Exchange, may go out of business.

With United States District Attorney Gallagher in Washington today conferring with Attorney-Gen. Palmer on the Ponzi investigation, an immediate declaration of what the probe has brought to light thus far, and what action, if any, the Government intends to take against the young Boston financier, is looked for. Every phase of the development in the case was laid bare before the Attorney-General, who has, ever since the Ponzi mystery was brought to his attention, manifested a keen interest in the case.

Payments to note holders of Ponzi's school street office continued to-day, the majority presenting matured notes, although the number grows smaller each day.

PARIS SHOWS STILL SHORTER FALL SKIRTS

SLEEVES LIKEWISE, BUT NECKS, LIKE PRICES, ARE HIGHER.

PARIS, August 6. — Name of a name, but this is a great day in Paris!

The fall fashion show has opened to discover the skirt rapidly disappearing. Thousands spent the day with their noses flattened against the plate glass shop windows behind which beautiful mannikens displayed the new fashions.

Hundreds of tourists struggled for places next to the windows. In the more exclusive shops all the accents of North and South America could be heard as the spectators uttered exclamations as they surged against the silken ropes which kept the crowd from swarming into the "ring" where models languidly strolled about.

The peek-aboo skirt was the hit of the show. The garment is composed of two panels, one in front and one behind. The panels overlap, and are stitched only part way down, so that a breeze (censored.)

The less extreme fall skirts are two inches shorter than last season's, and correspondingly tighter. Prices also are reaching new altitudes. Sleeves also are shorter but necks are high- er. Some of the collars are designed to touch the ears.

Fluffy ruffles and transparencies are favored in evening gowns. Colors are astonishing—lemon yellow and silver for example, trimmed with silver lace and chinchilla fur with a low V-back and a barbaric beaded ornament hanging down to fill the V.

Wraps also have a punch this season. One which attracted much attention from sedate, middle class tourists was cloth of gold lined with ermine.

Experts say the styles lack any new constructive ideas and are simply a readaptation of those of 1914, with novelties. Some novelties!

SECRET OF THE DESERT.
(From Asia.)

"History is against the probability of the creation of an Arabian empire. The Semitic mind does not lean toward system or organization," said Colonel Thomas E. Lawrence recently.

"The Semites are represented by very little art, architecture, philosophy. But we find an amazing fertility among the Semites in the creation of creeds and religions. Three of these creeds—Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism—have become great world movements. The broken fragments of countless religions which have failed are found to-day on the fringes of the desert.

"The desert seems to produce only one idea—the universality of God. We, who have gone out to discover the meaning of the desert, have found only emptiness—nothing but sand, wind, soil and empty spaces. The Bedouins leave behind them every extraneous comfort and go to live in the desert, in the very arms of starvation, that they may be free. The desert exacts a price for its secret. It makes the Bedouins entirely useless to their fellow men. There has never been a Bedouin prophet. On the other hand, there has never been a Semitic prophet who has not, before preaching his message, gone into the desert and caught from the desert dwelers a reflection of their belief. The idea of the absolute worthlessness of the present world is a pure desert conception, at the root of every Semitic religion, which must be filtered through the screen of a non-nomad prophet before it can be accepted by a settled people."

GERMAN SOLDIERS FOR STATE INDUSTRIES.

BERLIN, July 20. — A practical suggestion to solve the vexed problem what to do with 100,000 army men, who in compliance with a Spa undertaking, are facing discharge, is offered by the "economic union of German professional soldiers" which has worked out a scheme to distribute the men in different state-owned plants which are at the present moment lying idle. The German government is to subsidize working expenses of these plants and fix a scale of wages. The operation of the plants would constitute a novelty because they would be worked on the principle of "mutual comradeship," and the relationship of employer and workmen would be eliminated. The government would take over the main output of the plants and there would be planned extensive land settlements on state owned lands which the workers could cultivate and on which they would build their own dwellings after performing eight hours daily factory work. The promoters claim that the scheme has already secured official support on principle.

All Prussian district presidents have been summoned to meet Minister Severing to confer on matters affecting the security police.

UNITED DRUG CO. BUYS 632 BRITISH STORES

BOOT'S PURE DRUG CO. NOW PART OF REXALL SYSTEM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Kidder, Peabody & Co., and F. S. Moseley & Co., are offering $7,500,000 8% cumulative preferred stock of Ligett's International Ltd., Inc., at $50 a share to yield 8%.

The total authorized is $35,000,000. The amount being offered is the first to be issued. There will be set aside $15,000,000 to be exchanged for United Drug Co. first preferred.

Ligett's International owns all of the common stock of Boot's Pure Drug Co., Ltd., of England, which last year did a gross business of more than $35,000,000 at its 622 stores. It controls also the British and Canadian business of United Drug, which includes 31 of the company's own stores and 1,828 stockholder agents.

Dividends on Liggett's International preferred are guaranteed by United Drug Co. and are payable February, May August and November. The issue is callable at $60 and accrued dividends.

Business of United Drug last year [illegible] profits to $4,207,000. It operates the Liggett Drug Stores chain and has approximately 10,000 Stockholder agents operating under the title of Rexall Stores.

In the twelve months ended March 31, 1020, combined net earnings of United Drug and 4 companies composing Liggett's International were between three and four times the requirements for the preferred dividend guarantee.

It is the intention of the company to make application for listing the preferred upon the New York and Boston Stock Exchange and to issue interchangeable certificates negotiable in either city.

THE MIGHTY HAVE FALLEN.

German Officers Rush for Job of Hotel Porter.

(By Canadian Press)

VIENNA, Aug. 6.—A major-general, three majors and twelve captains recently applied for the vacant post of doorkeeper at a big local hotel.

The advertised pay was about $18,900 a year. In the topsy-turvy condition of Austrian finances, this is not much. Bootmakers in this city receive $17,000 a year, while magistrates, whose sale of pay has not altered since the war, only have just

The Friendly Smoke

THERE is something mighty comforting and satisfying about "OLD CHUM" Tobacco; a sort of soothing restfulness that pipe smokers have come to associate with this friendly smoke.

"OLD CHUM" is an old, old chum with all pipe smokers.

It has the perfect tobacco taste—the mellow richness—and men know that they can be chummy with "OLD CHUM" all day long and that the "good night pipeful" will be as sweet and cool as the one enjoyed just after breakfast.

For years and years "OLD CHUM" has been Canada's favourite pipe tobacco and today is more popular than ever.

LACROSSE GROUP DECISIONS BRING LOCALS INTO PLAY

With the exception of the senior series and one or two groups in the other series, winners have been declared in most of the O.A.L.A. groups. One semi-final has already been arranged in the intermediate series. Sarnia play at Durham on Wednesday, August 11th; and the return game takes place at Sarnia on Saturday, August 14th. The group winners are:

Intermediate

No. 1—Durham.
No. 2—St. Mary's.
No. 3—Orangeville or Weston
No. 4—Mimico (likely).
No. 5—Bracebridge.
No. 6—Sarnia.
No. 7—Peterborough.

Peterborough's first league game will probably be with Bracebridge. The locals are practicing faithfully and are in good condition. Another exhibition game is desirable and one may be arranged. The Bracebridge trip will mean heavy traveling expenses. This is the only difficulty the Peterborough club is worrying about. The first game will be a real test of the ability of the Sutherland clan, and the team is confident they will make a good showing.

MARATHONERS HAD WORKOUT AUG. 8TH

COACH WALTER KNOX APPEARED SATISFIED—CANADA'S SPRINTER THERE.

ANTWERP, Aug. 6.—The Canadian Olympic runners had a thorough workout yesterday in the Marathon and the sprints. Archie McDiarmid, John McEachern and John Cameron practiced with the weights, and E. C. Fredman did a little walking exercise. They all showed excellent form, and Coach Walter Knox appeared to be quite satisfied with their training.

Rain during the past few days has made the track in the stadium very heavy, and interfered somewhat with the training of the Canadians who have been accompanied in their workouts by the Italians, Japanese and others. The Japanese seem to be training harder than any of the other contestants. The dirt and cinder paths have been damaged by the rain.

Swedes Strong.

The Australians and others who have entered in the bicycle sprints in the Velodrome on the ninth, are hard at work preparing for the events. The Swedish team, which is expected to arrive soon, will be even stronger than that which competed at Stockholm, according to information received here. Two sprinters, Enghdal and Holmstrom, in the Swedish tryouts made the 100 metres in near reord time.

Thompson, the Princeton athlete, who has been in England competing in the British amateur championships and the dual Oxford-Princeton meet, has arrived. He expects to be attached to the United States team when it arrives.

The archery competition in connection with the Olympic games was won by the Belgian team, which defeated the French 2,698 points to 2,491. Holland, although entered did not take part in this competition.

LAKEFIELD MUST PROVE FRED MOORE ELIGIBLE TO PLAY

The protest entered against Lakefield by the Norwood Club, who claim that Lakefield used a player in the last game between the two teams who was not eligible to play, was considered at a meeting of the East Peterborough Baseball League executive, at the Windsor Hotel last evening. Lakefield, Norwood, Keene and Douro Clubs were represented, the latter by Martin Coughlin.

Fred Moore, pitcher and second baseman on the Lakefield team is the player protested.

The Lakefield Club answered the protest with the statement that an affidavit would be produced from Moore's employer that the latter was in Lakefield on or before May 2rd3 of this year.

It was decided that the affidavit be placed in the hands of the secretary by 9 a.m. on Tuesday, August 10th. Such a document settles the argument and the Lakefield Club will proceed with arrangements to play O.B.A.A. games with Lindsay. Its non-arrival will necessitate another meeting of the league.

FIFTY MOTORLOADS OF PERTH FARMERS VISITING OXFORD.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 5. — With a view to getting some idea of the crop conditions, etc., in Oxford county, 50 motor loads of Perth County farmers and their wives were visiting in this vicinity to-day. Edward Adams and W. E. Thompson conducted them on a tour, which included visits to several prominent farms in Oxford.

MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY.

The iron and steel industry reflects an almost amazing development of efficiency. This has been secured by the ingenuity of the inventors who have perfected wonderful machinery. Some of it seems almost to act with conscious intelligence. In the case of steamers which are employed in transporting iron ore from Michigan and Minnesota to the manufacturing plants in the Pittsburg disrict and at Gary, efficieny is represented to its highest capacity. It is reportel that many times a single steamer has been loaded with a little over 10,000 gross tons of ore in less than minute. This has required very little manual labor, no more than control by a movement of the hand or arm. Efficiency makes it possible to unload a cargo of 10,000 tons in about four hours and at a cost of five cents a ton. It is no wonder in view of the fact that our resources in iron ore and in coke and limestene are so plentiful and have been placed by nature in proximity to the iron mines that the United States by the employment of wonderful machine efficiency has taken preeminence in the iron and steel industry of the world.—Exchange.

HELMER COMMITTED.

He Must Stand Trial for Murder of James Learne.

SIMCOE, Ont., Aug. 6. — Lorne Helmer was to-day committed for trial on the charge of murder, in connection with the death of James A. Learne, prominent farmer, of North Walsingham, on the latter's farm on July 13.

This was the result of the investigation before Magistrate John Abel, closely following the inquest before Coroner McGilverie, at Silver Hill, 12 miles from this town. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Learne met his death from external injuries received at the hands of Helmer. The chief witness at the inquest and at the preliminary investigation was Charles Helmer, brother of the accused.

SOME READY FOR WAR IF CALL COMES

ENQUIRIES AT PRINCIPAL CITIES BY RESERVISTS AND MEN WHO FOUGHT IN FRANCE.

IS NOT EXPECTED

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—While the official world is naturally reticent the disposition in Government and military circles at the capital is to believe that the threatened war between Great Britain and Russia will not materialize. The Militia Department have no advices relating to the situation, and if any have been received by the Government they are of a confidential character.

Officers Would Go.

The talk of the possibility of another European war has already shown a willingness on the part of officers and others who took part in the great war to again take a hand in the fighting game. Inquiries have already been received from officers desiring to hear of any opportunity to join the British Expeditionary Force, should one be sent to Poland. One of these inquiries has come all the way from Los Angeles, California. It is from a former chaplain in the Canadian army.

Reservists Queried.

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—The seriousness of the British-Russian-Polish situation was evidenced here to-day, when several officers of the Imperial Reserve admitted that they had been asked if they were ready to serve against the Bolsheviki. Many memebers of the Imperial Force now in Canada, have not yet been discharged from the service. A great many Royal Air Force veterans throughout the Dominion, do not expect their full discharge before December 1st. Canadian officers, who are on the British reserve list could not be called on to serve wthout the consent of the Government at Ottawa.

No Official Word.

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—Major E. Graham Joy, secreary of the Ontario Council has received no information as yet of any special action, and Major Bert S. Wemp, D.F.C., president of the Aero Club of Canada, states that no news has been received at the Aero Club headquarters, but they are not surprised at the prospec of a call bein gmade, owing to the large number of Canadians who were in the R.A.F. at the conclusion of hostilities.

At one time there were sixty-five per cent. Canadians on the front line in France, and a mobilization of aerial forces to any extent whatsoever would involve the Canadians who served during the war. They do not anticipate a call, however, as they are of the opinion, if aviators are wanted, there are an adequate number in Canada who would volunteer t once to serve overseas.

Eager in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—Imperial reservists of Winnipeg to-day were eagerly awaiting news from Europe. Scores of them went to the headquarters of the 100th Winnipeg Grenadiers and other organizations asking for news and announcing that in the event of a war with Soviet Russia they were ready to sign up again.

BORDER CONDITION AN ONTARIO AFFAIR

(Special to the Examiner.)

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—Following on the attack made by Hon. W. E. Raney on the Dominion Government at Erin yesterday, for the failure to end the rum running and conditions along the Windsor Border, the Gazette editorially this morning comes to the defence of the Ottawa authorities and places the blame on the Toronto ones.

"That law which is being violated in Ontario, is an Ontario law and the Dominion Government will do well to leave the responsibility for the administration of that law where it belongs," it says, "any other course must inevitably result in confusion and controversy. The attempt which is now being made in Ontario to turn the Essex affair to political account is an evidence of this and has been a warning to Ottawa.

COOL WATER TRIP TO LINDSAY TUESDAY

The August weather makes the sweltering citizen want to be near the water. A week ago most people wanted to be near the sun—to-day the shade is more conducive to comfort, and how to keep cool is a leading subject of conversation.

No need to go to Muskoka or Niagara-on-the-Lake for cool breezes. The Kawartha Lakes are just as cool, just as breezy, just as "swell." Take the trip to Lindsay on Tuesday, August 10th, and be convinced. Board the fine commodious steamer "Stoney Lake" at her George Street Wharf at 7.30 in the morning, and you'll soon dip into a breeze that will bring refreshment and vigor. By the time you get up into Clear and Stoney Lakes, you'll be looking around for yur extra wraps. Further on as you sail through the big, wide, open, breezy waters of Lakes Pigeon and Sturgeon, you'll be as "cool as a cucumber," and looking for your lunch basket. Just about here you may be led to think about the price of coal, and wondering if we are going to have a mild winter.

GERMANS PROPOSE A SPECIAL FORCE PRUSSIAN FRONT

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 7. — Dr. Geoppart, head of the German Peace Commission, delivered to the French Foreign Office yesterday a note relative to the organization of a special German military force in East Prussia. The Berlin government, according to this morning news press announced that armed groups will be formed in that province outof fear of Bolsheviki and that in the interests of public order "the government is obliged to take a hand in the organization of this militia." The note presented by Dr. Geoppert further recalls the question recently made to the Council of Ambassadors for permisston to send German government troops into Polish territory at Marienerder and Allenstein.

Editorial opinion professes to see in this note an attempt by Germany to take advantage of the situation to violate the Versailles treaty.

WOULD STANDARDIZE UNIVERSITY CURRICULA

(Special to the Examiner.)

OTTAWA, August 7. — Standardized commercial laws throughout the British Empire as well as standard curricula for the Universities of the Empire were endorsed in a resolution this morning by Dr. A. Barloto of Malta. Portions of the resolution were belated by amendments but a majority of the clauses were carried after some discussion.

Consideration of a second dealing with the standardization of the commercial laws was postponed.

There is a good deal of unfinished business ahead of the convention.

Following a short afternoon session the delegates will attend a garden party at the Government House. The party will leave Ottawa to-night for Niagara Falls, via Toronto.

GRASSHOPPERS A PEST IN DARLINGTON

Farmers in the northern parts of Darlington and Clarke are alarmed at the ravages of grasshoppers which are unusually numerous this season and have spread over that section of the country and are eating up the crops. Many acres of wheat, oats, spring rye and buckwheat are already destroyed, and they are also tackling the root crop, potatoes and turnips, the latter crop in some fields being wiped out. The crops on the farms of Harry Fraser and William Brown are among those which have suffered much damage.

FEWER VACANCIES AT THE LABOUR BUREAU.
The past week has been fairly quiet at the Labour Bureau, and fewer vacancies were reported than in the average week. Farmers are apparently too busily engaged in harvesting the huge crops to look up further help, and only two applied for men. Of 36 applicants, 21 were placed during the week, and 33 vacancies were reported. Three men were sent to other localities from the city.

ARMATURE WINDERS DEFEATED BOHUNKS.
The C.G.E. Armature Winders defeated the much-vaunted Bohunks in a 5-inning feature at Riverside Park last night at 6.30 o'clock by the score of 6 to 3. Manager "Bill" Sufloff's nine were a puzzle to White's downtown team from the very start. The line-ups were:
Armature Winders—Frost, c.; Huff, p.; Russell, 1st base; Rutherford, 2nd base; Hunter, s.s.; Fry, 3rd base; Powell, r.f.; Henry, c.f.; Vincent, l.f.
Bohunks—Doughty, p.; Bergoine, c.; White, 1st base; Herbison, 2nd base; Thirnbeck, s.s.; Tudhope, 3rd base; Meredith, r.f.; Ecobichon, c.f.; Doughty, l.f.
Score by innings—
Bohunks —0 0 1 2 0—3
Armature Winders—3 0 1 2 x—6
Frost was in great form, and Huff did the receiving duties nicely. Rutherford's batting was a feature of the game—a triple when the first man to bat started the run-getting. The Armature Winders did some great execution work with the bat, and their fielding was in top form. Bergoine, the Bohunks' clever catcher, starred, but lacked support. Doughty pitched a good game, but errors in the outfield counteracted the good work of the batteries.
Manager Sukloff of the Winders was missed on the base line, being un-

OBITUARY

IN MEMORIAM.
BARTLEY. — In loving memory of Mrs. W. G. Bartley, who died Aug. 7th, 1919.

Just one year ago to-day, love,
You were taken from our side,
For to join the Hosts in Glory,
With our Saviour to abide.

But in Heaven we hope to meet thee,
When the spark of life has fled:
Yes, in Heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed.

TONSILITIS!
Is inflammation or excessive heat in the tonsils with the formation of pus within their follicles. The tonsils become swollen and sore and a vascular exudaton occurs into the surrounding tissues so that the entire throat is greatly swollen. Pressure upon the nerves supplying the tonsils is responsible for tonsilitis, because this pressure interferes with the transmission of mental impulses "life energy" to these glands. Chiropractic adjustments will relieve the pressure upon these nerves. Heat in the tonsils becomes normal, the "itis" disappears and you still have your tonsils to preform the function which nature intended them to preform. Why suffer with tonsilitis when chiropractic adjustments will get you well?

SPECIAL CONSTABLE WAS KILLED IN BANDIT HUNT

THIRD DAY OF CHASE FOR MURDERER OF POLICE OFFICERS—BLOODHOUNDS WILL BE USED—THREE VICTIMS.

(Canadian Press).

LETHBRIDGE, Aug. 10. — The third day of the active chase for Bandit Bassoff, murderer of Police Officers Usher and Bailey, is under way, and though a big squad of police has fairly definitely established that Bassoff is still lying close to the district where Saturday's killing took place, every clue they have run down in the last forty-eight hours has been in vain. They know Bassoff is there, that he is wounded and weak, and that he comes out every morning in search of food, but they have never been at the right place at the right time. Yesterday the report that he had got food at a farm-house northwest of Frank resulted in the police closing in on a little wood where the bandit was supposed to be hiding. They found nobody, however. Blood hounds arrived last night to assist in the search. The third member of the gang, Areloff, has completely disappeared. He was last seen in Coleman on Friday.

(Canadian Press).

LETHBRIDGE, Aug. 9. — Nick Kyslik, a foreigner, who was sworn in by the Alberta Provincial Police, in the bandit hunt at Hillcrest, was shot and instantly killed in mistake while the police were raiding the houses of foreign miners Sunday night in the search for Bassoff, the wounded bandit. Kyslik jumped from a window in the house being raided and was shot by an A. P. P. constable, who thought it was the bandit, Bassoff. This is the third innocent life lost in the hunt for the desperadoes. Bassoff has not been seen since he went into the woods on Sunday morning after visiting a foreigner miners' hut and getting some breakfast. The search has become a watch and wait affair.

All avenues of escape from the pass are guarded and the police hope to get a trace of Bassoff when he is driven from his hiding place by hunger.

To Check Dealings

A NEW TWIST IN THE PONZI CASE—PAYMENT STOPPED.

(Canadian Press).

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—Action to check the business dealings of Chas. Ponzi, who claims to have made millions through international postal exchange, was taken through an involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed by three men who hold notes totalling $750, and by Bank Commissioner Joseph Callen, who ordered the Hanover Trust Company to pay no more cheques of Ponzi or his agents because of an alleged overdrawing of accounts at that bank.

An increased activity in Federal and State investigations was also noted. Attorney-General J. Weston Allen gave out a statement which charged that inquiries by State officials had thus far failed to confirm Ponzi's claims that he has dealt extensively in international reply coupons.

Ponzi himself in a statement to newspapermen, discussing the day's developments, reiterated that he was solvent and that he desired to have the investigations completed as soon as possible so that he might resume his business operations. He said that he had a certified cheque for $1,500,000 subject to 30 days' notice of withdrawal at the Hanover Trust Company, where it is alleged he has overdrawn one account, and added that he had in deposit in the form of funds and securities at other institutions in this city an amount more than sufficient to cover all liabilities.

Murderer At Large

INQUEST OPENED ON PHILIP GOLDBERG ADJOURNED UNTIL AUGUST 16.

TORONTO, Aug. 10. — Although the police examined no less than six suspects yesterday, and investigated several telephone messages, the murderer of eight-year-old Philip Goldberg is still at large. Among the men examined were some who are known to the police as dope users and convicted perpetrators of crimes similar to that perpetrated upon young Goldberg, but when confronted with Robt. McMurtrey, the man who found the Goldberg boy, none proved to be the wanted man. The case has been turned over to Detective-Sergts. Cronin and Wickett, of the headquarters staff, and Detective-Sergts. Nicholls and McIlwraith, of Cowan Avenue Station.

An inquest opened on the body of the dead boy at the Morgue yesterday afternoon by Dr. G. G. Rowe, and adjourned until August 16 at 8 p.m.

Fred. Ebsary, 1058 Queen Street East, informed the police yesterday that on Saturday, about noon, he had seen a man answering the description of the boy's murderer in a Chinese restaurant at Queen and Logan. The man had a child with him and was apparently ill at ease. The man's peculiar actions attracted Ebsary's attention: he thought the man either crazy or the victim of drugs. The child had with him what seemed to be two lunch boxes. He seemed very reluctant to accompany the man aboard a westbound street car.

Inspector of Detectives Guthrie is inclined to place little credence in Ebsary's story, since it is hardly likely that the lad, living west of Yonge Street, would be so far east of his home.

The police have been unable to locate the little Jewish boy who is said to have seen young Goldberg get into a motor car with a man on Queen Street Saturday afternoon.

A detailed description of the man seen by McMurtrey has been sent broadcast, and police officers in every division have been specially warned to be on the lookout for such a man.

IMPRACTICABLE AND UNNECESSARY TO SEND ALLIED FORCE TO POLAND

THIS IS ONE RESULT OF CONFERENCE BETWEEN BRITISH AND FRENCH PREMIERS.

PROGRESS OF BATTLE

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Military decisions reached at the Hythe conference between British and French Premiers and their advisors, according to the French Foreign Office, were as follows:

First—That is was impracticable and unnecessary to send Allied troops to Poland.

Second—The integrity of Poland's western frontier was guaranteed. (This probably means that any effort by Germany to use the present crisis in an attempt to regain any territory ceded to Poland under the Treaty of Versailles, would be decisively negatived by the Allies.

Third—That blockade measures against Russia might possibly be taken later, French opinion questioning the effectiveness of such action, however.

THE RED FORCES CUT RAILWAY

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 10.— Russians have captured the town of Ciechanow, thus cutting the Warsaw-Danzig railroad, according to reports from the French military mission to Warsaw, received by Foreign Office to-day, according to official statement issued in Warsaw last night. No changes of significance in the battle line northeast and east of Warsaw have taken place.

LONG CHASE ENDS IN ARREST OF MAN ACCUSED OF TORONTO ROBBERY

(Canadian Press).

TORONTO, Aug. 10.—After a chase, which ended in Miami, Fla., a man, whom the police say was one of the trio who held up, bound and gagged A. Rosenbat, prominent jeweller, has been arrested. He gives the name of D. C. Elwood, and was identified by a watchmaker employer by Rosenbat as the man in Salvation Army garb who had been in the store previous to the robbery.

According to the police, the robbers first went to Niagara Falls, then to St. Thomas, from there to Cleveland, and then back to St. Thomas. From that city Elwood is said to have gone to Miami.

MURDER CHARGE FOLLOWS THOROLD MURDER INQUEST

JURY EXPRESSES BELIEF THAT GIRL'S DEATH WAS CAUSED BY M'NEAL—LAST SEEN WALKING WITH ACCUSED TOWARD SCENE OF TRAGEDY.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 10.—"That Margaret Boucock came to her death on the afternoon or the evening of July 13, 1920, by strangulation and we find by the evidence that the said Margaret Boucock was last seen in the company of David McNeal, walking towards the spot where her remains were found, and we are of the opinion from the evidence, that her death was caused by the hands of the said David McNeal."

In these words the jury empannelled by Coroner J. Herod, returned their verdict after an exhaustive inquest here to-day into the circumstances surrounding the death of little Margaret Boucock, whose body was found hidden under weeds near the Welind Canal.

Expected Child Back.

Mrs. Eevelyn Boucock, mother of the child, gave evidence that little Margaret, aged 3 years and 4 months disappeared on the 13th day of July, about 3 o'clock. She was dressed in a blue-white checked dress. She expected the child back about 4 o'clock. She sent her other daughter to find her and about five o'clock she returned, saying Margaret had gone away with a man. After six o'clock she went herself and went to McNeal's home to see if the child was there, but the McNeals were out. Later in the evening McNeal and his wife were in front of the Boucock home and she asked them where Margaret was. McNeal told her he had walked in an easterly direction about three blocks with her and had then left her. Mrs. Boucock stated that she asked McNeal to go and help find the child, but he would not answer her. Mrs. McNeal said: "Of course we will." About 9 o'clock Mrs. McNeal returned. McNeal wore a brown suit and panama hat.

Little Arthur Noble, who lives on Carlton Street, one block away from the Boucock home, stated that he had seen Margaret before 4 o'clock on the day when she disappeared, walking out Albert Street towards the Welland Canal with a man wearing brown trousers and a Panama hat.

"Did you hear Margaret say anything?" asked Crown Attorney Cowner.

"Yes, she said I'll soon have to be going home now." The man did not say anything. The Noble boy declared he did not know the man.

Gordon Porter, a ten-year-old lad, who was playing with the Noble boy, gave similar evidence.

Mrs. Jennie Fitzgerald's home is at the corner of Chanell and Claremont Streets near the new Welland Canal. A narrow path leads down quite a depth to a railway track near her home. On the day when Margaret disappeared she saw her with a man whom she did not know, going down that path. The man wore a Panama hat. He was pretty tall and fairly heavily built.

Looking for Lost Valve.

Harry Dellman, Carlton Street, pipe-fitter on the Canal, stated that he had gone looking for a lost valve and took a short cut down to the railroad tracks and found a child's body. Something that looked like a doll's dress caught his attention, then he saw a hand and the child's hair. He passed on then and met Albert Jones, returning with him. The second time he noticed that the body was covered with weeds, evidently uprooted and placed there. The yreturned and had the timekeeper telephone to the police. He had not noticed how the body was lying. As he recollected, it was lying on the left side.

Albert Jones told the coroner that he had gone back to where the body was found with Dellman. There was a drop of 10 or 12 fet at the foot of Claremont Street to the construction railway tracks, from which there was a path leading along the west side of the canal. Where the body was found was a very difficult place to reach. The body was covered with weeds pulled up and placed over the body. The body of the child was almost bare and was lying face down, the head on the left hand.

Father Was Away.

Reuben Boucock, father of the child, said he was away the day the child disappeared. He went to the place where the body was found, being told about it about 9 o'clock. He knew it was his child Margaret by her dress, sandals and hair.

Asked if it would have been possible for a child of Margaret's age to have gone alone to where the body was found, Mr. Boucock declared emphatically that it would not. Mr. Boucock told of a talk he had with McNeal on July 14, when he was apprehended, in which McNeal stated that he had left Margaret at the English Church.

Frank Collins, chief of police, stated that, on receiving word that a child's body had been found, he went to the scene. The body was up on a still above the construction railway. To reach it he had to go up several set of steps and up a steep incline. The child's clothes had been disarranged and the body was covered with torn-up sweet clover. It would have been impossible for a four-year-old child to wander alone to where the body was found.

Objected to Evidence.

Robert Bradley gave evidence that last Winter, McNeal told him there was one man he wanted to get even with and that was Reuben Boucock. He said Boucock was instrumental in having him put out of Mrs. Clark's house. George H. Peterson, acting for McNeal, objected to the evidence being taken.

Ralph Williams, the undertaker who removed the body, said he had taken the body and clothing to the place where the doctors made the postmortem. He had not noticed a cotton ribbon or tape under the neau until the doctors showed it to him.

Lr. J. T. Vanderburgh, who performed the postmortem in company with Dr. Publow, read his report. The body was too badly decomposed to distinguish anything. The clothing, although intact, was disarranged. There was a piece of cotton about five inches wide and about a yard long, tied with a single knot, with a second double knot. From the position of the cotton band in relation to the body, he would consider it an evidence of a plain case of strangulation.

Dr. Publow agreed with Dr. Vanderburgh's conclusion that the child was strangled.

Harry Dunn, a member of the Thorold police force, said McNeal had told him he had taken the girl to wilson's house, on Claremont Street, and left her there, giving her a nickel and sending her home. Later he went to McNeal's house, but could not find him there. He had not come back at 12.30, although his wife said he had, and, hearing that the child was found, had gone to find if it was true. The following night he found McNeal at Port Dalhbusie and took him back to Thorold.

Harry Neill, who lives next door to the Boucock home, was called, but Mr. Peterson objected on the grounds that he was unfit mentally to give evidence.

Fight for Increase in Railway Rates to Be Keenly Contested

FIRST CHAPTER IN THE BATTLE OPENED IN OTTAWA TO-DAY WITH A CROWDED COURTROOM—MANUFACTURERS REPRESENTED.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Aug. 10. — A crowded court room greeted the Board of Railway Commissioners this morning for the opening of one of the biggest railway rates battles which has ever been fought out in Canada.

From the first it was apparent that there was to be strong opposition to the proposed increases which are requested.

The railways are asking for a 40 per cent. increase in freight rates; twenty per cent. increase in passenger rates, and 50 per cent. increase in sleeping and parlor car rates.

Their case was stated to the board by Judge F. H. Phippen, K. C., counsel for the Railway Association of Canada, and President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, outlined the situation in so far as it referred to that board.

On the other hand, A. C. McMasters, counsel for the Manufacturers' Association, made it clear that his organization would not oppose a fair increase, if it could be shown that such increase was absolutely necessary to keep in operation a properly built, equipped and managed railway.

It did not propose to agree to any increase to cover deficits on railways which had been over built and run through sections of the country where they were unnecessary.

D'Arcy Scott, counsel for the Government of Saskatchewan and National Dairy Council of Canada, announced his absolute opposition to increases of any kind. Why, he asked, should the Board of Railway Commissioners be asked to increase the high cost of living? The peak of the cost of living had been reached but the Board was asked to heighten this peak.

BISHOP O'BRIEN RETURNS TO CITY

LARGE GATHERING AT STATION TO WELCOME HIS LORDSHIP.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien arrived home last night after an eventful trip to Rome, the chief object of which was to present to His Holiness Pope Benedict XV. a report of the affairs and the progress of the diocese of Peterborough during the last ten years. His return, after an absence of exactly sixteen weeks, was marked by a happy and affectionate welcome from the clergy of the diocese and the laity of the city, who met him in large numbers at the C.P.R. Station shortly after eight o'clock and accompanied him in procession to St. Peter's Cathedral. The warmth of the greetings and reception to Bishop O'Brien was, if possible, deeper than the impressive and solicitous farewell about four months ago.

Apprehension was lifted, and the successive scenes at the station and Cathedral were touched with the gladness of reunion and with feelings of gratitude at the safe ending of a long journey not without its hazards in these troubled times. There was also in last night's imposing welcome an appreciation of the fact that Bishop O'Brien had come directly from the presence of the Pope, bearing the Papal benediction and a message of goodwill and sympathy.

The procession from the station was headed by the 57th Regimental Band, followed by the men of the Immaculate Conception and Sacred Heart Churches, with those of the Cathedral Parish immediately preceding His Lordship.

Arriving at the church, which was appropriately illuminated and decorated with flags and bunting, the Union Jack and the Papal flag draped above the sidewalk being especially conspicuous, Bishop O'Brien was greeted by a white clad chorus of little girls, who sang with fine effect, and to the band's accompaniment, "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus." His Lordship knelt in prayer upon entering the Cathedral, and, passing to the altar, blessed the congregation, which occupied every seat. Rev. Monsignor Casey, of Lindsay, who has been administrator of the diocese in the absence of the Bishop, spoke a few words of welcome from the assembled clergy, following which Mr. V. J. McElderry presented an address on behalf of the laity.

Mr. McElderry referred to the incidents of His Lordship's visit to Rome and on behalf of the three parishes of Peterboro extended a hearty welcome to His Lordship on his return, and expressed the pleasure of the people in havnig him among them again.

The arrangements for the ceremony were in charge of Rev. Father C. J. Phelan, Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, and to him is due the credit for the smoothness with which the reception and ceremonies were carried out.

Welcome was the note struck throughout the ceremony which closed with the benediction and the singing of "Holy God."

This noon the visiting clergy were banquetted at the rectory.

LLOYD GEORGE STILL HOPEFUL

EFFORT MADE TO AVOID RUSSIAN POLISH CRISIS—PREMIER'S SPEECH.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 10.—"I am still hopeful of peace," were opening words of Premier Lloyd George's announcement in the House of Commons to-day with regard to the Russian-Polish crisis.

The House was crowded and tension was high in anticipation of the Premier's "peace or war" statement. He was warmly cheered. M. Krassin and M. Kameneff, of the Russian Soviet delegation were in Strangers' Gallery.

The Premier declared that the Polish attack was not justified in opinion of British Government and that Soviet Government in any conditions of peace was entitled to take into accounts facts of attacks made by Poles on Russia, and that these attacks were delivered despite warnings of the Allies to Poland. The Soviet, he declared, was entitled to demand such guarantee as would be exacted by any power against repitition of attacks of that kind. What was challenged, he said, was that "Nothing justifies retaliation reprisal or punishment which goes to extent of wiping out national existence." The Premier declared the sole purpose of the Allied policy was to secure peace on basis of independence for ethnographical Poland, why the Conference advises the Poles to endeavor to negotiate armistice and make peace as long as such independence is recognized.

He pointed out that the Allies suggested to the Soviet that they declare a truce Monday night at midnight but this was not accepted in view of the Minsk meeting set for Wednesday. He declared there had been great and suspicious delays in coming to a discussion of armistice. He could not imagine, the Premier said, why, if there had been real desire to have armistice and negotiate peace, the Soviet Government would not have fixed date at latest week or ten days ago to purpose. The Premier continued: "We are not going to have a quarrel or propose to engage this country in the dispute, whether it means much or little, upon difference between Monday and Wednesda, and there the Allies are agreed."

A SCHEME FOR CHEAPER CABLES

COMPANY WOULD LIKE TO DISCUSS MATTER WITH CANADIAN PUBLISHERS—NO SUGGESTION FOR RATES.

OTTAWA, Aug. 10.—At a colossal picnic or a glorified joy-ride the Imperial Press Conference promises to be an unqualified success. As a serious minded gathering brought from all corners of the British Empire at enormous expense to discuss great issues, it must be admitted it will not rank so high. In spite of the glittering array of titles, the discussion so far has not produced anything practical or brilliant. "Imperial Penny Cables" is a catchy phrase, and on account of reflected glamor from "Imperial Penny Postage," which made a name for its advocates, there is latent feeling that a great scheme has been launched which will make this conference historic. But in the discussions on cable rates questions, no practical suggestions have been evolved as to how cheaper rates and better service are to be secured. Even the most optimistic do not seriously regard a penny rate as possible in the near future. So far as Canada is concerned, Mr. Donald made the most practical suggestion when he urged that the British Government should retain the German cable to Halifax which was seized during the war as partial payment of the big indemnity which Britain would not get. Most of the discussion has been as illuminating as a symposium on the desirability of fresh air and pure water.

STONEY LAKE COTTAGERS HELD SUCCESSFUL REGATTA YESTERDAY

LARGE CROWD PRESENT IN SPITE OF THREATENING WEATHER.

With sublime indifference to weather conditions twenty-five hundred persons took in the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association annual regatta at Juniper Island yesterday, a crowd only slightly smaller than last year when the day was perfect. Nobody seemed to mind the intermittent showers, and from early in the afternoon until the last of the events at about seven o'clock, the shore of Juniper near the wharf, from which the events were started, was one mass of gaily dressed humanity; the more fastidious huddling under umbrellas, but the majority hurling defiance at the dampness.

The committee, Mr. J. S. Knapman, chairman, G. E. Oxley and T. J. Underwood the starters, J. O. McCarthy and J. L. Dodsworth, official judges, Wm. H. Fletcher secretary-treasurer, W. Eddis, R. Willoughby and J. H. Renwick worked hard at gathering in entries and at running off the different events on scheduled time. Each event was not only well entered for but was closely enough contested to keep the spectators interested. Added to this the committee, which was composed practically entirely of men who had served in a similar capacity any other year, introduced a number of new and decidedly interesting features.

The Winners.

The winners in the different events were:

Dinghy sailing—Willoughby, C. R. Widdifield.

Sailing race — R. M. Dixon, R. Stubbs.

Open sailing— Harold Knapman, Wendham Eddis.

Boys' canoe, under 15 years of age—Sam Sherin, Jack Ridpath.

Canoe race, men, Stoney Lake cottagers only—Donald Fitzgerald, Harry Blewett.

Motor Boat race, 6 H.P. and under—Wintonia, Ruff Chonz

Motor boat race, 8 H.P. and under—Sergt. Nicholls, Canniff.

Greasy pole— E. R. Williams, F. Sheehy.

Girls' skiff, 15 years and under—H. Edmison, Ruth Knapman.

Canoe tilting— Hugh MacKenzie, Emmet Sheehy, R. Stubbs. On account of the breaking of the poles, this event was finished by a draw.

Live duck race—Emmet Sheehy.

Crab race — Heber Rogers, R. Stubbs.

Men's single canoe, championship of Stoney Lake—Gordon Swalm, Harry Blewett.

Ladies' race— Xenia Mills, Elsie Sutcliffe.

Outboard motor boat race—Phyllis Denne, R. Craig.

Ladies' single skiff—Marion Stuart, Vera Stock.

Men's single skiff— Arthur Bell, Roslyn Russell.

Mixed tandem canoe—Ada Adams and Gordon Swalm, Donald Fitzgerald and Vera Stock, Harry Blewett and Miss Underwood.

Ladies' swiming race—Helen Willoughby, Dorothy Meyers.

Hurry scurry race—Clifford Harstone, H. Blewett.

Men's swiming race—T. Chapman, Clifford Harstone.

Boys' swimming race, 15 years and under—T. Chapman, D. Henderson, J. Redpath.

Mixed tandem skiff—Roslyn Russell and Phyllis Denne, Donald Fitzgerald and Vera Stock.

Boys' skiff race—S. Dodsworth, A. Edmison.

Ladies' tandem canoe—Clara and Ada Adams, Grace and Marion Stuart.

The Duck Race.

Undoubtedly the race of the afternoon was the eleventh event, the live duck race. In this about fifty canoe formed a semi-circle about the bay in front of the island and a live duck presented by Mr. W. H. Fletcher, was turned loose for the swimmer to catch. After a chase of about five minutes Emmet Sheehy grabbed the bird and brought him to shore. Another interesting event was the open

Miss Anthistle is a Reader of marked ability, and in connection with Tom Michelltree does some most delightful work. Her readings are accompanied by improvisations upon the piano, and whether in serious mood or in lighter vein these help to stress them, and bring out their most charming points.

There is nothing finer than the reading of "The Lady of Shalott" with the sublime piano accompaniment. The lighter ones like "On the Road to Bumptown," "Winkum, Blinkum, and Nod," are stressed by all the bumps, winks, and blinks as the piano proceeds with its obligato accompaniment.

Michelltree & Anthistle will give a prelude on both afternoon and evening of the Second Day.

The leaves of the fern plant, which growns almost everywhere, are excellent preservatives for packing food, fruit and even meat. Potatoes packed in fern leaves are as fresh in the springtime as when they were first dug in the winter.

DON'T APOLOGIZE TOO OFTEN

Once Abraham Lincoln was present at a dinner where there was a saddle of mutton. When the butler passed a glass of jelly Lincoln took the jelly and ate the entire contents. Another glass was passed from diner to diner and each took a spoonful. Lincoln observed this too late, and with a characteristic laugh said:

"I seem to have taken more than my share."

There was no apology and no embarrassment. A particularly fastidious woman who was present said afterward that the awkward frontiersman was by nature a better gentleman than anyone she had ever met. He may have been ignorant of some of the small points of etiquette, but he possessed that spirit of good breeding and courtesy that made even his mistakes appear to advantage.

There are few persons who would have the good grace to pass off a social break as easily as Lincoln did. Some persons on finding their mistake would clumsily have tried to cover it up—perhaps passed the half eaten glass back to the butler with an excuse about having been absent-minded; and there are others who on finding their error would at the time have shown mute embarrassment and later would have apologized to the hostess. There are some persons who because of their obvious disadvantage in early training avoid society and social intercourse all through life. Lincoln neither felt more than a passing confusion or attempted to make apologies.

There are some persons who seem to think that an apology is a sort of eraser. They can commit any social blunder so long as they apologize foir it in time to indicate that they are not actually ignorant of the good form in the matter.

For instance, we all know the man who shakes hands with women with his glove on and feels that he has shown no boorishness if he say: "Excuse my glove, please." His fault really appears in the words, for it shows that he has erred through carelessness and not ignorance.

Then there are men who wear their hats where they should not—in offices and even on entering their own homes—and calmly feel that their sins are forgiven if they simply ask for pardon.

There are women who never receive a chance caller without apologizing for the dust and disorder of their homes—whether or not such disorder or dust is at all apparent. One reason why this is so absurd and trying is because it is hard for the person to whom the excuse is made to make response. To say: "Yes, I see the dust. It is very annoying, but I realize what an inefficient housewife you are, and therefore I forgive it," might be honest, but it would hardly be what the excuser expected. What the excusing one wants you to do is to assure her that her house is immaculate whether it is or not. She is really fishing and this is never a welcome procedure. Perhaps the most tiresome of all excusers are the women who always make apologies for the food they offer us at meals. This is always tiresome, and in England you know, it is considered quite gauche for the hostess to make any excuses to her guests for mistakes in her kitchen. Her sincerest apology is expressed in an effort never to let these things happen again.

RHEIMS TWO YEARS AFTER.

Nearly two years after the end of her torment, the once flourishing City of Rheims is a melancholy place to visit. Such efforts as are being made to enliven the scene for tourists tend rather to bring out clearer the tragedy of the great Cathedral City, according to a recent English traveler.

"Fifty thousand Remois have returned to their battered homes, yet all reamin refugees in the bitterest meaning of the word," the traveler says in The London Daily Mail. "Refugees not merely from home and hearth, but refugees from life that was. * * *

"Take a walk through Rheims and get to know the meaning of that dull word "Reparaation"!

"Stand amid the masonry and scrap-iron of the theatre and let the old doorman tell you how Bernhardt once played there; study the notice boards jabbed all about you in the ruins, family claims to the ground where once stood their homes, their all; then see these same families asleep on mattresses in long, public hutments or ravenously eating bread and stew in muncipal kitchens; read the 1920 Rheims address book, a tale of changed addresses to huts and waste land; visit the Art Museum and watch men, women and children searching for their property amid one great dump of beds, armchairs and tables, all, according to the official inventory 'in very bad condition"; walk in quiet, trafficless streets past people almost all in black, and with ghostly walls on either side relieved here and there by patched-up shops selling onions, boots and milk all in the same shop window; listen to the tragic merry-go-round, imported to liven things up, and jangling out the 'Merry Widow Waltz' where once stood a statue of Joan of Arc; finish your pilgrimage before the skeleton cathedral, built of bones against the moon. * * *

"Go to Rheims, crowd to Rheims, because the poor people want your money, but go there with bowed head and cancel laughter for a day. Do not aspire to mirth and music and dancing after the day's sightseeing * * that is, unless you like jazz-time at a funeral."

FRUIT CROP EXCELLENT.

Reports From Niagara Optimistic—Harvesting Peaches.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 6.—Harvesting early peaches has commenced in the Niagara district, and will be in full swing next week. The branches in many rochards have had to be propped up, so heavily are they laden. Those now being picked are "clingstones." —Notwithstanding the heavy crop, the quality of the peach is excellent. In spite of the cool weather of the past few weeks, fruits and vegetables have grown well.

Plums and pears and, in fact, all varieties of fruit, are realizing the most optimistic hopes of the growers, the greatest crop in five seasons. It is now definitely established that grapes, the only line that has cropped high in the past few years, will again show a ma[illegible]

EMPIRE'S BURDENS GROW TO COSTLY

OPPOSITION TO TERRITORIAL EXPANSION NEVER SO STRONG AS TO-DAY.

(Wall Street Journal's London Letter)

The best news of the week in England was contained in a full-page advertisement of a shipping company that appeared in the London papers, announcing a fall in freight rates.

But the most significant event of the week was the strong attack made on the policy of the Government in Asia and Africa. From many quarters—from Trades Unions and the House of Lords—there has come a demand that Britain shall pay more attention to her home affairs, and not enter into so many military adventures at the expense of the British taxpayer.

The general feeling is that there are too many mandates. We are loaded at the moment with half a dozen foreign countries, all in a state of revolution. We are acting as policeman and magistrate in Palestine, Armenia, Turkey, Persia, East Africa and Mesopotamia. In addition to this, we have active rebellions on our hands in India and Ireland.

The three political battles of the week in Parliament were not on domestic issues, but on the matter of our policy in India, Ireland and Russia. On the India matter — the revolution at Amritsar, where 50 British soldiers attacked a mob of natives and killed 379 of them—the Government was very nearly defeated. Churchill and Montagu had to fight to save their official lives.

No doubt, if a vote were taken today for and against the further enlargement of the British Empire, there would be a large majority in favour. But the opposition was never as strong as it is to-day.

"Why should we spend $200,000,000 of the British taxpayers' money on Mesopotamia—a country of 2,000,000 people?" asks Mr. Asquith.

Lord Robert Cecil says—"In spite of the oil, of which we hear so much, I have very little doubt that we should do well to withdraw from Mesopotamia altogether. We must set our faces against all proposals of military adventures either by ourselves or any other country. We cannot afford them."

Lord Rothermere says—"We should withdraw our troops from Persia, where we are not wanted and where we have no right to be."

Even Robert Blatchford asks—"Is India worth keeping? Is it not too much trouble and danger and expense?"

So, there are four protests from all four sides—from a Liberal, a Tory, an Independent, and a Socialist. There is a remarkable unanimity from men who have seldom agreed before.

The fact is that the "white man's burden," as Kipling called it, has become too heavy. The cost of Persia and Mesopotamia is equal to the entire tobacco tax. The cost of all the other "military adventures" is equal to the entire liquor tax. If there were no such adventures, there could be free 'baccy and free beer. That is an argument that appeals with tremendous force to British voters.

As for Lloyd George, he is in favour of the mandates—the more the merrier. Krassin, the Soviet envoy, is back in his London offices, buying British goods in exchange for Russian produce.

"We have decided on a policy," says Lloyd George, "and we will not scuttle just because some trouble appears."

There is no limit to British self-confidence, but the question has now come to the front—can this one country continue to carry the world on its back? If America refuses to take any mandates for Europe, Africa and Asia, can Britain bear the white man's burden alone?

Nine-tenths of the British people are in favour of a continuance of the historic British policy, of that there is no doubt. But the extravagance of the Government is compelling them to ask — how much longer can we afford it?

A red-headed Irish soldier thrust his head out of a passenger coach and excitedly cried, "A woman has fainted here! Has anyone a drink of whiskey?"

A man in the crowd handed up a pocket flash, and the soldier took a long swig.

"Thanks," he said, smacking his lips. "It always did make me nervous to see a woman faint."

Wanted!
New Capital for New Telephones!

EVERY new telephone adds to the potential value of your telephone.

It is another point you may desire to call some day. It is another possible client or customer able to reach you quickly and conveniently.

If this Company cannot fill its orders for new telephones, the growing business of the community is checked. The prosperity of everyone is affected.

Under normal conditions of management, switchboards large enough to take care of future growth must be installed far in advance of the time when the new telephone numbers will be called for.

Conduits must be laid far ahead of spreading city pavements.

The need for new exchanges must be anticipated by the purchase of suitable sites and the planning of adequate buildings.

Telephone instruments and supplies must be stocked in abundance.

These are commonplaces of good management in normal times and this Company has long been in the habit of making such provision.

But the world shortage of supplies, compelled the Company to use up its safety margin, without being able to create new resources of switchboard capacity or to lay enough new conduits, or to obtain sufficient new equipment to take care of prospective business.

To-day the demand for new telephones is enormous—an average of more than 2,000 a week. The Company is doing its utmost to meet this demand. It is endeavouring to satisfy current requirements quickly. Never in its history has it accomplished so much. But it is rapidly exhausting the amount of capital available to produce even current supplies. Provision for the future is a problem still to be solved!

Labor costs, as everyone knows, were never so high. Material is scarce and costly; some supplies are as high as 300% over 1914 prices.

AND MOST OF THESE THINGS MUST BE PAID FOR AND READY FOR USE LONG BEFORE THEY COMMENCE TO BRING IN REVENUE.

These are some of the reasons why more capital is necessary to the Bell Telephone Company. The other advertisements of this series will show:

That this capital can only be raised by paying a return;

That the Company must be able to offer a return high enough to attract investors, who are constantly being offered other desirable investments;

That the Company cannot offer an attractive return out of present earnings!

That telephone rates must, therefore, be increased.

FREAK ACCESSORIES FOR THE AUTOMOBILE.

Predicting a successful future for the company reecntly formed to establish a chain of automobile stores throughout the country, a manufacturer of accessories tells of a growing demand from motorists for all sorts of fantastic devices which they deem indispensable to their comfort and safety.

"I thought the limit had been reached," he said, "when a man asked for extensions to the buffer rod across the front of his car, to be made of rubber in imitation of steel, and extending for a foot on each side. He wanted this, as a said, to 'throw a scare into the road hogs' who tried to crowd him into the ditch. He found Biblical justification for this weapon in the sword blades which the Assyrians attached to the hubs of their chariot wheels for the purpose of mowing down their enemies.

"This man was outdone however by the owner of a fast car who suffered annoyance from the variety of road-hog who shows great reluctance in pulling out to let an overtaking car pass him. For this type of pest our would-be customer wanted a frame to attach to the rear of his car similar to that on street cars which contains a series of revolving placards telling the destination. This he wished to operate with a crank from the seat. For those who favored him by quickly drawing aside he would display a corteous 'Thank you!' but for those who aroused his ire, he stated, suitable and possibly profane comments would be printed."—Exchange.

WILL NOT "SCRAP" SHAMROCK, SAYS SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

Sir Thomas Lipton announced that he will not have the Shamrock IV., defeated challenger for the America's Cup this year, "scrapped" despite reports to that effect. He said the Nicholson creation would be kept at City Island until 1922, when he may have another Shamrock here to try for the Cup. In that case the Shamrock IV. will serve as "trial horse" for the new challenger. Unless some one else challenges before he does at the expiration of ten months from the time the series of 1920 ended, Sir Thomas intends to issue another challenge for a series of races to be held in 1922. Any challenge that may be received from Canada for races for the Cup next year will not affect Sir Thomas's intentions unless he Cup should be lifted. Sir Thomas had nothing to say about the activities on the part of A. C. Ross toward insuring a race for the Cup next year.

Fowl Supper Promised on Thursday, August 12.

With their customary thoroughness, the committee in charge of the arrangements for Father McAuley's lawn social to be held on the school grounds at Ennismore on August 12th are busily preparing for an even bigger day than ever before. A fowl supper will be served early in the evening, and booths containing every possible attraction are being stocked up. Sports will conclude the social.

TOMATO-LIKE FRUIT ON POTATO VINE

A small green fruit resembling a green apple, growing on the potato vines of Mrs. P. E. Rutherford, 541 Aylmer Street, led the Examiner into inquiries from a potato grower as to what they were. He stated that they were what are called potato apples. They are not very common, and it is said that if planted the third year they will produce a new variety of potatoes. The fruit, from present indications, would not be very edible.

PAPER AND COAL.

The Imperial Press Conference at Ottawa, discussing the bond of Empire and the question of newsprint, listened to a vivid word picture by J. C. Imrie, general manager of the Canadian Newspaper Association, of the troubles of Canadian and American newspaper publishers, in the course of which one learns that seventy-five per cent. of capital invested in Canadain pulp and paper production is American money. Australian delegates obpected that Canaad did not give preference to newspapers within the Empire rather than to foreign countries in the mater of newsprint exportation, and other delegates objected strongly to the preference enjoyed by the United States.

This vexed question may of course be debated from different angles, each one of which will present logical conclusions and consistent argument. But if the Canadian pulp wood and paper industry is operating on seventy-five per cent. of American money invested therein, it does seem that our friends across the border have established some priority claim to preferential consideration in this particular regard. Trade within the Empire is a policy which should be encouraged, fostered and consummated. The accomplishment of this end, however, ought to include investment in the component parts of that Empire of each other's capital to develop these commodities the Empire's several countries need, individually or collectively. In this particular instance it seems that British, Canadian and New Zealand capital has failed to recognize this logical conclusion by indulging in a Rip Van Winkle slumber, while American capitalists have to the extent of seventy-five per cent. Americanized our pulp wood and newsprint industry in so far as manufacturing production is concerned. This, apart from Canada's national ownership of the raw material, gives the United States a moral claim to preference over British colonies in some proportion to their investment. It is advanced that there is pulpwood in Canada sufficeint for the world's supply for the next fifty years, and J. C. Imrie visualized pulp and paper factories springing up in Canada as British enterprises to supply British newspapers. Such indeed is the right policy for not only British, but Colonial capital to pursue if in this particular connection trade within the Empire is to mean anything. But the government should enact and "enforce" such regulations as to cutting and re-forestration as will not only permit the utilization of Canada's pulp wood to the best advantage, but will also conserve our forests.

While trade within the Empire should be encouraged and fostered, so far as is consistent with individual and collective interests, still individual colonial welfare sometimes calls for reciprocal trade relations with foreign countries which cannot be ignored. To exclude a measure of preference to the United States in regard to paper and expect a continuance of preference from the United States to Canada in the case of coal does not seem consistent with human nature, national or otherwise. Such exclusion or any drastic restriction of newsprint to the United States might meet with a measure of retaliation in the way of coal far from pleasant to Ontario at least. Until such time, if ever, that Canada can be independent of her neighbor across the border in regard to fuel preferential relations cannot be established, the two countries are in the same boat. Both will probably exist. In these two connections both countries are in the same boat. We have pulpwood, the States have coal (especially that anthracite quality so much in demand for domestic purposes), and both have ready markets for their excess outputs independent of each other.

The Imperial Press Conference or any other British gathering of such a character cannot discuss the bond of Empire too fully with a view to augmenting intercolonial trade. Both Empire and colonial interests must ever be kept in sight at such conferences, and it might not be out of place also to keep in view individual colonial interests in relationship to direct international reciprocity. Until the time comes when the principle of Emipre interdependence will suffice for Empire needs—each for each and all for all—some British colonies may find it in their own vital interests to favor a measure of reciprocal foreign trade preference. But even when that era of Empire independence does arrive there should be another gaol in sight—if not by then reached — the unity of all Anglo-Saxon races, akin by nature and language, for the re-construction of this world on broad basic qualities which make for international co-operation in the well-being of the human race as a whole.

THE MENACE IS GRAVE.

And so Bolshevik Russia has rejected the Allies' peace proposals, as might have been expected. Not that the Reds may not eventually consent to an armistice, but probably not with Warsaw, the capital of Poland, ready to fall a prey to their investing hosts. In all military campaigns the enemy's capital is the peace goal, where terms favorable to its conquerors can be dictated. We doubt if the Soviet government could stay the advance if they would; even the safety of that government itself might be at stake were they to attempt it. The enemy's capital has always in the past had exaggerated importance with belligerents as the seat of government from whence a nation's will is directed; its capture, it was believed, would prove a final and successful blow to resistance. And the Red armies of Russia, intoxicated with success, no doubt entertain this view. But there have been wars in which the soul of man had to be accounted for, thus minimizing a capital city's importance, entirely upsetting an enemy's expectations, and bringing his culminating military operations to naught. Russia herself gave the great Napoleon an object lesson in this respect. Napoleon, in his invasion of Russia in 1812, promised his soldiers a victorious peace and plenty on reaching Moscow, the ancient capital of Russia. How bitter his disappointment on finding that the soul of Russia took a different view of the importance of that capital. Peace with Russia did not ensue, and Napoleon was left in splendid isolation until coming winter and lack of supplies forced his retirement through a bleak and inhospitable country to France, harassed every step of the way by a victorious and merciless enemy. He left France with a brilliant army of 600,000 men in the spring, he returned with but 20,000 famished, frost-bitten spectres staggering across the bridge of Rovno in December. Germany also entertained this exaggerated idea of the importance of a capital when, after her occupation of Brussels in 1914, she invited the Belgians to make peace. The results are too well known for repetition here, and let us hope that history will again repeat itself in that, Warsaw, the capital city of Poland, captured or not, the soul of the Poles will not submit to Bolshevik militarism, and that Russia's victory shall be equally as barren as that of Germany in 1914 and Napoleon in 1812.

Poland, a former kingdom of Europe, is renowned in medieval history for its championship of Christianity against the Turks, but its record has been one abounding in unprecedented misfortunes. Moscow was taken by the Poles in 1610 and remained in their possession till their expulsion by the Russians under Miriun and Pojarsky in 1612. In 1629 or shortly thereafter, Poland aws overrun by Russia, Sweden and Bradenburg, and Warsaw occupied by Russians. Since then the Poles have had a vacillating history, terminating in their country's division among Russia, Prussia and Austria in 1815, arranged by the Congress at Vienna. As a result of the last big world war they gained their independence, again, it would seem, threatened by Russia, domianted by Bolshevism.

The Poles are a branch of the great Slav race, with which Russia claims national affinity. Intoxicated with their success in hood-winking the Allies by evasive and equivocal diplomatic representations, Russia probably visualizes re-uniting at least old-time Russian Poland to a Greater Russia under a Bolshevik administration, with an open door to Western Europe. The danger to civilzation is grave indeed, and the situation will not warrant of any further procrastination by the Entente. Procrastination is the thief of time, and in this instance may well be the thief of the Allies' fruits of victory from Central European powers. Bolsheviki propaganda has been freely distributed among, and accepted by, large sections of the Allies' late enemies, who for all reliance that can be placed in them to the contrary, may see in the onward march of Bolshevistic armies opportunity to attempt regaining their lost militarism and domination in Europe.

In another European war conflagration, which is not at all impossible, the cause of justice would again no doubt prevail, but what of the cost in life and treasure. Nothing should be left to chance as in pre-war years with Germany the menacing factor. This Red Russian menace, clothed in horrors and terrors unspeakable must be, once and for all, stripped of every vestige of opportunity for world disturbance, and taught to respect the efficacy of Allied force if any measure of lasting peace is to obtain. One does not court another great war, but such seems inevitable unless the Soviet government is quickly given to understand, by concrete action if necessary, that the Allies' power is not dead, but sleepeth."

"Thank you for the raise, sir—the car has run better and cost less these last three months. During that time I've used Imperial Polarine and Imperial Premier Gasoline exclusively. We've had no break-downs, the engine runs quieter than ever and the gasoline bills are not so high."

Low Operating Costs

IMPERIAL Polarine is a great factor in reducing automobile and truck operating costs. A good lubricant is your lowest operating expense, but it is also one of the greatest factors in keeping down to a minimum your biggest expenses—depreciation, repairs and gasoline.

Imperial Polarine saves because it maintains compression under every motoring speed, holds its body and minimizes friction. Keeps the engine in perfect trim.

Imperial Polarine will not wear thin or break up under continued operation. It cushions the friction surfaces with a wear-resisting oil film. It seals in power—makes a good car better.

Sold by dealers everywhere in sealed gallon and four-gallon cans, 12½-gallon steel kegs, steel barrels and half-barrels.

One of the three grades described below is specially recommended for your car. Ask to see the Imperial Polarine Chart of Recommendations when you buy oil. It shows the grades you should buy.

VIRTUOUS WIVES

By OWEN JOHNSON

"Good heavens! We are a thousand miles apart!" Amy sprang up again and stood against the arbor, tearing off the young buds and twisting them in her fingers. "I can't talk about it just now. I can't go into details as I would have to," she said hurriedly.

"Then don't, my dear. When you are ready—"

"Yes, yes; some later time," she answered. She was not ready yet to face such a clear-eyed judge, not yet sure of the verdict.

"Let us avoid personalities, then," said Mrs. Bracken, and, for the first time, her glance rested on the young wife with a touch of uneasiness. 'Let me see if I can make you understand my point of view about marriage," she continued, in a quiter tone, which brought Amy gradually back to calm. "I may seem to you old-fashioned. I don't believe in the modern women—the women of our world, that is. I don't believe in the way yong girls are brought up to feel that they owe nothing to life but to accept the sacrifices of others. I don't believe in the way young girls are brought up to feel that they owe nothing to life but to accept the sacrifices of others. I don't believe in the disorganization that a 'young girl of eighteen is pitchforked into in what is called her debutante year.' I don't believe in cramming into a few months all the pleasures which should come naturally through life—and be enjoyed naturally. I don't think it's fair to the girl—or to the man who has to marry her. I don't believe in a woman being freed of all responsibilities as a wife or a mother, existing only to enjoy what her husband makes, without sharing his worries or helping in the economy of his existence. Moreover, I don't believe in the modern wife, after a year or two a baby or two, taking up again the same life of flattery and adulation she has had as a young girl.'

Amy felt her cheeks go red.

"And yet you like me!" she said, with a gasp.

"It's not the woman's fault—that's the pity. It's the American sentimentalization towards us. It's we who are cheated."

"What do you believe in then?"

"I believe in bringing up my girls to marry, not in a sentimental mawkish outburst, but with a knowledge of the things they expect in a husband, whom they wish to admire, cherish, and assist. And I am going to bring them up to be prepared to play a great part in that marriage, to know the conduct of the household, to develop their executive qualities, and I am going to bring them up to a belief that the highest ideal is to be a wife and a mother and to know how to maintain that ideal in the eyes of their husbands and their children. I'm going to do that, because I want their happiness."

"Yes; but what ideal?" Amy murmured, drawing a deep breath.

"The ideal of duty, naturally," said Mrs. Bracken, simply.

"Oh, duty, duty!" exclaimed the younger woman, in a burst of revolt. "It's always that. After all, what is duty?"

"Duty, my dear, is simply self-respect," said Mrs. Bracken gently. "It means that what a woman does, does not depend on any such philosophies as you and I hear every day—if my husband does that I'll do it, too. It means that you are brought up first, last and always, with the need of respecting yourself, and, whatever comes that you will never soil that ideal. You see, I belong to a family that doesn't simply go to church," she added, after a moment, "but makes its religious belief the reason of its conduct."

"Oh, yes; if you believe—I understand," Amy said, in a low voice.

"And if you don't —what are you all seeking? Happiness, of course. Do you think Irma Delabarre or Gladys is really happy? Are you?"

"Mrs. Bracken, it must sound terrible," said Amy, and the tears came to her eyes again; "I think I am happy, I truthfully think I am. I might say no in some moods. A dozen times since I've been here and loved your life and all that, I could have said no, but at the bottom—" She rose and shook her head, "Yes; I want the life I lead."

"Answer me in a year."

"Life is easier for you," Amy said, hurrying on. "You have made no mistakes. Don't be too hard on others. Don't judge me too severely."

"I don't", said Mrs. Bracken, rising in turn. She came and stood by her side. "And the proof is I am going to ask something of you."

"I will do anything in the world for you, Mrs. Bracken—anything you ask," said Amy impulsively.

"Will you?"

"Anything if you'll only be my friend!"

"I want Monte to marry your cousin," said Mrs. Bracken. "Don't do anything to interfere with it will you?"

"But—why—" For a moment she could not get her breath. Then she said hurriedly, "Why, Mrs. Bracken, such a thing—why, I have never—"

"Don't!" said Mrs. Bracken, looking at her and, before that clear look, Amy's glance fell. 'You attract him very strongly. I saw that from the first night. There is so much that is fine in him. I want to see him happy. He means so much to us."

Amy looked at her in wonder, and this time it was Mrs. Bracken's eyes that turned away.

Something caught her like the closing of cruel fingers across her heart. A sob rose in her throat, before something she could not see clearly She caught Mrs. Bracken's hand and kissed it.

"I promise," she said hastily. "I promise I will do everything I can to help."

XIII

Monte Bracken was to drive them back to the city. The afternoon had been so delicious that they had postponed the leaving until after dinner. The night was clear and sown with stars. Under the mellow region of the porte-cochere lamps, they looked, in their fur coats, like Esquimos starting on a hunt. Claire and her husband stood arm in arm, while the valises were stowed and the ladies bundled into the back seat and were smothered in furs.

'Come again soon, pretty lady," said Allan, running down to Amy for a last boyish handshake, "Fifi, you're part of the family always. Bye-bye, Monte. It's been a bully time!"

Amy freed one arm and kissed her hand to Mrs. Bracken, who stood on the steps, smiling back at them. Between them, no further word of intimacy had been spoken, but in the meeting of their glances they knew that the compact of friendship had been sealed.

The next moment the searchlights swept over the low, vine-covered Colonial home into the pine grove, and fastened on the white road ahead.

"What a wonderful person!" said Amy, leaning back until the sprinkled stars closed over her.

"Cleverest little woman I know," said Fifi emphatically. "Only thing I can't make out is why she has any use for me!"

"If you'd heard what she said about you—"

"Oh yes; she believes in my repentance," said Fifi, cutting in. "That's because she wants me to tame Monte and marry him.'

"Well, why don't you?" said Amy, after a moment's laughter at her cousin's slapdash way.

"If she'd oppose me, I'd do it," said Fifi frankly. "I've never yet done anything any one wanted me to do, and I suppose I never will."

"Fifi, you're incorrigible," said Amy determined to live up to her promise despite her dislike of her cousin's confident assumption that the decision lay in her hands.

"Hello there, Monte," said Fifi, poking into the voluminous fur/back in front of her. "Did you know that Claire is trying to splice us up?"

"Don't worry!"

"Now, that's a passionate answer," said Fifi gaily. "Don't worry yourself. You're interesting as a bold bad man, but as a captive husband you'd be flat. You shan't be spoiled—if I have to mount guard over you. I don't feel a bit like going home," she continued, sitting back; 'couldn't we run in on Irma for the night? Friend husband's off fishing—it ought to be quite cheerful."

"We refused to spend the night at the Brackens; it would hardly look right, would it?"

"Oh, no; of course not. Bother it!" said Fifi, who relaxed with a sigh. "What's Irma up to, anyhow?"

"Crocidile hunting, I suppose," said Amy, with a laugh. "I haven't seen her for a week and that's a sign."

Fifi started to say something and abruptly checked herself. After a moment, she said casually,

"I suppose Andrew's worried at the Mexican muss."

STORM.

Scurry in young children, so that editorial in The Journal of the Amer.

Within the white seclusion of his bed
Each dreamer clasps his dream now, safe and warm,.
But I have heard for braver fate instead
Who seek the rough endearments of the storm.

All night I shall be rioting abroad,
One with the windy company and fain
To ride the tempest, lightning for my sword,
And blow the silver trumpets of the rain.

Or lose myself, a wild and sentient leaf,
Against the burdened bosom of the sky
And, pulse to pulse, be partner in its grief
While blackness and oblivion rush by.

Or veiled in foamy waters as a bride,
To wed the river whose orchestral sound
Will live long after human songs have died
And are distilled in secret under ground.

And when the hours with mighty measure go,
And day has found a world emotion swept,
I'll wear my gray fatigue and none may know
The splendor of the tryst that I have kept.

—Amanda Benjamin Hall in Contemporary Verse.

SAYS 100,000 VACANT SCHOOLROOMS IN THE UNITED STATES

COBOURG, Ont., Aug. 6.—Richard Yates, former governor of Illinois, and United States Congressman, in an address at the Cobourg Community Chatauqua yesterday, said there were 100,000 vacant schoolrooms in the United States because the teachers had not been paid enough. Ex-Governor Yates said that of ten million boys mobilized into the United States army in 1917, statistics showed that 24 9-16 per cent of them could not read sufficiently well to read a newspaper or write a letter home ot mother. Education of the young as a vital facor in the well-being of the state was emphasized by Mr. Yates.

TAKE PHOSPHATE WITH MEALS IN SUMMERTIME

Your Nerves Demand It. Your Blood Needs It, Say Physicians.

There's not enough phosphorus in modern foods to benefit nearly one-half of the men and women of American scientists declare.

To overcome this lack of an element of your body that is necesary to your health, your happiness and even your success in life, weak, anaemic, nervous, run-down people are adyised to take Bitro-Phosphate as dispensed in leading drug stores in the original package.

Speaking of people who are easily fatigued, who lack ambition, nerve and are ofttimes thin, weak and sadly lacking in firm, healthy flesh, Joseph D. Harrigan, formerly Visiting Specialist North Eastern Dispensary, N. Y., says:

"Patients who were apparently physical wrecks, who foolishly thought they needed only a blood tonic to enrich the blood, have come for treatment trembling and shaking, their nerve froce almost exhausted and in many such cases the administering of Bitro-Phosphate has produced seemingly magical results."

People who feel the heat of summer, tire easily and often become irritable and depressed, will find Bitro-Phosphate an inexpensive and helpful friend.

Druggists report a wonderful increase in the demand from men and women who are anxious to renew old-time ambition and who are making an honest effort to become vigorous and keen-minded with a power of endurance that denotes almost perfect health.

They ask for Bitro-Phosphate because they know they need an inexpensive organic phosphate.

NEW TACTICS BY LENIN

Now Considers Communist Participation in Parliaments Essential.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Communist participation in parliaments is favored in resolutions adopted by an overwhelming majority at a meeting of the Third Internationale at Moscow, according to a dispatch from that city to The Herald, organ of labor.

The proposal was submitted by M. Bukharian, editor of the Bolshevist organ Pradva of Moscow, who urged that parliamentary action be adopted as part of the Communist program in all countries where the Communist Party has been organized. He declared each member elected to office should be required to sign an undertaking to surrender his seat in a parliament at the first request of his party.

"We cannot fight the way we please," the dispatch says Nikolai Lenin declared when the resolution was strongly opposed by several delegates, 'but must use the conditions we have before us. The mass of workers and peasants believe in parliaments, and we need to use that system to show its uselessness for revolution. We must convince workers by experience if we cannot convince them by theories. If we cannot devise new ways of revolutionary action, we must use those provided by historical development."

WOMAN SHOOTS OUT HER ACHING TOOTH

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 6.—As a remedy for a toothache, Mrs. Teresa Kewdar, 40 years old, of Mount Winas, sought to shoot out the offending tooth with a 32 calibre revolver. Mrs. Kwedar was brought to St. Agnes Hospital here with a bullet wound near her right ear. Her husband said she had carried out her threat to shoot her tooth out if it did not get better. At the hospital Mrs. Kwedar said the wound was less painful than the toothache.

Miss Green—"Of course, you can't believe everything you hear."

Miss Gadleigh—"Oh, no; but you can repeat it."—Woodworker's Record.

A WORD TO WIVES

"What shall I do with my children? Shall I drown them?" asks a man of family who has been seeking comfortable quarters and finds at almost every turn that fateful ban—no children —and must keep on trying, hopeful of success sometimes. Landlords do not wish to rent their houses to families with small children nowadays; it is understood that the ban was not originally so strongly enforced; and more and more is the family discouraged, especially in the cities. There are very few houses in Jacksonville to be rented, even in midsummer, and the owners and agents can afford to be particular. They practically say that the the children are not wanted, and the homeseeker, not being able to deny his family, is turned away.

It is the same way in other sections of the country and in cities generally — that is, regarding the discrimination against small children—and with the great tendency towards the apattment house and the maby beautiful and comfortable structures erected in the majority of cities, restrictions are placed upon tenants that forbid the man with a large family from enjoying such homes. Children are not wanted in houses owned by others than the occupant. It is too bad, but the fact is evident and cannot be disputed or avoided.

And there is something to say for the landlords and house owners in this day and generation, for it would seem that careless parents who may imagine that they are doing well by their offspring frequently allow them to become pests of a neighborhood. There was never anything more truthful said than "spare the rod and spoil the child." Not that this should be taken literally, but the idea conveyed is to correct the faults of the young because they must frequently err unconsciously, and to allow them to continue in error is a wrong against the child more than the parent.

Because so many children are allowed to disfigure and destroy, unnecessarily and meaninglessly, the properties of home and surroundings, the whole race of youngsters is condemned and the house agent doesn't wish to take a chance. There are tens of thousands of children of tender age who yet understand that it is wrong —and useless—to disobey their parents and to spoil the property of others. There are tens of thousands more, even in teh nurseries, who have ben brought up under that old-fashioned order of 'children being seen but not heard,' 'and these little folk do not appear to be in any danger of becoming stunted or lacking in opportunities for healthful development and happy days.

On the other hand, a troop of unrestrained, selfish boisterous children neglected or spoiled by their parents, become a burden upon the latter before they are in their teens, and not only intefere with the possible comfort and pleasure of the homes, but handicap themselves for the future by making a bad impression whenever possible and increasing the defence which the average men and women put up when the ill-bred children are about.

Obedience to authority is required of all who live in civilized countries, and to neglect this important fact in training a child is to send it out into the world a mental cripple. It seems the easy and gentle way for the young mother and doting father to "spoil the baby," and frequently the parents believe that they are doing what is the best for themselves, the child, and the country. It is a serious mistake, and the sooner understood the better diverse from the right, and the parents who do not correct children when they are wrong and disobedient are piling up trouble for everybody.

OAKWOOD MAN PINNED BENEATH HIS CAR

OAKWOOD, Aug. 7.—A serious accident occurred Thursday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dibnah while returning home from Cannington, opposite Mrs. Laura Colter's house west of the village, their car struck a stone and turned turtle over the bridge. Mrs. Dibnah was pinned under the car, and had the main artery and muscles of her arm cut. Mr. Dibnah received a bad shaking up and though somewhat delerious, no serious results are anticipated. Dr. Hall, of Little Britain, was summoned by phone and attended to their injuries. The top and windshield of the overland car was smashed to atoms. Mr. and Mrs. Dibnah were fortunat ein not being killed when their car was thrown over the bridge, and their escape is almost miraculous.

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX REACHES LONDON

LONDON, Aug 10.—Less impressive welcome for Archbishop Mannix could hardly have been staged than that which greeted him when he arrived at Paddington station at six o'clock this morning. Only late editions last night published the fact of the arrival at Penzance and only a few knew he was to arrive at an early hour to-day. A few priests, representatives of Irish self-determination League and reporters were present. The Prelate was driven to home of a Priest in the suburbs. He declined to say whether he had any plans for the immediate future and would not disclose what he intended to do during his stay in England.

Fine for Skin Exposed to Sun or Flying Dirt

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the beating sun, are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolized wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Reddened, tanned, freckled or roughened cuticle is actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at this season. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

THE LOCKWORKS ANNUAL PICNIC

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP TO HASTINGS AND BACK ON THE STONEY LAKE—A BALL GAME THROWN IN.

With the opening of summer—which this year appeared to commence only on August 5th—the annual Excursion of the Employes and staff of the Peterborough Lock Works played a considerable part.

On Saturday, August 7th the good ship Stoney Lake was chartered to carry this party, the objective being a trip down the Otonabee river, a run the length of Rice Lake, and a few miles up the Trent river to Hastings.

At 8.15 a.m. the boat started. Admiral Frank Young was on the George street wharf to wish God-speed to his passengers. Captain Scollard, with his usual genial smile and hearty handshake, was in charge of a crowd of upward of three hundred. And a happy crowd it was too. A happy band of men and boys, the matron and the maid; and kiddies from the cooing babe upwards, both male and female. As the steamer rounded off to the Peterborough Lock, the pretty cemetery at Little Lake looked at its best, for the sun was shining gloriously. Oh, it was a lovely morn—bright sunshine with pleasant S. W. breeze—in fact the sort of early morn one might well describe as "divine."

The Peterborough Locks being negotiated the Street Railway wharf offered its quota of passengers and then right away down the river. Ice creams were early in great demand and a considerable business in this commodity appeared to be done. Dancing was very soon started and was kept up nearly all day. The dance music was provided by Miss Calder, who officiated as pianiste, while Mr. Tucker did a good best with his violin. At intervals between the dancing, vocal and instrumental solos, part songs and choruses, afforded a pleasing variation. Hospitality, too, had sway, for innumerable candies were presented to the ladies and children, while such men as are sufficiently Philistines as to smoke had a cigar presented to each.

All went well until some distance down the river when the sky quickly became overcast and but for the heat one might reasonably concluded we had suddenly run into a dull November day. Then came ominous rumbles of thunder, shortly followed by a terrific downpour. Oh it rained "Heaven's hard"! "cats and dogs", as some term it. But the British spirit "are we downhearted? No!" nervaded every one. We only had to get a little closer in the sheltered places and in half an hour it was all over. But, until we arrived at the River Trent, the weather was dull and thick and heavy, and at times it was a hard matter to make out the shores of Rice Lake. However, about the beginning of the Trent river the sun drove all the heavy clouds away and we found that at Hastings (where we landed about 1 p.m.) the rain had been an unknown quantity.

Directly the ship's officials had moored the Stoney Lake along the wharf, the Reeve of Hastings, stepped on board and in the name of the "City" offered on behalf of the corporation, the visitors the use of the Town Hall, Council chamber and any public buildnig at their disposal, either for rest rooms, dressing rooms or waiting rooms, for shelter in case of storm or tempest—a courtesy which your representative need not say was much appreciated. That little kindness being arranged many attacked their baskets (although the mealtime seemed to have begun with many a couple of hours earlier), others visited the ship's dining saloon, where a good dinner and later, supper, was served. Then a general trek took place to the ball grounds—the number being augumented by some parties who had come over by train—for there was not only to be played a game of baseball—Lockworks, Peterborough versus the Hastings team—but some various events in the shape of races etc., were to be pulled off.

The upshot of the ball game was a victory for the visitors: 13-8. There was some very good play shown by both teams, and it was an interesting game. Fred Whaley was the manager of the Lock Works team Harry Dodd was "umps." The pitchers respectively were Connors for Lock Works and Luce carber for the home team. The catchers were respectively Huffman and Nelson, while R. Brady coached the visiting aggregation.

Simultaneously the various sports were contested which were mainly for the juvenile members. The space at disposal will not admit of any detailed account of these. Suffice it to say that a good deal of happiness fun and merriment was caused by the various contests.

At 3.45 p.m. the warning whistle was sounded and the homeward journey was begun at 4 p.m. The trip across Rice Lake was superb the sun and light breeze had chased away all the gloomy clouds of a few hours back; the air was clear and the country on both sides of the lake was visible for miles. Supper was soon the order of the day and everybody was busy on that important epoch in the day's history.

Fortunately no contretemps occurred at either of the bridges over the Otonabee, as was the case some days ago when a pleasure steamer is said to have held up for about two hours, on both the outward and returning journeys owing, so report said, to the absence of the bridge officials—a government bridge too—After a delightful sail up the river, in due course, around 8.30 the Street Railway wharf was stonned at, where a very considerable number disembarked and at nine o'clock, George street wharf—home—was reached. There special street cars were in readiness and the balance of the happy party were soon homeward bound.

The management of the outing was all that could be desired. Those on board looking after everyone's comfort were Messrs. Ford and Will Whaley, Dan Burton, Pete Collins, Ed La Plante, etc., members of the committee, and right well these various gentlemen performed their duties.

Needless to say that Captain Scollard and his subordinates, as usual, did all in their power to promote the happiness, safety and comfort of the voyagers, and hearty cheers, for all concerned, followed, of course, by "God Save the King," rang out before the multitude dispersed; every body expressing him or herself delighted with the whole day's outing, notwithstanding the temporary discomfort and inconvenience of a sharp storm of a half-hour's duration.

STREET SIGNS FOR PETERBORO

MUCH NEEDED SCHEME IN PROSPECT.

Street signs for Peterboro, were considered at the meeting of the City Planning Committee of the Board of Trade on Friday afternoon. It was decided to divide the city into districts with colonels in charge, to put majors in charge of streets and captains in charge of blocks, for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions from the residents to cover the cost of street signs, and to call a meeting of the officers of the various commands as early as possible to make definite arrangements. It is hoped that City Engineer Parsons can be prevailed upon to take charge in the city with the position of General.

It was suggested that the merchants and prominent citizens might make special subscriptions for the erecting of large signs at the intersections of important streets.

The matter is being taken up with the city council.

Those present were J. W. Worth, chairman, A. MacNab, W. S. Dodds, and Secretary Leonard Frazer.

MIGHT BE GOOD IDEA.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENED YESTERDAY WITH AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME

CAPTAIN (FATHER) R. J. J. WATT GAVE AN ADDRESS IN THE EVENING ON THE "WINNING OF PEACE."

"The Winning of Peace" was the subject of the lecture delivered by Captain (Father) R. J. J. Watt, M.A., L.L.M., C.R.S., G.C.C.E., of London, England, at the Chautauqua last evening. Father Watt is an eloquent speaker and his vivid word picture of the German attack on the 7th Imperial Division in 1914 held his audience spell-bound. His subject was ably handled and its earnest background was lightened by touches of humour and adorned with philosophy.

Was a Chaplain.

Father Watt saw service in the great war as a chaplain and a diplomat and was seriously wounded. He is a scholar and a writer as well as a brilliant speaker and his services in the war have won for him the appellation of "England's First Line Chaplain." He has performed several diplomatic missions for the British Government.

World Conflict a Proximity.

In considering the possibility of another world conflict, Father Watt alluded to it not as a probability but a proximity. The chief cause, he believed, is the reversion of the world to the pre-war state of "grab" and selfishness following the axiom which he considered a great untruth, "Charity begins at home." Charity, Father Watt explained, began with God and thence through the world to "home."

Love a Solution.

Both individuals and nations fail to understand each others. Father Watt stated, and thus misunderstandings arise. Love, he said, is the only solution of the difficulty, but love can come only through mutual understanding. Hence, he believed, we should attempt to thoroughly understand other people and other nations. That, as a solution of the world's difficulties, love is greater than treaties, or leagues, was his opinion.

Labour and capital, through mutual misunderstanding, are becoming more estranged daily, the speaker continued. Like all disputes of men this will eventually end in strife, not international, but civil strife, in which the blood will follow in the streets of Canada even as it did in the streets of Flanders, he warned. Understanding and Christian charity are all that can avert such, he concluded.

During the lecture he alluded frequently to the great war and his deductions therefrom and his experiences proved most interesting.

Community Singing.

A novel feature of the evening's programme was the community singing, led by Herman J. Bronwer of the London Concert Party, who during the war was a director and organizer of community singing for the United States Government. It was Peterborough's first experience of a "sing" but the audience entered wholeheartedly into it and seemed to appreciate the idea of amusing themselves.

London Concert Party.

The musical portion of last night's programme was supplied by the London Concert Party, a concert organization of considerable merit from the London, Ont., Conservatory of Music.

F. Lingforth Willgoose, principal of the London Conservatory, and a well-known Canadian musician, played the accompaniments.

Miss Elsa Mitchener, of Toronto, soprano, made an excellent impression. She sings with expression and spirit and interprets her lyrics with clever dramatic expression.

Miss Florence Dewey's work upon the violin was very pleasing and the several encores did not satisfy the audience.

Herman J. Bronwer, baritone, has a strong and mellow voice which, coupled with his affable manner, won the audience.

ANIMALS AS ACTORS IN FEATURE PLAY

"The Courage of Marge O'Doone," Vitagraph's screen version of the popular novel by James Oliver Curwood, which will be shown at the Allen Theatre to-day and to-morrow, is a clean, live story of love and adventure in the frozen wilderness of the great Canadian Northwest. Not the least of its exciting episodes, aside from a great fight between two grizzly bears, are the scenes, which were difficult to obtain, where David Raine and Marge O'Doone, with the aid of Tara, the trained bear, and Borree, the wolf-dog, fight their way out of the Nest, the stronghold of smugglers and bad men.

The play opens on a train stalled in the snow of an Arctic night and ends with a night encampment and a strange meeting far from civilization. Between the beginning and the end are wonderful adventures and exciting incidents in a land where heroism and danger are a part of the daily routine.

POLACK SHOWS HERE WITH MANY NEW AND ATTRACTIVE FEATURES

WILL BE AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS ALL THIS WEEK—YESTERDAY'S OPENING.

The Civic Holiday celebrants who were attracted to the Exhibition Grounds yesterday by the racing program and other outdoor sports, met with an unexpected surprise when they entered the gates and were confronted by midway attractions that had been erected over night upon the spacious grounds. Though unherald and deprived of the usual advanced billboard and newspaper advertising, the Polack Bros. 20 big shows arrived in this city on Sunday evening in two special sections of fifteen cars each, and will exhibit at the Fair Grounds this week under the direction of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Association. Peterborough was not upon the itinerary for 1920, but owng to railroad difficulties the shows were compelled to cancel Renfrew, Ontario, and make the journey to this city. The Polack Shows are well-known to the folks of this vicinity, having exhibited at the Fair Grounds for five days last year.

A Big Crowd.

While showers somewhat interfered with the attendance and kept many from the grounds yesterday, the isles of wonderland were thronged with crowds until a late hour last evening. The big water proof tops supplied sufficient shelter for the joy seekers, and they were exposed to the rain only when they wended their way from one attraction to another.

From the appearance of the numerous attractions presented last evening, the Polack Shows have added many new features since last appearing in this city, and of these the Wild Animal Show, with its horse-back riding lions, stands out as a feature. Such exhibitions, as a rule, are of the same type—wild animals make picturesque groupings by use of pedestals, or are put through some routine of work that is not new to the eyes of the public, but Wilson's attraction is entirely different from the average arena exhibitions.

Animal Act.

Requiring patience, time, and hard work to compel a full-grown African lion to ride around the arena upon the back of a horse, Mlle. Aurora has succeeded in offering to the public something new and novel that is bound to please an audience at all times. Then again shoying that the human mind is greater than the animal creation, she performs with animals that are of an entirely antagonistic character, compelling them at the crack of the whip to present unusual feats of interest. Mlle. Aurora brings a dog and a lion into the arena at the same time and feeds them raw meat out of her hands while all are seated at a table, and then again these two animals are seen lapping milk from the same pan, showing the amount of friendship which exists between the odd "pals."

The feature of all feature outdoor exhibitions, and one that can only be appreciated by those who have had an opportunity of witnessing the display is the La Rose Electric Fountain, which was presented in this city last year, and gave the greatest satisfaction of any tented attraction ever offered by a travelling organisation. The fuontain is as beautiful as ever, and possibly more so, by the additional stereoptical effects that lengthen the performance.

New Features.

O. K. Hager and his sister, Alda Hager, while unknown to the folks of this vicinity, are very popular throughout Ontario as being noted for their daring racing abilities that have predominated about the race tracks around Toronto. Hager and Sister are offering fancy and trick riding exhibitions upon a perpendicular drome, which is the finest constructed race course in the country.

Among the attractions which have been located on the Midway include the Wild West Show, the "Devil Girl," Kahym, the mystery man of India, the Circus Side Show, Alice, Arabian Nights, the Ferris Wheel, merry-go-round, Venetian swings, the Whip, and the ever-popular sensational ride Over the Falls.

TAKEN OVER BY THE GOVERNMENT

PETERBORO BOY WILL BE SUPERINTENDENT OF HOSPITAL.

The Ontario Hospital, Cobourg, which was used as a military hospital for the last two years, has been taken over by the Ontario government and will not be used as a regular hospital treating acute, sub-acute and chronic mental and neurotic cases.

Dr. P. McNaughton, an old Peterborough boy, has been chosen by the Government as Medical superintendent for this hospital. We hope to have the hospital open between the middle and end of August. Peterborough county and city, as well as Victoria county and the town of Lindsay are in this hospital district for female patients, as only female patients will be admitted. This will make it very convenient for these two counties.

A WORTH WHILE JOB.

A pessimist and an optimist were discussing life from their different viewpoints. "I really believe," said the former, "that I could make a better world myself."

"Sure!" returned the optimist; "that's what we are here for. Now let us get to work and do it."

SPORTING NEWS, VIEWS AND GOSSIP

PETERBORO WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE CENTRAL ONTARIO CIRCUIT

LOCAL BALL SWATTERS HAD A GOOD DAY IN OSHAWA ON SATURDAY—THE SCORE WAS 13-3 IN FAVOUR OF HOMESTERS.

Playing a brilliant offensive and defensive game at Oshawa on Saturday afternoon, the Petes easily defeated Oshawa by 13 to 3, and walked off the field champions of the Central Ontario Amatcur Baseball League. To the three hundred Peterboroughites who travelled to Oshawa by train and auto and watched the merciless attack the Petes launched on Patton in the fifth innings, the masterly pitching of Howard Kirn, and the superb fielding behind him, Jake Solomon's lads looked one sweet ball club.

Ball teams have their "off" days and their "on" days. The Petes certainly were "on" in Saturday's battle, and they swept everything before them. Perhaps they also got whatever breaks there were, and it is possible that Oshawa had an "off day." The great fact was apparent, however, that the Petes on the afternoon's showing formed a vastly superior team, and would have beaten a team much stronger than Oshawa. What they would do another day is another matter.

If the fans who were not fortunate enough to see the game, can visualize, "Hap" Harrison playing even better ball at first base than he has played at home, Roy Cherrett playing at the top of his form, Tommy Holyman getting everything coming his way; Mickey Murray stepping into drives; the outfield on top of every play, and add to that Howard Kirn pitching as might be expected of him with a championship in the balance, and Swanston working smoothly behind the bat, they have a good idea of the fight the Petes put up against Oshawa. Twice base-runners were caught when they should not have been caught napping, but that was the extent of the team's mistakes.

It was a sore blow to the big crowd of Oshawa fans who were crowded along three sides of the diamond. Although the Petes demonstrated that they were a dangerous team, early in the game, and scored two runs before the homesters crossed the plate, Oshawa fans were hardly prepared for the bombardment that they were fated to witness in that awful fifth. When it was over, it was the Peterborough crowd that had to make all the noise.

Hits That Hurt.

There were two hits in that innings that perturbed Patton, probably more than Mickey Murray's home run clout. After Murray had mopped the runways, Wilson at first base dropped a throw allowing Swanston the bag. Harrison drove a wicked one to the left side of Patton, that neither the pitcher nor Rowden could handle. Right on top of that, Ray Rose bunted, the ball going to the right of Patton between the box and third base, and Rose easily made the bag. The last one seemed to nettle the pitcher more than any other hit of the game. But just to show that he could still pitch ball, Patton came back at the Petes in the sixth and retired them in order, getting Murray and Swanston on strikes.

Injury to Patton.

A regettable incident of the game was the injury to Patton. He appeared to be pitching on his nerve in the seventh and eight, and was slowing up in the ninth. In pitching to Cherrett, the ball shot high in the air away from the batter's box and Patton fell to the ground in great pain. It was found that the muscles of the arm were wrenched. The crowd gave evidence of their appreciation of his efforts in the box and their sympathy with him in his injury. The old boy certainly put up a game fight.

The play by innings:

First Innings.

In the getaway for the Petes, Cherret hit a hard one at Rowden who retired the runner at first. Murray waited and drew a pass, stealing second. Swanston flew to left and Harrison fanned.

Oshawa hit the ball hard at the infield only to be retired at first. Cherret threw out Rowden and Murray sniped Fair and Jacobi.

Second Innings.

Ray Rose and Lowe were retired on nice fielding by Rowden and Jacobi. Holyman got a nice single into right and he stole second. Ross, replacing Adams, also hit into right, scoring Holyman, Ross going to second. With Kirn up, Ross was caught off the bag by a quick peg from Patton. The wily Oshawan had faked a conflab with Jacobi, the trap was set and Ross was caught cold.

Holyman took a hot one from Roderick on the hop and got him at first. Kirn threw out Gifford and Wilson fanned.

Third Innings.

Fair made a nice play on Kirn's bounder, heading the runner at first. Cherrett poked out one of his famous hits, the ball landing two feet in from the left field foul line, the Petes' short stop getting two bags. There he remained as Murray fanned and Swanston was thrown out by Rowden.

Swanston dropped the third strike on Dobson, getting him at first. Cherrett threw out Hall and Murray got under Patton's high fly.

Fourth Innings.

Harrison hit through the box, going to second on a wild peg by Hall. Ray Rose struck out. Lowe shot one through first, scoring Harrison. The Petes were hitting the ball hard and low. Low made second on the throw in, and then fell before the cunning of Patton. Roderick sneaked in from middle field, took a swift and accurate peg from Patton and Lowe was out. Holyman sent up a foul fly to Wilson.

Oshawa got one back in the fourth which Rowden opened with a single to left. Fair sacrificed. Jacobi sent one into middle field, scoring Rowden. The Oshawa crowd made an awful noise and called for their favorites to come on. Roderick drove a hot one at Murray who threw to second, getting Jacobi. Gifford fanned. That ended the fun for the remainder of the game, so far as the Oshawa rooters were concerned.

Fifth Innings. 6

The fifth was a riot, in which the Petes got the breaks. On a nice peg from Fair ox Ross' grounder, Wilson droped the ball and Ross was safe. Kirn hit into left cleanly. Cherrett drove the ball through first, scoring Ross, and Kirn came home on the throw in which was feet wide of the plate. Cherrett made second. Then along came Murray. Making a careful selection he met the ball fairly and it never landed until well into the suburbs beyond right field. Cherrett scored lith him. That was tough on Patton and the next two were enough to break down the morale of any pitcher. Harrison drove one through the box to Patton's left, but much too hot to handle, and Rowden couldn't get it either. Ray Rose bunted one to the pitcher's right and although the latter made a heroic effort to field the ball, Rose had the hit beaten and, Patton made no attempt at a throw. The uproar from the Peterborough contingent was great to behold. To keep it up, Lowe singled, scoring Swanston and Harrison. Six runs and nobody out. Holyman fanned. Ross hit to the ropes holding back the crowd in left field, sending in Rose and Lowe. Ross failed to touch second base, and Cy. Reynolds took it upon himself to call the runner out. Right there Reynolds kicked himself out of the Central League, and banishment forever was made certain when he called several decisions later. Kirn made the third out when he was retired on a grounder to Fair.

Wilson fanned for the second time. Holyman threw out Dobson. Hall got a hit over short, but Swanston caught him attempting to steal. It was a perfect peg.

Sixth Innings.

Patton came back strong against the top of the batting order. Cherrett was thrown out easily by Rowden. Patton fanned Murray, the latter watching the third strike sail over the plate. He also fanned Swanston. That was a creditable come-back for the Oshawa hurler.

Patton kept it up by sending a sizzler that bounded over Kirn and out of Cherrett's reach. He was forced at second by Rowden, who grounded to Murray. Rowden stole second and third. Fair fanned. Jacobi doubled to middle, scoring Rowden. Roderick fouled to Harrison.

Seventh Innings.

Harrison struck out. Rose singled through second, only to be forced by Lowe on a Rowden-to-Fair play. Holyman hit into right, advancing Lowe. Ross droped one in left, and on the throw-in which was relayed by way of short, Holyman went out at third. Lowe got home but the run did not count.

Gifford beat out a hit to Cherrett. The clout was wasted as Wilson hit into a double play. Murray moved back and speared Wilson's drive and got Gifford far from first base. It was a brilliant play, the kind that hurt the other team. Kirn isued his first pass by walking Dobson, following it up by hitting Hall with a slow ball, on which it looked as if the latter took a chance. No damage developed as Patton struck out.

Eighth Innings.

Kirn singled to left, Cherrett grounded to Rowden who threw wide to Fair to get Kirn at second, both runners being safe. Murray struck out. Swanston biffed a hard one to Rowden, who threw to the plate, but Kirn got the decision. Harrison drove in Cherrett and Swanston. Ray Rose fanned and Lowe flew out to Roderick.

Rowden fouled to Murray. Fair flied to Harrison. Jacob's fly dropped between Rose and Cherrett after the latter had backed up. Lowe came in for Roderick's fly.

Ninth Innings.

Holyman flew out to Dobson. Ross walked and Kirn fanned. With two out and one on Cherrett, Patton went down in a heap. The last ball delivered went high in the air. Patton had wrenched his pitching arm and was assisted to the Oshawa bench to receive first aid treatment. Jacobi warmed up to finish the game, Lake going to third base. Cherrett was retired on a grounder to Fair.

Kirn took things easy in Oshawa's last chance. Gifford singled and Wilson doubled, the latter getting his first hit of the game. It scored Gifford. Holyman took Dobson's fly. Hall singled. Murray took Lake's fly and threw to Cherrett for a double, ending the game that gave the championship to the Petes.

TRIBUTE TO PETERBORO TEAM

In capturing the championship of the Central League by winning nine straight games, after losing the first fixture of the season, the Petes have established themselves without a doubt as the best balanced all-round team in the Lockington circuit. In a longer schedule their superiority would have been even more pronounced, for they are undoubtedly better provided with reserve strength than any other club in the League and in better shape for emergencies in the shape of accidents to players, etc.

Manager Solomon and every member of his team deserve the heartiest congratulations upon their victory. They have practised steadily and faithfully, putting in long hours in the drudgery of training, and their perseverance in this respect has won them the highest honors in the League. Manager Solomon himself has set the example by faithful attendance at the work outs, where he has handled the excellent material at his disposal with good judgment, the result being shown in the capture of the championship. Since he took hold of the Petes they have annexed eight games without a defeat, while they have shown pep and inside baseball in their work.

All the players share in the credit for the winning of the championship. Lornie Rose, upon whose shoulders much of the twirling has fallen has been a notable factor in the success of the team. The veteran Kirn has done valiant work on the slab whenever called upon, coming through in great style on Saturday, and the Petes have been lucky to have had him available, while Hap Harrison has done his bit at the rubber, and more than his bit, at first base where his superb fielding has made him a tower of strength. Behind the bat the peppery Swanston has caught in big league style, his throwing being a terror to base runners while his hitting has been hard and timely. In the infield Murray, Cherrett and Holyman, who have respectively covered third, short and second in all the Central League games, have fielded in fine style, and Murray has featured the season by the consistent manner in which he has punished the opposition twirling. He has developed since last season into the best third baseman in the league.

Managaer Solomon has used many different combinations in the outfield and every player has given of his best.

In paying a tribute to the work of the men who have brought the championship to Peterboro, Bob Ross should not be forgotten. Ross has been on the job all season, ready to go in if Swanston were hurt, catching when called upon, playing in the outfield when needed, and playing first base when Harrison was twirling, warming up the pitchers, always working for the success of the team with little chance to get into the limelight, Ross deserves a word of praise. Manager Solomon and his fellow players appreciate his worth, and the fans should do likewise. Ray Rose was another willing worker, ready to play in the infield or outfield as he was needed, in fact the whole team had the right spirit.

If they should carry it with them into the Ontario championship they should give the Toronto and western winners the battle of their lives. In the meantime the fans would be glad to know that they purpose to arrange a series of games with crack outside teams in order to keep in shape. The Hillcrests and Classics of Toronto have already been here, and the Oslers, St. Mary's Colts and other well known Queen City teams will likely be brought to Peterboro in the near future.

PETERBORO TEAM LOST TO CLASSICS

PETERBORO OUTFIT SHORT ON HITS

The new champions of the Central League made their bow to their supporters at Riverside Park, yesterday morning, in a game with Classics of Toronto. The result was a 3 to 2 win for the champions of the Riverside League. The visitors lived up to advance notices, by hitting the ball hard, Carl one of the team's swatsmiths getting two doubles. The Petes got only three hits, and earned one run; Classics secured nine hits and earned two runs.

Bill Ramsey proved a better "mudder" than Lornie Rose, the local heaver being unable to show his best wares on account of the rain that fell throughout the contest.

Classics put over a run in the first, McLaughlin singled between first and second. Holyman almost reaching the ball. VanWinkle sacrificed, and Carl doubled, scoring McLaughlin. Valiant and Reading flew out.

The Petes got two in the third when they did all their hitting. Jackson singled to left. McCarney bunted, Ramsey slipping in fielding the ball, both runners being safe. Rose fanned. Cherrett drove one through the box the ball going between Ramsey's legs and cutting second base. It was a hard smash, and Jackson scored, McCarney making third. Murray went up to a foul fly which Carl caught. He threw the ball to second and McCarney scored. Swanston flew out to right.

Classics tied it in the fifth. Swanston took Johnson's foul fly. Ramsey hit a long double and McLaughlin walked. VanWinkle sent a grounder to Cherrett who threw to Murray getting Ramsey. Murray threw the ball badly to Holyman to get McLaughlin and he made third. With Carl batting, Swanston threw to second base. Holyman apparently didn't expect the throw and it went on through, allowing McLaughlin to score. Carl flew out to Jackson.

Classics hit in the winning run in the sixth. Valiant shot one down third. Reading lined to second. The play failed to get Valiant at second, but caught Reading at first. Carter flew to McCarney. Compers hit to right centre, both McCarney and Jackson going after the ball with the usual result— it reached the ground. Valiant scored.

Classics were dangerous in the seventh, when after McLaughlin had fanned, VanWinkle and Carl singled Holyman made a starting on Reading's drive, retiring the side and stopping two runs.

The box score.

PASSING THE BUCK.

A bishop recently addressed a large assembly of Sunday School children, and wound up by asking, in a very paternal way: "And now, is there any little boy or any little girl who would like to ask me a question?"

A thin, shrill voice at the back of the room called out: "Please, sir, why did the angels walk up and down Jacob's ladder when they had wings?"

"Oh, ah, yes — I see," said the Bishop. "And now is there any little girl who would like to answer this question?"—Woodworkers' Record.

For a good half hour the father had been lecturing his son on the evils of late nights, and late risings in the mornings.

"You will never amount to anything," he said, "unless you turn over a new leaf. Remember it is the early bird that catches the worm."

"Oh," said the son. "How about the worm? What did he get for turning out so early?"

"My boy," came the reply, "that worm hadn't been to bed all night. He was on his way home."

BEHIND every industry in Canada—

—from the patient truck-gardener bowed over his lettuces—

—to the young manufacturer struggling to prove the worth of Canadian skill and Canadian material in some new enterprise—

—stand the railways—the intelligence, the power and the hopes of the railways of Canada.

* * *

Not, like the Exploiter, watching to take harsh advantage of hard-times or the follies of a boom—

Not seeking by a moment's shrewdness to "clean up a million and get out!"

Not interested in the price of real estate in just ONE town, or the prosperity of just ONE province—

But, instead, employing their widely-gathered intelligence in the interests of all Canada for all time to come!

For the railways of Canada cannot be lifted up and carried away to serve any other master than Canada!

Their services cannot find any buyer but Canada!

They injure themselves if by asking too high returns To-day they damage the prosperity of the citizens of To-morrow.

THE C.G.E. AND G.W.V.A. PLAYED A DRAWN GAME IN THE CUP TIE

BARTLEY MISSED CORNER OF GOAL—J. JONES GREAT ATTEMPT TO SCORE—W. JONES BRILLIANT—CROW'S PECULIAR TACTICS—VETS MISSED AN OPEN GOAL—"WAGS" LAST MINUTE EFFORT—NO SCORING.

In spite of the excessive heat on Saturday afternoon, a fair turnout of spectators appeared at the Oval to watch the C.G.E. vs. G.W.V.A. in the semi-final Peterborough City Cup Tie. Both teams included new players in their line-up. Owing to the non-appearance of Mr. A. Day, the official referee, the executive requested Mr. Alex. McKinley to handle the whistle. The teams lined up as follows :

C.G.E.—W. Jones, goal; W. Crow and P. D. Ryan, backs; H. Burrows, H. Gamble and J. Peel, half-backs; J. Jones, T. Monks, H. Norman, J. Gant and J. Sharman, forwards.

C.G.E.—C. Griffine, goal; J. Davis and J. McDonald, backs; J. Williams, H. Turner and J. Williamson, half-backs; A. Gash, C. Hotston, J. Manders, Ed. Bartley and Ed. Hotston, forwards.

Vets Faced the Sun.

The two teams could not agree in regards to playing full 90 or 70 minutes, but eventually settled the difference by the toss of the coin. Play opened up with Burrows conceding a corner for Hotston to put past. From the gaol kick Monks travelled to the other goal and crossed nicely to compel McDonald to kick to touch. The throw-in went to Gash, who beat it into the corner to lash the ball across the goal.

Missed Corner of Goal.

Bartley run in to catch the ball to head past the corner of the goal posts. The C.G.E. forwards kept the pressure up in the Vets' area with Norman and Crow playing a good defence that ended with two C.G.E. players being offside. Crow lifted the ball down to Sharman, who beat Williams by clean play and swinging the ball across to Jones, McDonald jumped upon him to clear up the field where Turner tried to force the play for Gamble to check him. He passed out to Sharman for Williams to back charge. From the foul kick Peel placed the ball acros to Norman, who broke through with Turner nipping the centre forward in time. The C.G.E. man put it up to Manders, who gave Bartley an excellent opening to score, but it travelled skywards.

Jones' Desperate Attempt.

Jones' gaol kick went straight to Norman, and slipping it out to Sharman the left winger fooled two C.G.E. men to put across the goal for Jones to miss heading the ball into goal a few yards out. Nice combination play by Jones and Mor was spoiled by Turner. The centre half passed forward to Manders who hopped the ball forward to Bartley, but returned to Hotston and Gash. The right wing man ran in close on Jones and just at the opportune moment Gash shot over the bar. On return play Gamble tore down the field to have a try at gaol. A foul against Williamson was cleared by Davis to Bartley, who overrun the ball past the touch. From the goal kick Manders and Jones outwitted Williamson to be stopped by McDonald to give a corner. It travelled right across the field to Gash who played combination with Hotston and just as they were going into gaol, Sharman ran the whole length of the field to hold them out. Jones fisted out with his two hands in the goal mouth from the corner.

Jones Brilliant.

A little while afterwards Wilfrid Jones stopped shots from all angles and at one time the players were all packed into the goal with G.W.V.A. goalkeeper jumping up into the air to defeat the whole C.G.E. team himself. From this until half time the play travelled from end to end with neither team showing any pep. Half time, C. G.E. O, G.W.V.A. 0.

Half Time.

On resuming the C.G.E. forwards went down in a body to test Jones, and immediately thereafter Ryan conceded a corner by heading past. From the corner kick Crow cleared to Norman and travelled down the field. McDonald cleared to Manders. The outside right went down the wing in haste to give Jones a hard one to hold. The War Vets' goalkeeper was jumped upon by Gash, but he threw the ball out to Crow and with a great drive punted the ball past at the other end. McDonald conceded a corner to Monks and placing a beauty in goal, Griffine was called upon to clear. Hotston received the ball from the goal kick when in a nice position, but accidently he hit it with his hand. Peel took the kick that went up into the sky.

Crow's Pecular Tactics.

Time and again the C.G.E. forwards would be held at bay by Ryan and Crowd. On an individual effort by Ted Hotston the play was transferred to Vets' area but at this point, when Hotston was about through, Crow gave one of his kangaroo leaps to slide along the ground to upset "Ted." From the foul kick the Vets right back cleared the situation by jumping up into the air to leave Bartley in queer street. A break-away by Norman resulted in Griffine saving fromabout 10 yards out. Each goal was visited in rotation with Crow awarding the C. G.E. a free kick. Williamson let drive for goal that was cleared easily by Jones.

Vets Missed An Open Goal.

Gamble took the ball into the C.G. E. area where he forced the play upon their defence and after the ball travelling in front of goals awhile the crowd were surprised to see a Vets player lift the ball over the bar from about 3 yards out. On mid-field play Gash had a wide open field in front to go in on Jones to score, but just as he was steadying himself for a shot a Vets player gave him the shoulder that made C.G.E. man shoot into the air. The Vets retaliated on the left wing that was put past.: "Wag" Hotston famous for his last minute goals, went down the field himself and from about 15 yards he let drive for Wilfrid Jones to make a great save. Both teams were now played out, as the referee called full time with neither of them scoring.

Analysis of the Game.

The following analysis will give an approximate idea of the run of play:

C.G.E.	1st Half.	2nd Half.	Total
Goals	0	0	0
Goal kicks	1	6	7
Corners	6	3	9
Fouls	1	1	2
Offsides	1	0	1

G.W.V.A.	1st Half.	2nd Half.	Total.
Goals	0	0	0
Goal kicks	6	5	11
Corners	1	3	4
Fouls	0	1	1

Notes on the Game.

The Vets were under strength owing to three of their players being on the sick list, and introduced Crow of the Gunner fame.

The return game will be played on Nicholls Oval to-night, and kick-off will take place at 6.15 prompt. They will play 35 minutes either way.

The War Vets' captain gave the fambus noise-maker—Mortimer—a gentle hint during the game, "Be a sport! You have too much to say."

Throughout the game there were only thsee fouls given and one offside decision. There was very little excitement.

NOTES ON THE BIG GAME

Louie Yeotes special G. T. R. train got a fine reception. Good time was made, and the trip paid the promoter. It seems an age since a baseball special was run out of Peterboro. Louie well deserved th ethanks he received from the fans.

Oshawa used up the bulk of the police force in policing the ball park. Joseph Bullied, a former member of the local police force is now wearing a suit of blue in Oshawa.

It is now in ordr for Sandy Lockington to tell that "Jesse James" story with the character he produced for base duty on Saturday. We await it with interest.

Congratulations came first from the Delora Baseball Club.

PETERBORO HORSE TOOK FIRST MONEY IN YESTERDAY'S EVENTS

GUELPH BAND ENLIVENED THE PROCEEDINGS AT THE EXHIBITION PARK.

Despite the drizzling rain a fairly large crowd attended the Civic Holiday races at Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon. The heavy track slowed up the races, but the Guelph Jazz Band jazzed away any atmosphere of slowness which might have existed.

Helen M., owned by J. Sutherland, of Peterborough, took first money in the 2.18 class, and B.U.B., owned by C. Moyse, of Port Hope, led the field in the 2.30 class.

Following are the results of the races by heats:

2.18 Class.

Helen M., J. Sutherland, Peterboro, 1 1 1.
Lena Rivers—2 2 2.
Miss Charlotte, M. G. Powell, Belleville—3 3 3.
The Judge—4 4 4.
Time—2.19, 2.22, 2.25.

2.30 Class.

B.U.B., C. Moyse, Port Hope — 1 1 1.
Billie Patch, G. Powell, Belleville— 2 4 2.
Sunnie Jim, Allen, Colborne — 3 2 3.
Birdie Wilks, Dr. Johnston, Port Hope—4 3 4.
Time—2.25, 2.30, 2.30.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

SPIRITUALISM VS. TRICKESY.

Mr. Editor.—Sir would you accord me the privilege of a few remarks re the above Editorial of your last Friday's issue. I could not help thinking as I read it through that we might find a fitting simile in the use of terms if we used the words "Government vs. Tyranny." Most intelligent people of this and other countries have a clear idea of what Government should be, but we see persons fill the high offices of the Legislature who are far from this ideal and fail to show the noble characteristics we had associated with the position. So with Spiritualism the name has become associated with lower forms of trickery that have given pulpit and press such good material for their attacks upon the pshycical investigator. But just as the true idea of Government, "by the people for the people" will triumph so the idea of a spiritual consciousness clearer and more scientifically defined through our nervous organization may be the heritage of the new type which the world awaits —when as the poet so beautifully phrases it—

The slaves of every creed shall joyfully lay down their broken chains,
The tyrant Lord his crown,
The priest his book,
The conquerer his wreath.
And from the lips of truth a mighty shout
Shall like a whirlwind scatter in its breeze
The whole dark pile of human mockeries.
Then shall the reign of mind commence on earth
And starting fresh a from a second birth
Man in the sunshine of the world's new spring
Shall walk transparent like some holy thing.

We cannot expect that this clarity of spiritual vision and the co-relative powers which would naturally be its accompaniment can find a fitting vesture in the human mind of to-day. Yet the fearfulness of Sir William Crooks, Sir Oliver Lodge and a score of others in their investigations would give us firm ground for the belief "that here and there in the world are already born some of this type who reflect in their organizations the strange powers that Science cannot fathom or classify. It is true these persons are not new nor are they as wonderful as we have recorded in the Bible. Yet while many accept the latter they would without hesitation deny those modes in operation to-day—we are not left in doubt either as to the many Maskelynes who sought public favor in disclaiming any force which their minds were not enlightened enough to understand but these did not obscure the light of truth or keep the record from becoming our heritage so we can confidently trust that posterity will receive from spiritualism whatsoever is of the God plan for the higher and more perfect spiritual life of the race.

LOCAL FOOTBALL GOSSIP

C.G.E. VS. G.W.V.A. TO-NIGHT AT 6.15, NICHOLLS OVAL—ASSOCIATION WANTS REFEREES—OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.

The public are invited to the G. W. V. A. Rooms to-night when the medals won by the Football teams will be presented by President Cook of the Executive.

The replay cup tie game between the C. G. E. and the G.W.V.A. will be played to-night at the Nicholls' Oval. Kick-off at 6:15 prompt. Mr. Alex. McKjnley will officaite as referee.

The popular left back of the C.G.E. will be an absentee owing to business keeping him in Norwood. He likes his new situation Al and we wish him every success.

An exhibition game between Canadian Woollens and the Comrades will be played on Nicholls Oval to-morrow evening at 6.30. The Comrades team will be chosen from the following players: J. Young, R. Leach, W. Carter, R. Moore, W. Yates, W. Warman, H. Knowles, B. Martin, A. Newman, A. N. Other, R. Joliffe and E. Haughton.

Last Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval a section of the crowd seemed never to be content with the decisions of the referee, unless they came their favorite way. Now gentlemen, be sports—give honour where honour is due. The Association is looking for referees.

The well known inside right of the Caledonians—Matt Shaw — will be married to-night. Every football enthusiast will wish the genial Matt every success and happiness in the future.

Wouldn't it be a great surprise for the C. G.E. team if the great Jim Bills who has signed for the Vets, where ot secure the winning run to-night.

Any person who has full knowledge of football in every detail down to the fine points, will get an opportunity to show his calibre by applying to Mr. Bates, the Football Executive Secretary, 173 1-2 Simcoe street, who awaits them so as to give each individual a chance to become a referee. This is the opportune time for all the fellows who stand on the line and criticize. How would Mortimer do?

The Britannias of Winnipeg defeated the C.P.R. of Fort William in the replay of the Connaught Cup on Saturday afternoon, by two clear goals, 2-0, after playing 2 hours on Wednesday afternoon to end in a draw. The Cup goes West.

DOMINION FOOTBALL ASSOCIATOIN MEETING

The final session of the next annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Football Association was held at the Carls-Rite Hotel Saturday morning. It was the most successful meeting of the association since its inception. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Patron, H.R.H. Duke of Connaught; life members, T. A. Bailey, Montreal; Tom Watson, Toronto; E. Bailey Fisher, Winnipeg; Craig Campbell, Montreal; honorary president, Tom Guthrie, Toronto; president, Dan McNeil, Winnipeg; vice-presidents, H. Taylor, Fort William, and R. B. Muir, Toronto; sec.-treasurer, Dave Roy, Winnipeg; council, N. Howard, Ontario; J. Flockhart, Quebec; Duncan McMillan, New Ontario; H. Scrymgour, Manitoba. The remaining Provinces will nominate their members to be approved by the present council.

The financial statement of the D. F. A. was presented and was in every way satisfactory .It showed a balance of $2,617.25. This shows an increase of $200 oer last year's balance.

Ed. Spencer of Toronto, who has been secretary for the past five years, was elected a life member in recognition of his services to the association.

It was unanimously decided to present Arthur Walters of the Fort William team and Gilnear of the Hamilton team with suitable gifts from the D.F.A. These two boys have been married during the week and are both taking part in the Connaught Cup finals.

The D.F.A. delegates completed the amendments to their constitution at two sessions Friday.

No drastic changes to the constitution were made. A proposal that the D.F.A. recommend to the International Board 'that if a player through no fault of his own is injured during the first half of a game and in the opinion of the refree is unable to continue, a substitute shall be allowed to take his place. If a player is injured during the second half then the opposing team must drop a man." It was decided to forward the recommendation, although those in favor were few.

The Provincial associations will be notified that they must make it a point to see that referees study carefully the official rule. The D.F.A. desires that the rule be uniform.

A transferred player cannot compete in the Connaught Cup series unless his transfer has been in effect for fourteen days.

Provincial associations have the right to demand all books and vouchers of associations, leagues and clubs under their jurisdiction at any time.

Earlier in the week it had been decided to hold the annual meeting and finals in September, but it has since transpired that the shift would not be feasible, and it was decided to adhere to the old rule and stage the series as usual in August. Dominion semi-final games must be played on or before July 20th.

The Only Dessert of This Kind

There are numerous forms of quick gelatine desserts. But Jiffy-Jell is the only one with the real-fruit flavors sealed in glass.

They crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it. A bottle of the liquid fruit essence comes in each package of Jiffy-Jell. In a moment's time you can prepare a delicious fruit dessert.

Sugar is used in Jiffy-Jell—not saccharine. And real-fruit flavors in place of artificial. It will give you a new conception of these delightful dainties.

Jiffy-Jell is often used in place of jam, marmalade, etc. Additional sugar may be used to suit the taste.

COUNTERFEITERS AT KINGSTON

The Kingston banks have been warned to be on the lookout for counterfeit Bank of Montreal $20 bills of which it is reported that there are a large number in circulation. It seems that by cutting out a small piece of five $20 bills and pasting them together they have been able to turn over another bill of a similar denomination, although the mutilated note is somewhat smaller than the good one.

LOOK FOR FACTORY SITES.

American Firms Look to Toronto, Says Realty Broker.

TORONTO, Aug. 10.—In the past week there have been more inquiries from American manufacturers for Toronto factory sites than at any time within the previous two months, stated a realty broker. Among the inquirers was an immense corporation which has 40 branches in the United States. Its representatives are negotiating with Hamilton.

"Ontario towns, which are in a position to offer free sites, lower assessments and other exemptions, have a big advantage over Toronto in bidding for these industries," said this broker.

ASTONISHED OVER RESULTS, HE SAYS

"WORDS ARE NOT STRONG ENOUGH TO EXPRESS MY GRATITUDE," SAYS THIS TORONTO MAN.

"I have no word of praise strong enough to express my gratitude for what Tanlac has done for me," said John Howard, of 46 Beverly Street, Toronto, to the Tanlac representative recently.

"I hardly know where to begin in telling about my case," he said, "but for a whole year before starting on Tanlac, I suffered so with nervous dyspepsia I got no pleasure out of life. No matter how careful I was about what I ate, trouble started soon afterwards. My food would seem to lie on my stomach like a lump of lead, and then it would sour and ferment and form gas that bloated me up until I could hardly breathe, and I had sharp pains all around my heart. I frequently had such headaches that they almost drove me districted, and my nerves were in a terrible state. I tried everything in the way of medicines, but none of them ever gave me more than temporary relief.

"When I saw so many Montreal people coming out with strong statements as to the great benefits they had received by taking Tanlac, I began to take notice, and decided to give it a trial myself. Well, I've taken four bottles in all, and it is nothing less than remarkable the way that medicine has settled my stomach trouble and built me up. I can honestly say that for the first time in many a long day I know what it is to really enjoy life and health. I can now eat anything set before me without ever suffering the least inconveniences from indigestion or gas. Headaches are a thing of the past, and my nerves are as steady as a die. I sleep like a log the whole night through, and get up in the mornings feeling fresh and strong. I shall always have a good word to say for Tanlac, and have every confidence in recommending it to others."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Waine Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.—(Advt.)

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterborough,
August 10, 1920

To the Editor of the Examiner—

May I be allowed through your columns to heartily congratulate Bandmaster Hughes and the bandsmen of the G.W.V.A. on their excellent concert given in the park last Sunday evening. To play a heavy programme on the eve of a holiday is a great achievement, and the large crowd present, thoroughly enjoyed every number.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours faithfully,
RICHARD J. DEVEY.

STONEY LAKE COTTAGERS

sailing in which there were more entries this year than in several years previous. At the outset Major G. E. Oxley led with the "Gull," but during the second lap Eddis passed him, only to retain the lead for a short time when Harold Knapman went ahead with the "28" and came in first.

Minor Accidents.

As usual several upsets added interest to the general programme, but none were serious. Mr. Arthur Bell, who recently stood first at the Henley regatta, Toronto, while paddling in the mixed tandem canoe with Miss Grace Stuart, had a more or less dangerous upset and was rescued when pretty well exhausted, by Mr. Welsh of Peterborough.

The Dance.

In the evening after the presentation of the prizes, which this year were more generous than any former regatta, and which were presented by ex-Controller and Mrs. J. O. McCarthy of Toronto, about two hundred and fifty young people tripped the light fantastic until a late hour with music supplied by the Syncopated Four. Fortunately during the evening a gentle breeze drifted through the rafters, cooling the atmosphere slightly. A pretty effect was lent the general scene by the sending up of several brilliantly colored balloons.

Excellent Service.

Trouble with the gate at the lift-lock prevented a record crowd from making the regatta by the water route, as the "Stoney Lake" could not get over. However, the Stoney Lake Navigation Company immediately made such provision as would prevent any one being disappointed, by transferring the passengers to the Grand Trunk and running two special boats through to Juniper. All service by the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, which brought 1,500 persons up, was splendid, which added materially to the general success of the regatta.

A NEW TASK FOR ASSESSOR HENRY

By a recent amendment to the Election Act, the Assessor is required to enter on the assessment roll the name of every person who is the full age of twenty-one years, a British subject, and who has been a resident of Ontario for a period of nine months prior to May 1st, and who is a resident of the municipality.

This morning City Assessor W. J. Henry, together with his staff, started out to obtain the information as required by the amendment to the Act. Citizens who are contemplating going away will confer a favour if they would write out the information and leave it with a neighbour, so that it will be available when the Assessor calls. This will save a lot of unnecessary labour and shorten up this additional task.

OAKWOOD MAN PINNED BENEATH HIS CAR

OAKWOOD, Aug. 7.—A serious accident occurred Thursday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dibnah while returning home from Cannington, opposite Mrs. Laura Colter's house west of the village, their car struck a stone and turned turtle over the bridge. Mrs. Dibnah was pinned under the car, and had the main artery and muscles of her arm cut. Mr. Dibnah received a bad shaking up and though somewhat delerious, no serious results are anticipated. Dr. Hall, of Little Britain, was summoned by phone and attended to their in-

Keeps Hair in Curl On Hot or Windy Days

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly 'worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose, drawing this down the hair from crown to tip. In three hours you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired. And it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beautiful dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous.

A SCHEME FOR CHEAPER CABLES

question of how much news from the distant parts of the Empire would be published from day to day, even if the goal of Imperial penny cables were in sight. Just how the various peoples are to be interpreted to each other in order to cement the Empire has not yet been made plain. If regal banquets and lavish entertainment will serve the purpost this conference will probably make a record. The business of the conference is apparently quite incidental and the social side of first consideration.

Service by Marconigram.

The most interesting faeture of the conference was the address by Mr. Burrows of the news department of the Marconi Company on the wireless telephone and wireless telegraph. Mr. Burrows said that enormous strides had been taken recently and the future promised unlimited possibilities. He intimated that it was quite practicable to serve a chain of papers simultaneously by wireless when operated at low speed and suggested that the Marconi Company were prepared to discuss the question with the Canadian publishers. A scheme was now under consideration by the British Government involving the award to the Marconi Company of an absolute monopoly throughout the British Empire under which the company would turn over 25 per cent. of the profits, and at the end of 30 years surrender everything to the Government. He pointed out that high speed transmission by wireless was now possible, and it was absolutely secret. The messages to the human ear sounded like one continuous note. They had to be registered on a high speed phonograph and then slowed down. It was very complicated and costly work. While Mr. Burrows was optimistic about the future, he deprecated the idea that wireless would displace the cables in the near future.

ODDFELLOWS MEET IN 51ST SESSION

GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF ONTARIO IN OSHAWA TWO DAYS.

OSHAWA, Aug. 10.—The 51st annual sessions of the Grand Encampment of Ontario of the Independent Order of Oddfellows are being held here to-day and to-morrow. About 300 representatives are expected. There are delegates here from Port Arthur and Niagara Falls, Windsor and Ottawa, and a few officers from the United States.

Owing to the rain yesterday it was not possible to hold the sports and the Canton Competition drills at Alexandra Park. The drills took place in the Armories. Canton No. 7 Toronto; Canton No. 10, Toronto; and Canton No. 11, Picton, taking part, they being awarded the prize money in the order named.

This evening the delegates were publicly welcomed to Oshawa by Mayor Stacey in the Armories, where also the decoration of the Degree of Chivalry was conferred on four by Canton No. 7 of Toronto. Those who passed through the degree were George Macdonald, Brantford; B. J. Rothwell, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; William Garrat, London, and Clarence W. Young, Windsor.

Grand Patriarch Malcolm Sinclair of Toronto, to-day being the 54th anniversary of his birth, was presented with a basket of 54 roses by Imperial Encampment No. 97 of Toronto, of which he is a member. Immediately after the ceremony a big dance followed.

FARMERS PLAN TO HOLD BIG PICNIC

MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT IN INTERESTS OF U.F.O.

A very enthusiastic meting of the Peterborough branch of the U. F. O. was held last night in the S. O. E. hall, President D. B. Rogers, presiding. About seventy-five farmers attended the meeting. Preparations were completed for the monster picnic being held at the Exhibition Grounds on the afternoon of August 26. Great interest is being shown by farmers all over the country in this picnic and everything is being done to insure its success. Hon. Mr. Biggs will be the principle speaker but the address of R. E. W. Burnaby, president of the U. F. O. will be of more than local interest. A. A. Powers, president of the Farmers' Cooperative Co., will also speak, as well as T. Tooms, M.L.A., for West Peterboro, and E. N. McDonald, M.L.A., for East Peterboro. The event promises ot be the biggest picnic ever held in this district and as it is for the whole county of Peterboro it should closely approach the monster picnic held by the counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Three representatives were appointed last night to be the executive committee of the county organization. Mr. Willoughby of the Farmers' Cooperative Co., addressed the meeting with regard to increasing the stock of the local store. Speaking of the general growth of the business in Ontario he said that last year the total turnover was $8,500,000 and this year judging from the average to date it would approximate $20,000,000. Mr. Willoughby will sell more stock in the local store which it is stated will have to be enlarged in the near future to cope with its growing business.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries nickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

POLES ASK FOR RESPITE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

ZURICH, Aug. 7.— Poland again has requested the Bolsheviki to cease military operations against Warsaw. A wireless message addressed to the Soviets was sent out from Warsaw to-day. It asked for a military respite, and suggested that "aggressive military activity be mutually suspended"

The message also requested that the Polish peace delegates at Minsk be permitted to communicate freely with their government.

FRESH AIR FOR DOOMED MEN.

OSSINING, Aug. 6 — Murderers confined in Sing Sing's death house have inaugurated a new practice, whereby some of them will waive their right to fifteen minutes "outing" from their cells daily so a prisoner about to be executed can have more recreation.

Patient—"I've just been down to the druggist to get something for the pain in my stomach, and he—"

Doctor—"Oh, I suppose he gave you some idiotic advice."

Patient—"Well, maybe so; he told me to come up and see you."—Standard Remedies.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear

(Helps to Beauty.)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone and mix fresh.

Detailed statements of the companies involved, agreements, guarantees, and leases are on file and open to inspection by purchasers of stock.

Purpose of This Issue

The King Edward Construction Co., Limited, has been incorporated for the purpose of constructing an addition to the King Edward Hotel of Toronto, one of the chain of the United Hotels Company of America, and has acquired the remainder of the block on King Street, Toronto, now occupied in part by the King Edward Hotel Co., Limited. When completed, the King Edward Hotel will occupy the whole block fronting on King Street. The addition will be a modern fireproof building of eighteen storeys, having light and space on each side. There will be 500 guest rooms and 500 bathrooms, or bath connections. The estimated cost of land, building, and equipment is $3,500,000. Of this, $1,300,000 has been arranged for by issuance of a first mortgage, the balance to be provided from the proceeds of the sale of the Company's Preferred Stock.

Toronto Needs More Hotel Accommodation

Toronto, with a population over half a million, has less than 500 rooms in fireproof hotels, 400 of which are in the King Edward. On completion of the addition there will still be only 1,000 fireproof rooms available. This is a smaller percentage than in any other city of its size in America.

LEASE.

The King Edward Hotel Company has made an agreement by which it leases the new addition for a period of thirty years, at a rental sufficient—
To create a Sinking Fund to wipe out the first mortgage at the end of the lease.,
To pay the interest on the mortgage,
To pay 8 per cent. dividends on the Cumulative Preferred Stock,
To pay 10 per cent. on the Common Stock,
To pay all taxes, rates, insurance and repairs.

OPERATION.

The King Edward Hotel was acquired on April 1st, 1918, by the United Hotels Company of America, since which time it has been an unsurpassed success.

EARNINGS.

It is estimated that the completed hotel can be operated at a 50 per cent. increase over the present cost of operation of the King Edward Hotel. The earnings, based on accomplishments to date, would justify an expectation of a surplus in excess of $400,000.00 net per annum to the King Edward Hotel Company, Limited, after making all payments under the lease.

INCOME.

A summary of the estimated annual income of The King Edward Hotel Company, Limited, with the whole building completed, prepared by Mr. George H. O'Neil, Manager of the United Hotels Company system in Canada, and Charles Doherty, the general Auditor of the United Hotels Company of America, is as follows:

Income from rooms, food sales, soft drink sales, sub-rentals, and commissions	$2,829,696.77
Interest, sinking fund, dividends, supplies, depreciation, and all other expenses	2,407,000.00
Estimated Profit	$ 422,696.77

It will be observed from the estimate of annual income that the sub-rentals, including those now available from the present hotel, together with the rentals received from stores and offices of the new building, including commissions, amount to $225,000.00 per annum, and that the average increase in room price over that now obtaining is but seventeen cents per room, allowing 20 per cent. vacancies, and that the increase in food sales is estimated at but one-half million dollars.

Preferred Stock—Guarantees and Safeguards

The dividend on the Preferred Stock is guaranteed unconditionally and irrevocably, both by the King Edward Hotel Company, Limited, and the United Hotels Company of America, by trust agreement with the Toronto General Trusts Corporation, Trustee for Stockholders. The Sinking Fund is to be applied to wipe out the outstanding mortgage in thirty years, thereby leaving the entire property as security for the Preferred Stock, and no additional mortgage or liien or issues or prior or equal Preferred Stock, shall be made without obtaining the consent of 60 per cent. of the holders of the then outstanding Preferred Stock. The dividend of 10 per cent. is provided for by the terms of the lease and agreement with the King Edward Hotel Company, Limited.

Terms of the lease by the King Edward Hotel Company, Limited, make the dividend and Sinking Fund payments of the King Edward Construction Company, Limited, a direct obligation of the former company, and therefore payable before dividends on that Company's stock.

Parent Organization

The United Hotels Company of America, Guarantor, controls seventeen modern fireproof hotels in the United States and Canada, and the net earnings of hotels in operation for a full year (deducting interest and depreciation) for the year 1919, are $893,358.79. Three of these hotels are in course of construction, and The Seneca, Rochester, was not acquired until 1920. It is safe to say that no company operating hotels in North America was ever better organized or equipped than the United Hotels Company of America.

All legal details, leases, and guarantees in connection with the issue have been passed upon by Messrs. Starr, Spence, Cooper & Fraser, Barristers, of Toronto, Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

HARTSHORN—In loving memory of Norman, the dearly loved son of Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorn, Stewart street, who was killed in action 8th August 1918, at the Battle of Amiens.

Farewell, for the present, Farewell
At most for a few fleeting years;
For soon with our God we shall dwell
And know neither sorrow, nor tears;

No partings shall ever be known
On that happy and heavenly shore
Those seated with Christ on the Throne
Go out from His presence no more.

DR. J. V. GALLIVAN RETURNS HOME FROM EUROPEAN TOUR

SAYS CONDITIONS IN EUROPE ARE VERY UNSETTLED—ENGLAND TORN WITH CLASS DISPUTES.

TALK WITH FOCH

Dr. J. V. Gallivan, who returned on Monday night from a four months' tour of Europe, told The Examiner this morning that conditions in Europe are very unsettled and that Europe is still staggering from the effects of the war.

Dr. Gallivan first visited Italy, and he stated that the country is in a very serious condition. Italian exchange has suffered a heavy drop, the people are poverty stricken, and prices are exorbitant. Artistic rather th commercial and greatly over populated Italy, never self dependent economically, finds itself unable to cope with the problems of reconstruction and unless it can struggle through the present year without internal troubles its fate may be serious, Dr. Gallivan said. The people are ripe for revolution.

As an example of the high cost of living, Dr. Gallivan stated that coal in Rome is $60 a ton.

Asked whether there was any anti-British and anti-French sentiment in Italy, he said that there was considerable.

France More Stable.

France, Dr. Gallivan said, was much better off than Italy. A strong love of country and the power of the great French leader, Marshall Foch, served to bind the people together and tended to produce a more stable condition of affairs.

While in Paris Dr. Gallivan had the opportunity of personally interviewing Marshall Foch at the staff headquarters. Foch, Dr. Gallivan said, impresses one as a man of great power, simple, quiet and devout, and a man revered, if not loved by his people.

That the French believe that the war is not yet settled was Dr. Gallivan's opinion.

England Torn with Class Disputes.

England, Dr. Gallivan stated, is in a serious condition as a result of labour disputes. There is a great deal of idleness and discontent and Dr. Gallivan heard discontent openly talked in the House of Commons one evening.

Irish a Unit for Self Determination.

The Irish are a unit for self determination, Dr. Gallivan observed, whether for a republic or a self governing dominion, and the average Englishman is inclined to be indifferent to the Irish question, wishing only for an early and amicable settlement.

Ireland is prosperous and the Irish have millions of pounds in the banks waiting until the Irish question is settled to invest it.

Europe Has High Opinion of Canada.

Throughout his tour, Dr. Gallivan heard Canada spoken of in the highest terms, and during his interview with Marshal Foch, the great French leader had only praise for the Canadians.

Visited European Hospitals.

Dr. Gallivan visited several European hospitals, and said that the English hospitals particularly were a source of much information to him.

He is looking well after his well-earned holiday, and will resume practice to-morrow.

HASTINGS MAN SHOWS EXAMPLE

Within a few months of being a centenarian, and handicapped by having only one arm, the other having been lost during a railroad accident several years ago, Mr. Lockhardt, who resides near Hastings, stands a living example of what may be accomplished by a man who wants to see his country through a difficult situation. During the past summer in order to help out production he has raised a four-acre field of ensilage corn, half an acre of potatoes, a similar mount of turnips and a good family garden, keeping each well hoed. The home surroundings would be an eye opener to many an 8-hour advocate, and probably encourage many to throw off their coats after hours to help speed up production.

A Forlorn Reception

FIVE WRECKS OF GERMAN NAVY REACH NEW YORK—TOWED OVER FROM BREST.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Five battered hulks which once were fine fighting ships of the Imperial Germany Navy, sailed into New York harbor yesterday afternoon after a long slow trip across the Atlantic from Brest, and were tied up to docks and anchoragesc in the Hudson River where they will remain for two weeks in order that New Yorkers might see the havoc wrought by the guns of the British Grand Fleet during the naval engagement off Jutland. The vessels were warped into their berths to the tune of American jazz music played by an American gob, who operated a phonograph in the cabin of the cruiser Frankfort, in what once had been the living quarters of Rear Admiral Brodicker of the German Navy.

The five ships, allocated to the United States by the terms of the peace treaty, and which are to be destroyed within a year, are the dreadnought Ostfreishland, flagship of Vice-Admiral Schmidt, commanding Battle Squadron No. 1 at the battle of Jutland; the cruiser Frankford and three destroyers, the V-43, the G-102 and the S-132. The flotilla was in command of Capt. Julius F. Hellweg of the United States Navy, who brought the five craft from Brest.

The dreadnought is anchored in the centre of the Hudson, off Ninetieth street, while the Frankfort and the destroyers were tied up at the docks at the foot of West Seventy-ninth street. A crowd of only a hundred persons or less was on hand to greet the captured Germans as they steamed up the river, but later in the evening the crowd grew to several hundred. The ships, besides being open to visitors during the time they are in the Hudson, will be studied by American naval architects and experimented with by the United States Navy. At the end of the year they will be taken out to sea and used as targets for American gunners.

A Forlorn Welcome.

Led by the dreadnought the only one of the five that could move under its own power, the captured Garmens came up the Hudson just as the sun was sinking behind the Palisades. There was little that was inspiring in the sight of the wobbling craft, and passing tugs and river boats gave them little attention. The few whistles that were sounded were in greeting to the Stars and Stripes that floated captives rather than for the themselves. The vessels came up the river in naval formation, the Ostfriesland leading the way, towing the disabled Frankfort and flanked on either side by the mine sweepers Falcon, Red Wing and Rail. Behind them came the transport Hancock, towing the three destroyers.

Cap. Hellweg and his crew worked for more than three months at a German port and at Brest to make the Ostfriesland navigable. The Germans, who had turned the ship over to the Allies to replace one of those sunk at Scapa Flow, had stripped her of all furniture and electric equipment. Temporary furniture for the officers was made by the ship's carpenters from boxes and packing cases. Her engines however, were in good condition, and she could have made eighteen or twenty knots. Throughout the voyage however, the flotilla averages only a little better han nine knots. The Frankfort and the three destroyers, due largely to their submersion at Scapa Flow and to the battering they received at the hands of British

Labour Warns British Government It Will Fight Any Move for War to Aid Poland

LONDON, Aug. 11.—"War between the Allied Powers and Soviet Russia over Poland would be an intolerable crime against humanity," and British Labor has warned the British government that organized labor will be used to defeat such a war. This decision was reached here at a meeting of the most prominent British labor leaders, who issued this statement:

"This conference feels certain that war is being engineered between the Allied Powers and Soviet Russia on the issue of Poland and declares that such a war would be an intolerable crime against humanity.

"It therefore warns the Government that the whole industrial power of the organized workers will be used to defeat this war."

It was resolved by the conference "to take such steps as may be necessary to carry the above decision into effect."

"The statement advised all labor organizations to be prepared to send their leaders to London "to instruct their members to lay down their tools."

A "committee of action" appointed by the meeting will see Premier Lloyd George. The conference, which represented the whole field of labor, is regarded as having presented an ultimatum to the Government threatening direct action.

British workmen held meetings in many of the manufacturing towns of the country, notably at Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, Nottingham and London, and protested against a war to help Poland. A general strike in all the principal organized industries was advocated in resolutions passed at the several meetngs.

DETECTIVES ADMITTED TO KINGSTON BASTILE

ANSWER TO DEMAND FOR INVESTIGATION OF PRISON METHODS.

(Special to the Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Aug. 11.—"Are there Thiel detectives in Portsmouth penitentiary." It is persistently rumored that the Minister of Jusice has authorized the admission to the penitentiary, of detectives as if they were regularly committed prisoners to live and work with the regular inmates for the purpose of obtaining evidence regarding the existence of alleged irregularities. This, it is stated, is the answer to the demand for a thorough investigation. The presence of contraband in the prison is alleged to be the reason for the adoption of this course.

ALLEGED HOLD-UP NEAR MILLBROOK

BUTCHER CLAIMS TO BE LATEST VICTIM

Another alleged attempt at a hold-up occurred near Springville on Monday night, when a Millbrook butcher named Yates was stopped by two men in an automobile, which they had placed across the road. At the time Mr. Yates had $75 with him

Mr. Yates was driving along when he saw a car standing in the middle of the road and blocking the way. As he approached it two men came toward him. They immediately aroused his suspicions, and he reversed his car and escaped.

Deputy Reeve Wilson states that shortly before this he saw a Ford car standing at this point beside the road. He stopped and found a young man in the car. In reply to his question, the man said that his lights were out and, as a result, he was afraid to proceed farther. Mr. Wilson then went on.

THE RAILWAYS CLAIM TO BE LOSING MONEY

A CASE OF COAL CONSUMER BROUGHT BEFORE OTTAWA COMMISSION.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Aug. 11.—A case for the consumer of coal was brought before the Railway Board this morning when the hearing of the application of the Canadian Railways for increased rates was resumed. J. M. Daly of Canadian Retail Coal Association declared that the coal consumer in Canada could not stand any further advance in the price of necessary fuel, and expressed the opinion that the Railways got more out of their freight charges on coal than any other commodity. The Railways were better able to stand increased rates than the poor consumer. The Railways brought forward witnesses to show their recent operations had been returning deficits instead of profits J. B. McLaren, general auditor of the G. T. R. told the commission that, even if new increases went into effect next month, his company would finish with a deficit of two millions. The net corporate loss to the Grand Trunk during first six months of the present year had been nearly four and half millions. That portion of Canadian National which was formerly Canadian Northern Railway also showed that it was losing money under present conditions. The net deficit for year 1919 was approximately six and half millions.

JOSEPH TURNER WAS SERIOUSLY INJURED

TRUCK LOAD OF HOGS RAN OVER HIM.

Joseph Turner, St. Catharines, who is in the city visiting his brother, Mr. W. R. Turner, 715 Water Street, was seriously injured this morning at 10.30 o'clock, when a truck containing two tons of hogs ran over him. Mr. Turner was crossing the street from Payne's drug store to Turnbull's store at the corner of George and Simcoe Streets, when W. J. Pearson, driver for A. G. Shearer, of Buckhorn, who was coming down George Strete, noticed him, and blew the horn on the car to warn him to get out of the road. Mr. Turner, however, either failed to hear the horn or became dazed and stood in the street too long for Pearson, who applied the brakes to stop the truck.

When the truck finally stopped, Mr. Turner was under the back wheels. In backing the car to release the man, the front wheels again passed over his body.

Spectators immediately telephoned the Police Station, and Dr. T. P. McCullough, 166 Brock Street, attended Mr. Turner, and found his right arm to be very severely broken in several places.

Comstock's ambulance took him to Nicholls Hospital, where Dr. T. W. H. Young is attending him. At a late hour this afternoon no further injuries other than his broken arm and severe shock had been discovered.

Mr. Turner, who is about sixty years of age, had only arrived in the city last night.

DECLINES DEBATE WITH MR. BURNHAM

GENERAL ELECTION MAY NOT BE FAR AWAY.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, has written to Mr. J. H. Burnham, declining the latter's invitation to Mr. Meighen to discuss at a joint meeting here the propriety of a general election, of Mr. Burnham's resignation calling for it, the state of affairs in Canada generally, and the vacancy in West Peterborough. Mr. Meighen declines on the ground that he has not time, that it might not be of general interest, etc. Seeing that West Peterborough is vacant, it looks as if the new Prime Minister is not prepared to take any further interest in it. He gives no sign of wanting a candidate here for his new party. Undoubtedly the elections of September 20th in Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick decide the fate of his new ministers from those provinces, and naturally of the new polyglot government as well. The Meighen-Calder government ignored the Conservative party when it was being formed and may expect like treatment from that ancient and pretty lively organization. A general election appears to be "in the offing."

FRENCH GENERAL ACCEPTS COMMAND OF POLISH ARMY

HOUSING SITUATION ACUTE IN PETERBORO

Referring to the housing situation, represented by G. W. Powell agent of the Children's Aid Society, as being most acute, one property owner stated that due to her selling a little home in the South end of the city, the former occupants driven to desperation in not finding other quarters had asked permission to put up a tent in the middle of a field, hoping to find relief later on.

Explains Campaign

TRYING TO CONNECT BOSTON'S FINANCIAL WIZARD WITH CANADIAN DEFAULTER.

(Canadian Press.)

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—An associate of Charles Ponzi, from the home of the latter at Lexington, to-day telephoned the Associated Press that Ponzi admitted he was Charles Ponzi, formerly of Montreal. He added that the speculator financier was in conference with lawyers and would issue a statement later. Half an hour later neither the lawyer nor Ponzi could be found at the lawyer's office.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—It is believed here that Charles Ponzi, the Boston banker, whose affairs have recently been subject to official inquiry by the Massachusetts authorities, formerly resided in Montreal, where he was identified with a banking venture which resulted, unfortunately, for many of his countrymen who made deposits. Rossi, the proprietor of that bank, who is now thought to be none other than Ponzi, was traced to Mexico, apprehended, and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Same Man, Says Detective.

A photograph of Rossi, examined in the Rogues' Gallery, bears an unmistakable resemblance to Ponzi. In fact, Detective Sloan, who arrested Rossi, said he and Ponzi were one and the same, when he was shown a photograph of Ponzi which had been sent from Boston. One Boston newspaperman who came to Montreal yesterday in quest of information which he thought would connect Rossi and Ponzi, went to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary with the intention of making finger-print comparison.

Advices from Boston last night by wire state that Ponzi admitted that he had resided in Canada, and remarked that his experience had been rather bitter. Further than that, he would make no explanation as to just what his unpleasant experiences in the Dominion were.

PONZI EXPLAINS.

BOSTON, Aug. 11. — Charles Ponzi, who claims to have jumped from comparative poverty to a multi-millionaire's estate in a few months, through dealings in internationael postal coupons, told members of the Kiwanis Club here some of the steps in the process by which he claims to have amassed his fortune.

In opening his remarks Ponzi reiterated his claim that he was solvent, and expressed confidence that this would be substantiated by the Federal and State investigations now in progress, and that he would be able to resume business in a few days.

"I found out," he said, "that the postal coupons were being sold in foreign countri for the equivalent of six cents, and could be converted into postage stamps. Then all I had to do was figure how many nickels make a million.

"I got in touch with men—that's as far as I'll go—who were able to secure for me large amounts of coupons in different countries. They bought them with our money, and used them as collateral to be redeemed later.

"When conditions were right I offered to borrow money from the public. I offered 50 per cent. in 90 days, and would not promise to redeem notes in 45, though I thought that three weeks was about the right time to bank the money here, send it abroad, get the stamps and convert them into cash.

"I decided that if I redeemed the stamps in the United States the Federal Government might decide that it came within its jurisdiction, though there was no Federal or State law against it. But the exchange rate was the same in Switzerland and Norway and some other countries, so I decided to redeem them there."

"I buy to-day," he said, "a dollar's worth of Italian exchange. At the present rate I get 18 lire. I would get five under normal exchange. With the 18 lire I buy 60 international reply coupons. These coupons can be sold for $3 in American money."

ONE DAILY AND WEEKLY PAPER LESS IN LINDSAY

MANAGEMENTS OF WARDER AND POST CONCLUDE AGREEMENT TO THIS END.

Still another newspaper publishers' agreement has been reached by which an Ontario town and district loses one weekly and one daily paper. The time it is Lindsay and Victoria County which are affected by the prevailing principle of reducing the number of publications, to curtail the use of newsprint and retrench generally in cost of production By this recent business arrangement the Lindsay Post will publish a daily paper only, and its local contemporary, the Warder, will retain its weekly edition and relinquish the daily.

TIRE AND TUBE TROUBLE INFIRMARY

It should be of interest to car owners to know where their tire and tube troubles may be attended to by expert men, having a thorough experience in this work in the large centres. Messrs. Collins and Dwyer, of the Auto Tire Repair Co., 195 Charlotte street ,are a pair of aces in tire mending. Their crowded repair shop on Charlotte street, affords a good idea of the thriving business they are doing—every available corner being stacked with tire work of every conceivable character, in various processes of vulcanizing or retreading.

NEW DENTIST

By reference to our "City and General" column it will be seen that Dr. J. F. O'Brien, a graduate of the Toronto Dental College, has secured the office premises recently occupied by Dr. McKenty at 370 George street, for the practice of his profession. Dr. O'Brien spent three years overseas in England and in France with the Canadian Army Dental Corps, and since returning, carried on a successful practice in Bancroft, Ont. Desiring a more extended field for his work he selected Peterborough with that end in view. See his professional card.

EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO STAGE A COUNTER ATTACK AGAINST THE BOLSHEVIKI—REGROUPING THE FORCES.

NEWS FROM FRONT

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The Polish general staff has accepted the offer of Gen. Weygand of the French army to take command of the Polish army if granted full authority, according to to-day's report from the Anglo-French mission in Warsaw. Both Gen. Weygand and Gen. Delma Radcliffe of the British military mission have been insisting that the situation was not hopeless and could be retrieved if their recommendations were carried out.

The suggestion of Gen. Weygand and Radcliffe included regrouping of the Polish forces and strategic movements. They advised strongly against keeping a large part of the Polish forces on the Galician front, but the Poles were determined upon these tactics, because they feared that if eastern Galicia passes out of their hands it will be lost permanently. Poland holds east Galicia at present under a twenty-five year probationary arrangement. Gen. Pilsudski is a Galician and had sentimental reasons for keeping a strong force there.

It is known also that 800 picked French officers composing the Warsaw mission have found it difficult to exercise whatever authority apparently has been allowed them by the Poles. These officers, and members of the British mission, had been counted on by Gens. Weygand and Radcliffe to reorganize the Poles and they have been ready at a moment's notice to assume virtually every important post. The Polish general staff is composed of officers with Austrian, Russian and German training and is, therefore, not only not united in military theories but is also at variance with Gens. Weygand and Radcliffe.

POLISH FORCES STILL STRONG IN PLACES

(Canadian Press)

WARSAW, Aug. 11.—Although Polish forces have abandoned the town of Ostrolenka, they continue to occupy positions between the Narew and Bug Rivers, and are sufficiently strong to defend Warsaw in that direction. Evacuation of Ostrolenka, however, involves regrouping of Polish forces along middle reaches of the Bug River, where they are retreating toward River Liwiso, east of Warsaw. Along this stream the Poles have fortified positions which extend along a line of more than 30 miles from Warsaw.

Swinging movement to north of this city, apparently planned to outflank defenses of Warsaw and force the Poles to withdraw across the Virtula, is the greatest maneuvre undertaken as yet by the Bolsheviki. After crossing the Danzig railway, Soviet cavalry is reported to have turned southward, being closely followed by infantry which had marched close along the Prussian frontier.

POLES ARE REGROUPING FOR A COUNTER STROKE

(Canadian Press)

WARSAW, Aug. 11--Concentration and regrouping of Polish forces for extensive counter stroke on the entire Warsaw front is reported by to-day's newspapers. Plans are, it is said, to begin a counter move within a few days. Military men express the opinion that this is propitious time to strike back in an effort to drive off the Soviet forces which are endeavouring to encircle the capital.

RUSSIANS OCCUPY A LARGE STRETCH OF RAILWAY LINE

(Canadian Press)

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The Russians are now occupying a stretch of twenty-four miles of direct railway line between Warsaw and Danzig and a large force is pushing across the Danzig corridor to cut the remaining railroad, according to the French Foreign Office to-day. The section of the main line held by the Russians is between Ciechanow and Mlawa.

AMERICAN POSITION IS NOW BEFORE WORLD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11. — The position of the United States Government in the Polish situation was to-day before the world.

Stated briefly the United States stands as favoring preservation of Polish political independence and territorial integrity and as opposing any dismemberment of Russia. Outlines of this policy were set forth in a note dispatched yesterday to the Italian ambassador by Secretary Colby.

HOUSING SITUATION BROUGHT TO ATTENTION OF CHILDREN'S AID

SOCIETY HELD A MEETING YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—WILL RAISE THE MONTHLY RATE FOR BOARD.

So acute has the housing problem become in the city, Mr. G. W. Powell, agent of the Children's Aid Society, has received requests from the homeless for housing for their little ones until refuge may be found.

One man stated to Mr. Powell that he had been given notice to vacate his house, and in desperation he had decided to break up his home.

During the regular meeting of the Society yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. Edgar, referring to the children who are in the home at present only as a convenience to parents, said that he thought the time had come when the board for such children should be raised from the present schedule of $10.00 a month to at least $15.00, and the motion was unanimously carried. Parents of children at present in the home, who come under the class designated by Mr. Edgar, will be immediately notified of the change. The action will probably keep the home clear for neglected children.

Small Meeting.

As the turnout of members of the Society was particularly small yesterday afternoon, only matters of minor importance were dealt with. Amongst these, upon the request of the Children's Aid Society agent at Belleville, endorsed by Mr. Kelso, it was decided to hand a little family, whose parents are represented as being fully able to look after them, back to the father and mother. The parents' conversion to Free Methodism was regarded by the agent as being justification for believing in their worth.

Coal for Shelter.

Mr. G. W. Powell was authorised to deal with the coal situation, and to endeavour to speed up the coal delivery.

Agent's Report.

In his report for the month, the Agent showed 7 applications for children, 1 returned to his parents, and 28 involved. The Matron's report showed 14 children in the Home during the month, that 4 came in, 5 went out, and that there has been no illness in the Home in July.

Members Present.

The members present were Rev. Father C. J. Phelan in the chair, Mr. Edgar, Chief Thompson, Mayor A. McIntyre, Mrs. J. S. Fanning, and Mrs. J. H. Kimberley.

BELIEVES BRITISH GOVT. IN IRELAND NO LONGER EXISTS

ARTHUR GRIFFITH, POLITICAL HEAD OF SINN FEIN, CONSIDERS REPUBLICANS RULE COUNTRY.

(Canadian Press)

DUBLIN, Aug. 11.—Arthur Griffith, editor of Young Ireland, and the political head of Sinn Fein, is said to be one of the most isolated and inaccessible men in Ireland. The few visitors daily received by him say they are impressed by the unpretentiousness of his surroundings. He is as difficult to see, they say, as any big American political leader.

No person not known to Griffith may visit him in his office without previous arrangements made by some one high in the confidence of Sinn Fein. The situation is much the same as a stranger attempting an interview with a cabinet officer at Washington.

Where He Holds Faith.

Relieved that the irksome preliminaries have ended the stranger is taken down a sid streets, ushered into an unimposing doorway and led up two flights of narrow, unpainted steps to an office. Inside the front door the stranger is confronted with a pine board partition with one small door, through which he is taken. He passes through a scene familiar in any small-town newspaper into an inviting room where Griffith holds forth. The furniture consists of a table in the middle of the room and a few chairs.

No Need For Secrecy.

There is no necessity now or has there been for many months for Griffith to surround his movements with secrecy. It has been stated that a warrant for his arrest is ready but many leading Sinn Feiners believe Government officials consider him a moderating influence and worth more directing the party's activities than looked upon as a martyr in jail.

Griffith is an unassuming as his surroundings are unpretentious. To one who does not express convictions on the Irish question and therefore safety does not have any, Griffith leaves outstandingly the impression that he has ceased to believe any English Government in Ireland exists. The one idea left is that the Republican Government is ruling the country properly, but having some difficulty with any army of occupation and a number of policeman.

Maintaining Order.

"Our volunteers are maintaining order where representatives of the British Government could not, our courts are organized and respected and other branches of our Government are working smoothly," said Mr. Griffith to a correspondent.

Griffith's sphere is only political, the planning and execution of force of arms being under jurisdiction of the volunteer army.

Rinso

Saves Your Clothes from being "Rubbed Out"

NO need for the wash board any more. Use Rinso. It is so rich in cleansing power that all the dirt in the clothes is loosened while they are soaking in the bubbly Rinso suds. Think of it—no work for you —no wear for the clothes.

At Night— put the clothes to soak with Rinso.

Morning— rinse them, that's all. The clothes are sweet, spotless, clean.

Rinso does the work yet it's so pure that the clothes are as safe as in pure water itself.

Don't wash even once more the old-fashioned, hard way. Get Rinso—one package does the week's wash.

A TORONTO NURSE CURED OF MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM

Miss Pearl Rennicks, Camden St., Toronto, says: It is the greatest pleasure of my life to be able to give a testimonial in favour of DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS, for they have done wonders for me. I was nursing in one of the hospitals when I was taken sick with muscular rheumatism, and had to go home. For three months I was unable to move one of my arms or even a finger and the pain that I suffered was something dreadful. I tried different kinds of treatments and remedies, without any results whatever. I was advised to try Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets, and after using one box and part of another I was completely recovered from the trouble.

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Constipation, Eczema, Kidney, Liver and Nervous Complaints, get a box at once and see the results. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00, per box at Warne's Drug Store, Peterboro.

Ask for free sample and pamphlet explaining our different preparations.

DEMAND FOR GRAPES IN STATES IS EVER GROWING

(Canadian Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—When the nation went dry by Federal amendment many grape growers thought they would be forced into some other line of business because of the subsequent cessation of wine production, but reports to the bureau of markets show that the demand for manufactured grape products now exceeds the supply.

The production of unfermented grape juice, and of jams and jelhes, is utilizing an increasing tonnage of grapes each year, these reports state, and in the not far distance future, it is expected that the annual production on grapes will not meet the demand.

BOUGHT PLANT FOR $200,000.

TORONTO, Aug. 11.— Judgment has been given by Justice Kelly in the dispute arising from the purchase by Louis A. Gosselin, formerly a Quebec barrister, of a munitions factory in Peterborough from Harold Gagnier, in December, 1916. The price was $200,000.

Justice Kelly finds that Gosselin was not misled as to the machinery and refuses ratification of the agreement. On other cailms as to shell scrap, etc., the plaintiff is held to be entitled to $2,367.68, while the defendant is held entitled to $1,458.93 with the interest allowed by the bank, if any, on $166,900 from the time the plaintiff took possession till December 29th, 1916.

PERMANENT MEMORIAL TO OFFICERS WHO DIED

AMERICAN ARMY AND NAVY CLUB TO ERECT $3,000,000 BUILDING.

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, August 11.—As a permanent memorial to the more than 3,000 officers of the United States army and navy who died in the war, the Army and Navy Club of America will establish in New York City a $3,000,000 service club house and Officers' Memorial Hall, where, among other memorial features, the military record of every officer will be preserved for future generations.

As a preliminary step in the movement, the Army and Navy Club has asked the adjutant-general of each state for a list of those who died. The club already has collected the names of approximately 3,000 officers, but it is planned by appealing to the state adjutant-general, the Red Cross, and other organizations, to make the final list complete and authentic.

Correspondence with next of kin of officers whose names are already in hand has brought in biographis data, with photographs, letters and other personal material, on the careers of 1,200 officers. The work of collating this material is now under way.

No complete list of officers who died in the United States service in the war yet exists anywhere in available form, as the adjutant-general's office in Washington has decided to give each state its separate list rather than attempt to supply complete lists from the Federal capital.

Special privileges will be extended by the new club to relatives of officers whose names are represented in the memorial. They will be given the right of access in Officers' Memorial Hall at all times. Civilians will be eligible to associate membership in the organization.

BRITAIN LEADS IN SHIPBUILDING

THREE MILLION TONS UNDER CONSTRUCTION AT END OF JUNE LAST.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Aug. 11.—While merchant shipbuilding in the United States has been reduced by one-half since March, 1919, British shipyards are constructing nearly 15 times as much tonnage to-day as they did a year ago, according to figures just made public by Lloyd's Register.

The figures show that there were 3,578,153 tons of shipping under construction in the yards of the United Kingdom at the end of June, 1920. The total number of vessels building was 941 and of these 51 are between 12,000 and 20,000 tons, 69 between 8,000 and 12,000 tons, 100 between 6,000 and 8,000 tons, while three are between 20,000 and 25,000 tons.

The total merchant tonnage building abroad is given as 4,142,751 tons on June 30 or 405,000 tons lower than at the end of March which is accounted for by a decrease in the United States.

Decrease in U. S.

Attention is drawn in the returns to "an enormous decrease which has taken place in tonnage under construction in the United States during the last 15 months." At the end of March, 1919, 4,185,523 tons were actually building in that country, which total by the end of June 1920 has been practically reduced by half, while in the United Kingdom during the same period, the figures have increased from 254,845 tons to the present record total of 3,578,153 tons.

World's Total.

The world's total is given as 2,105 vessels of 7,720,904 tons, of which America contributes 414 of 2,105,956 tons, the United Kingdom 941 of 3,578,153 tons, British dominions 115 of 268,799 tons, France 95 of 265,302, Japan 56 of 254,260, Holland 153 of 398,915 tons, Denmark 62 of 118,430, Italy 166 of 353,914, Norway 64 of 87,579, Spain 33 of 101,432, Sweden 73 of 125,899 tons.

STREET NAME SIGNS.

For eight years now the question of a better system of street name signs has occasionally bobbed up in City Council deliberations, but for one cause or another the ways and means for same have not been forthcoming so far as our civic authorities are concerned. The present plan of inserting the names of streets in sidewalks lacks utility in the winter time when walks are covered with snow, and even at other seasons of the year too often fails in arresting the attention when any particular location is being sought. Man invariably walks with head up, his vision travels upwards rather than downward, and many a stranger has been known to be innocently standing on the name of the street he is seeking and at the same time inquiring of a citizen its whereabouts. Names of streets in sidewalks may be economical and enduring; but in nine cases out of ten they prove elusive to the seeker. The average person in search of a street will expect to find its name conspicuously displayed on some building at street intersections, then why not have it so? In any event it does seem an act of municipal comedy to affix a street's name for the convenience of enquirers—both citizens and strangers—where it wraps itself in a mantle of the beautiful as soon as snow flies, and goes off duty for the best part of half a year.

In this connection it is gratifying to notnce that the Board of Trade has taken active interest in a uniform adoption of legible street name signs, recognizing a crying need for this public utility and undertaking to launch a campaign to secure funds with which to install a system more acceptable than that in vogue here. The City Council having no appropriation for the purpose, their sanction to the Board's acting independently of them will be sought, and no doubt granted. For this campaign the whole city is to be organized, so to speak, under a general in the person of City Engineer R. H. Parsons, with colonels in charge of districts, majors of streets, and captains in charge of blocks. The idea of the scheme is to get individual subscriptions from 10c. upwards, according to the population of each block of dwellings or business houses, and to apply the total to purchasing and affixing on convenient buildings at the intersections of streets good, clear, outstanding name signs in blue enamel. Where buildings stand too far back or are not available for this purpose, posts will be resorted to. The whole amount collected will be pooled. That is to say, some oversubscribed blocks may assist those which by force of circumstances, are undersubscribed.

In the general scheme in mind by the Board of Trade it is hoped sufficient cash will be raised to erect street name standards at such main arteries of the city as, for instance, the corners of Charlotte and Park and George and Charlotte streets, possibly illuminating the same.

The whole proposition is one which should appeal to citizens generally, and we commend the Board of Trade's active interest in this municipal need to Peterborough's public in confident expectation that their loyal co-operation will be forthcoming. Street name signs where everyone can see them in ALL seasons is an objective which if consummated will confer benefit on citizens and visitors alike.

UNITY OF ENGLISH-SPEAKING NATIONS.

The Empire pressmen now touring this country are evidently, one and all, according to their speeches, deeply impressed with the vastness of Canada, its tremendous resources, developed and yet to be developed, and its rapid increase in population. Canada is also kindly referred to as a colony which emerged from the war a great and glorious nation. We like that reference to us as a "nation," for these days of Empire greatness the term "colony" seems in truth a misnomer. Canada, Australia, New Zealand are too big, too vast in natural and acquired opportunities, too independent in their governments to be considered any other than nations within an Empire, and interdependent in their relations with each other. From the trend of happenings in Europe there is no doubt that the "universal brotherhood of man" hoped far as a final result of the great world war is yet so far distant as to demand the complete unity of these, let us say, English-speaking nations, for mutual defence and support.

While one cannot conceive of any conditions which would make for disintegration of the British Empire, still the principle of unity should be not only advocated by present-day generations, but insistently inculcated in the minds of those who will follow us as inheritors of those glorious traditions upon which our Empire has been erected.

We like Sir Campbell's reference to the United States, separated from British Imperialism through a disputed "pound of tea," when he says: "If we in the British Empire will continue to stand side by side, extending the hand of friendship to the nation to the south of us, we can assure the lasting peace and happiness of the world."

Sir George E. Foster, in 1916, declared that out of war conditions then existing there comes to us a clamant note, that the British Empire shall get together, shall reconstruct herself so that acting as a whole within the great community of nations, she shall within her own borders so mobilise and develop her resources and realise her ideals that she shall better be able to fill her own great destiny, and to work more effectually with the great nations who with her are struggling in the great war. We venture to say that that ideal is still before Canadians and all other nations within the the British Empire, and that Canada's friendship for the United States is very real indeed. The unity of English-speaking races, coupled with that loyalty of France, engendered by allied defence of liberty and justice against the hordes of Central Europe, should be sufficient to deter any combination of nations from again seeking world domination at the expense of weaker nations. The might and weight and resources of this great Empire of ours, together with its dependencies and trusts, offers God-given opportunities for by example, precept, encouragement, and aid to eventually eliminate the word "war" fro mthe world's vocabulary.

Our sister nation of the same tongue and inherent characteristics across the border, co-operating with us in disseminating Christianity in heathen lands, no doubt, despite political differences which have lost to us their allegiance in a League of Nations, recognises not only the importance of Empire unity, but also the impelling force of Anglo-Saxon co-operation in the interests of world peace and economic and social progress.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

The Ottawa Journal has a timely editorial on Premier Meighen's plea for national harmony and optimism, in which it scores racial fanatics and bigots who revel in ancient prejudices.

The phenomenal success of Great Britain as a colonising factor and protectorate over dependencies lies in its constitution which respects all races and creeds. Not only does Great Britain respect, but it protects the religions of nations within British jurisdiction, and allows freedom of thought and language. We Canadians have fought shoulder to shoulder in the past great war, where race and language strife found not place within our armies in that mighty struggle for mutual defence; why not live together in that harmonious relationship which recognises the need of complete unity for the prosperity of the Dominion and extension and solidification of the Empire. Politically we may differ, but surely all can agree that such difference shall not blind us, collectively and individually, to the call for a federation of purpose in Canada's present and future welfare as a nation. Both French and English Canadians are descendants of pioneers of this country, and it beheoves both races to frown on any attempt to sow the seed of discord among them or to foster racial and religious strife.

TRUE FARMERS' CONTROL.

Western Canadian farmers in common with other farmers will think it over and sensibly conclude they are better off without than with government wheat control. A Winnipeg dispatch says they are resentful at the abandonment of such control. They are organizing a large pool to handle the crop and "to defeat the efforts of the Exchange to handle it" for them.

Even were this court successful it would lead nowhere in particular. Neither the Canadian Government at Ottawa nor the American Government at Washington could dictate the world price for a single bushel of North American wheat. Were the most widespread attempt of the propaganda now evidently at work among the prairie farmers successful, the crop must needs be marketed bushel by bushel in other exchanges, organized, trained, experienced, capable, with first hand information of the market value of all the grain bought through their agencies.

Prairie farmers can therefore do no better than substitute for the skill, fidelity and sense of world values and conditions of their own powerful and successful Winnipeg exchange, a new set of responsible and irresponsible brokers, buyers, agents and exort merchants of their own. Their most sanguine hopes miraculously realized, could but continue what they have to-day,—the largest cash selling grain market in the world, making its values on the intrinsic weight and value of Canadian spring wheat.

If a volunteer farmers' association without rules, discipline, capital responsibility in tangible form, could do this it would be one of the wonders of a truly wonderful age of idealism. Past experiment and performance give hostages to the dismal failure of the attempt, no matter how good the political fence-making might for a time prove.

As an impartial Canadian says, the question ought to be for the farmer not "who is to do the marketing, but how much can be marketed", though "how much is to be marketed" readily resolves itself into a question of "who is doing the marketing?"

Indeed the price itself is not of as much importance as the ultimate question of how much of other things the price itself will bring back to the farm, unhampered by loans, liens, bills of sale and promissory notes or "overdrafts." Any doubts on this score may be easily resolved by calculating in seed, livestock, equipment, food, clothing and wages the value of a 1913 bushel of wheat as against one of 1919.

Tranquilized by the calm light of restored reason, the farmer may then reach the true conclusion that he never has and never will be able to excerise a tithe of the control over government control, daily imported by his direct home influence on the most trivial operation of a trading association which has made "Manitoba" the highest-priced wheat trademark in the world.—Wall Street Journal.

GOOD CROWD AT POLACK SHOWS

A CLEVER MAGICIAN AMUSES AUDIENCE.

"The hardest audience in the world to deceive is an audience of children," says Khaym, the mystery man of India, who is at the Fair grounds this week" in connection with the Polack's Shows. "In their childish minds, we, of course, do not look for mature thought, and yet the illusionist's lot before an audience of children is indeed a sorry one. The magician or illusionist can make an adult, almost invariably ,cast their eyes upon any object which he wants them to see, or away from any object which he does not care to disclose, but the child who is standing before him pays little attention to his patter, and in his childish way practically defies the mystic gentleman to deceive him."

By adroit palming or clever manipulation of his wand, supposed, of course, to possess some mystic value, in the changing of one article to another, it is astonishing how simple it is to make the ordinary person's eyes follow any desired direction. However, the child is very seldom fooled, and when the magician makes some statement which the average adult accepts without question, the younger generation demand proof of its veracity." To make a long story short, that while the children are all found in the great Province of Ontario, figuratively speaking, they are all from "Missouri."

BRIDGE COMMITTEE HELD A SPECIAL MEETING YESTERDAY

MR. H. L. SEYMOUR WILL REPRESENT ENGINEER BARBER ON THE BRIDGE—IS MR. BARBER'S PARTNER—AN EFFORT MADE BY ALL PARTIES TO GET TOGETHER.

A special meeting of the Bridge committee, which now includes the Whole Council, was held yesterday afternoon. The result of the meeting would seem to forecast an amicable settlement of the difficulties which have arisen in the Hunter street bridge situation.

Alderman R. N. Jones presided, Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldermen Crowe, Morrison, Copping, Phelan and Gainey present. Mr. H. L. Seymour, of the firm of Barber, Wynne, Roberts & Seymour, appeared as Mr. Frank Barber's representative. Mr. Seymour said he was anxious to find out the cause of, and eliminate if possible the friction that apparently existed between the Council and their engineer. Every endeavour would be made to do whatever the Council might desire to complete the bridge as expeditiously and as economically as possible. He hoped that he and the Council could get together and settle the question.

Ald. Copping broke in shortly after with the remark that Mr. Barber had made statements that he did not uphold.

We want to cut out these differences," declared the chairman, and the same opinion was expressed by several of the city fathers, who said that they had enough of differences, and were not prepared to go into the question of who was responsible for the trouble that has developed over the construction of the bridge, but wanted to get down to business that would count.

The suggestion of the Toronto engineer was that in future he should confer with the Council. Instead of the city securing a new engineer as had been suggested, by keeping within the firm's organization they would get much better results and would not have to change the contract. If there had been any dissatisfaction over Mr. Barber not coming down oftener he said that he was quite ready to come down every week or whenever he was wanted. "The question," he said, "is not what we are prepared to do, but what the Council wants."

Mr. Seymour's suggestion was commented on favourably by several members of the Council. Mr. Christie, who attended the meeting, was drawn into the discussion, Ald. Crowe and Ald. Phelan declaring that they wanted to see him have more power. Ald. Crowe believed that the city's interests were not looked after sufficiently well. Mr. Christie said that this was what he had been doing. It was pointed out to Ald. Phelan by the Mayor that Mr. Christie is over the Russell-Townsend Co. Mr. Christie said that his word practically went for everything. Mr. Seymour felt that a satisfactory agreement as regards the inspector's powers could be reached. He certainly wanted to see the city's interests protected he stated.

Mr. Seymour's proposals being formally received Mayor McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Crowe, that the motion of Ald. Gordon's, recommended a week ago by the committee be rescinded. This was only a recommendation to the Council as well. The motion carried.

The matter of certifying accounts provoked considerable discussion. The Mayor finally moved that on account of Mr. Barber's absence the City Treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque for $8,444.42, the statement to be certified by Mr. H. L. Seymour, Mr. Barber's representative, and afterwards confirmed by Mr. Barber.

Cement Arriving.

The committee questioned Mr. Christie on the progress of the bridge, particularly the cement question. Three cars would be here by to-day it was stated and a car a day was anticipated by the contractors in the future. They would start pouring cement in the spans and in the near future cement would be poured in the centre span.

Mr. A. Elliott, bridge accountant, brought up the matter of a nighrt watchman at the bridge, stating that his papers were in danger if there was a fire. He had no safe, he said and it was a very serious matter. The Mayor favored getting a safe. It was pointed out that there are at present two day watchmen. "False economy" Mr. Elliott called it. The opinion of the committee was that one of the men could be dispensed with. Mr. Christie stated that one of the men was not on this duty now so there was only one day watchman. That he should be put on night duty was the committee's contention and a recommendation to the contractors to that effect was carried unanimously.

The meeting adjourned till Aug. 23rd, when Mr. Seymour will agaain wait on the committee.

IMPROVEMENT IN "PASSION PLAY"

OPENS FIRST SEASON IN PARIS AFTER FIVE YEAR'S WAR INTERRUPTION.

(Canadian Press)

NANCY, France, Aug. 11.—France's "Passion Play," rivalling that of Oberammergau, has opened its season here after five years of war's interruption. It was given, as it has been since 1904, in the Passion Theatre, under the direction of M. Pettit, the village priest, with his parishioners as the cast. The play, costuming, verse, Music and equipment have been developed and improved since the prewar performances.

Sixteen Scenes.

There are 16 scenes depicting the Bible incidents from the Birth to the Resurrection. The play runs from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1.30 to 5.00. Intermissions between the scenes are filled by tableaux representing, principally, prophetic passages of the Old Testament bearing upon the running story.

The text, where it is not that of the Bible, is the verse of various poets and the music is taken or adapted from various composers. M. Pettit says he has utilized from all sources whatever he believed he needed to make a beautiful ensemble.

Deftly Staged.

The naturalness of the players, none of whom are professionals, critics said, was heightened by the deftness and ingenuity of the staging. One of the difficult things to produce was the Crucifixion, where the movement of the principal depicting Christ on the Cross or, during the descent, might easily be misportrayed. On the cross, the long white winding sheet is draped under the principal's arms and over the two arms of the cross. The ends of the cloth, floating like wings, add much to the effect and serve their real purpose by enabling the characters to lower the apparently inert figure, supported safely as he is, by the cloth under his arms.

The play is to be given every Sunday until the middle of October.

TOUCHING BELIEF IN ITALIAN HUMAN NATURE

(Canadian Press)

ROME, Aug. 11.—Commendatore Lusignoli, the new head of the Housing Commission, with a touching belief in the goodness of human nature, celebrated his appointment by sending an appeal to the aristocracy of Rome, asking them to allow any spare rooms in their splendid old palaces to be rented out to some of the weary seekers after houseroom in the Eternal City.

All with one consent, began to make excuse. King Victor, however, was an exception. He has already made ten new apartments for humble families in the large stables near the Quirinal Palace, which his father, King Humbert, kept full of horses, but which ,since the accession of the present king, have always been more or less empty. At an expense of nearly $200,000 he plans to construct 39 more apartments.

BARNEY GOOGLE Looks Like Barney Takes the Count - - - - - - - - By Billy De Beck

VIRTUOUS WIVES

By OWEN JOHNSON

"Yes, I'm afraid so!"

The Tampico incident and the consequent failure in Osaba shares, with the aftermath of the ball incidental bills, had been soul-trying.

"When does he get up again?"

"Any time now," said Amy.

"Little spat over?"

"Yes, indeed!"

"That's right—be firm," said Fifi, with a nod. "Irma is right. When husbands growl nowadays, it's usually financial dyspepsia. I say, let's shut up—this is too gorgeous!"

Amy, nothing loath relapsed into silence. In the three weeks of her husband's absence, she had no word of his plans. The day after his leaving, she had received a short, business like note, informing her of the allowance which he wished her to observe and requesting the total of her present debt. She had sent them—that is, almost all—and they had been paid through his office immediately She had been surprised at his liberality—even touched by it. There was, at any rate, nothing petty about him. At least she could admire him. But that was all. There had been no further discussion. She accepted his decision as an ultimatum. After all, why discuss? They had never really talked openly to each other, and they probably never would. No compromise was possible with one of his obstinacy. In a way, the decision was a relief—constant daily contact would have been more difficult.

"Drop me first, Monte" said Fifi waking up at last. "No; it's not man waking up at last. "No, it's not manners or etiquette. Just simply moods, that's all. If I were left alone with you, I'd be nasty."

Amy started to protest, for she was apprehensivce of a tete-a-tete, but all at once she reassured herself by the thought that this would be a good moment to open up the subject of Fifi.

"Why don't you spend the night with me?" she said half-eartedly.

"No, No! Communing with nature's got on my nerves," said Fifi. "Home for me!"

They left her at the old family residence on lower Fifth Avenue, just off Washington Square, and started up-town, over the vacant streets, across which an occasional taxi went sputtering, a milk wagon rattled, or a newspaper truck screamed on its breathless rush for the outward mails. She had come into the front seat beside Bracken. The car slowed down in to a colloqual pace.

"Nice time to talk, don't you think? Not sleepy?"

"Quite awake."

"Yes; you always are," he said, turning toward her with a smile. "And tremendously alive."

The slightest compliment, even the most obvious from him gave her an instant pleasure. But to-night she feared an approach to intimacy, so began resolutely.

"You knew that Claire wished you to marry Fifi?"

"What? Oh yes."

She hesitated, then went on with some difficulty:

"You would be very happy in your own home, with someone to work for and some one to help you. But I suppose you don't believe in marriage."

"On the contrary, yes—I do very strongly," he said quietly. "I think my brother the most fortunate man in the world. He lives as human beings were meant to live. He's part of the soil, part of his time and part of his community. The rest of us are just transients."

"Then the most reasonable thing you could do would be to marry Fifi," she said resolutely. 'She cares for you I'm certain, and she has lots of the qualities of your sister-in-law—if she only had a chance to bring them out."

"Fifi's good stuff," he admitted.

"Then why not?"

"Why?"

He asked the question as though to himself and relapsed into a moody silence. Madison Square, with its calm, green pools of darkness, its beggars huddled on benches, and the high, fairy tower with its golden clock, was at their side; the great thoroughfare deserted, save for a wandering shadow, a flare-up of gasoline at a fruit stand and a late car switching noisily over the echoing stones.

"Why?" he repeated. "Because I never do anything reasonable. I suppose, Kismet. I'm made differently or started wrong. Even Fifi sees that she wouldn't change me. You must have realized that about me," he said, turning and looking at her.

"I don's know," she said faintly. His head was in shadow, but she felt the luminous eyes looking down into hers.

"They say a lot of nasty things about me, I suppose. If they only knew! I'm the one who pays. It's seeking an ideal—chasing a will-o'-the-wisp—the longing for beauty."

"You must have suffered," she said involuntarily, "suffered a great deal. Is it worth it?"

"It is worth it," he said solemnly. "And I am willing to suffer all again," he added, in a low voice.

In all this there was nothing personal, yet every word he said came directly to her. She sank her head in the furs till only her eyes showed under the low brim of her hat. The light of an arc- lamp flashed across his set lips, and the eyes that burned darkly in the soft face—no, there was nothing tame about him.

"Why does he say this to me?" she asked herself, held half by terror and half by a leaping sensation of joy. She did not know the answer, but she did not ask the question of him.

"However, there comes a time," she said resolutely, "when you need other things of life,"

"Perhaps."

"I'm going to persuade you yet."

He did not answer this, except to increase their speed with a sudden release that sent them flying up the avenue, past Forty-second Street with its tinsel lights, past the married towers of the cathedral plunging into the blossoming stars, into the open ing spaces at the foot of the park, and quickly into the quiet street.

"Now that all good things come to an end," he said, turning to her, "I'm going to say an impertinent thing. I shan't forget those hours—"

"Those unreal hours," he continued "back in the days of Louis XIV. When I think of you, dear lady, I shall always think of La Mode Louis Quatorze. If we could only live like that," he said, in sudden rebellion.

"We can't."

"No, of course not."

He descended; helped her out with exact deference—no more— and opened the door with the key she gave him. Then he took off is hat.

"Good night —and thank you for this half-hour," he said, smiling at her. "You have the quality of painting memories that last. Everything about you is gentle and exquisite." He took the hand she extended to him with a feeling of drowsy lightness in her head, and raised it to his lips.

"A la mode Louis Quartorze," he said.

She went up to her bedroom with a feeling of happiness. She assured herself that he had not trespassed beyond the limits of a sympathetic friendship. She had shown him plainly that she did not intend to encourage a flirtation. She had kept her word to Claire Bracken, and the consciousness of her own virtue gave her an extraordinary self-satisfaction There was so much good in him—Claire was right; he would respond so wonderfully to a real home, to children, and a wife who would give him strength. How readily she understood these needs in him!

"Yes; he must marry Fifi," she said, with determination.

Toward morning, she awoke in a troubled wakefulness that defied all her efforts to return to sleep. The memory of Monte Bracken haunted her. How sympathetic they were, even to the unspoken thoughts, the moment of delicacy which each divined.

"I must not see too much of him," she said turning on her pillow. "We understand each other too easily. I must be careful." She looked back, in the light of her acquired self-knowledge, at the girl who, in the old-fashioned garden, had decided her life so rashly so irrevocably, and, in the same revolt which had come to Andrew as he had faced the image of himself the night of the ball, she cried

"If I had only known then what I do now!"

PART III

I

Kitty Lightbody came in puffing and red, making such a racket as she passed the tables, that the lecturer on the news of the week, a thin, grayish woman in poke bonnet, momentarily interrupted her flowing nasal comments.

"Thought I'd never get her, dear," said Kitty loudly, embracing first Irma and then Amy. "Eleven o'clock's like a dawn tea." She settled into her seat, rose again to shed a brilliant topaz sweater coat, and, oblivious of the waiting audience, resumed her whispering. "I'm just crazy about the idea, aren't you? I wish she'd read the new books and magazines for us. Has anything exciting happened last week?"

"At home, as you probably all know," took up the lecturer, "the week in Congress has been an eventful one."

In the pleasant music room of the Chilton Yacht Club, two score of women were scattered in groups of twos and threes, giving a painful attention to the light, gliding phrases of the lecturer, who, for three dollars a ticket, relieved them of the fatiguing daily search of the newspapers by these fashionable Monday mornings, felicitously named "Hali-Hours With the World." The windows were open to the blue flash of water and the glare of white sails hung against a glowing June sky. From outside came the call of the players on the tennis courts and the subdued sounds of a phonograph, where, at the further end of the veranda, a group had begun to dance.

"My Lord that new fox-trot is catchy!" cotinued Mrs. Lightbody, with a sigh. 'Its' too distracting, and I must listen. It's so instructive, isn't it?"

SAFETY DEVICES FOR SHIPS AT SEA

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11. — The principle of "follow the green line" used successfully by the management of New York's subway system in handling crowds at congested transfer points has been adapted in a measure to insure safety to ships at sea around crowded harbors. Instead of a visible "green line," however, a device has been perfected whereby vessels seeking their way into harbor in thick weather can follow with safety a submerged and energized wire.

In the outer reaches of New York harbor where deep water meets shoals there begins a marine passage way known as Ambrose Channel. This channel leads up through the narrows into the inner harbor and to the dock, and in this channel the guiding cable has been laid. Ships properly equipped to take advantage of its guiding powers can follow it through any kind of weather with the same degree of assurance as can the passenger who seeks to make his way from Grand Central terminal to Times Square.

Sixteen Mile Cable.

The device consists of a cable 16 miles long laid in the centre of the channel. It is energized with an alternating current from the shore. Ships to take advantage of it must be equipped with audiphones or listening devices attached to the hull. Approaching the channel the sound waves emitted by the cable can be heard for some distance, and the increasing or decreasing strength of the sound enables the ship to be steered until it is right over the source. It is then a simple matter to follow its course through the dredged channel despite storm or fog which would make the marking buoys invisible or would tend to confuse the warning notes of automatic bell and whistle markers.

Protects Ships.

This cable is but an additional protection for shipping entering American ports. It supplements the radio compass installed and operated by the Naval Communications Service now in successful use all along the Atlantic coast. By the compass, ships can ascertain their exact position in any kind of weather. Another protection recently tried out by the Navy Department is a machine for determining depth of water and proximity of other ships through the readings of sounds from the propellers reflected back from the bottom or nearby bodies.

CHALLENGES THAT ANGLO-JAP TREATY NOT IN HARMONY WITH NATION'S LEAGUE

ASSAILED BY MANCHESTER GUARDIAN AS DESIGNED TO SUPERSEDE POWERS OF LEAGUE.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Aug. 11.—A joint declaration of the British and Japanese Governments that the Anglo-Japanese treaty, which has just been permitted automatically to renew itself for another year, is "in harmony with the spirit of the covenant of the League of Nations" is challenged editorially by The Manchester Guardian. It is assailed as "a typical example of those partial and exclusive agreements between particular powers which the League of Nations was designed to supersede."

Interesting Document.

The Guardian says: "Some people may be sceptical about the latest Anglo-Japanese Note, but it is a most interesting and may be an extremely important document. The present Anglo-Japanese Treaty dates from 1911, and will run, in the normal course, till July, 1921. But the Foreign Offices of the two nations have remembered the covenant of the League of Nations. They point out that the treaty, 'though in harmony with the spirit of the covenant of the League of Nations, is not entirely consistent with the letter,' and they add that, if renewed next year, 'it must be in a form which is not inconsistent with the covenant.'

Proposition Inaccurate.

"There is only one weakness about this statement, and that is that its opening proposition is entirely inaccurate. The Anglo-Japanese Treaty in all its forms has always been entirely out of harmony with the spirit of the covenant. It is a typical example of those partial and exclusive agreements between particular powers which the League of Nations was designed to supersede. It pledges each of the contracting parties to make war if 'by reason of unprovoked attack or agressive action' the other finds its 'territorial rights or special interests' threatened in Eastern Asia or India.

Punishment of Offenders.

"The covenant, of course, provides an elaborate machinery by which the League will deal with such contingencies and bring its collective powers to bear on the offender, whether he is or is not himself among its members. The Anglo-Japanese Treaty will need remodelling from top to bottom in order to make it consistent with the covenant. It will presumably be done by each power undertaking formally to go to war in support of the other after the League has definitely pronounced against an agressor and ordered the enforcement of all the punitive measures contemplated in Article 16 of the covenant, which include military force but do not impose its use as an absolute obligation on all the members.

"There would then be the protection of the League between us and war, and the obligations thrown on us by the treaty would be very different from what they are at present."

TO AMEND U.S. COMMERCIAL TREATIES IN SPIRIT OF THE NEW SHIPPING ACT

GRAVE DOUBT AMONG OFFICIALS OF ACCEPTANCE BY MORE IMPORTANT FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS.

(Canadian Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug 11. — The Jones Shipping Act is turning out to be more or less of a problem for the Government of the United States. The task of studying the more than a score of commercial treaties under the recently enacted Act has been found so formidable by the U.S. State Department that the belief has been expressed that it would be impossible to complete the work by September 3, the expiration of the 90-day period permitted by the Act.

Discriminatory Duties.

In addition to ascertaining the extent to which existing treaties must be amended in order to reclaim for Congress the right to enact legislation imposing discriminatory duties and charges in favor of United States shipping, the State Department will find it necessary to enter into more or less extensive correspondence with the foreign governments affected to develop their views and learn whether they are willing to make the change desired. This will be a time-consuming task, as much of the negotiating must be done by mail, involving many weeks for each exchange of notes. It is therefore possible that recourse must be had to dating back any action that the U.S. Government must take when it appears that the action could not be taken in the 90-day period.

Attempt at Amendments.

It is declared that the attempt will be made to obtain amendments of the existing commercial treaties in the spirit of the new shipping Act, rather than resort to denunciation of whole treaties, for in that way it will be possible to avoid the automatic application of the five per cent. differential duties in favor of United States shipping under the Underwood Tariff Act, which it has been found would otherwise apply. But there appears to be grave doubt among officials here as to the acceptance of such a procedure by some of the more important foreign governments, which may prefer to adopt retaliatory measures.

No Retaliation Threats

While there have been many inquiries from embassies and legations in Washington as to the disposition of the State Department, there have been no formal exchanges, it is said, and no threats of retaliation. Newspapers in other countries, however, have been full of protests against the new shipping Act, while chambers of commerce and shipping companies have frankly expressed disapproval of the Act and declared their intention of meeting any attempt at discrimination with severely retaliatory measures.

Japanese Protest.

Japanese steamship companies have been prominent in their protests and have threatened to divert their Pacific steamers to ports in Canada, or to carry their freight through the Panama Canal to Atlantic ports nearer the points of consumption, in this way meeting the threat to impose heavy compensating charges on rail transportation of Japanese goods under the amended Transportation Act.

These threats, it is stated here, also have had the effect of attracting attention in Canada, where the railroads are asking why they should be punished for something that the Japanese companies or the Japanese Government have done. This, it is believed, may foreshadow later protests from the Canadian and British Governments.

Injury to U.S. Commerce.

The point has been made recently, in the way of unofficial representations, that by refusing to accept amendments of the treaties, and compelling the U.S. State Department to cancel whole treaties, injury would be worked on United States commerce by withdrawing priveleges it now enjoys in entering foreign ports. Under the treaty of 1815, which is the only basis for commercial intercourse between Great Britain and the United States, U.S. shipping is able to engage in business with the Straits Settlements and other British possessions, and it is possible, officials here believe, that this privelege would lapse if the whole treaty were denounced, and that somthing like general commercial warfare would follow.

FINDS QUEBEC RICH IN RESOURCES

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 11.—H. L. F. Blake, representing several large English syndicates, who has been exploring northern Quebec with a party, states that the mineral discoveries of the north are becoming richer and richer on each occasion he visits the interior of this country. He predicts that the day is not far distant when the large steel interests will look to northern Quebec for their raw material and that the enormous water powers will supplant coal in the production of iron and steel, making Quebec a province of immense wealth

Store Opens 9 a.m. | The GRESSMAN Company Limited | Store Closes 12 o'clock Noon, Thursday

A Merry Half-Day Sale

CALLED "MERRY" BECAUSE THERE WILL BE BRISK SELLING
Three Hours Only—9 a.m. to 12 o'Clock Noon

"Kayser" and "Queen Quality" Silk Gloves Will Be Marked Down to 83c Pair Thursday Morning Only

Any one dollar silk glove in our store will be marked at this price. There are no restrictions. We say every pair and we mean it. They have double tipped fingers and you have choice of the following: all-white, white with black backs, silver grey, palm beach, steel grey, palm beach and black.

38c Bleached Longcloth, 26c Yard
(SIX HUNDRED YARDS)

This material is fully bleached and has a cambric finish and is priced 12c less than its regular value. It is especially suitable for ladies' and children's wear. A shipment that arrived recently and contracted for six months ago makes the price possible.

65c Colored Bath Towels Will Be Sold for 49c Pair

They are grey with white stripes and have fringed ends, and measure 15 in. x 34 in. If we went to the maker of these towels to-day he would demand 55c a pair for them. We consider that they are worth buying in six pair lots.

28c Factory Cotton, 23c Yard
(400 YARDS ONLY)

The brand is "Bengal" and the material is the usual fine quality that characterizes this make. It is free from specks and bleaches perfectly nd the width is 34 inches.

OUR REDFERN STORE Announces:

$8.50 to $12 Gingham Dresses at $6.49

They are uncommonly handsome because of the patterns of the materials and the styles of the garments. They are all either stripe or plaid effects. We would not think of selling them at this price if it were not the middle of the season.

Percale House Dresses, $1.98

This assortment offers a wide selection of patterns, in light, medium or dark grounds. Nearly all are trimmed with chambray pockets and cuffs piped with plain white.

$7.50 White Gabardine Wash Skirts, $4.69

Nearly all have a different style patch pocket. There are some that are pin tucked and trimmed with buttons and others are plain except for a folding flap that is fastened back with a button: all are finished at the waist with a belt.

$3.95 Voile Blouses, $2.69

And a real nice quality of voile it is. You have choice of stripe and spot effects with a round or a square neck and lace or embroidery trimming, although in some instances they are combined on the same model.

Many People Are Buying Footwear at Our Mid-Season Sale of Shoes

And they are certainly receiving wonderful value for their money. The only reason the reductions are made, is that it is mid-season. We had no difficulty getting the original price for them because they were marked at reasonable figures. We have some left, because it is impossible to judge exactly how many pairs to purchase for a season. If we could it would not be necessary to make this mid-season clearance, but we can't, and in this way it comes about that we sacrifice them sooner than carry them over to another season.

75c English Dress Ginghams, 59c Yard

They are excellent quality and are well and closely woven in novelty plaids, neat checks and plain colors. The width is 27 inches and the price is reduced because they arrived late in the season.

Thirty Cases of "Gold" Laundry Soap to Be Sold at 6 Bars for 55c

An old contract and a huge purchase is the secret of the low price. We do not have to tell you of the merits of this excellent soap for it is found in nearly every household. No 'phone orders will be accepted and not more than twelve bars will be allowed to one customer.

Ladies' 85c Silk Boot Hose 46c Pair 2 Pairs for 90c (Thirty Dozen

They are a regular 85c value, and can be had in black only, and sizes 9, 9½ and 10. They have a good quality silk boot and fine perfectly woven tops.

'Phone orders will not be accepted, and the number to each purchaser is limited to 12 pairs.

Bathing Suits, Our $5.75 Ones $3.29

The material is a mercerized cotton, and the colours are black and navy, trimmed with green, yellow, coral or cardinal. Some predict that August will be the best swimming month of the season.

$1.19 to $1.49 Bathing Caps, $1.79

The colors are blue, green, citron, orange, red or amethyst. There is a variety of styles, including close-fitting and looser models with fancy trimmings.

$10 and $13 Voile or Gingham Dresses for $5.49

There is a variety of different styles—frilled and overskirted and some modelled on straight lines. There are several pretty colorings and several charming styles. This price is a clearance one.

Children's $2.50 White Skirts, $1.98

The material is white galatea and the styles are pleated and the sizes are for the little tots from 6 to 12 years. They fit well, look well and wash well.

Children's $1.98 to $2.59 Wash Hats, $1.19

The price is certainly low enough and the quality is certainly present in everyone. The material is pique and some of the crowns button on and others are slit with eyelets and run with ribbon.

Our $8.75 White Gabardine Skirts, $4.95

There is an assortment of styles and sizes—the balance of this season's latest models. They are good to look upon and it will be difficult for you to realize that the price is so low.

$2.19 Pink Knickers, $1.69

The material is a fine quality mull that will wash splendidly. There is half inch elastic at the waist and knees.

$12 to $15 Wash Dresses, $8.95

Some are made of gingham and others of voile and it is truthful to say that which ever you select you will secure at a price that pays for just a little more than the material. They are well and modishly made with frills, overskirts and straight line effects.

$4.75 Smocks at $2.49

This is the balance of our white and colored smocks of linene, chambray and galatea. The colors are green, pink and blue. They have square collars of white Indian Head embroidered in colours to correspond. The pockets are finished in a like manner.

FIVE DOLLAR WHEAT HOPE IN CANADA

WINNIPEG EXPERT SEES NARROW PRODUCING FIELD.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug 11.—Robert McGill, secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and regarded as one of Canada's foremost grain trade experts, declared here that farmers in western Canada would obtain from $3 to $5 for their wheat this year.

"The only wheat Europe will be able to buy will be that from North America and Argentina," said Mr. McGill. "Rumania will have none to spare India is prohibiting export. Australia's acreage has been considerably reduced and there is no prospect of shipments from Russia.

"The acreage planted to wheat in western Canada this year is slightly smaller than last, but a larger crop is expected because of unusually favorable weather and soil conditions during seeding and growing time."

ships in naval engagements, are little better than rusted hulks.

Left French Port July 13.

The flotilla left Brest on July 13, stopping for a week at the Azores, where a mysterious leak was discovered in the Ostfriesland and patched up.

The three destroyers were among the ships that Germans sunk at Scapa Flow after surrendering them, while the destroyer G-102, the Frankfort and Ostfriesland were prominent in the battle of Jutland. The last-named was ninth in line in this action, and fought throughout the engagement without being damaged. But when the German fleet turned tail and ran she struck a British mine, laid during the fight.

Few of the German naval craft had the hard usuage that fell to the Frankfort. She was at sea during the entire war, and at Jutland was the first to report the presence of the British fleet. She was the first ship in the German line when the engagement began and was badly damaged by British shells. She is also reported to have participated in several raids on British seacoast towns.

TRY DR. BANTA'S KIDNEY AND RHEUMATIC PILLS

This is the advice that hundreds of people are giving to their friends who are suffering from kidney or rheumatic ailments.

Every few days some one is wishing to give a testimonial regarding the benefits obtained from the use of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills have given him more relief in a few days than all the other remedies he had taken.

Have no hesitation in trying them, and if they should not help you, return the box to your dealer and he is authorized to refund your money.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, August 11. — Prices were steady at the opening of the Stock Exchange to-day. Quotations were:

United States Steel 85 7-8 unchanged, American Sugar 115 up 3-4, Newhaven 33 1-2 up 1-4, Baldwin 103 3-4 up 3-4, American Car and Foundry 134 1-8 up 5-8, Corn Products 85 off 1-4, Southern Railway 27 up 3-4, American Locomotive 94 up 3-4, Mexican Petroleum 154 1-2 up 1, Reading 87 1-2 up 1 1-4, Vanadium 62 1-8 up 1-2, Pan-American 80 1-2 up 1, General Motors 60 1-8 unchanged, Southern Pacific 90 3-4 up 3-8, Crucible 129 1-2 up 1 1-2.

Improvement in the foreign exchange market caused the stocks to continue their upward trend.

Steel Common sold up to 87 shortly before noon, Baldwin got above 105, U.S. Rubber sold at 84, and Pan-American Petroleum at 82 1-4. Maxwell Common sold at 13 compared with Tuesday's low of 7 7-8. One soft spot was National Aniline Common, which sold off 4 points to 64 1-2. It lost 6 points on Tuesday also.

The market displayed a firm tone at the start of the second hour of trading with most issues holding early gains.

The market became dull in the early afternoon, although prices continued to hold strong.

The market acted well in its early dealings; U. S. Steel after opening at 85 7-8, unchanged, quickly ran up a point. Baldwin, after opening up 3-4, added another point in early sales. Reading was up 1 1-4 at 87 1-2 and Crucible gained 1 1-2 to 129 1-2. Pan-American was up nearly three points.

NEW YORK, August 11.—The colonial market was steady at the opening to-day. Sept. 33.35 off 35, October 32.25 up 11, December 31.25 up 23, January 30.10 up 27, March 29.50 up 13, May 28.87 up 9.

LONG CANOE TRIP TO PETERBORO

A long canoe trip from N. York to Peterboro, was completed last week by two young men from Jersey City, U.S.A., Mr. C. Fradinger and Mr. Palmer, in an Old Town canoe. This morning they began the long return trip getting away to an early start. The trip was made through the Hudson river and the Erie Canal to Oswego from whence they transported their canoe across Lake Ontario to Belleville in a larger boat and thence up the Trent. At Peterboro they bought one of he world renowned Peterboro canoes and are making the return trip in this boat by Trent waterways down the lake to Belleville, Kingston, and the Thousand Islands down the St. Lawrence to the Richelieu to Lake Champlain and Lake George to the Hudson.

BUSINESS IN MANITOBA BOOMS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 11.—Every scort of business in Manitoba is on the increase and there has been greater activity during the last eight months than during the whole of 1919 according to the books kept in the Provincial Secretary's office showing new companies incorporated and increase of capitalization of old firms. During the last eight months licenses were issued for companies having an aggregate capitalization of $60,000,000. The total for the whole of last year was $57,000,000.

AMERICANS INVADING CANADA

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Aug. 11.—The Walsh Land Company makes a statement that nearly 100,000 American farmers have purchased approximately 3,000,000 acres of land in western Canada since the first of the year. Most of them, it is said, will settle next spring or later.

CANADIAN SECURITIES TO AMOUNT OF $524,248,313 HELD IN UNITED STACES

MUNICIPAL ISSUES ACCOUNT FOR $130,425,313 OF THIS TOTAL—GOVERNMENT BORROWINGS.

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Canadian securities held in the United States as of July 1 of this year represented the enormous total of $534,248,313, according to a compilation prepared by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York and published in the current issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin.

Of this total provincial and municipal issues accounted for $130,425,313, government issues $152,500,000, railroad $121,328,500, public utility $80,095,600 and industrial $39,899,500. Included in the Canadian list in this compilation is a loan of $2,500,000 to the Government of Newfoundland.

Borrowings Tabulated.

The borrowings of the Government of Canada in the United States are tabulated as follows:

Issue, 5-year gold bonds—Interest 5 per cent.; issued, April 1, 1916; mature, April 1, 1921; amount, $25,000,000.

Issue, 10-year gold bonds—Interest, 5 per cent.; issued, April 1, 1916; mature, April 1, 1926; amount, $25,000,000.

Issue, 15-year gold bonds—Interest, 5 per cent.; issued, April 1, 1916; mature, April 1, 1931; amount, $25,000,000.

Issue, 10-year gold bonds—Interest, 5½ per cent.; issued, August 1, 1919; mature, August 1, 1929; amount, $60,000,000.

Issue, 2-year gold notes—Interest, 5½ per cent.; issued, August 1, 1919; mature, August 1, 1921; amount, $15,000,000.

Among the provinces of Canada, Ontario is shown as the heaviest debtor of Uncle Sam, with a total borrowing of $30,800,000 on the part of the Provincial Government, the securities in the United States.

vince of Alberta is next with $11,150,000. Other provinces stand as follows: Manitoba, $7,848,000; Quebec, $7,500,000; British Columbia, $5,630,000; Saskatchewan, $3,720,000; New Brunswick, $3,170,000, and Nova Scotia $2,000,000.

Toronto Leads Cities.

In the list of municipal borrowings the compilation places Toronto at the head of Canadian cities, with 119,633, while the Toronto Harbor Commission is shown as having $5,000,000 of its bonds outstanding in the United States. Montreal has borrowed $7,000,000 from Uncle Sam and Great Winnipeg Water District another $7,000,000. Other Canadian cities figure as follows: Calgary, $1,918,806; Vancouver, $2,810,000; Ottawa, $2,588,859; Quebec, $1,235000; London, $1,246,056; Edmonton, $1,148,750, and Halifax $1,025,170.

MISS CLEMENS AND THE HAWAIIANS.

Haven't you often wished that you could visit the Hawaiian Islands, and see its beauties, and listen to the ravishing strains of its most seducing melodies? Well, you can!

Miss Clemens has just come from the Hawaiian Islands, having made his trip at our request, securing additional pictures, and securing a troupe of native Hawaiians, such as has never visited this continent before. They are all real singers and instrumentalists—three men and their wives, all natives of the Islands. They rank as musicians in their native home. They will not only give a full concert in the afternoon, but in the evening, when Miss Clemens gives her "Trip Through Paradise" to the accompaniment of stereoptican and moving pictures, they will interperse her talk with native melodies that will add charm to this most enrapturing entertainment.

LOCAL STUDENTS PASS EXAMS FOR MATRICULATION

The following list contains the names of the local candidates who were successful in whole or in part at the Pass Junior Matriculation Examination. Middle School Normal Entrance candidates who were also candidates for Matriculation, and candidates writing the Pass Junior Scholarship Examination for McMaster University and for Queens' University, have been considered in the results.

The number (12) inserted after the name of a candidate indicates that such candidate has obtained complete Pass standing for Matriculation into the Faculty of Applied Science. His Honor standing will be found in the Honor Matriculation results as published on the 2nd inst.

In other cases the insertion of a number after a name indicates the number of papers on which the candidate has obtained Partial Matriculation. In order to complete their standing they require to re-write the remaining papers and obtain the standard indicated on their certificates.

All other candidates whose names are given have obtained complete Matriculation by passing on the twelve required examination papers, which are as follows: English Literature, English Composition, British and Canadian History, Ancient History, Algebra, Geometry, Latin Authors, Latin Composition, together with the four papers in any two of the following subjects, (Physics and Chemistry), French (Authors and Composition), Greek (Authors and Accidence, etc.) Spanish (Authors and Composition.

The results of the examination in the cases of candidates writing on fewer than eight papers are not reported in the lists given below. All such candidates must wait for the receipt of their statements of marks in order to ascertain the result of their examination.

The certificates and the statements of marks obtained by unsuccessful candidates are in course of preparation and are being mailed to the principals.

W. H. BRANDES, of Des Moines, Iowa, who declares he gained twenty pounds in thirty days after taking Tanlac and now feels like a different man.

Thirty days ago or a little more, I only weighed 125 pounds, but now I balance the scales at 145 pounds and Tanlac did it," declared W. H. Brandes, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Des Moines, Iowa, Mr. Brandes has been looking after the plumbing work of the Des Moines Public Schools for the past nineteen years.

"And many of the teachers and scholars can tell you how different I look since I began taking Tanlac," he said. "I suffered from indigestion of the worst kind for the past year or more and was often so weak and dizzy I couldn't stand up, let alone walk. Nothing helped me. I finally had to take my bed and stay there for several weeks. Finally a friend persuaded me to try Tanlac and I have never seen or heard of anything to equal it. It relieved me entirely of indigestion and put me right back on my feet. I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight, but I feel like a new man in every way. I just think Tanlac is the finest thing ever sold in a drug store."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Waine Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by the Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.—(Advt.)

LINDSAY ARSENA LCLOSED.

LINDSAY, Aug. 11.— Word was received from Oshawa on Monday by the Superintendent of the Dominion Arsenal, Lindsay, to close the entire plant at once. The order was carried out immediately and the employees were given notice to this effect.

The original notice called for the closing of the plant on August 14th, so that the second order came in the nature of a surprise.

Some 250 hands will be out of employment for a period of three months, it is understood.

PETERBORO RINKS WON RIGGS TROPHY IN BELLEVILLE EVENT

TWO RINKS WENT THROUGH TO THE FINALS—THE SCORES.

The Peterborough Bowling Club added to its reputation last night when both its rinks went through the Belleville Bowling Club's tournament for the Riggs Trophy to the finals, Jack Mayneord's rink then defeating the rink skipped by George Cairns and taking the trophy.

Both rinks encountered strong opposition, but cleared their way to the finals in which the unique competition of two rinks from one club took place.

Mayneord's rink gets the trophy and the individual players each receive a mahogany dresser clock, while the members of Cairns' rink, runners-up, each receive silver casseroles.

The personnel of the rinks is as follows:

R. Elliot, W. J. Oke, T. Pratt, J. Mayneord, skip.

NEW VULCANIZING FIRM

The newly refitted premises in the Bell Block, No. 201 Hunter street, has been leased to a new steam vulcanizing firm under the name of E. B. Morse and Co. A new and modern steam outfit has been installed for vulcanizing tires of any make, and the process is so strongly recommended to tire owners that the firm are prepared to warrant every repair to outwear the balance of the life of the tire.

Mr. Morse is an experienced tire repair man and his partner is well known in the city for possessing a capable business experience.

HELD ON CHARGE OF VAGRANCY.

John Wilkinson Remanded in This Morning's Police Court.

John Wilkinson, who was remanded in this morning's Police Court for a week on a charge of vagrancy, is said by the local police to closely resemble the description sent out by the Toronto police of the man who was alleged to have been connected with the death of the boy who was found dead behind a billboard at Sunnyside last week.

His fingerprints and photograph have been taken and forwarded to

INTERESTING LECTURE AT LAST NIGHT'S SESSION OF CHAUTAUQUA

A STUDY IN BIRD LIFE—FEATURES OF THE PROGRAMME.

There was a large attendance at last evening's session of the Chautauqua, and the audience was delighted by the selections given by Mr. Micheltree and Miss Gwendolyn Anthistle. The latter recited several beautiful poems, accompanied by Mr. Micheltree, most of his accompaniments being of his own composition. Mr. Micheltree also rendered a most humorous imitation of a country choir anthem. This was enthusiastically encored.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. Charles Crawford Gorst, the well-known naturalist, then was introduced. Having lived literally in the open Mr. Gorst has made the study of birds and their songs his life work. His marvellous ability as a bird imitator is the outcome of years of unflagging zeal and endless patience. He can produce the most perfect sounds octaves higher than produced by any other human voice. In addition he displays charts and pastel bird paintings of his feathered friends. The latter are marvellously accurate as well as most beautiful.

Habits of Birds.

Mr. Gorst opened his lecture with the delivery of the song of the mocking bird or rather of a mocking bird provided it had attended singing school. He took as his text the proverb, "A bird in the bush is worth two in the hand," and in describing the songs, habits and usefulness of the birds he certainly justified his new version of the old one. He exhibited the paintings of many common birds, identifying them with their song, and relatng brief anecdotes of his experiences when observing them in their native haunts. He stated that there is a decided organization in the songs of most birds and that it is possible for a bird to learn a tune. However, he added, we should not wish the birds to sing definite tunes as we humans do. Humanity is altogether too much like a self-conscious child. People go to business day after day, seeing nothing, caring for nothing, except that which man has made or changed. Let him hie away to some quiet forest and there view nature as she is in all her majesty and her exquisite beauty. Philosophers claim that there are only three things of importance in existence, namely, God, personal spirits and the communication between God and these spirits. Nature is the most direct means of communication. Nature is not a big lump of something all tangled that we cannot straighten out. It is the means of communication.

Do Birds Talk?

Mr. Gorst then spoke of the probability of birds actually talking to one another as humans do. He ridiculed the thought that birds talked as some folks think that they do; for instance, Mrs. Robin saying to her mate: "Now, Mr. Robin, go out to the garden and bring me an angle worm exactly two and a half inches long, and bring it home at two minutes after seven this evening. Now hurry up my dear" Birds do not reason and think as man does but their cries certainly prove that they have a capacity for joy, sorrow, fear, curiosity and hatred.

Protect the Birds.

The usefulness of the birds was next emphasized. Mr. Gorst presented most dazing figures proving the usefulness of birds as insect destroyers. Insects are kept in control by those feathered songsters, and if all the birds on the continent were killed or destroyed we would face such a never dreamed of. The only way to help the birds in this work is to protect them, and this means protecting them from their deadl yenemy the cat. The average stray cat that also proves a nuisance to the neighborhood accounts for about fifty dead birds in a year. This means an actual loss in dollars and cents to the community. Mr. Gorst also condemned the wearing of real plumage on hates and advocated that women refuse to wear or purchase such betrimmed hats.

"When the boy takes his gun and goes slinkin gthrough the woods, and takes his aim at a bird and sees it lying dead at his feet, he thinks he has a bird. He has not. What he has done is destroyed its beauty, its song and ts usefulness. The proper way to get a bird is to take a pair of field glasses, go into the forest armed with a bird guide, then he can really see and appreciate a bird."

PROSECUTING ALL IRISHMEN HOLDING CRIMINAL COURTS

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 11.— Sir Thomas Stafford has resigned his membership in the Viceroys Advisory Council because, he says, the Premier "has refused to take the only step giving a chance for peace, namely, a firm and immediate offer of Dominion government."

Next to Frank Brooks, who was assassinated on July 30, Sir Thomas Stafford has been the closest personal friend of Viscount French, the Lord Lieutenant.

The military is taking stern measures against all persons concerned in holding criminal courts. Three men have been convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment in this con-

A Statement

Owing to a shortage of materials and the exceptionally large demand from all parts of the world for STUDEBAKER Cars, we have been unable during the past few months to get Cars for our Peterboro district. Hence the fact that so many motorists in this vicinity have had to content themselves pro tem with some other make of car.

We have been negotiating with the Studebaker Corporation at Walkerville, where this car is made, and have been successful in our efforts to come to an arrangement with our company whereby we are to be protected on a limited number of cars.

It is probably news to some that the Studebaker Corporation manufacture all styles of bodies, including Coupes, Sedans, Roadsters, etc., all of which we have on order for Fall delivery.

At present we have three SPECIAL SIX and one BIG SIX TOURING on our floor and we hope to have a Roadster for display the latter part of the week.

See these cars and make arrangements for a demonstration at once. Book orders early and we will then be able to make certain of Fall deliveries.

C.G.E. TEAM DEFEATED VETS IN REPLAY OF CITY CUP GAME

JONES' DARING CLEARANCE—A FOOTBALL TECHNICALITY—PENALTY AGAINST BURROWS—"WAG" SCORED—SHARMAN GREAT SHOT—EVEN FIRST HALF—HOTSTON AND PARKIN'S CLEVER GOAL —VETS DID THE PRESSING BUT LOST—

C.G.E. 2 GOALS, G.W.V.A. 1.

The replay Cup Tie game that ended in a draw on Saturday afternoon, was played last evening at Nicholls Oval before a fair attendance of spectators. Mr. Alex. McKinley officiated as referee and promptly at 6.35 p.m. he lined up the teams as follows:

G. W. V. A.—W. Jones, goal; J. Crowe and D. Perry, backs; H. Burrows, P. D. Ryan and H. Bishop, half-backs; J. Bills, T. Monks, H. Norman and Hig Darling and J. Sharman forwards.

C.G.E.—C. Griffine, goal; J. Davis and J. Williamson, backs; J. Williams, H. Turner and J. Mann, half-backs; A. Gash, "Wag" Hotston, A. Parkins, Ted Bartley and Ed. Hotston, forwards.

Bishop Won the Toss.

The toss of the coin favoured the Vets and decided to kick into the east goal. Parkins got the game started for Norman to give J. Bills a chance to cross, but Williams cleared to Ted Hotston who landed the ball across the goal to "Wag," but Jones picked it off the C.G.E. man's head. Tommy Monks received the ball in mid-field to work close into Griffine's gaol to pass across to Sharman who was a minute too late in arriving.

Will Jones Conceded a Corner.

Immediately thereafter Monks and Bills outwitted Williamson to slip back to Norman who tested Griffine. Turner punted up to Bartley and running up the field along with Hotston on the left travelled into the corner of the touch. A nice effort by a screw drive made Jones stretch himself to save and give a corner. From the corner kick Will Jones jumped in amongst the players to clear.

A Football Technicality.

Ryan punted for C.G.E. goal but went past. Davis placed the ball for a goal kick but through some misunderstand he lifted the ball and handed it to Griffine. The referee immediately awarded a foul against the goal keeper in the penalty area. C.G.E. players packed themselves like herring in the goal for Crowe to lift the ball to strike a C.G.E. player to go through for Vets' goal. C.G.E. players argued the point with the referee, but he proceeded with the game. A desperate raid by the C.G.E. was led by "Wag," who seemed to have lost his temper on the decision, but Bishop cleared nicely. Play travelled from end to end with Parkins being called up for offside and Sharman likewise. An individual rush by Gash down the wing ended with Will Jones dropping to his knees to stop a peculiar drive from about 15 yards out. At the other end Tommy Monks dribbled around two C.G.E. players to have a shot for goal—Griffine cleared.

Parkins Very Smart.

From a foul throw against Perry, the C.G.E. centre forward worried the Vets' defence to allow "Wag" Hoston to test Jones from close range, but Mann put past.

Penalty Against Burrows.

On a raid on the Vets' goal Burrows accidentally hit the ball in the penalty area with his hands for a penalty kick. "Wag" was trusted with the kick who give Will Jones no chance to get it, as the ball went swiftly into the corner of the net. This was accompanied by some great cheering from C.G.E. supporters. Previous to this they were questioning every decision of the referee.

Sharman's Rocket Shot.

The Vets retaliated through Monks and Norman heading the ball into the C.G.E. goal with the defence beaten nicely. The centre forward headed the ball across to Sharman who let drive from about 3 yards out for Grmue to throw himself upon it for a corner kick that was fruitless. From a clearance by Davis to mid-field, Bartley hit the ball with his hand for a foul that ended with half-time, C.G.E. .. Vets 1.

Half Time.

After five minutes' rest the teams resumed, with the Vets making a raid on the left wing through Sharman, who worked a corner off Davis that brought nothing. On return play Griffine saved a beauty from the toot of Darling.

Hoston's and Parkins' Nice Play.

Play was in mid-field when Henry Turner passed forward to "Wag," who in turn played nice combination with Parkins that completely baffttled the Vets' defence. The centre forward passed back out to "Wag" who let drive from close range for Will Jones to save the shot but let it drop to Parkins' foot who touched it through for Vets' second goal. A few minutes afterwards Parkins hurt himself in a raid, but resumed. Sharman transferred the play to the other end along with Darling testing Grimne with a ground shot that Williamson cleared to "Wag" for to be brought up for offside.

Boy Touched the Ball.

Perry punted down in' goal with the Vets' forwards all making a great attempt to even up the score. Davis cleared to touch, but Sharman brought it into play to let drive with a left-footer that made Griffine stagger in stopping the shot. The ball went out to Darling who hit the post for a boy to kick the ball into play, but Referee awarded a goal kick. At the other end "Wag" was brought up for offside and from the free-kick Monks caught on before Bartley and dribbling around he put the ball through the C.G.E. man's legs to go up the field to Bishop who had a try at goal. Twice in succession "Wag" and Parkins had a shot at Will Jones in goal but the goalkeeper cleared quickly.

Vets Did All Pressing.

On a visit to C.G.E. goal Davis headed into his own goal that went for a corner .On the corner-kick being taken Jones (C.G.E. linesman) interfered with the ball after being placed by Bills, Vets' player, that compelled the referee tog o over and adjust matters. Bills put past. An individual raid by Sharman was well played but the C.G.E. defence crowded in upon him to clear. A few minutes afterwards Norman had a try at goal that brought the remark from C.G.E. goalkeeper, "Harry, straighten out your shot." From the goal-kick, "Ted" Hoston travelled down into the corner to pass across to Bartley, who was adjudged offside, but they returned again to test Jones with a low ground shot that gave them a corner —fruitless. With two minutes to go Parkins was about through for a goal, but Perry cleared to mid-field with Vets making a dying effort to make it a draw—C.G.E. 2, G.W.V.A. 1.

PETERBORO BEST IN THE LEAGUE

COURTEOUS ADMISSIONS BY DISTRICT PRESS OF LOCAL TEAM'S CALIBRE.

Port Hope Guide: The score of 14 to 3 in Saturday's Central League ball game, when Peterborough defeated Oshawa on the latter's diamond, is a fair indication of the strength of the teams. Peterborough's exhibition was easily the best ever seen in the Central League and we have no hesitancy in saying that the class of ball they played Saturday would defeat any team in the league. There was not a single weak spot and Manager Solomon is to be congratulated upon gathering together a team of this calibre. Here's that Peterborough may follow the worthy example of our Belleville friends in 1919 and again bring the Provincial championship to the Central Ontario League.

The contest had a most unfortunate ending. In the ninth innings Patton, that faithful old war horse who pitched for Oshawa, attempted to deliver a slow ball and as he did a small bone near his elbow snapped. Patton insisted upon occupying a seat on the bench until the game was completed, after which he was removed to the hospital.

Much the Best.

Belleville Ontario: Belleville G. T. R. disappeared from the baseball stage on Saturday afternoon when Peterborough put away Oshawa by the score of 13 to 3. Belleville hoped against hope for Oshawa's win, which would mean a three-cornered tie. Peterborough are now the Central League champions, and are on their way to the provincial championship. Peterborough had only two errors during the whole game and were much the better team. About 2,400 attended.

CALEDONIANS VS. C.G.E. TO-MORROW NIGHT

FINAL MATCH FOR CITY CUP AT NICHOLLS OVAL.

The Examiner representative has been authorised by the Football Executive to state that the Final Game of the Peterboro City Cup Tie will be played at Nicholls Oval To-morrow night at 6.15 p.m. Players are requested to be present by 6 o'clock so as to get the game started promptly and finished before dark. The duration of the game will be 70 minutes—35 either way.

Caledonian team will be picked from C. Fenner, J. Willshaw, B. Willshaw, H. Frost, R. McDowall, R. Hannah, Matt Shaw, Jas. Shaw, John J. Terrace, R. Service, J. McFeat, and Stewart McMillan.

The Examiner did not receive the C.G.E. team.

REV. FATHER PHELAN PRESENTED MEDALS

SOCIAL EVENING WAS HELD IN G.W.V.A. HALL.

A meeting was held last evening in the G.W.V.A. Hall when the executive of the Peterborough Football Association gathered together along with players of the winning team and runners-up to receive the medals. Vice-President Whatley occupied the chair, and after the usual remarks, called upon Rev .Father Phelan to present the medals. He gave an appropriate address before he presented each player of the Vets' team with their medals as follows: Gamble, Bishop, Burrows, Ryan, Peel, Curtiss, Monks, Edwards, Sharman, Griffine, Piggott, McKinley, Jones, Norman and Hawthorne. Capt. Henry Turner, of C.G.E., received the medals en block for his team. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way with a few of the gentlemen present giving vocal selections. The proceedings were brought to a close by singing "God Save the King."

PETERBORO MEN OFF TO HARVEST FIELDS IN WEST

The C.P.R. had no trouble on Monday handling the harvesters who are taking advantage of th cheap rates to the West, when the first harvesters' excursion left Peterborough on the Port McNichol train. Only 20 tickets were sold at the uptown office, and at the station nine were disposed of.

Another excursion leaves here on the 16th, but very few tickets have been sold for it. Peterborough is evidently not making as good a contribution to the harvest army as other points, for the Toronto papers relate how the Union Station was crowded with the West-bound thousands. The train that left Peterborough that morning had filled three coaches before it reached Blackwater.

Many young farmers are going to see the Golden West and share in some of the large wages that harvesters are receiving there.

Eight thousand men are now Westbound, but three times this number are still needed to take off the crop and see it on the way to the elevators.

CLUB PRODUCED AN AFFIDAVIT

MOORE WAS ELIGIBLE TO PLAY IN LAKEFIELD.

The Lakefield Baseball Club have produced an affidavit from Fred J. Moore's employer that Moore was a resident of Lakefield within the meaning of the residence rule of the League, and the Northerners are formally declared champions of the East Peterborough Baseball League.

The first game with Lindsay in the Intermediate series of the O.B.A.A. will be played at Lakefield on the afternoon of Thursday, 19th August.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH HOCKEY PLAYER IS HERE ON AVISIT

Mr. Fred Denison of Saginaw, Mich., formerly one of the stars of the Peterborough Hockey Club, is in the city to-day renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. Denison was overseas first with the infantry. He however joined the flying corps and got his commission as captain. He brought back an English bride on his return to America, who is now visiting her relatives in England.

TORONTO GOLFERS HERE TO-MORROW.

Thirty members of the Lakeview Golf Club, Toronto, will journey to Peterborough on a special train tomorrow noon to play the Peterborough Club. They come to Peterborough for the first time, and the match is arousing no little interest in local golf circles.

EXECUTIVE MET LAST EVENING

U.F.O. WILL PLACE CANDIDATE IN FIELD.

A meeting of the executive of the United Farmers of Ontario for the district of West Peterborough was held last evening and it was recommended that the U.F.O. of this riding place a candidate in the field in the by-election to be held shortly to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. J. H. Burnham.

Mr. Wm. Shiells was the delegate appointed to meet the executive of the Trades and Labor Council which was meeting so that a joint discussion might be held on the sobject and the announcement was made by Mr. Shiells that whether Labor placed a candidate in the field or not it was the decision of the U.F.O. executive to place a man in the field. It now looks as if the U.F.O., Labor, Farmer and Mr. Burnham will all be represented in the election, with the old parties, Liberal, Conservative and Unionist, yet to hear from. It is not known yet who the nominee of the Farmers' party will be.

WARNES DIAMOND HALL

FRANCE TO AID GEN'L WRANGEL

THIS MEANS FRENCH MILITARY OPERATIONS IN RUSSIA.

(Canadian Press).

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The French Government has decided to recognize General Baron Peter Wrangel as head of the De Facto Government of South Russia, according to information here this morning.

Cossacks For Wrangel.

The French believe General Wrangel shows more promise of overturning the Bolshevik regime than did the Poles, General Denikine, or Admiral Kolchak in their operations. General Wrangel, the French point out, is meeting with great success in turning all Cossack tribes against the Bolsheviki.

To Help Wrangel.

In making this announcement, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs said the recognition implied rendering Wrangel all possible military assistance.

Democratic Government.

Two reasons for the action taken were given. The first was the Baron's promise to assume all obligations of the former Russian Government, and the second was his promise to give Russia a Democratic Government.

The Government likewise is notifying commercial attaches in London to have no dealings with the Soviet emissaries in the British capital.

WEDDING BELLS

SCHWEIER—REED.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening at 6:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crouter when Miss Marjorie Reed, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reed of Bridgenorth, became the bride of Mr. Percival Edward Schweier, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schweier, 491 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough. They were unattended.

The bride looked lovely in a blue foulard silk dress and carried a corsage bouquet of bridal roses.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to Bridgenorth to the home of the bride's parents for over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Schweier wil reside in Peterboro. Their many friends extend their heartiest congratulations for a happy future.

PINHEY—JOHNSTON.

The marriage took place to-day in the rectory of St. Luke's church, East City, of Miss Anna Margaret Johnston, daughter of Mr. W. D. Johnston, of Otonabee, to Mr. W. K. Pinhey, of Bearing, Saskatchewan. Mr. and Mrs. Pinhey will reside in Saskatchewan.

BOLSHEVIKS ON THE MOVE

REDS ADVANCING IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA—SEVERAL DIVISIONS USED.

(Canadian Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 12.—Bolshevik forces in Southern Russia are striking at extreme flanks of Gen. Baron WMra...gel's army north of Crimean Peninsula, according to dispatches received in this city.

Three Soviet divisions, totaling six thousand men, crossed Dniper River on August 7, at Aleshki, across river from Kershon, and advanced several versts southward. The Bolshevik cavalry columns, supported by infantry are advancing southward from Alexandrovsk along west side of Railway leading south of Crimea. This is eastern end of Russian battle front.

SHIPPERS OPPOSE FREIGHT INCREASE

LIVE STOCK MEN HEARD AT MEETING TO-DAY.

Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, August 12.—Strong protests against the increased freight rates were voiced by representatives of the live stock industry before the Board of Railway Commissioners this morning. Representatives of Eastern and Western Live Stock Associations expressed the opinion that this was a bad time for increasing the freight rates on food, the prices of which were declining, but the increases would stop this fall.

C. W. Gurney, of the Eastern Association, said that live stock prices were controlled by the European market, and if the railway rates went up, the consumer would ultimately pay the increase. He declared that the railway employees with an eight-hour day were working about half as long as the farmers.

J. L. Anderson, representing the Western Live Stock Exchanges, said the increase would practically destroy the Winnipeg market and drive the live stock business out of the West.

HALL ON TUESDAY EVENING, AUG. 17TH, 1920, AT 8 O'CLOCK SHARP, IN ORDER TO DISCUSS THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH, AND TO RECEIVE THE REPORT OF THE ELECTION COMMITTEE APPOINTED AT THE LAST REGULAR MEETING. EVERY MEMBER IS RESPECTFULLY REQUESTED TO ATTEND. 5d-4-1972

CAUSES A SENSATION

GREAT BRITAIN NOTIFIED OF LATEST FRENCH MOVE IN RUSSIAN SITUATION.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 12—Great Britain tion bby France of government of tion in most of the events. There were General Baron Wrangel as de facto government of South Russia and the question is being discussed between the two governments.

Something akin to consternation is evinced by evening newspapers over French action which is characterized as contrary to British ideas and a menace to Entente relations.

Meanwhile King George, who was to leave for Scotland to-morrow, has postponed his trip owing to the situation.

A Sensation.

LONDON, Aug. 12.— Announcement of recognition by France of the government of Baron Wrangel has stirred up a big sensation in the press.

Pending unravelling of the mystery caused by various contradictory statements in connection with the announcement, including Premier Lloyd George's denial of knowledge concerning it, most of the morning newspapers comment guardedly upon the event, although they do not conceal their disapproval of the step. Some keep open a loophole of doubt as to the accuracy of the report. Others assume that a mistake has been made, and even concede possibility of deliberate "act of sabotage" against the Millerand ministry and the Anglo-French alliance by officials of the French Foreign Office.

It was officially announced this afternoon that Premier Lloyd-George and Earl Curzon, Foreign Secretary, plan to meet the French Premier in Boulogne on Sunday to discuss the situation arising from the recognition of General Wrangel.

NEW YORK HOUSEWIVES REJOICE AT SUGAR DROP

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—A drop in the price of sugar of from 8 to 10 cents, a pound predicted to-day in the wholesale grocery trade, brought joy to every housewife, who had been in despair regarding her annual fruit preserving. There is plenty of sugar in New York, but its price has been supported at around 23 cents by heavy demands in the soft-drink trade. The peak of the soft-drink season is passing, and within two weeks sugar prices should tumble, the trade admits, estimates varying.

Mr. William Mills, of Lindsay, has been called on to report at Chicago, Ill. for duty in the American navy. Mr. Mills who has been residing with his brother, Mr. Jos. Mills, was in the U.S. service in the world war although he did not see active service abroad.

"ALL EUROPE WILL BE BOLSHEVIK IN A YEAR," SAYS LEON TROTSKY

Russian Minister of War Has Arrived Just Behind the Soviet Front and Set Up Headquarters—Spreading False Reports.

(Canadian Press.)

WARSAW, Aug. 12.—Leon Trotsky, Russian Minister of War, has arrived at Bialystok, just behind the Soviet front and has set up headquarters there, according to news from the other side of the battle line. Speaking in Vilna, capital of Lithuania, recently, he announced that Soviet Russia had been officially recognized by western powers and that M. Krassin and Kameneff had been received in London with ceremonies usually accorded foreign ambassadors. He asserted Bolshevism was "more powerful than ever and would soon spread to other countries."

"In a year," he said, "all Europe will be Bolshevik."

In Bialystok district the Bolsheviki took a number of hostages, threatening to shoot them if food supplies are not delivered to the Soviet army within a short time. It is said the country behind the Bolshevik lines is suffering from famine, as all grain has been requisitioned and sent eastward by Bolshevik authorities.

Bolshevik prisoners say that the Soviet command fears a reverse before Warsaw, and is hastily preparing positions on the line of Grodno, Stonim and Sarny ,to which it can withdraw in case of defeat.

Appeal for Re-union Issued by the Bishops

MAIN PROPOSALS DESIGNED TO MEET THE NEEDS OF ALL CHRISTIANS—PRESS COMMENT.

Canadian Press.)

LONDON, August 12—Newspapers show considerable interest towards the appeal for re-union issued by the Anglican bishops now separating after the Lambeth conference. The following are the main propositions in which it is submitted that all Christians can find common ground:

First—Scriptures as God's revelation of Himself to man;

Second—Apostles or Nicene Creed;

Third—Sacraments of Holy Communion and Baptism;

Fourth—Ministry acknowledged by every part of the Church.

The London Times considers the appeal a great advance towards reunion. It is necessary, that the bishops insist that the re-united Church must be episcopal in government, it says. "The bishops' appeal is noble, brotherly challenge to the leaders of non-episcopal churches."

LOCAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY IS INSTALLING NEW MACHINERY

NEW PLANT OF THE CANADIAN WOOLLENS WILL SOON BE IN OPERATION.

The greater portion of the French spinning machinery ordered by the Bonner-Worth Co., in 1915, has arrived, and is now being installed in the new western building of the Canadian Woollens Plant on McDonnel street. Two expert men on this class of machinery, Mr Fred Sterndale and Mr. A. Pamberton, have been engaged in installing the machinery that has arrived during the last four or five weeks for their company. Platt Bros., of Oldham, Lancashire, Eng., where the machines were made, Mr. Fred Chatterton, also of Oldham, England, was here several months ago, engaged in installing some of the machines.

Large Manufacturers.

Platt Brothers are the largest manufacturers of this machinery in the world and employ 15,000 or 20,000 men in their monster plant. A large staff of men is necessarily employed putting in this machinery, and at all times the firm has men in all parts of the world engaged in this work. Mr. Fred Sterndale has been in almost every country in Europe, installing machinery ,as well as in the United States and Canada.

The French spinning process produces a very fine yarn, infinitely finer than that made by the Bradford process at present in use at the plant. A worsted closely approaching merino or cashmere wool, it is used in underwear and hosiery, as well as in suitings. Only a very few French spinning plants are in operation in Canada, the York mills in Toronto, being one of them. There are numerous plants in the United States.

Plans Latest.

Seeing the possibilities in this industry, the former Bonner-Worth Co., decided in 1915, to install the machinery and began operations.

Their plans were broken up by the difficulties of shipping the machinery during the war. Since the war they have constructed a special building that stands as a model factory building for this special industry.

On April 20th the first shipment of machinery arrived and more has arrived since.

The lowest floor of the building contains the drawing machines that draw the yarn out finer and finer at each process. There are still six drawing machines to arrive but these are expected here soon. These machines are the largest made, containing 50 bobbins.

On the second floor the worsted mules continue the rolling and drawing out process until the yarn which is about 1/8 of an inch thick when it reaches the mules is only about 1/32 when it leaves them. The mules carry 600 spindles. There are still one pair of machines to be installed.

It is expected that the machinery will be completely installed by the middle or end of September.

The company is bringing a man out from England as foreman in preference to some of the other experts of European extraction who might be secured across the border.

By the end of September their French spinning plant will be operating. There is a great demand for this yarn in Canada. Asked if they would use the yarn for manufacturing in their own plant, Mr. J. W. Worth stated that they might later on, but at present they would find a ready market to Canadian underwear and hosiery manufacturers.

TOURISTS MAY AVOID COUNTY

RECENT HOLD-UPS MAKE POOR ADVERTISING.

This morning an Examiner reporter was raked over the coals at the police station by certain members of the force for what they called the indiscriminate publishing of reports of hold-ups in the district surrounding the city. They intimated that the majority of these reports were unsubstantiated rumors. As a matter of fact yesterday's report of the hold-up near Springville was based upon a written report which Chief of Police Thompson showed the Examiner reporter yesterday afternoon.

No doubt the series of attempted hold-ups are causing tourists to avoid Peterborough county, but as yet none of the hold-up men have been taken into custody.

Residents of Peterborough county are terrorized by the presence of suspicious characters to such an extent that when plainsclothesmen from Peterborough were investigating alleged hold-ups near Bailieboro and tried to obtain information at houses along the road, the residents locked the doors and no sign of life was to be seen.

The Examiner has been frequently asked why the county police force does not show more interest and activity in connection with recent robberies.

CONGRATULATES PETERBORO TEAM

The following congratulatory message has been received from the Belleville G. T. R. baseball team:

"Congratulations on winning the Central League Championship.

"Wish you every success in the finals."

BANDIT IS IN CUSTODY

CAPTURE OF BASSEFF DUE TO WIDE-AWAKE ENGINEER—NOT A SHOT FIRED.

(Canadian Press.)

PINCHER CREEK Alta., Aug. 12.—Basseff, bandit murderer, was run to earth near here yesterday in shack near Railway track and gave himself, without shot being fired.

His capture was due to wide awake engineer of train running between Pincher Creek and Burmis, who at ten o'clock noticed man on track revealed by searchlight. Man disappeared as engine approached and engineer immediately notified police, who located Basseff alone in dilapidated shack. Bandit was exhausted and hungry and gave himself up without trouble.

Bandit Basseff this morning is behind the bars in Alberta Provincial Headquarters here. Constable Frewin, of Alberta police, has identified him as the man who was with Akroff at the time of the gun fight at Bellevue last Saturday. At the preliminary questioning of Bassoff in Pincher Creek station he admitted he was the man they were after. He said that the third bandit, Areloff, of whom no trace has been found, is in hiding in Coleman and the police are now directing a hunt for him.

Bassoff declared that he had been travelling since last Saturday and for four days had been without food. He had been taking trails until he came near Cowley on Wednesday evening. The C.P.R. right of way at that point proved his undoing.

HIGH COST OF GETTING DRUNK HITS PETERBORO

CROWN ATTORNEY'S FEES ADDED TO THE COSTS.

Drinks of the forbidden fluid will probably go up in price in Peterborough now like everything else, for the Attorney-General of the Province in an effort to stamp out breaches of the O.T.A. has issued a circular to the Crown Attorneys of the Province requesting their presence in court hereafter when liquor cases are being tried to see at the court gives the offenders the full penalty provided by law. This will mean an increase of at least $5 in the cost of having a drink contrary to the O.T.A. as the minimum fee of the Crown Attorney for attendance at court is $5.

Offenders here in the past week have learned this to their sorrow. In fact the Attorney-General recommends a term in jail rather than a fine in the future.

ACTIVITIES AT THE Y.W.C.A.

Swimming.

The schedule for the Y.W.C.A. swimming classes is as follows:

Ladies—Tuesday, 10 a.m.; Thursday, 3 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m.

Beginners (senior school girls and business girls)—Tuesday, 7 p.m.; Wednesday, 4.30 p.m., 5.30 p.m.; Friday, 7 p.m.

Club girls—Tuesday, 8 p.m.

Advanced—Wednesday, 8 p.m.; Friday, 5 p.m.

Life-saving and practice for exhibition—Wednesday, 7 p.m.; Friday, 8 p.m.

Juniors—Thursday, 4.30 p.m.; Saturday, 9.30 a.m., 10 a.m., 10.30 a.m.

The Thursday evening class has been cancelled.

As the pool will be closed the last of August everyone should try to get in as many lessons as possible. All swimmers are requested to attend the special practice on Wednesday and Friday evenings for the big exhibition.

Camp.

The Y.W.C.A. camp is a popular place again this summer. About ninety girls have already spent a holiday there and they can tell you just how much they have enjoyed their outing and what a fine place camp is. There are twelve girls there this week, but there is still room for a few more and the campers will be glad to see you whenever you can go.

War Canoe.

On Thursday, August 19th, there is a treat in store for some girls who would like a paddle down the river in the big Y.M.C.A. war canoe. There is room for 10 girls who can paddle, so let us have your names before Wednesday. Phone the Y.W.C.A. for particulars.

The school children of Sweden, under the direction of their teachers, plant about 6,000 trees a year.

PREMIER MEIGHEN REVIEWS RECORD UNION GOVERNMENT AT POLITICAL GATHERING

PONZI SURRENDERS TO U.S. MARSHALS

Canadian Press.)

BOSTON, August 12.—Charles Ponzi to-day surrendered to the United States Marshals.

District Attorney Gallagher stated that the "Exchange Wizard" had surrendered because he felt himself unable to carry out the promises he had made for the redemption of his notes to-morrow. At the time he gave himself up, application for the arrest of the financier was being made by the police before the Judge.

Bank Commissioner Allen, in a statement to-day, declared that the capital of the Hanover Trust Company, of which Ponzi was a director, was completely wiped out.

Ponzi was arrested on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Tariff Policy

PREMIER MEIGHEN MAKES SUMMARY OF TARIFF POLICY OF HIS PARTY.

(Canadian Press.)

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 12.— Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier, in a speech yesterday concluded his discussion of the tariff with the following outline of policy:

"The financial policy of this Government is to go in debt no farther.

"The financial policy of this Government is to get revenue to carry on the work of government and to pay our debts.

"The tariff policy of this country is to keep Canadian workingmen in Canada.

"When you find workingmen's houses put up in hundreds for sale you will soon find hard times for everybody.

"The policy of the Government is to enlarge the employment market and add to the size of Canada.

"The policy of the Government is to make goods here and keep people here with plenty of work for every class of man.

"The policy of the Government is to give Canadian industries of every kind just enough advantage in the Canadian market as to make it pay them better to stay here and expand than to diminsh their plants or to leave.

"We are starting now an inquiry, the most thorough we can make, to determine what is absolutely necessary to secure these ends.

"Wherever there is a tax or schedule that is not absolutely necessary it will be wiped out.

"We intend to see that no interests, however powerful, get more than those requirements.

"We intend to see that no wreckers or theorists, however enthusiastic, imperil the well-being of this country by blindly fixing less."

ROBBERY SUSPECT ALLOWED FREEDOM

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS BRINGS RELEASE OF D. C. ELLWOOD

TORONTO, August 12.—Inspector of Detectives Guthrie received word yesterday from Miami, Florida, that D. C. Ellwood ,the man alleged to have been the ringleader of the gang of men who assaulted and robbed Abraham Rosenthal, tre King Street jeweller, has been released from custody on a writ of habeas corpus.

Inspector Guthrie is keenly disappointed at the loss of this man, by whom he had every hope of eventually landing the other two men concerned in the robbery.

The only thing that may be done now, the Inspector stated, is for the Toronto police headquarters to bring the case before the British Embassy at Washington, through the British Vice-Consul in Toronto.

However, headquarters men are sceptical of ever again capturing Ellwood, as, once freed, he would assuredly leave Miami as soon as possible.

PAY IN N.Y. FUNDS.

Coal dealers are obliged to pay for their coal in New York funds, and with the present rate of exchange it means much extra expense. On the last two cargoes brought in for Peacock & Co., Port Hope, the exchange amounted to nearly one thousand dollars.

DEFINES POLICY OF NEW GOVERNMENT IN STIRRING APPEAL TO FARMER AUDIENCE.

PROTECTION WANTED

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 12.—Beneath a great maple in protection from a gentle rain, speaking at Mr. E. Guss Porter's political picnic at Stirling, yesterday afternoon, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Premier of Canada, very significantly made his first appeal to an audience of Ontario Farmers a defense of the theory and practice of adequate protection.

His tariff talk was cunningly sandwiched in between an appeal to the patriotism of his hearers by ringing the changes in the old refrain, "We won the war," and another appeal for support on the ground that the new party with the threefold name as the only alternative to the waves of Bolshevism and Anarchy, now overrunning European countries, getting control in Canada. He did not mention in his speech the party now led by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, but he did say that only two real parties now exist in Canada, one party standing for law and order, and ruling the country according to the lessons of the past, and another a party of discontent, of dangerous Anarchistic proclivities of class as opposed to the common weal, and that man to change for the sake of novelty and innovation.

Must Have Protection.

The first party, he made evident, was the party with the threefold name, but the other party he left his audience — made up mostly of farmers and their [illegible] for themselves.

His speech, he said at the outset, was intended especially for farmers, but his practical bid for the support of farmers was in the promise that wherever the Tariff Commission beginning its travels in September finds a tax or schedule that is not absolutely necessary it will be wiped away. As, however, the trend of his whole argument was to try to prove that Canada must have adequate protection if the industries are to thrive the workingmen to say in the Dominion, and the adverse exchange situation with the United States be corrected, the hope of further reductions will not be a bright one. The Premier seemed satisfied that already the average tariff on dutiable goods was low enough, saying that it was 22.58 per cent., as against 29.98 per cent. in 1898 and 26.76 per cent. in 1910. He also claimed that since Confederation no tariff had weighed unduly on the farmers.

Government's Stewardship.

The Premier here gave a lengthy review of the government's administration since its inception in 1917, dealing with its enforcement of the Military Service Act, its after-war Reconstruction policy, the pension system and railway problems, and the government's relations with capital and labor.

The New Policy.

Mr. Meighen here, after outlining his new policy took up at length the extent of tariff duties now levied, declaring them to be the lowest in average for 40years, and lower considerably than had obtained between 1896 and 1911. He discussed in particular the duties on agricultural implements, and vigorously attacked both those who would overturn the system that had made industrial Canada what it is and the smaller faction who would join hands with the wreckers, but who knew their policy to be destructive. The tariff opposition to the present Administration he described as composed of, first, free traders, and second, fiscal humbugs. Those who would go the farthest, indeed the whole road of free trade, those who would go the farthest regardless of consequence would be in absolute control if by any chance the present Governmen were defeaed. Mr. Meighen further discussed the tariff from a revenue standpoint,and referred to the limitation of other methods of revenue. These other methods this Government had been the first to apply, and had applied vigorously and to every sane limit.

Feeling of Unrest.

"I have dwelt strongly and at some length on the wisdom of reasonable duties on imports as a factor in the industrial development of Canada, but there is something else which just now is even more important to consider. I refer to the feeling if unrest prevalent in this country, as in other countries in a greater degree; the tendency to find fault with every Government, to instil prejudice, to tear down existing institutions, to un-

FOUND LOST TROPHY CUPS.

(Canadian Press)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 12.—Silver trophy cups of the Shanghai Rowing Club held by German rowing crews when the war broke out and which disappeared at the time of the German exodus from Shanghai, were brought to light unexpectedly at a recent dinner of the club. They were awarded to the Scottish and Danish crews, winners of the spring regatta. It was disclosed that when the affairs of the German bank in Shanghai were taken over by the bank of China the lost cups were found in a vault.

"HOOCH SQUEALER" WILL GO TO JAIL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Fred Roseman went last week to Myer Lincker, Assistant District Attorney, and said he had bought a half pint of whiskey in the saloon of Fred and Richard Prill and paid $4.50 for it.

After Commissioner Mason had held the Prills for the Grand Jury on bonds of $2,000 each on charges of selling liquor illicitly the District Attorney's office asked Roseman's arrest on a charge of having "purchased liquor without a permit in violation of the prohibition law."

"The Government," said Mr. Lincker, "doesn't have to depend upon a Judas to convict a violator of the law. No American jury would hesitate to give such an informer the limit of the law he has technically violated. And believe me, Roseman is going to get the limit if I have to go before the Grand Jury for an indictment."

CAN'T COLLECT DAMAGES AWARDED IN IRELAND

TAXPAYERS WILL NOT CONTRIBUTE TO VICTIMS OF SINN FEIN OUTRAGES.

(Canadian Press)

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—The sums awarded by the courts to the victims of "malicious injuries" in Ireland now aggregate nearly $5,000,000. They are payable out of local taxes and it is the duty of the new local Sinn Fein councils to levy and collect the money. This they refuse to do and, so far, the relatives of the murdered policemen and others, as well as the owners of destroyed property, are unable to obtain payment. Even if the Sinn Fein councils were willing to assist the claimaints, however, the sum is so great that it is said it would prove "intolerable to the overburdened taxpayers."

Unionists Object.

The largest taxpayers are Unionists who do not relish the prospect of having to pay for the outrages of men with whom they have not the smallest sympathy. There has, therefore, been started an agitation for relieving citizens of the burden of these charges. The argument is that these outrages were undoubted acts of war. They were of the same class and motived by the same purpose as the rebellion of Easter week. Some of the judges who made the awards have endorsed this view from the bench.

Restoring Mined Streets.

The British Government paid out of the Imperial Exchequer for the damage done in Easter week. They appropriated $15,000,000 out of which the mined portions of the city of Dublin are being rebuilt. They are now being asked by resolutions of the Grand Juries of Irish counties, which consist almost entirely of Unionists, to follow the Easter week precedent and to pay out imperial funds for the damage now frequently being done to life and property.

The Government has been quite willing to pay for the damage done by the soldiers and police in the cases of retaliation that have occurred in Thurles and Fermoy, but they are unwilling, it is reported, to pay for the damage done by their opponents. Meanwhile, the victims are left without compensation.

Obituary.

Breault.—In Peterborough, on Thursday, 29th July, the death occurred of Lillian Brennan, wife of the late Archie Breault, in her fifty-first year. After the death of her husband, six weeks ago, Mrs. Breault, who was in a very nervous condition, went to the hospital in Peterborough for a complete rest. A few days before she passed away, she was taken to the home of Mr. Jack McNeely in Peterborough, where Miss Marguerite McNeely and Miss Josephine McNichol took charge of her, but in spite of all that could be done, human help was unavailing. Deceased leaves to mourn her loss her mother, Mrs. D. Brennan, two sisters, Miss Maud and Mrs. Urquette, and three brothers, Oscar, Charlie, and Dr. Fred Brennan, all of whom live in Brooklyn, N.Y., except the doctor, whose home is in Africa. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon to the R. C. Cemetery, requiem mass being conducted on Monday morning in St. Paul's Church by Rev. Father McCarthy.

Carter—On Tuesday death claimed one of our oldest residents, in the person of James Julian Carter, in his eighty-seventh year. Deceased had lived in Norwood and vicinity for many years, and was a most highly respected citizen. In religion he was a staunch Methodist, and was deeply interested in the work of the church. For several years he had been confined to his home, having been afflicted with blindness. He leaves a widow, one son, Silas, and four daughters, Mrs. Ben Howson, Mrs. Leeper, Mrs. Cameron and Miss Mima. The funeral took place on Thursday to Fife's Cemetery, Otonabee.

Gibson—On Saturday, August 7, in St. John's Hospital, Toronto, the death occurred of Mary Ann Keeler, wife of the late Rev. John Gibson, and only daughter of the late P. M. Grover, of Norwood, aged sixty-seven. The funeral took place on Tuesday to Georgina, Ont., from her late residence, 6 Lonsdale Road, Toronto, service being held in Christie Church, Deer Park.

Baptie—The funeral of the late Mrs. Alice Baptie, widow of the late James Baptie, who died on Monday at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. John Rorabeck, will take place on Wednesday afternoon, August 11th, to the Norwood Cemetery. Deceased was in her seventy-ninth year and leaves to mourn her loss, four daughters, Mrs. J. Rorabeck, Mrs. W. Robson, Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Stephens, and two sons.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Norman Patterson, of Rochester, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Patterson, at their Stoney Lake cottage.

Miss Helen Tumelty, of Madoc, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Weir.

Mrs. Urquette, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was here last week to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. A. Breault.

Mr. Geo. Dawe, of Roseneath, was in town on Thursday.

Miss Breen, of Tweed, has been visiting Miss Josephine McNichol.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of To-day.)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

PLANS TO DOMESTICATE THE REINDEER IN LABRADOR.

CAPT. LIVING WILL SPEND YEARS OUTSIDE CIVILISED WORLD.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, August 11.—Captain A. H. Living, of the Dominion Parks Branch, has been appointed to go to Labrador with the object of taking charge of the plans to domesticate and increase the reindeer herds there.

At present, there are about 150 head of reindeer in this locality, and it is the ultimate intention of the Department to supply the missionaries and the people of the Hudson Bay Territory with both food and a transportation system.

In order to acomplish this, Captain Living will have to spend the next four years travelling in various parts of the territory, and for the larger portion of that time he will be out of touch with the civilised world.

This project has been under consideration for several years, but was held up on account of the war.

Captain Living has had many years' experience in Northern Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, and British Columbia.

MOHAMMENDANS ASSEMBLE.

Moros Will Make Pilgrimage to Mecca Masque.

(Canadian Press)

MANILA, P.I., Aug. 12.—Scores of Mohammedan Moros are reported assembling at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, to make the pilgrimage to the great Mosque at Mecca. Many have saved for years to make the trip, which according to Mohammedan faith, every believer should undertake at some time during his life. Government officials at Zamboanga say many who have made the pilgrimage in years past have returned broken in health and stripped of their belongings. Often they have been brought home at Government expense.

FEED NERVES PLENTY OF PHOSPHATE IN SUMMER

Keen Minded Men, Energetic and Successful Rely on It Asserts Prominent N.Y. Physician.

Bitro-Phosphate a Godsend.

Men and women, nervous and fretful, easily upset and often fatigued, need plenty of organic phosphate, and the sooner they heed this advice the better their health will be.

In every one of the millions of cells that make up your body, phosphorus is a most important part.

Your nervous system, your brain, your blood and even your bones must have a sufficient supply of phosphorus or weariness, nervousness and a general run-down condition, as well as back of normal mental power is sure to result.

Big men of affairs—mighty men who control industries because of sheer will power and nervous force, know this, or, if they don't are clever enough to have a physician who does.

Physicians more and more are realizing that Bitro-Phosphate, as dispensed at drug stores, is a necessity to over forty per cent. of men and women, because present day foods do not contain enough phosphate to give the body and especially the nervous system the -ly it needs.

Speaking on this very subject, Dr. Frederick S. Kolle, Editor-in-Chief of Physicians' "Who's Who," and a nationally known author of medical text books, in a most emphatic statement said:

"If I had my way, Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital."

Later, Dr. Kolle said: "When the nerve tissue begins to lose its vitality, woman begins to lose her youth and vivaciousness. Her lively, pleasant disposition fades away—she becomes irritable, uncompanionable, moody and despondent. It would indeed be a god-send if more men and women were aware of the efficacy of Bitro-Phosphate."

Hot weather is dreaded by men and women who are weak, thin, nervous, timid and lacking in vigorous development because it saps their vitality almost to the breaking point.

To all such people Bitro-Phosphate is recommended because it is the one organic phosphate which, when absorbed by the system, will supply the element necessary for a vigorous, healthy body free from any suggestion of weakness or disordered nerves.

Your druggist has Bitro-Phosphate in the original package with complete instructions for best results.

A Statement

Owing to a shortage of materials and the exceptionally large demand from all parts of the world for STUDEBAKER Cars, we have been unable during the past few months to get Cars for our Peterboro district. Hence the fact that so many motorists in this vicinity have had to content themselves pro tem with some other make of car.

We have been negotiating with the Studebaker Corporation at Walkerville, where this car is made, and have been successful in our efforts to come to an arrangement with our company whereby we are to be protected on a limited number of cars.

It is probably news to some that the Studebaker Corporation manufacture all styles of bodies, including Coupes, Sedans, Roadsters, etc., all of which we have on order for Fall delivery.

At present we have three SPECIAL SIX and one BIG SIX TOURING on our floor and we hope to have a Roadster for display the latter part of the week.

See these cars and make arrangements for a demonstration at once. Book orders early and we will then be able to make certain of Fall deliveries.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12TH, 1920.

CANADA'S NAVY.

One welcomes the thought that the five war vessels presented to Canada by Britain are expected to reach Halifax in September, and that in their type they are modern vessels, especially the cruiser "Aurora," which is an oil burner. While the Mother Country feels no sacrifice in handing these vessels over to Canada out of Britain's superabundance of her fighting machines accumulated in the late war, still the gift is doubly appreciated in that it both recognizes Canada's services in the world-struggle for Empire preservation, and offers this Dominion the nucleus of a fleet of her own capable of filling no small part in this nation's defence, and that of the Empire of which Canada is a valued member. It now remains for this country to formulate a permanent naval policy which will eventually provide for the protection of Canada's Atlantic and Pacific sea boards. For generations the Mother Country has assumed this duty, and surely it is not too much to expect that with this Dominion's growth and increasing prosperity she will relieve the Motherland of that burden. Empire unity, of which we hear so much these days, includes Empire defence, to which each branch should contribute by maintaining a navy capable of at least showing preparedness to take a formidable share in naval operations should the occasion arise. This British Empire of ours, on which the sun never sets, is so scattered over the world that maintenance of the sea's freedom is a vital necessity. More and more, year by year, does the freedom of the seas grow in importanec to Canada herself, with her now developing merchant marine and growing trade connections abroad. And until the lion and the lamb can sleep peacefully side by side, if ever, this freedom will have to be guaranteed by a show of naval strength.

THAT ANGLO-AMERICAN TREATY.

In the Revue des Deux Mondes, a French magazine, we find General Mangin, a distinguished military authority, in the latest instalment of his book, "How the War Ended," giving his opinion of the Anglo-American alliance with France as follows:

"The guarantee of military alliance with England and the United States in case of unjustified agression by Germany, has vanished. Mr. Wilson of the Democratic party, re-elected by a very weak majority, had braved the traditional sentiments of the American Senate by leaving the soil of the United States and negotiating with European Powers, without the concurrence of the Senate, a treaty which the Senate has refused to ratify, while it has not even discussed the defensive alliance with France.

"This is a question of domestic politics and no one in France has attributed the refusal to any cooling of the deep friendship which continues to unite the two countries. But this conflict between the President and the American Senate might have been foreseen, and even while accepting President Wilson's offer it should have been known that he was promising more than he could fulfil, and demand should have been made on England that her offer of intervention, in case of aggression by Germany, be not contingent on the attitude of America."

The Sun and New York Herald finds reason to gloat over this situation, while other American papers equally as influential, take a totally different view in declaring that the American people should have stood behind President Wilson and his pledges to their European Allies. Besides, not a few thinking Americans, in reflecting on the past history of their country, call to mind the time when France gave support to Young America in her struggle for independence, and conclude that the French might well look to that same America now in perhaps the zenith of her power, as an ally should she be again attacked by Germany.

But the Sun and New York Herald ventures to say that when in years to come the history of that Paris conference is written the historian will be at a loss to decide which was the more marvellous—the blind pride and opinion and obstinacy of President Wilson in entering into engagements which he had no authority to enter into, and which he had been told in so many words he would not be permitted to fulfil, or the dumb, unhesitating complacency with which the keenest and most enlightened European statesmen accepted those engagements in the face of show poster warnings that the negotiator of them was without authority and that his contracts would surely be repudiated.

However, President Wilson might not have been so blind in opinion as some authorities would have us infer, and we find in the United States' latest note to Italy regarding Bolshevik Russia ,that the former government would regard with satisfaction and support action by the Allies and associate Powers to preserve the integrity of Poland and confine the boundaries of Russia as outlined in the Peace Treaty of Versailles.

The same principle of defence against unjustifiable attack applies to the situation in Poland as in the proposed Anglo-American alliance. And although a presidential election was probably responsible for inflicting on President Wilson a humiliating repudiation of his word to France and Britain, still until this latest note of the United States Government is challenged by the American people, we shall believe that deep down in their hearts they are behind the sentiment in that agreement subscribed to by their President.

BORROW FROM BRITAIN.

The United States holds Canadian securities to the total of $524,000,000. What with being the second largest importers in the world of American products and this huge securities debt Canada is a pretty valuable customer to the United States. It now behooves us to increase our own production and population to help us carry and redeem this debt and to reduce the amount of our imports. One of Canada's great objectives should be to export more and import less. British capitalists are now looking toward this country for investment in our undeveloped resources, which development would eventually more equalize our export and import transactions. Then it is preferable to borrow in our own family when possible, and the rapid improvement in Britain's financial position now in evidence lends itself to the British advancing loans to this country for municipal and other requirements. Financial dealings with the Mother Country should be sought and encouraged to the limit when borrowing is necessary.

ASSESSMENT AND TAX RATE.

Of late we find bobbing up a municipality here and there rejoicing that its tax rate has not been increased this year. That this is so is not always cause for congratulation, for an enquiring mind may find that while that municipality's number of mills on the dollar is below that of sister communities its assessment on property may be proportionately higher. There are instances where the basis on which property is assessed minimizes the tax rate. Then these days of increasing costs it may be exceedingly difficult, not to say impossible, even under the best of civic administration, to escape increased provision to meet municipal requirements, and at the same time keep apace with that spirit of community progress prevailing in most ambitious cities and towns, unless indeed considerable debenture debt happens to have been wiped off the slate of corporation expenditure.

FINE ARTS IN RELIGION.

Boston University has established a department of Fine Arts in Religion for the purpose of having the Church "again become the mother of artists and the generous patron of their works," and to this end has engaged for the department a faculty of artists who are to teach music, art, and pageantry "as instruments in spiritualising individual, community, and national life." The courses of this new department are grouped under four headings: Music in the Services of the Church and Community, Poetry and Ritual in the Services of the Church and Community, Art in the Services of the Church and Community, and Pageantry and Visualisation in the Services of the Church and Community.

Although it is not so stated it is to be assumed that under the head of art architecture, mural painting, wood carving, sculpture, and the textile arts would be included, for all these forms long have been the artistic handmaidens of the church and sedulously cultivated by it. In common with music these various arts have had their good and bad periods in church history, but they never have been wholly neglected, and are in a very flourishing state in America.

Pageantry was born in the church in a sense. To what extent it has been revived among various religious denominations is shown in a survey of this field for the past year issued in connection with the announcement of this new department of study. Over two hundred demonstrations of life plays and pageants were given at the Methodist centenary celebration at Columbus, culminating in "The Wayfarer," given eventually in Madison Square Garden. At the General Methodist Conference at Des Moines nearly a score of different plays and pageants depicting the work of the various boards were presented. The Episcopal Church has conducted a country-wide campaign in the interest of pageantry and the drama. The Northern Baptist convention at Buffalo gave several musical educational plays ,and the Salvation Army presented the first drama ever given under its auspices, "The Chosen King." The American Bible Society has engaged Percy Mackaye to prepare a pageant on the general theme of the Bible in national life for use in all the Protestant churches on Bible Sunday, 28th November next. Religious plays and pageants may be said to be a fixture in the Catholic Church.

This partial summary indicates the growth of the use of plays and pageants as a part of the religious life of America, and shows that there is a real need for such a course as Boston University has established. Admirable as many of these plays and pageants have been in spirit, an amateurish note has been often evident in their text and construction. The obvious purpose of such a course as above mentioned will be to make such plays and pageants of sounder, more coherent technique, whereby they will gain in interest and power of influence.—Sun and New York Herald.

A TYRANNICAL ORDER.

The right to form trade unions is recognized by law and has gradually been accepted by capitalists, but occasionally it is endangered by an excess of zeal. An English Undertakers' Association, which if not a trade union may be regarded as a combine in restraint of trade, showed recently a strange disregard for the public.

Rev. G. Montague Hall, rector of Bushey, wrote to The West Herts and Waterford Observer that Miss Somers, one of the Guardians of the Poor, noticing eighteen years ago the great expense to which the poorer members of the parish were put by the use of costly horse hearses and carriages, presented a wheel-bier which has been employed since that time. But he adds:

"A few days ago I received from the Secretary of the local centre of the Undertakers' Association a letter, in which (speaking for the members of his Association) he said: . . . 'It is undesirable for wheel-biers to be used for funerals and removals, and I am directed to notify you that our members will decline to use a bier outside any church, churchyard, or cemetery after June 30.'"

This order forces the public to employ expensive hearses with thoroughbred black horses, and even the Guardians of the Poor are not allowed to use their own bier:

"For, as you reported three weeks ago, a request has been made by the undertaker, who 'carries out' the Poor Law funerals by contract, for an increase of the contracted price, in view of the fact that no wheel-bier may be used any longer."—Toronto Globe.

THE SIXTH SENSE.

(Louella C. Poole, in "Our Dumb Animals.")

I was a stranger in the house;
The big dog lay before the door,
And eyed me furtively the while
He crouched there quiet on the floor.

He was so silent, grim as death;
No overture of friendship made
Till "I love dogs," he heard me say;
"Dick's a good dog—I'm not afraid.

"His heart is true, though fierce his looks."
Thus to his mistress, in his praise
I spoke, he listening all the while,
And fixing on me his clear gaze.

I know he must have understood;
He rose and came and licked my hand,
Raising his soft brown eyes to mine
As though to say, "I understand."

Ah, call it instinct, if you will;
They have some power that man knows not,
Some psychic sixth sense that divines
Aright the heart's deep inmost thought.

SUMMARY OF CROP REPORTS

LARGE CROP IS BEING HARVESTED IN ONTARIO.

The following is a summary of the weekly reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Flies have been very annoying to cattle during the week, yet the milk flow has been keeping up remarkably well. Creameries have been about as active as usual, but the week has been a dull one for the cheese industry. Glengarry states that some of the local cheese boards refused to sell, as the best price offered for white was 24c a lb., but that some co-operative sold at 24 7-8c for white and 25 15-16c for colored. Grenville and Peterborough each report sales on local boards at 25 1-4c and Dundas declares that some sales have run as low as 23c a lb.

A Frontenac condensory is paying $2.75 a lb. for milk testing 3.2 P.C. butter fat, with an additional 5c a cwt. for each point above, and a deduction of 5c a cwt. for each point below the standard.

Dufferin reports that a local co-operative company shipped three carloads of live stock during the week.

The Morrisburg branch of the U. F. O. Co-operative Association began shipping during the week. They had a mixed carload, chiefly hogs. Select hogs brought 21c a lb., stags and sows 18c, good average cattle 10c and bulls and common stuff 9c.

Essex claims a decrease in the number of swine on hand, but Halton observes that some farmers who went out of hog raising, are preparing to get back into the business as soon as possible. Prices for bacon hogs, taking the Province over, range from $19 to $21 a cwt. There are complaints that too many unfinished animals are being marketed.

The Dundas representative reports that honey will be much lighter in yield than last year, as about half the colonies of black bees have died from foul brood.

The harvesting of spring grains is now general, but some farmers have not yet finished having. Both barley and oats are showing up well, both as to yield and quality of the grain. Spring wheat is not so satisfactory as the other cereals, although some good fields are spoken of. Bruce reports injury to the head of this grain by the Greater Wheat Maggot.

Fall wheat is showing a good sample for weight in the threshing, but the yield per acre is very variable, ranging from 10 to 40 bushels per acre, and the general impression is that it will not be up to recent averages. Ten cars of wheat were shipped from Essex last week at $2.50 a bushel.

Norfolk reports that Astrachan and other early apples are being marketed.

Wentworth reports that its potato crop will be the heaviest in many years.

Essex claims that the past week has given ideal weather for tobacco and corn. The former will be a good crop on light soils, but rather unsatisfactory on heavy land, while corn now promises to be a heavy crop in that country. The same representative also states that early tomatoes are now practically harvested, and that the canning factories are starting to take the surplus.

Victoria reports alsike seed as yielding around five and six bushels per acre.

Opinions vary greatly as to the extent of the acreage of the next winter wheat crop. There has been a cooling of the enthusiasm of growers, owing to the depredation this season of the Hessian fly, while others hold that there will be a generous acreage sown. In any event there is likely to be a good deal of fall plowing done. The Fort William representative claims that the acreage already fall plowed, is 150 p.c. of the normal. York states that some are plowing shallow and will plow again.

There is a strong demand for farm labor, but suitable help is still hard to find.

TAKING CHANCES IN TRICK RIDING STUNT

ONE OF THE MANY THRILLS AT POLACK'S SHOWS.

"Chances? Of course we take chances racing upon the walls of the drome, more so than the cyclists who participate in the dirt or track races, but such trifling matters never worry me," said Miss Alda Hager, the mile-a-minute girl at the Fair Grounds, in answer to a query advanced by an Examiner representative.

"While our exhibition is at all times dangerous, we go about our work in the same manner as a blacksmith, carpenter, miner, or grocer would labour in their particular line of work. 'Safety First' is the rule within the walls of the drome. We make sure that our motor cycles are in first-class shape, never forgetting to carefully inspect the tires, as a blow-out may cause injury or instant death. When two or three riders take to the wall and dash around the track, we then play the scientific part of the game, as each and every rider knows exactly what distance they should be apart from each other, and what to do in case of an accident.

"It was only last week at North Bay that my brother and I were staging a race, when the rear wheel of his machine collapsed, and he was hurled with terrific force to the floor. I was riding directly beneath him when the accident occurred, but managed to free myself from the falling machine. Brother was somewhat scratched and bruised, but that's all in the game."

Miss Hager, with her brother, furnishes thrills in abundance when they offer a series of trick and fancy riding exhibitons upon a mammoth perpendicular wall. Mr. Hager is one of the best well-known riders in the country, and when the race tracks at Sheep's Bay, Point Breeze, and Toronto were flourishing speed factories, O. K. Hager was hitting it up in the big saucers, registering all kinds of speed records.

Of course, you know a lot of bores but you would no doubt be surprised to learn that there are people who consider you in the same class.

VIRTUOUS WIVES

By OWEN JOHNSON

A girl in white flannels, swinging on the sill of the open window, half in the room and half out, was listening by fits and starts, snickering with a young fellow who, from the veranda was trying to upset her gravity.

"At Washington, the terms of the new Federal Reserve Bank law have been generally discussed," said the voice of the lecturer, "but I won't trouble you with such dry details."

"Excuse me," said a large, square woman, militantly, "but that's just I what I do want to know."

"Yes; please do tell us," said a piping voice up front. "I can't make head or tail out of it."

"The Federal Reserve Bank law can best be explained in this way—" began the lecturer.

"Absurd to waste time on such subjects," said Kitty wearily. She turned to Irma. "Has she said anything about that Newport scandal yet? My dear, he wasn't a count after all!"

"Be quiet, Kitty," said Mrs. Dellabarre, with a frown, as there came a sudden impatient craning of heads in her direction for the disturbance.

Mrs. Lightbody's china eyes momentarily fixed themselves in a solemn contraction. At this moment, Jap Laracy wandering in, in search of amusement, installed himself behind Amy.

"Fine day for the trip. Monte's coming up to the dock now."

Amy glanced at her wrist impatiently—there were still ten minues to be spent instructively.

"In England, the tension between the Irish Nationalist and Ulster has become exceedingly acute—"

"Jap, dear, who is our vice-president?" said Mrs. Lightbody, relaxing "I tried to remember, but—do you know? — I couldn't to save my life."

"William Jennings Bryan," said Laracy solemnly.

"Of course." She looked at him a moment suspiciously and then appealed to Amy.

"Abroad a rather important bit of news is announced in the morning's papers," continued the monotonous tones on the quiet June morning. "At Sarajevo the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria is rumored to have been assassinated."

There was a stir of surprise. A woman's voice was heard exclaiming.

"I read the papers, but I didn't notice that!"

"Now, that is exciting," said Kitty Lightbody, sitting up. She frowned on the incorrigible Jap, and said, with an admontory shake of her head. "Behave, Jap; we must concentrate!"

But Laracy was not so easly subdued. A salad of pink and green trimmings on a platter of a hat in front of him had caught his eye.

"It excites all the little birdies on the bonnets," he said, in a whisper. "Look—look, how they're trying to reach it!"

Mrs. Lightbody forgot the triviality of another assassinated Archduke and began to giggle at this banality. Thus encouraged, Laracy passed the audience in review, according to his own peculiar style of wit. Amy glanced again at her watch. A year ago, she would have shared Kitty's amusement. To-day, she scarcely gave ear. The antics of the household pets had no longer their first charm. She had passed beyond playing with children into the more dangerous need of stronger emotions. Dawson, Pardee, and Laracy and their kind were still useful, but only to fill in. At length, with a sigh of relief, she sprang up. The lecture was over.

"Goodness, what awful names they select! Sara—Sara—I shall never get ti," said Kitty Lightbody. She turned to Amy, who was chatting to a group. "Amy dear, what news of friend husband?"

"Down in Mexico, of course," said Mrs. Forrester, lightly. She turned on the brilliant red parasol, which she held from her to give length to her arm and free the line of her graceful body, and, knowing that the pose was becoming, she held it a little longer while exclaiming to the group of women whose eyes devoured greedily the Gainsborough hat and the flowing line of her new gray taffeta dress, "Oh, I'm getting used to the role of a neglected wife. We all come to it, don't we?"

But suddenly remembering her engagement, she freed herself from the group and linked arms with Mrs. Dellabarre.

"Irma, really, can't you arrange to come?" she said, in final entreaty.

"I would if I could, my dear," said Irma, shaking her head. "It's quite impossible for me to leave the house to-day. I must be there when the doctor comes to see Doris."

"It'll be gorgeous running back in the moonlight."

"I know—don't make it harder."

"But that leaves us with an extra man," said Amy frowning.

"Don't worry; Kitty'll take care of two," said Irma with a smile. Aloud, she said: "It's not a twos-ing party at all. We keep together!" She urned to Mrs. Lighbody. "Well, if we're going to make New York for lunch, we must be off. All the same," she thought, as they passed into the glare of the sun and made their way down the dock, "it's going to be a bore having an extra man. The extra man, of course was Tody Dawson."

'I don't believe Doris is ill at all,' said Kitty, linking arms with her.

"Nor I."

"She's done it on purpose," said Mrs. Lightbody, with a convinced nod "Unless—unless it's a question of Rudy. He's been in a dreadful state lately, have you noticed?"

"I've a mind to leave Tody behind," said Amy pensively.

"Oh, my dear, it would break the poor boy's heart!" said Kitty instantly. "His nose is out of joint as it is."

"He's going to be dreadfully in the way. You will have to look after him.'

"Don't worry, my dear; i know my role!" said Kitty, laughing.

At this moment, Dawson, as though divining her thoughts, came up.

"I say, Amy, if Irma's backed out, I'll walk the plank if you say the word."

The look of entreaty in his eyes, the perfect docility of his attitude moved her to compassion.

"Poor boy, he's still dreadfully in love with me," she thought and aloud she added, "No, indeed, Tody; would-not leave you out for the world."

At the smile with which she favored him, his face lighted up. A moment before the sky was tumbling down Now, just to be nearer, to watch her covertly from a distance, to hear the sound of her voice and fill his eyes with her loveliness, changed the face of the world.

"By George, you are a trump, you are!" he said incoherently, and he went hastily up the dock. He adored her as a pagan worships, with his head to the soil. No woman could be so angelic, no woman!

Monte Bracken, in white flannels, was at the gangway of the speedy little motor-yacht that had its red-and-white awnings ont. The next moment, they were lounging in lazy, cushioned chairs, the spray curling whitely at their sides, rushing across the mackerel waters to New York.

II

Amy Forrester, like most women of her bringing up, had dramatic moments of good impulses which surprised even herself, but these once over, the old habits of irresponsibility and self-indulgence resumed their sway. Old habits led her to satisfy her desires without further tax on her conscience than the need of deceiving herself as to her motive. She wished to see Monte Bracken, so she easily persuaded herself that the new inimacy which developed was in reality working for his happiness and the intersets of Fifi Nordstrum. But, a week before, that independent young lady clarified the situation by announcing her engagement to a Western engineer without a cent or a social connection, sublimely confident in his own star—a conviction which Fifi cheerfully shared. After her surprise had subsided, Amy was well-enough pleased with this denouement. She had performed her whole duty, and she was now absolved. Monte Bracken in future would be on the basis of any other attractive man of the world, forewarned of the terms and limitations of the intimacy permitted.

A certain stiffness settled on the party, respite the determined efforts of Kitty Lightbody and the usual minsrel patter of Jap Laracy and Tody Dawson. It had neither the intimacy of a tete-a-tete nor the opportunities of a crowd. Bracken was in bad humor; the conversation plainly bored him and, having no intention of descending to its level, he retired behind his cigar. Amy shared his impatience. It was not thus that she had looked forward to this excursion. Tody Dawson, knowing himself in a false position, floundered on heavily, seeking to conciliate Amy by being amusing without perceivng how much he bored her. At such moments the gentlest of women are capable of a refinement of cruelty.

'Really, Tody," she said, with a shrug of her shoulders. "if you are going to be amusing, you must learn some new tricks. Those jokes are very old. I know them by heart."

Tody Dawson's face went blank under the reproof.

"It's too far to swim," he said, glancing at the distant shore with an attempt to cover up his misery. He turned up his collar and said, with a submissive bow: "I'm crushed. Put me in a corner and punish me."

He went up forward in gloomy dignity where, in a moment, Kitty Lightbody, after an exchange of glances with Amy, went to console him with Jap Laracy.

"Now, I suppose I'v hurt his feelings,' said Amy, "but really those boys do get on my nerves sometimes."

Bracken's good humor returned instantly.

"No great harm's done. They'll amuse themselves." He drew up his chair by hers. "I can't abide the type Haven't you progressed beyond them?"

"It's rather hard to drop them all at once," she said pensively, "and they are so convenient."

He looked at her, his amusement returning as his ill-humor cleared.

"Yes; of course they are convenient," he agreed. "I suppose they fill a place in the livse of you women that real men could not. We ought to be grateful for that."

"Are you in a very bad humor, Monte?" she said, glancing up at him. In the last month they had progressed to the intimacy of their first names.

"Not names. Can't we manage to lose them in town somehow?" he said suddenly. "The ride home oughtn't ot be spoiled."

She shook her head slowly.

"A sailor and a butler are chaperons enough surely!"

"No; I can't do that," she answered firmly. She had often, in self- defense, fallen back on her intention to remain a virtuous wife. The phrase flashed into her mind, but she decided not to employ it on Monte. Instead, she added decidedly, " Iwon't be talked about."

"You're a strange person," he said impatiently.

"I'm like that," she said quietly. "You know my ideas."

"At the bottom," he said rebelliously, "I believe one man is just the same to you as another. Despite all you say about the Tody Dawsons in this world—"

"Well?" she said, as he stopped.

"Total docility and innocuousness are quite sufficient."

She laughed.

"I give you permission to abuse me."

Monte Bracken had returned into her life at a critical moment. It was not that she was tired of society, but that she was momentarily tired by it. The dramatic thrill of her personal triumph at the Versailles fete had been the climax of her season. After those dazzling hours, everything else seemed tame in comparison. She had felt let down. A new mental progression had come—that moment which arrives to every brilliant woman. In the whole world, nothing, for the moment, interested her so much as herself. She wanted to annex Monte Bracken, because she felt the need of some superior mind, capable of understanding her, of explaining her, and of admiring her completely, even to the smallest trifles which escaped the ordinary eye. Whether Bracken flattered her or humorously dissected her, her interest was always the same—as long as the subject discussed was herself. Perhaps if anything she liked him in his savage moods, for then, underneath his sarcasm, she divined how completely she had established her empire over his imagination.

COLORED WOMAN CLAIMS HER AGE IS 115 YEARS

(Canadian Press)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 12.—Anne Prajer, colored, officially recorded by the census-takers here as 115 years old, has just received a visit from E. M. McCown, of Darlington, S.C., grandson of "Marse George" McCown, whose "mammy" she was in the days of slavery.

The woman said "when the stars fell," which was in 1833, "Marse George" told her to remember she was 29 years old.

"I count from then," she said, "Marse George promised me my freedom on my next birthday, but he was drowned before it came."

TROUBLED WITH ITCHY ECZEMA

In Rash On Face And Limbs. Cuticura Heals.

"I had been troubled with eczema on my face which took the form of a rash. Later it broke out on my limbs and they itched very much, causing me to scratch them until they were bleeding. The rash would often keep me awake at night.

"I tried some remedies, which failed, and then thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It was not long till the rash began to disappear, and I used three cakes of Soap and four boxes of Ointment, which healed me." (Signed) W. M. Hymers, Paris, Ont., Sept. 12, 1919.

Where is the Money to Come From?

YOU cannot hire a servant for ten dollars a month if the servant knows that everyone pays TWENTY!

The Bell Telephone Company cannot hire new capital for new telephone plant and equipment by offering FOUR cents per dollar per year—when even Government bonds are yielding 6%! Trust mortgages 7%! And good industrial stocks 8% and higher!

Yet that is what we are being asked to do on the present scale of telephone rates!

Where then is the company to raise such sums as the $10,000,000 new capital required for this year's extension alone?

The company's stock and bonds are all invested in the plant (not a cent of this was "water" or "bonus" or "promotion" stock).

The Company's surplus and reserve is similarly re-invested.

NEW capital can be obtained only by "hiring" it in the open money market! Yet how can we offer a high enough wage—interest and dividends are merely the "wages" of invested savings—to attract investors when our revenues to-day are not enough to earn 4 per cent. interest on our $55,000,000 telephone property after meeting day-to-day expenses?

The only solution of the company's problem is adequate telephone rates! These will enable the company to earn sufficient revenue to pay a "fair wage" to Capital and a fair wage to its employees.

QUEEN MARY PLAYGROUND WON OUT IN THE FINAL CONTEST

CENTRAL SCHOOL RAN A CLOSE SECOND—RESULTS OF THE RACES.

Having kept the lead from the beginning of the race for the inter-playground pennant, the boys and girls of Queen Mary playground yesterday cinched the victory at the Ceneral school grounds by defeating the Centrals in the last field day contests of the season. Queen Mary nosed out 41 points for the afternoon, whereas Central obtained 39. At Queen Alexandra grounds Queen Alexandra took 41 points to King Edward's 39 points. The events all proved very exciting.

Central was running a close second all through the season, being only 4 1-2 points behind Queen Mary up to yesterday. The total scoring at the finish of the big race stands as follows: Queen Mary 254, Central 247 1-2, King Edward 230 1-2, Queen Alexandra 216.

The results of the races at Central were very much in doubt until the last gun had been fired. The Queen Mary boys started the field day by winning their baseball game to the score of 7-6. Central boys retaliated by winning the team broad jump by a total margin of 15 1-2 inches. Queen Mary won the horse-and-rider race by a very small advantage, and Central came back again to triumph in the three-legged race. The girls of Central won their baseball gae and tied Queen Mary girls for honors in the relay, the senior half going to the latter and the intermediate half to the former. The girls of Queen Mary won their senior and intermediate flag-snatch race and also their obstacle race.

King Edwards vied closely with Queen Alexandra for field day honors at the latter's playgrounds. The boys of Queen Alexandra won their baseball game and broad jump, but the boys of King Edward triumphed in the three-legged race and horse-and-rider race. The girls of King Edward won their baseball game but lost to Queen Alexandra in their obstacle and relay races. The girls' flag-snatch was a tie.

Next Wednesday afternoon all four playgrounds will send representatives to compete for honors in the annual playground swimming meet at Lake street bathing beach. Further notice as to events and rules for the meet will be given in this space early next week.

On the following Wednesday, August 25th, the boys and girls of all the grounds will gather at Queen Mary playground to help her celebrate the victory and to witness the award of the big thirteen-foot, purple and white pennant. Other prizes and honors will be distributed at that gathering. Mr. Draper and Miss Chapman, the directors at Queen Mary, are arranging the entertainment.

Mr. Copp and Miss Price, the directors at King Edward, Mr. McMacken and Miss Cook, directors at Central, and Miss Nelson in charge at Queen Alexandra are all planning to make the celebration memorable.

CEMETERY IN GENOA FINEST IN THE WORLD

MARVELS OF MARBLE MOULDED BY ARTISTS ASTOUND BY LIFELIKE EXPRESSION.

The most beautiful cemetery in existence is said to be the Staglieno Cemetery in Genoa, Italy, where the marvels of marble moulded by the artists astound visitors. Likenesses of the departed are shown in poses with expressions that make them almost lifelike.

Barring the approach to the main entrance, which was laid out in 1844 by Resasco, are three double bronze gates. Passing through these one comes to a high terrace, on the edge of which is a huge arch that sculptors have made famous.

Moving onward is a grove made of white columns of marble and a canopy of stone shields the priceless slabs from wind and weather. Narrow steps lead to the upper galleries, the rotunda of which is in black marble.

Families fortunate enough to be represented in this cemetery have statues made of them in life, and from othese sculptors prepare the grave monuments. Thus over a mother's grave is a statue of her daughter dropping roses, another daughter as an angel with a trumpet, pointing her mother to heaven, and three sons kneeling at the open entrance to the sepulchre.

Another group scene depicts the family around the bedside of a dying daughter, with the expressions and even the dress of the day so truly depicted as to amaze the visitor.

There are many such groups of masterpieces of art that contribute to the fame of Staglieno.

SHOWS SETTING NEW STANDARD

POLACK'S SHOWS ONE OF A NUMBER THAT AIMS TO ELIMINATE CROOKS.

That many of the carnivals and circuses, contrary to the general public's belief, are attempting to place a clean and honest entertainment before the public, and are even going so far as to employ private detectives to see that no crooks operate with the show, was the statement of J. Wilkinson Crowther, press representative of the Polack Brothers Shows, to the Examiner last evening.

Mr. Crowther admitted that there were still many showmen who allowed gambling games to travel with them, and who did not trouble to watch the operations of their hangers on, and who presented objectionable performances, but stated that these were steadily decreasing in numbers through the efforts of honest showmen. The public were becoming educated to the point where they no longer looked upon a circus or carnival as a "skin game," and were demanding clean shows, and as a result the showmen were finding themselves forced to give a clean show regardless of their wishes in the matter, Mr. Crowther declared.

As for his own carnival, Mr. Crowther stated that the Polack enterprises were endeavoring to live up to the new standards of the "sawdust." This was sometim s difficult but he believed that no one could find an objectionab entertainment on the Polack grounds, with the exception of one show, whose contract expires this year.

"When their contract expires they will not be able to show on our lot for $50,000," Mr. Crowther emphatically declared.

He had anecdotes of famous advance men innumerable and nothing but contempt for the class of show which employed an advance man whose calling cards were $20 bills.

On the surface at least the Polack Shows bear out Mr. Crowther's statements and are one of the cleanest and best entertainments of the kind ever presented in Peterboro.

A POET'S PLAINT

(By F. M. DELAFOSSE.)

When I was young I had poetic wit—
So said my friends and surely they should know—
And true it is that where my fancy lit
With wondrous ease I made the numbers flow.

Love-songs and lyrics from my pen were hurled,
And sonnets, too, most beautiful to see —
Like Noah's dove they sought a friendly world;
Like Noah's dove they all returned to me.

And then I wrote of heaven, 'twas passing well,
And critics said "he surely has been there."
Where is that poem now, ye breezes tell,
I pray you tell? sad echo answers "Where?"

Enamoured still of the sweet muse of song,
I sought her in the woodlands, in the fields,
Content to leave the gay and madding throng
For all the pleasures isolation yields.

And thus I wrote my epic—ghastly thing—
Replete with worms and devils, smoke and flame.
"At last," cried I, "at last the world shall ring
With homage to my genius and my name."

I name it "Hell" and 'twas a Hell of Hells
Where ebon angels hurtled through the air
And hideous gnomes peered forth from noisome cells,
Filling the pit with shrieks of wild despair.

Fierce, hissing serpents shot their poisoned fangs
With frantic fury into damned souls,
Adding fresh fuel to their nameless pangs
And keener zest in mirth-inspired ghouls.

"Shine forth, ye stars," quoth I, "thou Queen of Night,
Fast, ever faster, let thy course be run:
The world shall welcome by the morning light
A Milton and a Dante rolled in one."

The morning came, I seized the glowing sheet
And down its columns ran my frenzied eye:
Alas, alas, that organ failed to greet
The latest off-spring of my minstrelsy.

Sickened with hope deferred, mine eyes do fill;
So coy is fame, so changeless fortune's frown.
'Tis harder work to mount Parnassus hill
Than find refreshment in this bone-dry town.

OIL BURNERS ON EMPRESS OF FRANCE

GOT WIFE BACK AFTER 20 YEARS

BUT MAY HAVE TO GO THROUGH SECOND MARRIAGE TO SATISFY LAW.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—"Come; Annie."

Within forty minutes after he had received this laconic message from the wife he had left in Cripple Creek, Col., twenty years ago, William Zeisenhenne, almost a modern Enoch Arden, was speeding over the rails to Denver.

In 1900 Zeisenhenne was running a butcher shop with his brother in Chicago, perfectly happy with his bride of a year and their baby, George. But the little shop was not making money as fast as he wanted it to be, and in May he went to Cripple Creek to work in a gold mine. His wife followed him in a few weeks.

Got Memory by Degrees.

Since their cabin was many miles from the mine where he was working, William saw his wife only on pay days. One day an accident occurred in the mine. William was struck on the head by a piece of timber, and was sent to the hospital with a wound that left a long scar.

He regained consciousness in a few days, but suffered from a complete lapse of memory. For many years he wandered about Colorado, Arizona, and New Mexico, just where he does not remember.

His memory returned to him by degrees, but it was only recently that there came to him a full realization of the fact that he had once been married and that he had a mother living in Chicago.

Married in Absence.

Friday he returned to the home of his mother. His first questions were regarding his wife. Yes, she was still living in Cripple Creek, and another son had been born shortly after his unaccountable disappearance. She had waited years for her husband to return, and after he became "legally dead" she had remarried. But she had written his brother only last month that her husband had died almost a year ago. William took the shortest route to the nearest telegraph office. To-day he received the one-word message from his former wife. And now the only thing troubling him is whether he must go through a second marriage ceremony when he "returns to life."

VILLA SURRENDERS TO HUERTA REGIME

TERMS SHOULD BE SATISFACTORY TO MEXICAN BANDIT LEADER.

SAN PEDRO COAHUILA, via Paredo Junction, Aug. 12.—Francesco Villa marched into San Pedro Monday night between the lines of a cheering populace which greeted him with cheers of "Viva Villa!" Behind him came his band of faithful followers, who, with their leader, surrendered to the de La Huerta Government under terms agreed upon recently at Sabinas.

There were 900 men in the band which Villa led into San Pedro, all of whom later pitched camp close by this little town after a 24-hour march across the desert country without water for man or beast.

Villa's entrance into San Pedro marked the first time in ten years of revolution that the bandit leader had neared a city without a plan of conquest or as a hunted fugitive.

He was greeted and embraced by generals who two weeks ago were leading thousands of soldiers in an attempt to capture him.

Under the terms of his "unconditional" surrender, Villa will get a huge estate at Canutilla, State of Durango, where he will be guarded for the remainder of his life by 50 of his trusted followers, who will be paid by the Government, it was learned here to-day.

Villa's surrender will cost the Mexican Government $2,000,000 gold, according to estimates.

The personal guard of 50 men Villa will select, it is presumed, will be from among his most trusted officers, thus keeping a nucleus for another revolutionary army if he becomes dissatisfied.

The guard will be paid according to the rank of the various officers held under Villa, and cannot be displaced, according to the official agreement Gen. Eugenio Martinez made public here.

MUST HAVE FOREIGN LABOUR

The Anglican School picnic was held at Thurstonia on Wednesday afternoon. A good crowd took in the outing and a pleasant time is reported by all.

WAS ILL-TREATED BY THE GERMANS

STORY OF MAN NOW VISITING IN PETERBORO.

Fred Sternsdale, who is installing machinery at the Canadian Woollens McDonnel street plant, was interned in Germany during practically all of the war period. In April, 1918, he was released and stayed in Holland until 11 days after the armistice was signed, when he returned to his family in England after four years and three months' separation. He was installing machinery in a small town near Leipsig, when he was seized. He was the only Englishman in the place and the high feeling against Britishers was shown by the brutal way he was treated by the Germans when seized. He was caught in his boarding house, tied hand and foot and the room set on fire by the mob. Only quick work by the police saved him, and to save him from the mob he was thrust into prison. On the way to the prison the crowd spat upon him and threw stones at him and it took several policemen to keep the infuriated Germans away.

All through the long struggle he was in various prisons in Germany. All attempts to secure a release failed. He states that he would assuredly have starved if it had not been for the parcels from home. Sometimes the treatment of the prisoners was unbearable, at other times not so bad. The ones who had a taste of war on the western front were not as bad as the others he stated. 400 British prisoners were exchanged for 2,000 Germans finally, he being one of the fortunate 400.

dermine principles which lie at the root of Brtish forms of administration and to oppose everything German and tried with conflicting groups of thought. This is, perhaps, natural, at least it is the recurring consequence of great wars. The world at such times seems to become topsy-turvy. Such movements as the Bolshevism of Russia and the Jacquerie and Jacobinism of France, the I.W.W. and O.B.U. of America, get a strong foothold threatening all established instrutions. We have in Canada, in addition, the ambitions of political groups to gain an ascendancy irrespective of the interests of others to whom they are opposed. Of course no group will admit its purposes are selfish. As I have already pointed out, such conditions do not injure to national cohesion, unity and strength. They are essentially destructive.

"The attitude of mind is unreasonably critical and censorious. Nothing that a Government can or will do is satisfactory. The people in the towne grumble at the high prices of farm produce. The farmers grumble at the high prices they have to pay for products of the town. The ordinary business man is complaining of the burden of taxation. Federal, Provincial and municipal. In the midst of it all, the Reds, the Soviets and the One Big Union are carrying on an insidious campaign in their lodge rooms, and by means of spoken and written propaganda, with the object of destroying everything not of their class, just as Bolshevism in Europe is wrecking nations and seeks to overrun the whole world.

Stands for Unity.

The Premier here declared that he stands for unity in Canada, for Solidarity of conditions and freedom of enterprise within our own borders!

"I shall oppose," he said, "with every legitimate weapon at my command and with every ounce of my power the forces of destruction and disruption, the forces that in this and other lands wish to tear down the structure of responsible government and desroy the fabric of civilization woven through centuries of toil and care. I want to see Canada a great, a peaceful and a united people.

Ross Criticizes Penitentiries.

An amusing commentary on Premier Meighen's speech occurred when Brig.-Gen. Ross attacked the administration of justice in Canada on the ground that it favored the rich man rather than the poor man, and that the penitentiaries were run with needless cruelty in some instances. The Premier had spoken of his party as being National, Liberal and Conservative, but Gen. Ross boldly called himself "one of the old guards," who believed in the principle and policies of Sir John A. Macdonald and of Sir James Whitney, "and the sooner we get there the better."

Dr. S. F. Tolmie, minister of Agriculture, spoke briefly on matters concerning his department and referred to the Prime Minister as "one of the brightest young men in Canada."

Dr. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways was present but did not address the gathering.

WHISKEY STILL SORT OF COMMUNITY AFFAIR

Walter Commodore tried at Smith's Falls before S. Gordon and J. W. Donaldson, justices of the peace, on a charge of having illicitly operated a whiskey still was acquitted after a great many witnesses were examined. There was no lack of positive evidence, some of the witnesses giving details of the manufacture of the stuff and the still itself which was secured in the woods on Commodore's property was on exhibition. But other witneses told opposite stories showing that the still had been in operation outside of three months limit within which a prosecut on must be held. It was shown that the still had been in the possession of many persons, being a sort of community affair, and ownership could not be fastened upon any particular person.

The last time it was operated everybody got drunk, and when they woke up three bottles of whiskey had disappeared, with one of their number, who had kept sober and watched his opportunity. It was alleged that he disposed of the whiskey at $8 per bottle.

The existence of the still came to the knowledge of the authorities through a little incident that happened at a stilling bee. One man got pushed against the hot stove upon which the mash was boiling. He was slightly burned, a row followed and in stepped the law.

PUT ONE OVER GYPSY BAND

Clayton Telford, of Bridgenorth, an employee of J. G. Jopling and Sons, put one over on a band of gypsies that attempted to hold him up recently.

Mr. Telford was driving the familiar meat truck in the country that day and had a considerable sum of money with him. He passed the gypsies near Springville, on the gravel road. After he had gone a short distance past them, they shouted to him to stop, saying that they wanted to get some meat. He stopped, but kept the engine running and stayed near the car. The gypsies approached and took some meat, but they did not pay him. One of the two women put her hand into his pocket to get his purse, but he, seeing the game, gave her a push into the ditch, grabbing the parcel of meat at the same time, and jumping into the car drove away.

Our Stock of Silks Is Being Replenished By the Arrival of Fall Goods

THESE SILKS have arrived so recently that it was necessary to remove their wrappings in order to get a description of them. They are the forerunners of our Fall shipments and we are glad they are here for there is a tendency on the part of many to commence on their fall wardrobe immediately after they return from their vacation.

Some People Risk Their Lives Doing Sensational Things

It is only a few days ago that a man lost his life while endeavoring to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel.

At the best, sensationalism is a cheap way of attracting attention. Many a human life has been wrecked on its shores and many a business has become dizzy in its eddies.

We could paint our store with hideous colors and fill our advertisements with heavy black type that would holler Bargains! Bargains! It would be a success for a little while, we are sure it would, but this store refrains from such methods. It expects to be in business for many, many years to come, and governs its actions accordingly.

Someone Said "It Will Soon Be Time to Outfit the Children with School Footwear" —and it is true, quite true, and it is also true that we are better prepared to meet the demand than ever before.

When we look about and see the numbers of school boys and girls that will soon come flocking in with their mothers, it is then that we realize what a great undertaking it is to fit so many different feet. Fit them, mark you, for in this department we not only sell, but we fit shoes.

We handle such reliable brands as Hurlbut and McFarlane Welts, and others of lesser note, but good goods nevertheless, that we are not ashamed to have it said of "They came from Cressman's."

Swiss Charmeuse in Many Beautiful Colors

When we had this material shipped early we had in mind the late summer and early fall functions that require something more sedate than organdie or voile.

The width is 40 inches and the colors are jade green, peacock, ivory, navy and black. Every color is accompanied by a rich, lustrous sheen. Priced at $6.75 yard.

Taffeta Silks Are As Popular As Ever

If not more so, and advance notices proclaim dark shades of brown to be the favourite colour.

Our Imperial quality has arrived in several colors and it has the usual guarantee stamped on every yard. Obtainable in nigger and chestnut brown, navy or black. The width is 36 inches and the price is $4.00 yard.

Duchess Satin is Suitable to Some Persons and Some Styles

A super quality duchess in a 36-inch width has arrived and is obtainable in every desirable colour. It would require many lines of type to name them all. The price is $4 and $4.50 yard.

Elbow Proof Georgette Crepe

is the most serviceable georgette ever woven and it is likely to remain so, for it leaves nothing to be desired. It is as sheer as any other but is so firm that there is not sufficient strength in one's fingers to pull a thread out of place.

Every shade the maker has on his color card we have in stock. The price is moderate at $3.00 yard.

The Savings You Effect If You Purchase During This August Sale of Furniture Are Worth Their Weight in Gold

A man bought a house in July and paid two thousand dollars for it, and his next door neighbour owned a dwelling identically the same and sold it for three thousand dollars in the following January. The result is that the value of the two thousand dollar house advanced to three thousand dollars, and that is the price demanded for it.

Our furniture department was confronted with a proposition similar to this at the first of the year, when the price of furniture advanced 60%. We could have marked 60% more on every piece on our floors and it would have been legitimate business. We did not do it, however.

We expect to be selling furniture for many years to come, and we want people to know that our furniture and our prices are the best to be had anywhere.

In Addition to the 60% there are Many Other Substantial Reductions.

Have You Always Desired to Own A Piano Lamp?

These Prices May Help You to Realize Your Desire

Here is one that is priced at $38 and should be marked at $45. It has a round, fluted mahogany stem with a prettily turned base. The shade is of Copen blue silk and is lined with rose. The two-inch eight-sided valance is drawn tightly over a frame and the exposed edges are trimmed with rose guimp; immediately beneath is a four-inch blue fringe hanging in scallops.

Another that is a regular $32 value is priced at $27. The mahogany stem is very much on the William and Mary order. The shade is eight-sided, and is covered with gold coloured silk poplin, and has a valance of rose poplin below, from which is suspended a four-inch gold coloured fringe. It is lighted with two lamps, and the effect is very pretty.

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S CAVE

May Soon be Converted into Use for Globe Trotters.

HONOLULU, Aug. 12. — Robinson Crusoe's cave may soon be converted into sleeping quarters for globe trotters, according to Prof. W. A. Bryan, vice president of the Hawaiian Historical Society. The Chilean government, Mr. Bryan said recently, is considering creating a national park and tourist resort on the Island of Juan Fernandez, famed as the abode of Daniel De Foe's literary character.

Modern hotels and other attractions would be erected on the island, according to the plans being considered. The beauty and the verdue of the island, Mr. Bryan says, is similar to the oldest park of the Hawaiian Islands.

Two nights were spent by Professor Bryan recently in Robinson Crusoe's cave. The profesor is at present in the south seas seeking proof of his theory of an immense submerged continent in the Pacific.

MUCH PROSPERITY IN ARGENTINA

BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE 21 PER CENT., RAILWAY BUSINESS BOOMS.

(Canadian Press)

BUENOS Aires, Aug. 12.—Increased prosperity this year in comparison with 1919 is indicated by banking and railroad statistics of Argentina which have just been published. Official banking reports show that between May 31, 1919 and the same date this year deposits increased 21 per cent., loans and discounts, 12 per cent. and balances on hand, 40 per cent.

Of the 22,141 miles of railroad in the country only one group of 1,188 miles has failed to show increased aggregate receipts, according to a table compiled by the Review of the River Plate, showing conditions for the present year. The remaining lines have all had substantial increases. All railroads in Uruguay and Paraguay and all tram lines in Argentina have also shown increases.

HAWAIIAN SINGERS AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

INTERESTING TRAVEL TALK BY MISS MILDRED CLEMENS.

Last evening's Chautauqua programme delighted a large audience. Miss Mildred Clemens, cousin of Mark Twain, led the audience in imagination through the paradise of Hawaii, and her troupe of Hawaiian singers and players supplied an appropriate background of native music.

Miss Mildred Leo Clemens, writer, lecturer, and traveller, introduced a troupe of six Hawaiian singers and players, chosen by herself in the Hawaiian Islands. The group was composed of three men and three women, dressed in native Hawaiian style in the case of the women, as Miss Clemens explained, fashioned from the pattern of the missionaries' nightgowns, and wearing about their necks the lais or festive wreaths. These musicians occupied the first part of the evening with a fascinating programme of instrumentals, songs, and dances. The Hawaiian music is possessed of peculiar qualities, fascinating to the ear of a Canadian, and its rendition by those artists on the native instruments—bass guitars, steel guitars, and ukeleles—provided an unusual and charming entertainment for the large audience which applauded generously.

The latter part of the evening was taken by Miss Clemens in giving an illustrated lecture on "Rambles in Paradise—Hawaii." Miss Clemens is a splendid speaker, has a clear voice, distinct enunciation, and her address carried clearly to all parts of the tent. She knew her subject thoroughly and presented it with the finished touch of an artist. Her talk was illustrated by beautifully coloured stereoptican views, dissolving one into the other, and also by moving pictures.

Beauties Extolled.

With the master touch of an artist, the speaker wafted her audience across space and led them through the sunny isles of that Paradise of the Pacific. In fancy they saw the intrepid explorers and discoverers stumbling across Hawaii (taking its name from the largest island in the group), while on their travels landing, living there and dying there. She followed the footsteps of the world-famous writers who had spent many happy days in Hawaii — Mark Twain, Jack London, Robert Louis Stevenson, and others. Its beauties were extolled, its incomparable scenery, exquisite flowers, and marvellous sea life. The speaker told of the Hawaiian peoples. The islands are the great melting pot of the nations with the pure Hawaiian types gradually disappearing. Their aquatic sports were extensively dealt with. The native, the speaker said, quoting Mark Twain, "learns to swim before he tries walking." Moving pictures showed the outrigger canoes, the surf boats and natives engaged in this thrilling sport, and fishing. The Hawaiians are a joyous, carefree folk, generous almost to a fault, receiving strangers with open arms, giving them the best in the land and parting regretfully. The audience were taken by the daring traveller to the brink of a volcano in action, showed the red hot molten rock (cooling at 1,700 degrees) fountaining up and the streams of lava flowing down the hill and into the sea.

Miss Clemens had been fortunate enough to be present in Hawaii at the time of the Prince of Wales' visit and told of the impressions he had made. She showed some exclusive pictures she had secured of the Prince and also of his attempts at surf boat and canoe riding.

All the islands in the group were fully covered, and it was with genuine regret that the audience followed the traveller down to the steamer and left that "bit of heaven in the middle of the world." "I hated to leave," said Miss Clemens, "but I am going back. I live to go back."

The lecture bore none of the earmarks of a usual travel lecture. It was more like a beautiful fairy story unfolded to the eyes and ears of the spectators. The players accompanied the lecturer with appropriate music and dances. The guaranteed quality of the Chautauqua entertainments was well upheld by last evening's artists.

GERMANS DISCARDING STREET CAR SERVICE

OPERATION IN SMALLER CITIES FOUND TOO COSTLY.

(Canadian Press)

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—Owing to the enormous increase in the cost of operation, street car service in many of the smaller German cities has been discontinued. Jena, Wuerzburg, Freiberg and Heilbronn are among the towns trying now to get along without trams. Attempts were made to keep the lines going by radical increases in fares, but the public, unable to pay the price, took to walking.

Berlin and other large cities, where street car traffic has fallen off alarmingly because of increased fares, are facing the problem of reorganizing the service, retaining only those lines which are absolutely necessary for the accommodation of persons having to travel along distances. Wagons and carts brought out to give a lift to pedestrians during recent strikes of street car employees have indicated which routes through Berlin are vital for transportation.

MR. BURNHAM'S REPLY TO PREMIER MEIGHEN

CLAIMS POLICY WILL BRING INEVITABLE DISASTER.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., says regarding Premier Meighen's announcement at Stirling that the issue now is between Forces not Parties, that Premier Meighen is undoubtedly right. Those who form new Governments and new parties and announce new policies for the management of nations with consulting the people to be governed are usurpers and nation-breakers. To this class the Calder-Meighen Government surely belongs. This new world-policy of calmly disposing of the rights and liberties of people without their consent has evidently struck Canada with full force, and looks good to Mr. Calder. The madness and futility of it all is a standing wonder, and will bring inevitable disaster.

TENDER GUMS — A WARNING

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea—many under forty also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhea. Bleeding gums, too. Remember—these inflamed, bleeding gums act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

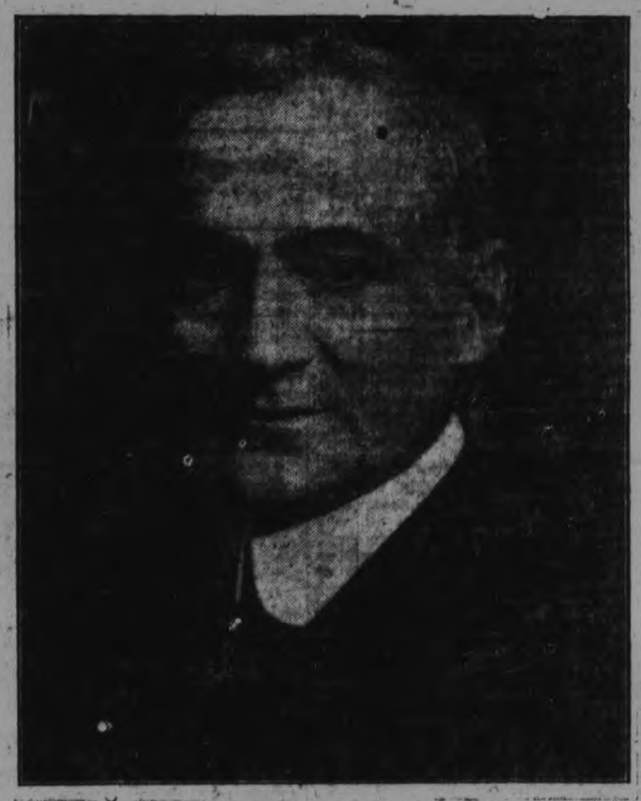
$18,000 BAIL FURNISHED FOR EACH OF FIVE MEN

(Canadian Press)

REGINA, Aug. 12.—Friends of the five men arrested in connection with the alleged kidnapping of J. Christopher, One Big Union organizer, have furnished bail in each case. The men have been liberated, to appear for preliminary hearing on August 17. Bail money was fixed at $10,000, with two additional sureties of $4,000, or a total of $18,000 for each man involved. Commissioner Mahoney of the Provincial Police stated to-day that he expected further arrests in connection with the alleged kidnapping. He stated that five arrests so far were the result of an investigation carried out by his force, acting on instructions from the Attorney-General.



DR. DANIEL F. FOX.

We always endeavor to choose among the speakers of Chautauqua Week, one who combines the qualities of a great thinker and a great orator.

Dr. Daniel F. Fox is the choice of the present season. He is the "Frank Crane" of the Pacific Coast, writing constantly for a syndicate of papers, through which he reaches a multitude of readers, who eagerly await his message. He has been known to the Chautauqua and Lyceum for years. He is an orator of rare ability, and he is a producer of a worth-while message. His lecture upon "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon" is one that comes at this period of the world's reconstruction, and especially to a Canadian audience with great acceptance. No one can afford to miss the evening of the Fourth Day. It should attract one of the very largest audiences of the entire week. We assure you in advance that whatever you expect of Dr. Fox you will not be disappointed.

UNITED STATES OPENS WATERPOWER RESOURCES TO PRIVATE DEVELOPMENT

REGULATIONS TO THIS END NOW BEING DRAFTED—COMMISSION WITH POWER TO ISSUE LICENSES FOR FIFTY YEARS.

Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Regulations for the administration of the Federal Act opening up the country's vast water power resources to private development are now being drafted. As soon as they are completed the Water Power Commission, composed of the Secretaries of War, Interior, and Agriculture, will hold hearings on them.

The Commission, of which Secretary Baker has been appointed chairman by President Wilson, will hold its first meeting immediately upon Secretary Payne's return from Alaska about 5th August. The hearings on the regulations will be pushed as speedily as possible so that the water power legislation, which has been ten years in the making, can be put into effect without undue delay.

Tentative Regulations.

The tentative regulations are being drawn up by a special committee of the War, Interior, and Agricultural Departments. It is composed of Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, representing the War Department; O. C. Merrill, water power expert in the Forestry Service, who has been designated executive secretary of the commission; and H. A. Stabler, of the Interior Department.

Members of the committee say the regulations will be extensive and that they probably will be announced in series, with open hearings on each group before they are made final. Those relating to form and condition of application for survey permit or licenses will be the first announced. The most difficult problem involved in drawing up the regulations, members of the committee say, is that of establishing a uniform system of accounting for licenses as required by the Act.

Can Issue Licenses.

Under the Wreta eorwPilBysdt

Under the Water Power Bill the comission is empowered to issue licenses for a period not exceeding 50 years. The licersees will pay to the Government reasonable annual charges in an amount to be fixed by the commission. Upon the expiration of any license the Government, if two years' notice in writing has been given by the commission, will have the right to take over and operate any water power development after payment of the net investment of the licensee in the project or projects taken, not to exceed the fair value of the property plus such reasonable damages, if any, to property of the licensee as may be caused by the severance therefrom of property taken.

In cases where such notice has not been given the Government also will have the right to take over, upon mutual agreement with the licensee, any property developed under the terms of the Bill subject to the payment of the net investment.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

To Make a Tart Salad Jell

Jiffy-Jell is for salads as well as desserts. Get the lime-fruit flavor and it will make you a tart, green salad jell. Mint flavor makes a mint jell.

The fruit flavors in Jiffy-Jell are fruit-juice essences in vials—a bottle in each package. They are real fruit, and the flavor is abundant. No artificial flavors—no saccharine.

Try loganberry or pineapple flavor for a dessert, and learn what delicious dainties Jiffy-Jell brings to your table. A package will serve six people.

Jiffy-Jell with its natural fruit flavor costs much less than jam or marmalade.

AIRPLANE TRIPS NOW REDUCED 100 PER CENT.

(Canadian Press)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—The high cost of flying went into a nose dive here when managers of the principal commercial flying fields announced a 100 per cent. reduction in the price of airplane rides.

Tourists to Southern California with an ambition to rise above other persons have been paying $10 for flights of short duration. The new price is five dollars the ride per person.

Passenger flight prices will be continued to be reduced until they are lower than taxicab fares, C. S. Elfelt, manager of one of the companies, has declared.

PRESENTATION AT THE BONNER-WORTH

MISS MARGARET BLODGETT OF SMITH TOWNSHIP HONOURED.

On Friday last the girls of the Drawing and Winding Department of the Bonner-Worth presented Miss Margaret Blodgett with a beautiful mantel clock on the eve of her marriage.

The address follows:

August 5, 1920.

Miss Margaret Blodgett:

Dear Margaret,—We, the girls of the Drawing and Winding Department of the Bonner-Worth, have met together to-day to wish you much happiness and prosperity on the occasion of your coming marriage. During the five years you have worked with us, we have always found you a helpful and agreeable work-mate, and we shall miss you very much, but our loss will be someone else's gain.

We present you with this mantel clock as a token of our esteem and we hope it may remind you of the happy times we have had working together.

Signed on behalf of the girls,

MYRTLE McCOLL,

MAY STOP THIS MAN LANDING ANYWHERE

RISKS BEING CARRIED UP AND DOWN PACIFIC OCEAN INDEFINITELY.

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 12.—Unless Reginald Harkins, ships fireman, who described himself as an American citizen, was allowed to land from the Canadian-Australian liner Makura when that vessel reached Vancouver upon her last voyage from here to that port, or he managed to land somewhere en route, he runs the risk of being carted up and down the Pacific indefinitely.

Harkins' account of himself, given in Sydney just before the Makura sailed from here early in June with him on board, was as follows:

"Back in January a man the same name as I reached Vancouver on this boat. He asked for a day off, but chief engineer refused him. He went ashore without leave, got into a street fight, had his leg broken and was taken to the hospital. The chief engineer reported him a deserter. The Canadian authorities arrested me as being the Reginald Harkins who had deserted.

"They put me on board the liner Niagara bound for Sydney. I didn't want to go, so when the steamer reached Honolulu I left her. At the instigation of the Union Steamship Company, agents for the Canadian-Australian boats, the immigration authorities at Honolulu arrested me and forcibly put me on board the Makura. Not wanting to be idle I worked as a stoker from Honolulu. I signed on at 14 pounds sterling a month. When I reached here I couldn't get my money and the Canadian authorities wouldn't let me off the ship.

"Iwas born in Omaha, Nebraska, 42 years ago. I left America when I was 7 years old. I came to Australia and stayed here until I was 25. Since then I have travelled about the world in ships. When I was brought on board this boat (the Makura) at Honolulu, the chief engineer and the purser admitted that I was not the man who went off the boat at Vancouver, but in spite of all that the Captain took me out to sea."

Harkins complained further that on the strength of promises by the Custom authorities at Sydney that he would be released from detention on the Makura if he signed a certificate that he was an alien; he signed the paper but the promise was not kept. The American consul here, E. J. Norton, took up Harkins' case, but was unable to do anything on the man's behalf because of lack of proper proof of American citizenship.

"The whole thing," he said, "goes back to the action of the Canadian authorities."

FIGHT STAGED AT CLOSE OF SHOW

Patrons of the Polack Shows at the Exhibition Park last evening who stayed late had the opportunity of witnessing an unbilled performance about eleven o'clock, when one of the cowboys of the Lone Star Show and one of the ticketsellers got into an altercation which developed into a fight and then assumed more serious proportions when the cow-puncher from the wild and woolly West drew a knife. At this stage the onlookers interfered and separated the combatants.

The cause of the affair is not known, though it is said that the cowboy accused the ticket-seller of paying too much attention to his (cowboy's) wife. The fight took place in front of the main gate at the corner of Lock and Lansdowne Streets, just as the show people were leaving the grounds.

NEW REGISTRAR FOR COUNTY OF VICTORIA

LINDSAY, Aug. 12.—Mr. Albert T. Porter has received word from the Provincial Secretary that he has been appointed to the office of local registrar of the Supreme Court and Surrogate Registrar for the County of Victoria. The appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Mr. Sootheran, has been hanging fire for some time.

This appointment has been made by Attorney-General Raney on the recommendation of the local U.F.O. executive, made several months ago.

200,000,000,000 FRANCS SPENT BY FRANCE ON WAR

SHE NOW OWES 233,729,000,000, A BIG PROPORTION BEING FOREIGN DEBT.

(Canadian Press)

PARIS, Aug. 12.—France spent just about 200,000,000,000 francs on the war and now owes 233,729,000,000, of which 34,296,000,000 is foreign, according to official figures quoted by Senator Doumer in his report on the 1920 budget. If she were obliged to pay her exterior debt at the present rate of exchange it would amount to 67,000,000,000 francs.

The actual figures of the public debt are:

	Francs.
Interior loans (including 30 billions), pre-war debt	121,949,111,150
Foreign loans	34,296,102,000
Advanced by Bank of France	26,020,000,000
Floating debt	51,464,251,500
	233,729,464,650

How Expenditures Grew.

Against this total are amounts due France from Allied countries for advances during the war aggregating 3,880,000,000 francs, leaving the net balance against her 230,000,000,000 in round figures.

The way expenditures grew during the war and the ratio in which they have decreased since 1918 are shown by the following table:

	Francs.
1914 (five months)	6,589,434,249
1915	22,804,486,525
1916	32,045,145,169
1917	41,679,599,629
1918	54,537,105,100
1919	49,029,309,951
1920 (seven months)	25,714,366,203

Doumer calculates that on a peace basis all owing for natural progression the expenditures would have averaged about 5,500,000,000 yearly. Advanced by Bank France 26,020,000,

MOVING CAMERA GETS BABY FALLING ASLEEP

Healthy good natured babies are the most fascianting things in the world and by doing the natural thing at unexpected times a baby provides some of the most deliciou humor that ever occurs. Such an event, never included in the story, for nothing could have caused it to occur except nature, is contained in "The Woman Gives," starring Norma Talmadge, which will be shown at the Allen Theatre, beginning to-day.

A six-months-old baby was used in the pitcure to pose for Inga Sonderson, played by Miss Talmadge, a young artist just becoming famous for her baby pictures. Almost everyone connected with Miss Talmadge's studio did something to make the high chair comfortable for the youngster so he would remain good-natured while he was having his picture taken. He was also well fed just before beginning his posing. The natural thing happened, although it was unexpected. He went to sleep as soon as he got comfortably settled and the camera man kept grinding until he was sound asleep and the whole scene was kept in the picture by orders of Miss Talmadge herself. It adds a most delicious touch to a very pleasing production.

OTTAWA TEACHERS GOING TO ENGLAND

FOUR WILL LEAVE TO-MORROW TO TAKE POSITIONS IN LONDON.

OTTAWA, Aug. 12.—Four Ottawa women school teachers sail on Saturday on the Metagama for England to take positions in London Public Schools for a year. Those going are: Miss Gertrude McIntyre, of Slater Street School; Miss Edith MacLean, of Elgin Street School; Miss Bertha Watts, of Osgoode Street School; and Miss Mina Burns, of Wellington Street School.

It is not known yet whether any English teachers will come to Ottawa schools. It had been originally intended to effect such an exchange, but definite word has not been received from the English authorities, beyond their acceptance of the four Ottawa women. The latter will return here, it is expected, after their year in England.

The teachers will receive the same salary as London Public School teachers, something in the neighborhood of £340 per year. The expense of crossing is born by them individually. All of them are women of many years' experience in the profession.

CHICAGO SEES GLAND WORK BY VORONOFF

French Surgeon Comes Here for Clinic Friday.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Prof. Serge Veronoff, the French surgeon who made the first successful transplantation of interstitial glands from an anthropoid ape to the body of a man, performed his celebrated operation for the first time in America at the American Hospital in Chicago, using thyroid glands.

Four hundred of Chicago's foremost physicians and surgeons watched the transference of glands. Two dead dogs were used.

"My operation was more in the way of a demonstration," said Dr. Voronoff. "My work is still experimental. I have performed several operations which have been successful in restoring vigor to old men." He will leave Chicago Wednesday for New York to hold a larger clinic at Columbia University on Friday.

U.S. NAVAL VESSEL THAT DISAPPEARED

STRANGE STORY OF THE SEAS WILL BE PRESENTED AT THE GRAND NEXT WEEK.

What became of the great United States' naval collier "Cyclops," a ship of 19,000 tons with 295 men that sailed from Barbadoes, in the West Indies on March 4, 1918, on war duty and never reported since?

No one knows. That she might have been blown to fragments by a destroyer seems unlikely since no wreckage has ever been found by the cruisers and patrol boats that have retraced the route of the collier. It seems improbable that she was sunk by torpedoes since no S. O. S. calls were sent out. Had she been attacked and captured by an enemy raider, the collier's wireless should have put her in communication with other naval merchants.

The most likely and the most scientific explanation is made by George Noble, a writer in The National Marine Magazine — that the vanished ship owed its doom to gigantic cuttlefish, also known as octopuses. These monsters are the terror of the sea and are known to attain a length of 140 feet.

"Such fish," the scientist explains, "may have reared themselves from the sea and instead of winding their tenacles around the hulls and riggins and crushing the structure to matchwood before dragging it to their lair at the bottom of the sea, may have helped themselves to the ship's people as delicately and effectually as one plucks gooseberries from a bush—then sunk from sight and left scarcely a ripple behind."

It could be claimed, of course, that the creatures, however, gigantic, could not sink a steamship as they are known to have sunk old sailing ships. However, the Cyclops, if attacked by cuttlefish, could have steamed away, but she may have become disabled through engine trouble or some other accident and while rolling helpless, the monsters threw their arms above the deck and helped themselves to the men. The ship, thus helpless, would have more easily foundered in the heavy sea and gale, and thus vanished completely leaving not a trace behind.

Octopuses, the most amazing, the most repulsive, and the most deadly of all sea monsters are shown in "Girl of the Sea." They were photographed by J. E. Williamson, of the Submarine Film Corporation.

This spectacular picture will be shown at the Grand Opera House on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 16th, 17th and 18th.

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY ABOUT "HELLO! ALEXANDER!" COMING HERE

The Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert will present McIntyre and Heath in the new spectacular musical extravaganza, "Hellow Alexander" at Grand Opera House, opening road show attraction, for an engagement of one night only, Thursday, Aug. 19th.

This, the most pretentious production in which these celebrated blackfaced comedy stars have ever appeared, ran for 16 months at the 44th Street Theatre in New York and 4 months at the Garrick Theatre in Chicago, attracting great audiences and declared an altogether novel and delightful offering. McIntyre and Heath recently celebrated the forty-sixth anniversary of their stage partnership, establishing by a wide margin a record unique in the annals of the theatre. The originality and high quality of their foolery is quite as unique as the record of their partnership, for during all the years no comedy team has even approached their artistic achievements. "Hello Alexander," which the Messrs. Shubert have supplied for their present tour, was written by Edgar Smith and Emily M. Young, with lyrics by Alfred Bryan and music by Jerome Schwartz. More than twenty musical and dancing numbers adorn the score, and the latter have been staged by Allan K. Foster, introducing many new and startling terpsichorean variations. The company numbers almost one hundred people, every member of which has been selected with the definite purpose of contributing clearly to what has been declared a remarkable and unusual entertainment. Among the principals are Homer Dickinson and Gracie Deagon, Vivian Hoit, Lillian Rosedale, Mabel Elaine, Betty Lewis, Doorthy Moore, Dan Quinlan, Edward Scanlon, Dan McNeil, Earl Richards, Phyllis Ray, Newport and Stirk, Chic Barrymore and others. "Hello Alexander" is in two acts and nine strikingly effective scenes, and the inevitable minstrel first part, in which every member of the big company appears, has been described as the most elaborate the stage has ever disclosed.

LIQUOR CASE IN POLICE COURT

Edgar Alcombrack was charged in this morning's police court with keeping liquor for sale and selling liquor to Michael J. Hickey. J. A. O'Brien appeared in his behalf and entered a plea of not guilty. On the request of Crown Attorney Hatton a remand until Tuesday next was granted in order to allow the police to further investigate Alcombrack's alleged operations.

Two drunks were assessed $19.10 and $29.10 respectively.

TOMMY BURNS MADE PITIABLE EFFORT IN ATTEMPT TO OVERTHROW BECKETT

A London correspondent gives the following description of the Burns-Beckett fight:

Jack Dempsey hasn't any need to worry much about European challengers. That was the thought which came to most Americans as we sat in the Albert Hall and watched Beckett murder Tommy Burns.

Of course. Georges Carpentier is much more clever than Beckett and probably a good deal better than Tommy Burns ever was. Some admirers of the Canadian will not concede the Frenchman is more skillful than Burns was when he lost the world's championship to Jack Johnson, but Carpentier has a tremendous physical advantage over Burns.

The public's memory is short-lived. Burns was a bit of a hero when he stepped into the ring at the Albert Hall, but I recall that he was not much of a favorite when he left London for Australia, to be followed shortly afterwards by Jack Johnson. Some of us reeall how he demanded payment at that time before he would step into the ring at the National Sporting Club, an insult to the best-conducted sporting institution that ever existed.

No a Favorite.

Some of us remember, too, how he boasted of his own prowess—before the Johnson fight—and he seemed the same "Tommy" when he stepped into his corner and cast a disdainful and contemptuous look at Beckett. Some of us recalled that the Canadian was "all out" when he gave a private exhibition in the Devil's Kitchen in London with J. W. H. T. Douglas, the English cricketer and amateur boxer. That also was just before his ill-fated Australian visit.

Carpentier can't be judged on his one round affair with Beckett, but I have seen both Dempsey and the Frenchman in action and if Dempsey would set about Carpentier like he did about Jess Willard at Toledo my opinion is that Georges would fare not better than the huge ex-champion. Carpentier is a brainy fighter, but he seems to lack the rugged battling qualities Dempsey possesses. But to compare Burns at his best with Carpentier, if only on the theory that a good big man is always better than a good little man, seems ridiculous.

There never was any doubt about the result of the Beckett-Burns fight. "Tommy" looked fit enough and he had all his old-time "cockiness," but he was perspiring freely before the first round was over and looked all of his thirty-nine years when he went back to his corner after three minutes' pummelling.

The Canadian showed plenty of grit and made the most of his experience and ringcraft. He made rather too much of it, in fact, and frequently was warned against holding. He was a poor old man when the sponge was thrown into the ring in the seventh round, and the display of temper vented on seconds who realized the hopelessness of his chances was quite uncalled for.

Burns never was in the picture, and, far more interesting to the Americans, was the opportunity for speculation on the chance Beckett would have with Dempsey. There were many in the Albert Hall who saw the Willard-Dempsey fight and even if the British ex-soldier should win a return match with Carpentier, not one would throw away a nickel on Beckett's chances with Dempsey, no matter what the odds mights be.

Becket Poor Judge.

If Beckett is England's "white hope," then the British material for a heavyweight is poor, indeed. Burns would have lasted two or three rounds at the outside against a real champion. It seemed that one real punch any time after the first round would have finished it—and Beckett hadn't the punch necessary. Maybe he was too eager, perhaps too merciful, but he scarcely showed the judgment required of champions.

What a wonderful place the Albert Hall is for a championship fight! A few years ago it would have been regarded as sacrilege to even suggest a boxing match in the big hall opposite the huge Prince Albert memorial in Hyde Park the "Royal Albert hall," to give the old temple of music its correct designation.

It is much larger than the old National Sporting Club near Covent Garden and the Covent Garden theatre, Wonderland or the Ring and the plushcovered seats give the place a distinction that not even "the National" could boast.

And what a cosmopolitan crowd! Bookmakers, dusty and raucous-mouthed, came in from the races at Sandown park and took their seats there side peers of the realm. Here and there you noticed the broadcloth of a clergyman, and it is said, there were more doctors present than ever patronized a dozen prize fights combined in the past. The physicians wanted to see a practical demonstration of their theory that a man of forty cannot come back and take his place in the games of young men. And the doctors were amply vindicated.

If Demosev and Carpentier ever meet in England the Albert Hall is the place for the counter.

CONTROVERSY OVER "CANNONBALL" SCOTT

In referring to the controversy re "Cannonball" Scott's standing in relation to the O. B. A. A., the Port Hope Guide says:

"Last summer Scott played for the Lindsay team and was a resident of Lindsay on April 1st of this year, but for business reasons had to return to Toronto. Under the residence clause he was eligible to play in the Toronto City League, but could not qualify for the O. B. A. A. finals. While the teams in the Central League would be pleased to see Scott go through, what would have been the result had conditions been reversed? Had Scott left Toronto on April 1st to play in Lindsay would Athol Gow have put up such a pitiable plea to declare Scott eligible to play with Lindsay? If the O. B. A. A. starts to amend rules to suit individual players then they may expect no end of trouble."

REGATTA AT CROWE'S LANDING FAVOURED BY IDEAL WEATHER

BIG LIST OF ENTRANTS—THE PRIZE-WINNERS—DANCE IN EVENING.

CROWE'S LANDING, Aug. 12.—Under ideal weather conditions and with an attendance that was representative of all parts of Stoney Lake, the fourteenth annual regatta of the Upper Stoney Lake Cottagers' and Campers' Association was held this afternoon on the splendid course off Belvidere summer resort. There was only a light breeze blowing that made the conditions perfect for everything but the sailing events, and there were numerous entries and keen competition in most of the events. There wre a dozen starters in some of th paddling and rowing events an ne close finishes that gave the judges lots of work.

The long programme was run off in quick order and the big crowd of spectators found the afternoon's events most entertaining and exciting, while amusement was provided by the gunwale and crab races and by the greasy poles and tug of war competitions.

The only sailing event was the open class which was carried off by Mr. J. S. Knapman's "Cygnet," the winner of innumerable races around the Kawartha Lakes. Major Oxley was the only other starter.

There were two special prizes for the lady and gentleman member respectively of the Association winning the most points in the different events. The ladies' prize a wrist watch, presented by Mr. B. M. Chapman, of Toronto, was won by Miss Florence McIntyre and the gentlemen's, the gift of Mr. A. E. Cuff, of Toronto, was carried off by Turner Chapman.

William Smoke, a Chemong Indian, and a cousin of Albert Smoke, the Olympic Marathoner, won the men's single canoe race from a large field in commanding style.

In the evening a most successful dance was held in the pavilion, following the presentation of prizes. The music was provided by Niss Norma Mitchell.

Following were the events:

Boys' single canoe, 17 and under—1 Eric Finlay, 2 Dodworth, 3 G. Morin.

Boys' tandem canoe — 1 Yelland Bros., 2 D. Jory and M. Craig.

Ladies' tandem canoe—1 Mrs. McIntyre and Florence McIntyre, 2 Miss Hotchkiss and Miss Seibold, 3 Miss H. Willoughby and Miss M. Dow.

Boys' tandem, 17 years and under—1 Eric Finlay and T. Chapman, 2 Dodworth and Sherin, 3 B. Griffith and V. Finlay.

LOCAL GUNNERS IN PORT HOPE

PETERBORO CAPTURED A NUMBER OF PRIZES.

Forty shooters representing Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Belleville, Peterborough, Stirling and other points attended the annual competition of the Port Hope club yesterday afternoon at the excellent shooting grounds there. Peterborough shooters were C. Graham, John Curvin, Dr. McClelland, Chris. Wood, M. Duffus, E. Symes, R. Hutchinson and Stan. Coon. Out of the 15 prizes Peterborough gun men captured four, with the following scores: R. Hutchinson 80, Dr. McClelland 77, C. Graham 76, John Curvin 74.

Herbert Outram of the Port Hope Club, was secretary of the shoot.

Oshawa led the shooters, bringing down 95 and several more over 90.

Horse races were also held in Port Hope in the afternoon. The races were very good, the weather being all that could be desired for racing, and two or three thousand people were on the grounds.

M'GRAW BLAMED BY LAMBS CLUB

GIANT'S MANAGER SAID TO HAVE PICKED FIGHT WITH MAN WHO WHIPPED HIM.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Inquiry into that Sunday morning party in which John C. Slavin, musical comedy actor, received a fractured skull and John J. McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants, a battered nose and eye, brought forth three important developments here.

Relatives of Slavin made known for the first time the fact that in addition to the injuries previously reported he had lost two of his front teeth.

It was reported in the theatrical district that the man who punched McGraw in the grillroom of the Lambs' Club some time before Slavin received his injuries was William H. Boyd, who was leading man for Miss Ethel Barrymore in "Declassee" last season and who has appeared in a number of motion picture productions.

After a meeting that lasted nearly two hours the members of the house committee of the Lambs Club issued a public statement in which they declared that McGraw had provoked the Sunday morning fight in their grill room, and that the actor who struck him had done so in self-defence.

It also was learned that the house committee will make a report to the Shepherd of the club, who will call a meeting of the executive committee for the purpose of taking action regarding the conduct of the Giants' manager.

PTTERBORO GOLFERS GOING TO OSHAWA

The Ladies Will Send a Number of Players.

The Peterboro ladies have accepted the invitation of the Oshawa ladies to play golf at Oshawa on Thursday, August 19, and it is expected that a very large number of the members of the Peterboro Golf Club will motor over on that day to take part in the game.

MAY WITHDRAW FROM OLYMPIC CONTESTS

QUESTION BEING CONSIDERED BY GREAT BRITAIN.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 12.— Withdrawal of Great Britain from the Olympic contests after the Antwerp meeting is being seriously considered by British Olympic Committee. The question of making announcement to this effect is said to be under debate and the general opinion of leaders in the sporting world appears to favor the step. The principal reason for the withdrawal probably will be that British sporting activities in Normal times are so numerous as to absorb all the attention that amateurs can devote to the sport.

"LOOK AT HIM TO-DAY"

The first week he was here he began to train for the job ahead by studying in spare time with the International Correspondence Schools. Inside of six months he got his first promotion. But he kept right on with the I. C. S. I tell you, a man like that is bound to get ahead. Some day he'll be head of the Company. You've got the same chance he had, young man, and if I were you, I'd follow his example. Take up some I. C. S. course and do it right away. Use your spare time. Study. Whatever your chosen work may be, there is an I. C. S. Course that will prepare you right at home for a better position with bigger pay.

LONDO NGIRL MISSING.
LONDON, Ont., August 12. — The police have been asked to locate Fannie Nellie Graham, the 13-year-old daughter of Richard Graham, of 347 Simcoe Street, who has been missing since Saturday. The girl had an argument with her mother, and walked out of the house. She has not since been seen.

MEETING POSTPONED.
It has been decided to postpone the annual meeting of the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association until the end of the month in order to secure as large an attendance as possible and also because of the fact that the constitution and the bylaws are not yet complete. The executive will meet in the meantime to set the date.

LARGE TOURIST TRADE.
LONDON, Ont., Aug. 12.—Secretary C. Edward Bernard of the London Motor Club reports the greatest number of United States tourists in the history of the local bureau, and a the same time a serious lack of hotel accommodations in this city for the visitors. Motorists from California, exas, Florida and oher remote places are common these days.

VAIN PURSUIT OF BOY'S MURDERER

PLAINCLOTHESMEN CHASE AFTER YOUNG FRENCH-CANADIAN IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, August 12. — Again yesterday police and citizens suddenly alarmed by a report from Mrs. Forsythe of Stop 9, Lake Shore Road, scoured the Lake Shore Road and vicinity for a considerable distance in search of a man who, Mrs. Forsythe stated, had endeavoured to entice her ten-year-old daughter Rhoda away from the scene, and who it was thought might have been the murderer of eight-year-old Philip Goldberg. The chase ended like that of Tuesday, however.

The searchers, headed by Sergeant Tinsley and Constables Morrison and Davis in one party, and Detective McIlwrath in another, finally located their quarry, a nineteen-year-old French-Canadian named Wilfred Roi, but he did not answer the description of the alleged murderer.

Taken back to Stop 9, he was confronted with the ten-year-old girl, but as she could not recognise him, no charge was laid. He was, however, held for investigation, since he was carrying skeleton keys, a knife, and a hatchet, and told the police that during the last two weeks he had been walking the ties from North Bay south.

MACHINERY TO DO OFFICE WORK

(Special to The Examiner.)

ORANGE, N.J., August 12.—Thos. A. Edison to-day predicted the universal use of machinery in offices, replying to the speech of George M. Austin, who presented him with a commemorative silk flag at the forty-third anniversary convention of the invention of the Ediphone. Edison said that within a few years machines will do about everything in offices just as they do in the shops.

"Office workers will have better jobs and comparatively better pay the more they use automatic devices," he said.

FINAL GAME IN CITY LEAGUE

The final game for the City League championship will be played on Saturday afternoon between the Thistles and the C.G.E. The game will start at 3 o'clock. As this will be the final game the two teams each plan to trot out a good team.

MERCHANTS PICNIC IS POSTPONED

At a meeting of the Governing Board of the Retail Merchant's Association held last evening in the Board of Trade Chambers it was decided not to hold the proposed merchant's picnic on the last Thursday in the month owing to the visit of the Honorable Biggs, Minister of Streets, Roads and Highways, to the city on that date and the reception to be given him at the Exhibion Grounds.

August 26th., being the last of series of Thursday half-holidays for the majority of the stores, the dry-goods merchants have decided to close all day on the 26th.

MOTOR BOAT'S NARROW ESCAPE.
A Gananoque motor boat owner started out for a trip one day last week over to Grindstone, having with him several members of his family. There was a heavy wind blowing, but all went well till they were on the point of rounding Kalaria Island, when the steering rope broke. This is a most treacherous spot in a heavy windstorm, as it is exposed to the heavy waves rolling down though the open water, and besides there is a back wash, with which all are only too familiar. In a minute or two the boat was almost on the rocky shore, and several times would have been dashed on the rocks only for a young man on board who climbed out forward and kept shoving it off. Several times he fell in, but eventually succeeded in working the boat round to the north side of the island where calmer waters prevailed, and the break was repaired. Had the boat been twenty or thirty feet fatrher south, it would have fared badly. It was a narrow escape, and one which the occupants will long remember.

QUARTER MILLION IN FINES AT WINDSOR IN 6 MONTHS
WINDSOR, Aug. 12.—Search of Windsor Police Court records and shows close to $250,000 has been paid here in fines for violations of liquor laws of the Province within the past six months. This is an average of about $1,400 per. day, counting Sundays.

For the corresponding period the Detroit courts have levied fines totaling only $188,305 for offenses of all kinds. Windsor and its environs have a population of less than 76,000. Detroit has 1,000,000.

The division of the money collected in fines clears Windsor's name to a considerable extent, however.

Cases brought before Magistrate Miers by the Windsor Police during the six months brought fines of $39,500. Charges preferred by Provincial officers, who operate principally outside of this city, enriched the Provincial Treasury by $169,650.

NEW VOTERS' LIST BEING PREPARED

HOUSEHOLDERS MAY HELP ENUMERATORS BY LITTLE FORESIGHT.

Enumerators are now engaged in preparing the voters' list in this city for the next provincial elections. The franchise applies to all persons of the full age of twenty-one years who are British subjects and who have been residents of Ontario for nine months prior to May 1st of this year. Only residents of the city should be entered in the city's lists. This includes students who may be attending college, soldiers at Kingston or elsewhere and other persons who may fall within similar categories. A member of a family who is working in another community is regarded as living there and should be entered in the lists of that town.

The enumeration is being carried out under the direction of the assessors' department, and to facilitate the work it has been suggested that in each house a list of the eligible voters be prepared before for the enumerators. The list should give the names of all the members of the household who have reached the age of twenty-one and who fulfill the other conditions specified above, and also their occupations and the street address.

TALKING MACHINE NOT VALID FOR WILL MAKING
DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 12.—What he says he believes to be a "fraud proof" will has been made and filed in the office of the clerk of Polk county, Iowa, by Theodore Mantz, a Des Moines lawyer. Mr. Mantz dictated his will into a talking machine and had it recorded in wax.

At the end of the dictation C. H. Miller, a lawyer, and H. W. Brandt, a court reporter, testified into the machine they were witnesses to the "making" of the will, and spelled their names out in full as the witnesses. The record then was put on a machine and reproduced the voices. Being pronounced correct by Mr. Mantz he took it to the clerk's office, had the box containing it sealed in wax and filed.

Mr. Mantz has instructed Mrs. Mantz to take the case to the highest court of the country if the validity of the will should be questioned.

The will on a record is believed by its maker to be the first of its kind in the country. Lawyers say a possible objection to wills on talking machine records is an Iowa statute which says conveyances of property worth more than $200 must be in writing. Mantz says he will go before the next session of the Iowa legislature and endeavor to get a bill through which will legalize spoken wills when recorded as his is.

Mantz says he believes the future will see greater uses of talking machines and records, and in his opinion it would be much more difficult to "tamper with a spoken will than a written one.

ONTARIO CAR LICENSES ARE RESPECTED IN DELAWARE
Ontario car owners can now run their automobiles in the states of Delaware and Arkansas, without arousing the displeasure of the Customs authorities. Until this week, cars bearing Ontario license numbers were not admitted to these states, and their cars were not admitted to this province. But the people of Delaware and Arkansas heard much of the sights and beauty of this province, and clamored to be permitted to tour Ontario. They have succeeded, for the Customs Department of Ontario has been notified that Delaware and Arkansas have been added to the list of states with which Ontario has reciprocal arrangements for interstate traffic. There are still ten states, however, in which an Ontario automobile license is not recognized.

THE DIVINING ROD.
French to Determine if it is a Scientific Instrument.
(Canadian Press)
PARIS, Aug. 12.—The "divining rod" has figured so often in the location of water that the French Academy of Science has appointed a commission to determine whether the "rod" is a scientific instrument or a relic of superstition. A trade paper offered funds for the inquiry and the commission has been organized with a number of prominent scientists as members.

MORE STREET FIGHTING IN DUBLIN.
(Canadian Press.)
DUBLIN, August 11.—Yesterday's street fighting, in which one civilian was killed and another wounded, was caused by the refusal of a group of civilians to disperse when called upon to do so by an armed patrol.

The patrol was challenged and ordered to halt by the members of a group gathered around a bonfire, the statement says. The man who had shouted the challenge was kneeling in a firing position, and when the group ignored the patrol's order to disperse, it was fired upon.

HUNDREDS THROWN OUT OF WORK IN QUEBEC.
(Canadian Press.)
QUEBEC, August 11.—Quebec Arsenal practically closed its doors yesterday by the discharge of three hundred and fifty men who were working since the first hundred had been discharged. Addresses were left, however, in case the men are needed later.

After an inventory is made, the Arsenal will be completely closed.

The authorities of the Davis Shipbuilding Company are discharging numbers of their men daily.

Color-blindness is more common among educated than among uneducated people.

WEDDING BELLS

RORABECK—BLODGETT.
A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Trinity Methodist parsonage, on Tuesday, August 10th, by the Rev. F. E. Malott, at 3 o'clock, of Miss Margaret Blodgett, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blodgett, Smith Township, to Mr. Henry E. Rorabeck, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Rorabeck, of Norwood. The young couple, who were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, of Lakefield, left after the ceremony for a motor trip to Beaverton and western points and on their return will reside in Norwood.

The bride and groom have received many beautiful and useful presents from their friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome Calcutta ivory ladies' companion.

The groom has been on the staff of the Peterborough Examiner for the past year and a half.

The bride was gowned in navy blue crepe de chine embroidery over silk and white picture hat.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

(United Press.)

(NEW YORK, Aug. 12. — Prices were steady at the opening of the New York Stock Exchange here to-day. Opening prices were: U. S. Steeel 85 5-8, off 3-4; Baldwin 104 1-4, off 3-4; B. and O. 34 1-2, unchangd; Bethlehem B. 70, off 1-2; Anaconda 51 3-4, off 1-8; Ben. Motors 20 5-8, up 1-8; Reading 87 1-2, off 1-2; Vanadium 66 unchanged; Sinclair 25 7-8, unchanged; Pan-American Petroleum 80, off 1; Southern Pacific 90 3-4, off 3-8; Industrial Alcohol 80 1-4, off 1-2.

A recovery that set in near the end of the first hour continued through the second hour. Vanadium, after selling down to 64 5-8, recovered to 67 1-4. Steel Common touched 87.

The bear drive given added weight by the European situation, resulted in a decline from 2 to 4 points in the entire list during early trading. A rebound which got under way at the start of the second hour brought prices back just as rapidly as they had dropped.

EXCHANGE MARKET.

LIQUOR IN BARRELS IF HE WANTED IT
Fire Chief Shocked at the Open Way it Was Offered for Sale in Toronto.
WINDSOR, Aug. 12. — Clarence DeFields, Chief of Windsor Fire Department, in a statement here, declared that while in Toronto recently attending the Fire Chiefs' convention, he was "shocked" at the open manner in which liquor was being offered for sale. "I hadn't been there 24 hours before I had all kinds of liquor offered me, for a consideration. I could have had it in kegs or barrels, and one doesn't have to go into a back lane, to get it either," said DeFields.

DEPARTMENT LOOKS INTO MILL TRADE

A SCHEME TO BOOST AND MAINTAIN CLOTHING PRICES TO BE INVESTIGATED.

MILLS CLOSING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. — The Department of Justice is conducting an investigation into the textile industry to determine whether closing of cotton and woollen mills is due to a conspiracy by manufacturers to continue high prices; it was learned today at the office of Attorney-General Palmer.

Attorney-General Palmer a week ago sent into New England an agent who now is directing the investigation. District Attorneys have been instructed to give him all assistance.

Information not only in the Justice De partment, but also experts in the Bureau of Markets and the Commerce Department, officials said, indicates that manufacturers now are closing their mills to prevent stocks of cotton and woollen cloths from piling up. This would create a shortage and higher prices when the fall demand begins.

Study Mill Closings.

Officials here to-day were studying the closing of cotton mills at Fall River, Mass. Cotton mills in Georgia and North Caro lina are planning to reduce working hours next week, according to reports reaching officials of the Bureau of Markets.

The closing down process seems to be striking textile mills in all parts of the country. Thousands of workmen are being laid off or discharged.

Idle woollen spindles July 1, numbered 949,066, according to Commerce Department reports. Idle worsted spindles totalled 757,973.

The number of idle spindles has been increasing for more than a year. July 1 showed 42 per cent. idle, June 23.1 per cent., and May 1, 11 per cent.

Manufacturers say they are forced to close for lack of orders.

A Rochester, N.Y., ready-to-wear clothing maker recently sent a circular to all retail dealers stating he would be unable this fall to supply certain kinds of clothing. This, he said, was because he was unable to obtain cloth. This manufacturer named a big woollen manufacturing concern which recently closed its doors for "lack of orders."

The clothing manufacturer said he had previously placed large orders with this same wool cloth manufacturer.

Cotton cloth manufacturers in the past year paid enormous dividends.

Several Fall River mills paid more than 10 per cent. for the four month period just ended, according to reports reaching officials here. During the preceding nine months the same mills paid a total of 25 per cent.

MAN HUNT STILL BEING CONDUCTED

(Canadian Press.)

FERNIE, B.C., Aug. 13.— Following disclosures made by Tom Basseff, bandit captured at Pincher Creek, Alta., that Alex Arloff, alleged leader of the trio who held up C.P.R. train No. 63, had chosen Crow's Nest Pass westerly route as a means of escape, the man hunt is being vigorously conducted from this schene by civic, provincial, Royal Canadian Mounted and railway police forces. An armed man, closely tallying with the description given by Basseff, has been seen near Crow's Nest.

Systematic search of residences in the foreign quarters of Fernie and Michel, have proved unavailing. Arloff is known to have many friends in this vicinity.

Accompany Delegates

PEACE REPRESENTATIVES ON THE WAY TO MINSK.

(Canadian Press.)

WARSAW, Aug. 13.—Polish Commissioners with authority to negotiate preliminary peace treaty expect to leave this city early Saturday morning to meet Russian Soviet delegates in evening on road to Brest-Litovsk Foreign Office announced to-day. At request of Bolshevik authorities British American newspaper correspondents will accompany delegates. Poles will probably be taken to Minsk where formal peace conference is expected to take place.

Russian Soviet forces from east and north east of city have reached point twenty miles from Warsaw. State of Siege has been declared here by military governor.

Women Aid Army.

Every effort is being made by the Polish Government to support the army against the Bolsheviki at gate of the capital. Women are playing prominent in all activities many society leaders supervising side walk lunch stands at busy corners.

Responsibiliy for continuance of fighting in Poland was to-day placed upon Russian Soviet Government by Prince Eugene Sapieha, Polish Foreign Minister sent to Sir Eric Drummond, general Secretary of League of Nations.

Polish Successes on Southern front where Russians have been pushing for Lemburg are reported in last night's official communique. Polish cavalry and infantry have ousted Bolsheviki from Radziechoff Lopatyr, Stanystavezyk and Toporoff. These towns are in district northwest of Lemburg and to west and northwest of Brody, on old Galician Border.

GOOD STROKE OF BUSINESS ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

COME AND GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH AT P. BLACK'S STORE TO-MORROW.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Black, instead of resting from labor on Civic Holiday, made good use of their time and money by making a business trip to Toronto. It proved to be a lucky kind of a trip and paid well for their thinking about business before pleasure. They report that after touring the big city for snaps they succeeded in bringing home with them a number of good lines of Ladies' Skirts and Dresses and other attractive goods bought for cash at bargain prices hard to match. Shoppers who realize that "A dollar saved is a dollar earned" will have a chance tomorrow to choose from this lucky purchase whatever suits their fancy. "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good" so the public of Peterborough will reap the benefit of Mr. and Mrs. Black's lucky Civic Holiday trip to Toronto.

A BROADWAY RAID TRAPS RACING MEN

DETECTIVES WITH REVOLVERS CLIMB FIRE ESCAPE OF NEW YORK THEATRE.

FIND RACING CHARTS

NEW YORK, August 13. — A messenger boy at Forty-fifth street and Broadway, left off scratching his ear and wondering what was in the rush message he carried yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock when he saw two men come cautiously around the corner and set foot upon the Forty-fifth street fire escape of the New York Theatre building. The messenger boy knew his Times Square, and he recognized the two men as Detectives Charles McGovern and V. J. Schoenholz of the Special Service Squad, and he was convinced that they offered far greater possibilities of excitement and diversion than either his ear or the message.

He greeted them casually as friends and equals but they paid no attention to him. He watched them with absorbed interest as they climbed slowly up the fire escape, while some one somewhere fretted and fumed over a delayed telegram. The detectives stopped at the first landing of the fire escape and looked down. The messenger boy yelled:

"Hey! Whatcha doin'? Pinchin' somebody?"

"S-s-s-sh!"

Admonished the detectives. "Shut up!"

Here's the Thrilling Part.

The messenger boy's mouth closed slowly, as if it operated on rusty hinges, but it flew wide open again as the detectives stopped on the 5th floor landing, peeked into a window and then drew two huge revolvers. Then they squatted down under the window ledge, revolvers in hand. The messenger boy was enthralled and he looked about to find someone to share the glad tidings of excitement with. He spied a friend crossing the street half a block away.

"Hey, Jimmy!" he yelled. "Lookit the two dicks on the fire escape wit' guns!"

Jimmy looked and then made haste to get closer. A taxicab driver looked up to see what Jimmy was looking at, and he deserted his car and stationed himself under the fire escape. Half a dozen other people then stopped to see what the taxicab chauffeur saw and then fifty others stopped to see what the dozen saw, and then a hundred looked to see what the fifty saw, and after that it was merely a question of addition. Two minutes after the messenger boy had yelled the tidings a crowd of several hundred people milled and pushed about the corner of Broadway and Forty-fifth street getting in the way of traffic and enjoying themselves hugely.

The crowd had not the slightest idea what they were waiting for. All they could see was two men squatting on the fire escape, their guns by this time restored to their pockets. But as a matter of fact, Detectives McGovern and Schoenholz were participating in a raid on an alleged poolroom on the fifth floor of the theatre building. While they climbed up the fire escape and drew the huge crowd Detectives John Cordes and John Cronin walked up the stairs and rapped at a door on the 5th floor which proclaimed itself the office of a film company.

There was no answer to the rap, so Cordes shoved his foot through the glass door and then he and Cronin bounded into the room. They said later that they found inside a crowd of twenty four badly frightened men and walls and tables covered with racing charts and betting slips. The detectives had their guns drawn when they entered, and the twenty four tried to rush out by way of the windows of the fire escape, but Detectives McGovern and Schoenholz rose above the ledge and covered them with their revolvers, giving the alleged gamblers a surprise and the rapidly growing crowd in the street below a thrill.

Prisoners Pass in Review.

Cordes guarded the prisoners while Cronin slipped out and telephoned the West Forty-seventh street Station and in a few minutes two patrol wagons clanged through the street, and backed up to the theatre building. By this time the crowd was so large that it jammed Broadway from curb to curb, and traffic was in hopeless tangle. Traffic men from several blocks up and down came and straightened things out but it took them half an hour to do it.

After considerable difficulty with the crowd the detectives loaded the prisoners into the wagons and sent them to the West Forty-seventh St. Station, where 22 of them were then charged with disorderly conduct. The other two were charged with keeping rooms for gambling purposes. They gave their names as Philip Lang of 126 West Forty-seventh street, and Edwin McLane of 124 West Forty seventh street. The police say that Lang is in reality Philip Leighton, who is well known in sporting circles hereabouts. They were baled out and the others were sent to the night court, where they were discharged.

COMING BACK TO FACE ACCUSERS

Dewitt C. Elwood, Charged With $100,000 Rosenthal Robbery.

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—In a despatch from Miami, Florida, last night, it was stated that Dewitt C. Elwood, wanted in Toronto in connection with the recent robbery at Rosenthal's jewelry store, King street west ,and who was arrested early in the week by the Miami police, is on his way to Toronto with his attorney, to surrender himself. Elwood, the despatch adds, was arrested, then released on request of British Vice-Consul Hubbard, when he appeared in court in connection with habeas corpus proceedings.

"HIGHWAYMEN"

The effect of the almost daily reports of hold-ups in the country districts is shown in the exaggeration of an incident which occurred recently near Scott's Corners when it was reported that an attempt was made to hold a tourist up there and that he escaped by driving into the swamp at the side of the road and passing the car of the alleged highwaymen.

As a matter of fact the car of the "highwaymen" was that of Mr. W. S. Dodds, local C.P.R. agent and contained Mr. and Mrs. Dodds and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carey of Antrim street. They were returning from Cobourg and in the swamp near Scott's Corners, Mr. Carey noticed smoke issuing from his pockets and upon investigating found that a box of matches had caught fire. He alighted from the car to extinguish them and was turning his pockets inside out when a large car came up behind. The driver of this car evidently thought that Mr. Carey was turning his pockets inside out at the command of some one who was covering him with a revolver and at once speeded up, swerved partly off the corduroy road and dashed past Mr. Dodds' car with one set of wheels on the road and the other in ditch, thus tilting his car at an angle of more than 45 degrees.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE GRAND

OPENING OF THE THEATRICAL SEASON.

Preparing for the coming theatrical season and in order to make the house in keeping with the high class entertainments which will be given during the year the management of the Grand Opera House has completely overhauled the Grand and instituted a number of changes both inside and out.

The entrance to the theatre has been made particularly attractive by its transformation from the former coloring into a brilliant color scheme of mahogany and white. The lobby has been retouched with a color scheme of grey and pink, while new sign boards give comprehensive reviews of the attractions to come.

The Interior.

In the interior at an expenditure of $1600 the management has installed a number of the later day theatrical devices. On the stage alone $800 was spent on stage ropes for handling such big shows as "Hello Alexander" and provision has been made for cyclorama drops which will enable the house to book such productions as are shown at the Manhattan Theatre or any of the New York shows.

The entire heating and ventilation system has been completely changed. Having lent a sympathetic ear to complaints any patrons have had during the past seasons, Mr. W. L. Phillips, resident manager for the Trans-Canadian Theatres, Ltd., spared neither money or ingenuity in ensuring exemption from any repetition of fault finding. The health and comfort of the theatre-going public has been the foremost thought with the management in remodelling the theatre. Added to this the electrical system has been overhauled, resulting in much improved lighting effects.

The Shows.

The first attraction since the transformation of the Grand will be "Girl of the Sea," a wonderful photo drama presented by J. E. Williamson, who also produced "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The theatrical season proper, however, opens on Thursday, August 19th with McIntyre and Heath's "Hello Alexander," coming driect from a sixteen months' run in New York. In this the cyclorama drops will be used for the first time.

TO RECOVER THE PROFIT OF VICTIMS

PONZI RECEIVES A LETTER THREATENING HIS LIFE— POLICE GUARD HOME.

NOTES FLOW IN

Special to Examiner.

BOSTON, August 13. — Charles Ponzi, whose financial house built on shifting sands tumbled, to-day received a letter threatening his life, he told the police officials. The letter was written by a man who said that he had been trailing Ponzi for 12 years. The police believe the writer may have been one who suffered as a result of Ponzi's financial operations in Montreal just 12 years ago. The writer threatened to "get" Ponzi very soon.

Ponzi remained at his home in Lexington with his wife and mother today. Heavily armed guards were stationed at all points about the grounds of the estate. It was apparent that Ponzi fears an attempt on his life by infuriated investors and he is taking no chances by appearing in public.

Thousands of Ponzi's notes flooded Attorney-General Allen's office at the state house to-day. The flood of notes, is said to total at least $64,000-000, was released by the frightened investors as soon as Ponzi was arrested. The authorities compiling a list of these notes were swamped. Customers of Chas. Ponzi, the frenzied financier, who were paid 50 per cent intereset on money invested, may have their profits taken from them.

State officials said to-day that immediate steps would be taken to recover the huge sums paid in interest so that the principal of the other creditors who suffered in the crash may be paid in part at least.

GOV'T CONTROL OF GRAIN A FARCE

(Canadian Press.)

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—Austria has abolished government control of her domestic grain supply after a bitter political fight in which the advanced parties were defeated by an overwhelming vote of the combined Christian Socialist-Groose Deutsch parties. Government control, it was alleged, was a "farce."

While the grain of Austria is negligible in the world's supply and but a fraction of her own need, passage of the decontrol act is interesting as a popular demonstration of the line of demarkation between the two great political factions.

Reactionary Measure.

The economic experts of the Socialist wing declared the decontrol act a reactionary measure in favour of the agrarian element and predicted that bread prices would rise because of it.

Advocates of the measure, on the other hand, insisted that in spite of laws the former withheld his foodstuffs from the government requisition and sold to the "left hand" trade, which in turn profited by the risk they undertook and ballooned prices. These men say that decontrol means a normal adjustment of prices to demand and the sale of breadstuffs being legalized the farmer and miller will again enter open competition in a fair market.

The Decontrol Act brought the resignation of Food Controller Lowenfeld-Russ. Under his leadership the Social Democrats fought the bill stage by stage. In its final shape the bill provides that when the individual farmer has given up three-tenths of his crop the rest of it is freed. The bill also abolishes milling permits.

A NEW THEATRE FOR PETERBORO

REPRESENTATIVES LOOKING OVER SEVERAL SITES.

In the course of a few months Peterboro may have one new theatre and possibly two and representatives of the different circuits have been in the city recently looking over a number of lots in the neighbourhood of he Customs House. Some weeks ago it was expected that the Trans Canada Theatres the present owners of the Grand would take over the corner of Charlotte and George streets, the present site of Moore's Monumental Works, in which case the Pantage's Vaudeville Circuit would probably have taken over the present Grand At a later date representatives of the Paramount Theatrical Circuit have looked over a number of the lots available for theatrical purposes.

DEPUTATION TO GO TO ENGLAND

(Canadian Press.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—Nothing is printed in Dublin newspapers about the departure of a deputation of Ulster men for London to see the Premier to advocate immediate offer of Dominion Home Rule for Ireland, despite the fact that news of its departure was circulated to English reporters by Dublin Caste Publicity Department.

It is reported that the delegation is headed by S. C. Davidson, chairman of the directorate of Cirocco Engineering Works, and one of the largest subscribers to Ulster party funds who, like many other industrial leaders in Ulster, finds his work seriously threatened by Sinn Fein boycott, of Ulster products.

Labourites Levy Taxes

WILL NOT ASSIST IN WAR AGAINST SOVIET RUSSIA.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Opposiion of British Labor to assist in war against Soviet Russia was voiced to-day with extraordinary vehemence at special conference here representing all elements of workers.

Resolutions adopted "hailed with satisfaction Russian governments declaration in favor of complete independence of Poland", and pledged British Labor party to resist any form of military intervention against Soviet Russia.

Meeting approved action of triple alliance of labor organizations in forming council of action to deal with situation arising from governments policy towards war between Russia and Poland and it recommended a levy of half penny upon every member of party to raise fund for requirements of council.

By its resolution, council of action was instructed to remain in being until it secured guarantees that British forces would not be used in support of Poland, General Wrangel or any other military or naval effort against Russia second, or withdrawal of British naval forces blockading Russia; and third, recognition of Soviet government and establishment of unrestriced rading and commercial relations between Great Britain and Russia.

JAMES O'NEILL, ACTOR DIES IN NEW LONDON

Famous For His Stage Presentation of "The Count of Monte Cristo."

NEW LONDON, Conn.— James O'Neill ,the actor, died at the Lawrence Memorial Associated Hospital early to-day. He had been ill for two months at the hospital suffering from an internal disorder. His wife and sons were at his bedside. He was 79 years of age.

Mr. O'Neill had been in a state of coma for a month. He was left in a weakened condition nearly two years ago after he was struck by an automobile in New York.

CLEAN UP WHISKEY TRADE.

BOWMANVILLE, Aug. 12.— Efforts are being made by the authorities to clean up the whiskey business by bootleggers in this town. Police Magistrate W. M. Horsey sent an Oshawa man named Thomas down to Cobourg jail for three months in default of payment of a $200 fine, for having a bottle of whiskey in his pocket on a Bowmanville street. Yesterday the Magistrate fined a local teamster $200 and costs for selling two bottles of whiskey at $5 per bottle. The fine was paid. A peculiar circumstance is that nearly all recent liquor fines have been paid in $20 bills of a certain bank.

THREE HORSES STRUCK DEAD.

CHATHAM, August 12.—Three valuable horses and one cow were killed during an electrical storm that swept over the vicinity of Dresden on Tuesday afternoon last. Three men standing in a barn, in which two of the horses were killed, received severe shocks.

AGGRESSIVE POLICY FOR THE FRENCH

ENTENTE CORDIALE WILL HAVE TO BE REVAMPED—EXCITEMENT IN PARIS.

GERMANS BACK REDS?

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Aug. 13.—The resignation of President Deschanel is imminent as a result of France's new and aggressive anti-Bolshevik policy, and the consequent diplomatic misunderstanding with Great Britain, it was reported to-day in high circles.

In such an event it was considered likely that Premier Millerand would be elected President and M. Briand would be appointed Premier. The press to-day generally declared recognition of Wrangel's anti-Bolshevik government by France was a mere incident in the gradual divergence between the Russian policies of France and Great Britain. This divergence has existed for months, the newspapers say, and has reached a point where immediate reorganization of the Entente Cordiale upon a new and solid basis is necessary. Britain and France to-day were diplomatically negotiating in an effort to smooth out their differences with regard to Russia. The Foreign Office let it be known that the points under discussion were the Soviet peace terms to Poland, which Britain advised the Poles to accept and which France advised them to reject. The French recognition of Wrangel and whether it was justified and what is to be done if Minsk armistice parleys fail to bring about cessation of hostilities. Paris was much excited to-day over the Franco-British clash. The news that Britain had sent a note on the subject increased the agitation, as the man on the street believed the situation must be very serious to warrant such a step. The French appear firmly convinced of the opinion that Germany is backing the Bolshevik drive on Poland. A report from Swiss military sources to-day said that Ludendorff, former commander of Germany's armies, was giving the Russians tactical advice right along and that Germany was sending supplies directly to the Bolshevik.

G.W.V.A. TRAVEL TO OSHAWA TO-MORROW

The League Champions of the Peterboro Football Association will travel to Oshawa to-morrow to play the return fixture with the Champions of the Oshawa League. Two weks ago the G.W.V.A. team defeated the Oshawa by the odd goal, but the Oshawa Team intends squaring the honours to-morrow.

Arrangements are being made by Mr. Piggott, Secretary of G.W.V.A. Football Team to get a full list of names of all players and supporters so as to complete arrangements. All those who intend going to Oshawa please inform Mr. Piggott G.W.V.A. Hall.

INLAND REVENUE COLLECTOR RETIRES

Thomas Grimson, for thirty-nine years one of the most efficient officers of the Department of Inland Revenue, and latterly collector for the division of Kingston, was granted leave of absence on August 1st in anticipation of his retirement. W. H. Montgomery, an officer of the district for many years, is acting collector. Mr. Grimason was born in Kingston, and entered the service in 1881. He served as an officer for a number of years at Windsor and Kingston, and on the retirement of the late C. T. Dickson in 1912, was made collector for the division of Kingston, which office he filled with conspicuous ability. Mr. Grimason as an official, and a citizen, was known for his integrity, industry and ability, and his retirement from official life is a matter of keen regret in the business community.

TWO AUTOMOBILTS IN A COLLISION

The Smaller Car Was Slightly Damaged.

At 10.30 this morning E. Freeman driving a large car ran into a smaller car driven by Mr. Lafferty of Douro and owned by J. Leahy of Douro, on Simcoe street opposite McConnel's real estate agency, striking it on the righ front wheel the steering rods and radius rods were bent and the impact caused several leaks to suddenly develop in the radiator. Freeman had the right of way. Lafferty states that he was turning into the lane back of the Dominion Bank and couldn't see Freeman coming up Simcoe street.

O.T.A. AMENDMENTS NOT CONSIDERED BY COMMITTEE

TORONTO, ug. 12.—Premier Drury left last night for Guelph. Before leaving he replied to criticism in regard to the failure of the committee appointed by the Legislature to consider and suggest alterations in the Ontario Temperance Act in order to secure its enforcement. The Premier stated many members of this committee were out of town and that it was almost impossible to get them together. However, he thought that Attorney-General Raney was engaged in enforcing the act in every way possible, according to the legislation passed by the House.

THE JOKE ON HIM.

At Crest View, Fla., a convicted murderer, on the scaffold, said to the 600 assembled spectators: "The joke's on me, folks, the funeral's up to you" Then the crowd subscribed enough money to pay for his funeral expenses.

GOOD HEALTH
ENO'S FRUIT SALT

The ENO Symbol of Happiness.

As the lion stamped upon your silver denotes the purity of the metal, so this symbol, wherever you see it, betokens the goodness of ENO, which ministers unfailingly to health and well-being.

ENO's FRUIT SALT

Its gentle blood-purifying action, which cleanses the system and renews health and vigour, makes ENO a health drink of supreme value in summer time. In addition to its medicinal properties Eno, with its appetising sparkle and agreeable after-taste, will prove, even in the hottest weather, a cooling and refreshing thirst-quencher.

The words "Fruit Salt" are our registered Trade Mark, and have been known for half a century to mean the preparation of J. C. ENO, LTD., "Fruit Salt" Works, London, S.E.

CHINK CAUGHT WITH COCAINE

ARRESTED AT WINDSOR WITH PARCELS OF DRUG FOR SALE.

WINDSOR, Aug. 12. — John C. Leon, Chinese, said to be from Toronto, was arrested here by Detective Sergeant McNabb, charged with stealing a watch from George Lee, another Chinese.

He was sitting on the ground when found on McDougall street, and refused to get up. He was assisted to his feet, however ,and on the ground under him were found several packages of cocaine tablets ready for sale. When brought to Police Headqaurters he gave a fictitious address, but the officers finally located his room in the Crawford House. There they found several other packages of the drug, as well as some liquor.

Leon was brought before Magistrate Mier on three charges—stealing the watch, offering drugs for sale illegally and violating the Ontario Temperance Act by having liquor in his possession in other than a private dwelling. He was remanded.

$50,000,000 FOR MODERN N.Y. DOCKS

COST OF CONSTRUCTION WILL PAY FOR ITSELF IN FOUR YEARS.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, August 13. — The greatest water-front improvement here in 50 years, involving the removal of 32 antiquated piers along the Hudson River, and the erection in their stead of 18 new and vastly larger piers of latest design, has been planned by Murray Hulbert, commissioner of docks, and approved by the Sinking Fund Commission. The improvement will cost $50,000,000 and will require 10 years to complete. Work is expected to be started next spring.

This with the proposed vehicular tunnel to New Jersey is expected to solve New York's west side dock problem. The new water-front system is to consist of wide piers, slips and marginal streets, with warehouses and tracks where available in the rear.

"The cost of construction is expected to pay for itself within four years' time," according to Deputy Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove. "A permanent sea wall has been built along the entire stretch, no rock will be encountered to make a depth of 40 feet and most of the seal estate is owned by the city.

Electric Cranes.

"These new piers will increase the pier storage area 50 per cent if they are made only one story," said Mr. Cosgrove. "But because of the high value of this water-front it will be uneconomical to stop even at two-storeys. They will have the most modern appliances for rapid handling of freight, including electric cranes, helpers and hoists of all kinds.

"The present lower North River water-front is just what it was in 1871. Its slips are so narrow there is not room in them at once for two big steamships. To afford relief the War Department has three times permitted the pier headlines to extend further outshore. The more these narrow piers were brought out the worse the slips became, because boats have been continually growing bigger."

Eighteen Modern Piers.

"The new plan," said President F. H. La Guardia of the Board of Aldermen, "means that New York is going to have 18 piers from 950 to 1,025 feet in length in place of the 32 dilapidated structures which are a disgrace to the city. Between each pier there will be a maximum space of 300 feet and a minimum of 275 feet. Two of the new piers will be 100 feet wide, seven 150 feet and nine 125 feet."

Along New York's 578 miles of water front the Dock Commission already has under way other projects under contracts amounting to $20,000,000.

STRANGLE THE WORLD BY IRON DISCIPLINE

TROTZKY OUTLINES BENEVOLENT COMMUNIST PROGRAM AT THE MOSCOW INTERNATIONALE.

MOSCOW, Aug. 13.—The All-Russian Central Executive Committee of the Moscow Soviet and the members of the Council of Trades Unions assembled in the opera house here on Sunday for the valedictory meeting marking the close of third Internationale.

Leon Trotzky, the Soviet War Minister, in a review of the world, said the great war had made clear the need of a new social status. The people's belief in the moral aims of the fight against the central powers, he added, had been shattered by the Versailles peace. German Imperialism had been destroyed only to give place to a new Imperialism. President Wilson came to Europe with his fourteen points as a messiah, only to discover that the British fleet dominated the world: that the Baltic Sea, the "English Gulf" and the Baltic States were British Colonies.

Poland, added Trotzky, had become a French dependency and the French policy was to exploit both Russia and Germany. Unless France succeeds, her position would be no better than that of the conquered countries, the War Minister declared.

The meeting terminated with the singing of the "Internationale" and the "Carmagnole." The net result of the congress has been the organization of a world Communist party with a uniform tactical program and iron proletarian discipline.

The panel embroideries in rich Oriental colorings are featured in new models.

COULD'T WALK FOR TWO MONTHS

EDWARD LAPLUME PRAISES TANLAC FOR RESTORING HEALTH—GAINS TWENTY-FIVE POUNDS.

When Edward Laplume came into Liggett's Drug Store, Winnipeg, the other day, he was so full of the good news that he could not refrain from telling the Tanlac representative all about it.

Mr. Laplume is a packer employed by the Thomas Davidson Co., resides at 62 Ritchot street, St. Boniface, and he and his wife have lived in Winnipeg all their lives. It was certainly an extraordinary story which he had to tell, and we cannot do better than to relate it in his own words.

"My wife hasn't known what health is for the past ten years. Indigestion has been her great trouble. She never seemed to be able to digest anything properly, not even the lightest kind of food. The pressure of the gas which formed after eating was so great that it caused palpitation of the heart. She often used to say that it felt as though a hammer was thumping in her chest. Frequently at night this gas would so trouble her that she was afraid to lie down for fear of choking and she would sit on the side of the bed for hours. In fact life for her was a perfect misery.

"Then last fall she was stricken down with pneumonia and had to be sent to the hospital where she stayed for four weeks. When she came out she was actually nothing but skin and bone, and was so pale and white that she looked like a ghost. She was so weak that she could hardly hold a book in her and, and for two months she could not walk. Her stomach trouble bothered her as much as ever, and I honestly did not think that she would live.

"She tried all kinds of remedies; in fact I bought her everything that friends recommended, but nothing did her any good until she started taking Tanlac. Well, sir, I never would have believed that any medicine could have affected such a change in any woman. Why, it has positively transformed my wife. It seemed to settle her stomach trouble right away. She can eat a real good meal now without any bad after effects. With the very first bottle she started to pick up, and she has actually gained twenty-five pounds in weight. The color has come back to her cheeks, and to-day she is as strong and well as ever she was in her life. She can do every bit of her own housework now, without the least trouble, and at night she goes to bed and sleeps like a child till morning. I simply can't tell you how grateful I am for what Tanlac has done for my wife, and I take pleasure in giving you this statement."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock zy A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son. (Adv.)

A POTATO VINE.

Charles Vosler, Watertown, boasts of a potato vine that has all the farm experts of that community of retired farmers awed and puzzled. Mr. Vosler's potato plant bears its "fruit above ground. Instead of developing on the roots under ground, as self-specting pottaoes should do, the Vosler vine sprouts its tubers among the leaves. He exhibnted two vines in the village, one bearing three potatoes and the other one fully developed potato.

Voice Of The People

GOOD BYE, BOYS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The Mail and Empire gives the following verbatim report of Hon. Mr. Meighen's speech at Stirling, which was a frost. He says:

"The old party alignments are pretty well grown over now. Six turbulent years have done the work. The old battlements are more or less destroyed. There are still, I know, voices tuned to the old music, but the great mass of men and women are thinking and must think along other lines."

So the little man says the Conservative party has got to quit. What for? What have we done, boys? It reminds me of a man and his wife I heard debating about fifty years ago on the street corner at Tom Chambers's. He said to her at last: "Come on with me. "And wheer are ye on with me. "And where are ye goin'?" says she. "It's none of your do as I tell ye."

ONLOOKER.

MISTAKES, OR FAULT FINDING.

—Sir: We have had a good deal of it lately, both through the press, also privately. We all appear to be experts at it. The aldermen appear to be ready to admit there have been mistakes. Why, we all make mistakes, and we sometimes, it is to be feared, make the sad mistake of not seeking Wisdom in the best place. James 1:5.

But there is another side. I am vain enough to believe that from a worldly standpoint we are fairly intelligent. Now we had fully 20,000 of a population to choose from (male and female) and surely we are selfish enough to pick the best in our own opinion. And now we criticize, and find fault, perhaps to an extreme. Is it wise—does it do any good?

Now, about 60 or 70 years ago it was decided to run a railway from this city or town, as it then was, to Cobourg, and to do that they had to bridge and cross Rice Lake. Yes—and they did it, and I had a ride in the train with my sister across.

The aldermen or city fathers of that day may not have engineered or directed it, but surely they were a consenting party.

On that road between here and Hiawatha there were two overhead bridges; and two and a half miles (or thereabout) this side of the lake there was quite a rise in the ground, and cutting through that rise they struck a spring of water, which was a decided benefit, and about half a mile south of that they struck I think the finest gravel pit in the township, and from that to the lake it was nearly all low or swamp land.

How interesting it was to a boy to see the shanties appear and the laborers with one horse carts draw this gravel and make the road to the south.

Now, that bridge stood for some time, but when the Prince made a visit here, and coming from Cobourg, it was not thought advisable to allow him to cross the lake in or on the train, so he took the steamer at Harwood and then took the train again at Hiawatha.

Yes, the men of that day undertook a second time to force a bridge across the lake but finally had to give it up, after great expense.

Now we say a good deal about one bridge—is it all wise or is it fair to the men. The bridge must go on.

CHILDREN'S SHELTER FOR HALIBURTON

PLENTY OF WORK FOR CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY IN THIS DISTRICT.

LINDSAY, Aug. 12. — Since the appointment of Mr. Schofield, of Wilberforce as the representative of the Children's Aid Society in Haliburton County, the work which naturally falls on the shoulders of this Society has been carefully investigated and well looked after.

It is understood that there is great need for such a man in the above county where many young mothers have met prematurg deaths because of the want of an institution where they could receive assistance during the hours of sickness. And it is estimated that many young lives of boys and girls and babies have been lost because of the lack of prompt medical attention.

With a view to alleviating this distress a new Shelter is to be opened at Haliburton, or some other place in the county where the needy cases can be looked after. Very often the settlers in the northern part of the country find it a great hardship to have to come to the hospital at Lindsay, or to send for a doctor who lives miles and miles away. In some cases it has been known where medical assistance has been put off from day to day because of the expense, and where lives have been lost as a result.

CADET CAMP OPENS AUG. 26TH

BOYS WILL CAMP AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS.

It has been decided that the Cadet Camp will begin on Thursday, Aug. 26 at the Exhibition grounds.

All members of the Collegiate and Public school cadet corps and any boys from the Public or Separate schools between the ages of 12 and 18 are eligible to attend.

Each boy must provide himself with a cup, plate, knife, fork and spoon.

It is requested that all boys expecting to attend should, as soon as possible, notify Capt. C. E. Jamieson, Morrisburg, Ont., so that sufficient accommodation may be provided.

Attaining a length of as much as 30 feet at times, the anaconda is a native of Brazil and Guiana.

HAVE YOU GALL STONES WITHOUT KNOWING IT?

Not just a few but a large part of Canada's population have. Yours may just cause you stomach trouble or headaches, indigestion or pain in the side. Others suffer with their bowels, bile and other nervousness. Some acute cases have all these symptoms. If you have any or all of them make up your mind now to get a bottle of "Marlatt's Specific."

From all over the Dominion letters are constantly arriving expressing gratitude and unbounded joy for the return of health after using Marlatt's. These are at your disposal any time.

Marlatt's Specific is a thorough system cleaner ,yet perfectly harmless and can be taken by young or old. One dose will be sufficient to convince you of its merits. REV. ROBERT KNOWLES DIED YESTERDAY

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—An old figure in the ranks of the Presbyterian ministry passed away yesterday in the person of the Rev. Robert Knowles whose death occurred at his late residence, 57 Howland avenue. He was in his 85 year, and served in all about thirty-two years in the ministry. Born in Ireland in 1835, he came to the United States with his parents in 1840, and about 10 years later the family settled in Canada. He received his education at the Simcoe High School and at Knox College. His first charge was at Ostrey, Ontario, from where he went to Alliston and then to Ramsay congregation, of Lanark County, where he had his main charge. He retired from active service about twenty years ago. His wife, formerly Miss Francis Tyner, of Toronto, predeceased him twelve years ago.

He is survived by two sons, Leonard Robert E. Knowles and Hon. Wm. E. Knowles, of Moose Jaw, Provincial Secretary of Saskatchewan. Three daughters also survive: Mrs. Julia Boyd, of Simcoe, wife of Dr. Boyd, and Miss Kate and Miss Fannie, at home.

The deceased frequently visited Peterborough during his ministry.

MINISTER KILLED.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., August 12.—Rev. H. S. Bagnall, of Medicine Hat, organiser for the Lethbridge Federal constituency for the Prohibition forces for the coming Referendum, was killed yesterday afternoon south of Bow Island, when his motor car overturned on a bad piece of road. He was dead when found. He was a Nova Scotian.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, AUGUST 13TH, 1920.

A NATION OF SPORTS.

The Peterborough Athletic Association originated with a movement by the Board of Trade, from which it enjoys active cooperation wherever practicable. That the Board of Trade should take a decided interest in the promotion of sports is only in keeping with that institution's aims to advance the welfare of the community in general. The Board of Trade is a body composed of several sections, each with a given purpose, industrially, commercially, professionally, and covering every interest in the city. This section in the encouragement of sports is a new one, and its objective is commendable

Sport, good, clean healthy sport, is an annex of social life, which all wide-awake progressive communities foster and support. Sport develops a type of physical manhood which is the hope of a nation; it also gives a race that spirit of fair-play so characteristic of British peoples, inculcates the will, and stimulates that strength of mind and bodily vigor, which dares to do and suffer in national and home interests. Remember, it was those armies of now immortalized British sportsmen—from shop counter, artizan's bench, universities, schools—who blocked the Germans' road to Calais and Paris, eventually saving this world from Hun domination. And when we say British, we include those hardy sons of Canada, in most of whom the sporting instinct has a place, measure full, heaped up and over-flowing.

Turing again to the Board of Trade, it is quite consistent that that body should interest themselves in sports and sporting needs. One of their objectives is to assist in every way possible in this city's industrial growth and expansion. Possibly without one single exception, "What means for sport and recreation can Peterborough offer?" is a query in the questionaire of industries seeking new locations. For the heads of big manufacturing concerns recognize that one of the attractions of a desirable industrial centre is sport. The average working man these days looks for and insists on it wherever he chooses to make his home. Here, as elsewhere, without sporting and clean recreation available as one of the factors which makes for a supply of contented labor equal to the demand, we fall down in those location advantages sought by the average enquiring industrial officials.

Sport has experienced considerable impetus in Peterborough this year; may its encouragement and loyal support continue in that wholehearted manner which makes for a healthier citizenship and a physically-perfect manhood.

MENNONITES AND CITIZENSHIP

The Privy Council has quite properly dismissed the Mennonite application to appeal from the decision of the Manitoba courts, which upheld that province's rights to insist on conformity in the School Attendance Act of 1916. These Mennonites have settled in thousands in Manitoba, and other western provinces, and while a desirable class of settlers, as European foreigners go, from a point of industry, still they wish to retain their nationality and language, and reject public school attendance by their children, as insisted on by the laws of Manitoba province. Since coming to Canada they have acquired thousands of acres of land, vast herds of stock, and have also accumulated considerable capital. Therefore as an industrious and thrifty race no fault can be found with them, other than that they decline to assimilate Canadian characteristics, and hold out for the right to educate their children in their own language. Early this year trouble between Manitoba's government and the Mennonites, grew to an acute stage, and obtained wide publicity. As a result of this, these people were invited to settle in the Western States, where they were assured freedom in the exercise of their own peculiar national characteristics without interference in the way of language or education. Ostensibly they acepted the invitation, although in reality but comparatively few left for the States, where, we understand, they are not now very welcome unless willing to subscribe unreservedly to the laws of the State which allow of their settlement.

Canada welcomes desirable settlers on her superabundance of untilled land, but no matter how industrious, thriving and property-acquiring a race of people may be, unless they give promise of loyal Canadian citizenship, subscribing to her laws and adjusting themselves to our conditions, Canada should deport them to whence they came. The Germans make both industrious and thrifty settlers, but both Canada and the States, in the late war, sustained a rude awakening to the embarrassening experience that far too many of them, even unto the third and fourth generation, were at the beck and call of their Fatherland. Above all things Canada must maintain and foster her statehood, and if alien immigration is to be welcome within our gates it should be of such a character as will eventually lose its cast-off national identity in loyal citizenship of the land of its adoption.

And surely from France and Britain, who gave this glorious country try its first pioneers of the world-respected nation into which Canadians have developed, there are enough and to spare of desirable immigrants, without catering to Mennonites or any other race, who evidently wish to maintain their nationalities, even unto succeeding generations, while sharing with true Canadians those privileges and benefits peculiarly the heritage of National and Empire loyalists.

THE PREMIER AND UNITY IN CANADA.

We like Premier Meighen's pledged policy to wipe out all unnecessary taxes, as not a few Canadians of all and every political leaning have a notion that there is room for the elimination of some measure of taxation imposed upon them these days.

But what will be particularly acceptable, of all his pledges made at Striling, to the broad-minded Empire-loyal citizen is his declaration that he stands for unity in Canada, for solidarity of conditions and freedom of enterprise within our own borders; and that he will oppose with every legitimate weapon at his command and with every ounce of his power the forces of destruction and disruption, the forces that in this and other lands wish to tear down the structure of responsible government and destroy the fabric of civilization woven through centuries of toil and care.

Taking these words in connection with his reference to the Bolshevism of Russia, the I.W.W. and O.B.U. of America we conclude that the Premier intends to crush with an unsparing hand all attempts of any unrest-creating faction to undermine Canada's industrial and national progress under British conception of civilization. Bolshevism has at times raised its ugly head in Canada, and its insidious whisperings are heard here and there suggesting the destruction of institutions not in keeping with its own levelling precepts. Taking Premier Meighen at his word, this country will look to him to leave no stone unturned for crushing, absolutely and positively, all efforts on the part of misguided fanatics to foster in this country a spirit of distorted democracy similar to that which has created a blood-red Russia, and is credited with having a place in the councils of even British unions. The Premier cannot be too strong on this point, for Canada, which gave of her best blood in defence of civilization, should with conclusive finality, vigorously stamp out from her midst all Russian-born fires of that principle of Sovietism and Bolshevism which now threatens civilization.

DIMMERS AND SPEED.

It is in the interests of safety that dimmers on motor car lights be used generally. Brilliant headlights are a source of danger, on both city and rural highways at night, to pedestrians and drivers of horse vehicles. They positvely blind the oncomer so effectively that for the moment he cannot see where he is going .

Another source of danger on city streets are the speed artists, of which Peterborough has a few who take advantage of certain highways to travel at a pace that almost impels one to hold one's breath. The speed at which a motor car can travel within the law should be fast enough for any citizen who has a reasonable amount of respect for the life and limbs and property of other people.

INFORMATION ON OUR FOREST RESOURCES

The absence of reliable information in the past has given rise to ludicrously inaccurate and extravagant estimates of our forest resources. For years it was the regular pastime of a certain class of orators to dwell on the boundless resources of Canada in forest wealth. We have had a long, up-hill fight to combat the evil effects of such misleadin- statements and, in some quarters, it has been a decidedly unpopular fight. We are still far from possessing anything like satisfactory knowledge of our timber supplies but we have made and are making steady progress.

The Conservation Commission has completed and published the results of its studies of British Columbia forest resources. We know, beyond any doubt, that the Pacific province has tremendous resources of timber and that exploitation can be vastly increased without any fear of encroaching upon capital stock, provided that loss from fire and other destructive agencies can be checked. The Commission have made similar studies in Saskatchewan and the Dominion Forestry Branch is in a position to estimate conditions in the Prairie Provinces as a whole.

Wthin a few years we should have a working knowledge, sufficient for all practical purposes, of the forest resources of the entire Dominion. Until that stage is reached, the work of national stock-taking will continue to be a first claim upon those who are engaged in the promotion of forest conservation, and particularly upon the Commission of Conservation, but we have shown the way in have no reason to feel particularly proud of our progress in this connection but we have shown the way in this matter to the United States, where they have only recently realized the necessity for a nation-wide survey of their timber possessions.—Conservation.

ELABORATE WAR MEMORIAL.

The daily papers publish various accounts of tablets in churches commemorating those parishioners or members who were killed in the war. The most elaborate memorial that we have seen comes from the Diocese of Antigonish. It is in the form of a book on which thousands of dollars must have been spent. Each parish in the Diocese is given with its list of enlisted, killed, and wounded. Anyone who has made an effort to collect statistics of this kind knows that some omissions are inevitable. Those given in "Catholics of the Diocese of Antigonish and the War" are not complete lists, but such as could be ascertained, and they total for the whole Diocese:

Enlisted ..	4,791
Killed ..	558
Wounded ..	601

In this year's Directory the total population of the Diocese is given as 87,000. Most of the parishes in that Diocese are rural parishes, and one has to read the documents published in this volume from Bishop Morrison to see whence came the directing impulse.

Five priests went from the Diocese to the front as military chaplains. A correspondent is quoted as saying: "I saw all these five priests frequently and in the most trying circumstances. I saw them face difficulties and dangers which would balk or break anyone who had a weak link in his armour. I saw them overcome those difficulties with a Christian fortitude and patience which was often hdden by a smile or a joke. It made one prouder of being a Catholic, for having met these five Antigonish priests. Scholarly priests with a repertoire of languages from Italian to Micmac (four of the five could preach in Gaelic), they upheld the traditions of Antigonish University."

In the medical military service the Diocese of Antigonish has a remarkable record. Twenty-three doctors and thirty-five nursing sisters served overseas. The University of St. Francis Xavier; Antigonish, was authorized by the Militia Department to send a Hospital Unit, and on June 19, 1916, eleven medical officers and twenty-seven nursing sisters sailed on S.S. Missanabie, to conduct No. 9 Stationary Hospital. One of the nurses from this Diocese was, from the beginning till the end of the war, Matron-in-Chief of all the nurses from Canada, Col. Margaret MacDonald, the recipient of several decorations.

A list of three hundred names of officers and privates is that of former students of the University of St. Francis Xavier.

A page is devoted to the Trappist Monks of Tracadie, N.S. Four priests and five brothers of the Monastery became soldiers in the French Army.

We counted nearly eight hundred French-Acadian names in the parish lists.

Victoria Crosses are rare decorations, and no doubt some deserved them who never received them; but a miner of Cape Breton, John B. Croak, a native of Newfoundland, failed to receive it only because he sacrificed his life heroically before it could be awarded; but the King wrote to his parents and they received the Cross as next of kin.

There are scores of photo cuts in this book. Some of them show four or five brothers of the same family verseas. One shows four Chisholm brothers from Antigonish Co., or at least three together and the fourth as more distinguished in a separate setting. This is Col. Hugh, a medical officer who rendered greatly valued services. One of his brothers was a major, killed in action; another was a lieutenant; and the third, an ensign. Another shows five Chisholm brothers; another, five McNeil brothers, and another shows five Fraser brothers.

The whole book is a worthy monument to patriotic duty well and efficiently done. Our friends should see to it that it be placed in public libraries. It is well bound and is eight by eleven inches in size.—Catholic Register.

ANCIENT GREECE HAD ITS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

When the Phoenicians came into the early history of Greece they brought with them the use of wine and the oracle of Delphi. This temple caused the abandonment of the sooth-saying oaks of Dodona, and became a central point of union for the different Grecian tribes. The Grecian tribes were distinguished by the name of Hellenes, from Hellen, son of a Thessalian chief. Hellen united a number of tribes and was the brother of Amphictyon, who established at Thermopylae, in a pass on the confines of Thessaly and Greece, a periodical assembly of deputies bearing delegated power from 11 to 12 small tribes, each of whom had two votes. The object of the assembly was to ameliorate manners and to promote religion, and it was ordained that the power of all the confederates should be directed against him who should destroy any town in the league, or even in war should plunder a temple or cut off or poison fountains. The general assembly endeavored to settle all disputes between the Grecian tribes, and more particularly those which occurred in dividual states.

The Amphictyons brought their wives and children with them when they assembled, the festival of the tutelar god was held and contests were carried on in public games. So long as the tribes were small it was possible for this constitution to exist, but later it lost its power when the influence was brought to bear on decisions.

OPTIMISM.

I'm no reformer, for I see more light
Than darkness in the world: mine eyes
Are quick to catch the first dim radiance of the dawn,
And slow to note the cloud that threatens storm.

The fragrance and the beauty of the rose
Delight me so, slight thought I give it's thorn,
And the sweet music of the lark's clear song
Stop longer with me than the night-hawk's cry.

And e'en in this great throe of pain called Life.
I find a rapture linked with each despair
Well worth the price of anguish.
I detect more good than evil in humanity.

BUILDING BETTER BOYS

Military training will help—but it takes something besides "setting-up" exercises to make healthy, sturdy men. The body is built out of the food you digest. Shredded Wheat Biscuit contains the vitamines that are necessary to normal nutrition in addition to the tissue-building elements which are absent from many expensive foods. The crisp and tasty goodness of the baked whole wheat is a joy to the palate—most real food for the least money.

MADE IN CANADA

VIRTUOUS WIVES

By OWEN JOHNSON

"I can understand Kitty Lightbody turkey-trotting through life, but I can't understand you," he began assuming at one of raillery which she disliked because to her, like most women it was the only male weapon she feared. "Are you going to be contented with nibbling at life? Women like that have only passions for great emotions like ping-pong, bridge the tango, ice-skating."

"And I?"

"I wonder."

"You warned me once I was not like that."

"Yes; I gave you credit for a heart," he said, smiling.

"And now?" she asked, drawing back and half veiling her face with the collar of her golden polo coat. There were times when she found it difficult to face him.

He looked into her eyes steadily until, at last, she turned hers away. Then he said quietly,

"I still believe it."

"That I still have a heart—after all the bad things you believe of me?" she said, raising her eyebrows to their characteristic angle. "And you "

"Too much," he said, with a laugh "Some day, I'll make a confession."

"It's such fun to play with you, Monte," she said brightly. 'And now, please say some nice things to me. No one can say them so nicely as you."

"To-night—if we are alone."

"No, no—and no!" she said, so delighted to refuse him that she punctuated each rising negation with a tap of her parasol.

"What a strange emotion it would be to you' he said in the same light tone 'to do just one thing you wanted to do—one thing unconventional—to dare once!"

"Undoubtedly but I don't intend to do it" she said complacently. She looked at him a moment and said, "Were you very much in love with Irma?"

"I tried to be."

"I don't think she's ever gotten over it."

"You mean she's not gotten over my getting over it."

"Do you suppose that's the reason she wouldn't come to-day?" she said looking down at the tip of red parasol and thinking of the compact she had once sworn not to trespass.

"Dellabarre's in a bad state."

"Really? But he's always been hasn't he?"

"Not like at present."

She felt the conversation was slipping from the subject which interested her. She glanced out over the flurred back of the Sound. Far off, the low outline against the horizon was growing out of the gray void, the tiny towers of New York, shooting up like reeds emerging from the water. Another boat or two breasted the foam and cut sharp trails; a yawl with brilliant sails stood out in dazzling whiteness against he infinity of blue. All at once, the prospect of the matinee ahead lost its anticipated zest.

"Somehow, going into a stuffy theater doesn't appeal to me," she said dreamily.

"Why do it, then?"

She glanced ahead significantly.

"There are others."

This time, he suggested no alternative.

"You said something rather puzzling a moment ago," she began slowly, leaning over the rail and flirting with the swirl of the cleft waters, one hand extended.

"What?"

'You said you tried to be in love with Irma. Why tried?"

"Because I am a great comedian—though I don't know it at the time."

He had the instinctive sense of drawing women on without seeming to make any effort to attract them. He was in love and he knew it, though he still was ignorant as to the extent to which he had let himself go. He felt that he had played too easily into her hand by giving her the opportunity to refuse his request, and he determined to regain his supremacy.

Amy glanced at the group in the bow. Tody Dawson was covertly watching them. She shifted her chair to shut him out, rested her chin on her hand, and said,

"Why do you tell me that?"

"Just to play fair," he said carelessly. 'We are both much alike—rather irresponsible children."

"Go on."

"You say I play well. I do. I have too much curiosity, I suppose, to be really able to love. I am curious about women. I want to delve into their minds and, when I have done so, I end by being disillusioned. I fool myself. I always have, and I probably always shall. That's why I say I am a great comedian."

"And you have nothing on your conscience?"

"No. I think I understand the sort of women I am thrown with. They want to be amused until dinner-time," he added, smiling. "Women of the world, if you wish, but without depth to hold a real wound I come into their life—in their need of amusement —on the same basis as their dressmaker, the cabaret, or a new variety of Pekingese. Some men are deceived by looking into their eyes. I'm not. Sometimes," he added, with gathering amusement in his eyes, 'sometimes in a humorous way I like to consider myself as an avenger of my sex. Very conceited, isn't it? But awfully frank. Now you know the worst about me."

She perceived that, under pretense of confession, he had been amusing himself with a description of herself.

"I don't like you when you are ironical," she said, when he had glanced at her for her verdict. She rose and summoned Kitty Lightbody and the boys, to whom she made amends by being particularly gracious. But during the matinee she was so bored that when Kitty alleged the need of an errand, she accepted the excuse, gratefully and they separated to meet a Lazare's for tea.

"Shall we go there directly?" he asked.

She hesitated.

"I'd like a bit of fresh air. The theater was dreadfully close."

He called a taxi, assuming to have understood her wish.

"Twenty minutes' run in the Park. We'll be the first at that."

He helped her in, took his place, and waited for her to decide the note of the evening. She looked up, caught his waiting expression, and, despite her first intention, began to laugh.

"War or peace?" he asked, relaxing.

"You can be horrid," she said pouting.

"Don't try to be conventional coquette then," he took up instantly. "You're much nicer than that."

She turned away hastily to hide her smile. Then, after a moment, she said gravely,

"Are you always such a great comedian?"

"I believe so,' he answered solemnly.

"But I couldn't go home with you alone to-night," she protested.

"Of course not—I only objected to the way you refused."

"What was wrong?"

"You should have answered, 'I can't, but I'm dying to do it.' "

"Well, but that's true," she said frankly.

When they reached Lazare's, Amy was in a mischievous good humor. daughter of Eve, the taste of stolen fruits was sweet.

"I hope they'll be late," she said, with shining eyes.

"Amen."

Lazare's was already well filled. They passed among the tables in the central hall, seeking a quiet corner. All at once, Amy stopped, with an exclamation. Ahead down the aisle, directly facing her, was Irma Dellabarre.

"Monte, do you see her?"

"Irma? Yes."

"The wretch! That's what she's up to!" she cried, delighted. "Well, this time, I've caught her!"

She hurried ahead with merry, eyes her curiosity bubbling over. The next moment, she stopped, incapable of word or movement. The man whose back was toward her was Andrew—her husband.

III

To go forward and find some glib word of greeting, to master herself and hide the rushing consternation which swept over her seemed impossible, and yet she did it. The shock was too unexpected, the situation too inexplicable for her to comprehend it. What she did comprehend was that she was in the midst of a hundred acquaintances who were watching her and that a false step meant a public scandal. She felt the leaping heat in her cheeks and her voice sounded strange to her ears but she went on, and said cordially,

"Well, this is a surprise!" Then she added incoherently, "How are you?"

Irma Dellabarre was quite self-possessed.

"It looks terribly dramatic, doesn't it?" she said, smiling, "but it's quite simple. I came in, after all, and the first person I should meet was Andrew."

"Of course, my dear!"

She knew it was a lie, and, despite herself, momentarily she gave a note of scorn to the exclamation. But instantly she caught herself. Husband and wife looked a each other, each cut to the quick at the humiliation they had to stand and take unflinchingly before these sudden strangers.

"I did not expect you," she said, to say something, and she looked at him in order not to look at Irma. "Are you coming out to Chilton?"

"Perhaps" he said coldly looking at her steadily. "I thought you were in a party."

"Yes we are", she said slowly. To stay longer was humanly impossible. "Well then, I may see you —at Chilton?" She nodded and went down a ways to where the head waiter was standing at a table for two.

"Table for five, please," she said sharply, mistress of herself as she had been the night of the fete, when Tody Dawson had blundered in the minuet. She saw someone bowing ot her in the haze of things, and bowed with a smile in the beneral direction.

"Sit down here," said Monte Bracken's voice. She took the chair he indicated, with her back to her husband, and drew off her gloves slowly, a mist before her eyes. The waiter stood at her side for his orders. She was not aware of his presence.

"Tea and buttered toast for two," said Bracken quickly. "Or—no might as well make it for five, Philip," he added, summoning the head waiter, who knew him. "Leave word at the door where we are. Mrs. Lightbody will join us."

Then he sat down.

"Talk to me," she said. "Keep talking to me."

Gradually under the pleasant sound of words which she did not comprehend, she regained a long breath, but here yes remained on her plate. "It's strange Kitty doesn't come. What time is it?"

"Half-past five."

Not for an instant had she the slightest doubt that Irma had lied ot her. She had seen the truth in Andrew's eyes in that bitter moment of mutual humiliation. How long had it been going on? All her anger was directed toward the woman. Yes; she had taken her revenge threefold.

'She wasn't embarrassed at all," she thought bitterly. "Quite delighted, of course."

The Friendly Smoke

THERE is something mighty comforting and satisfying about "OLD CHUM" Tobacco; a sort of soothing restfulness that pipe smokers have come to associate with this friendly smoke.

"OLD CHUM" is an old, old chum with all pipe smokers.

It has the perfect tobacco taste—the mellow richness—and men know that they can be chummy with "OLD CHUM" all day long and that the "good night pipeful" will be as sweet and cool as the one enjoyed just after breakfast.

For years and years "OLD CHUM" has been Canada's favourite pipe tobacco and today is more popular than ever.

15,000 NEGROES MAY SETTLE IN ALBERTA

ARCHBISHOP OF WASHINGTON ENQUIRING GOVERNMENT WILL PERMIT SUCH SETTLEMENT.

On his way to a world-wide convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and African Committees League, which is to be held in New York from the first to the last of this month, Archbishop George W. Washington, St. Mark's Church of the First Born, Edmonton, Alberta, and Butte, Montana, stopped over in the Capital recently for the purpose of visiting the Immigration Department about the restrictions on bringing coloured people into Canada.

Archbishop Washington has conducted his church in Edmonton for the past eight years, and during that time has done much to better the religious training of the coloured people, and also has done much charitable work. His church ignores no one, no matter what race or religion. The church does much for all poor children, and is greatly helped in this by many contributors.

Colonise Alberta Lands.

Archbishop Washington received a special invitation to the convention, his purpose being to endeavour to colonise 15,000,000 acres of land with coloured people, who will be brought in from other points. The land is in the southern and central part of Alberta, and is drained by the Peace and Athabasca Rivers, and will make excellent farming land. The Immigration Minister, Hon. J. A. Calder, told Archbishop Washington that there were no restrictions on the bringing in of coloured peopl, and Archbishop Washington told the Ottawa Journal that he expected to have 15,000 negroes in Alberta by spring. He also said that there were many wealthy negro members of the association and that they would like to settle in Alberta.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

AVOID INDIGESTION, SOUR ACID STOMACH, HEARTBURN, GAS ON STOMACH, ETC.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

POLES FIGHTING FOR EXISTENCE

By request of H. A. ndrews, of the Polish Publicity Bureau, Montreal, The Examiner publishes the following to correct the impression widely conveyed that Poland s embarked upon an Imperialistic venture wth the idea of adding further territory to Poland:

There prevails in labor circles in many countries throughout the world—thanks to the propaganda of Bolsheviks and unfamiliarity with actual conditions in Russia—the belief that the present conflict is one between re-action and social progress; between the predatory interests and the emancipation of the proletariat. Poland to these individuals is the harbinger of social darkness, whereas Soviet Russia is the pioneer of social progress and the champion of lofty altruistic ideals.

Nothing could be more untrue. It is a pathetic misunderstanding highly injurious to the cause of a nation struggling against great odds for existence and freedom; a nation which with the flower of its manhood, is to-day making a valiant attempt to shield European civilization against imminent destruction.

Progressive Government.

It is no exaggeration to say, that the republic of Poland before its dismemberment was the most progressive body politic in Europe. In no other European country was religious tolerance so broad and personal liberty so respected. Her constitution, enacted May 3rd, 1791, surpassed all others in Europe in the number and scope of the liberties granted her people. It was based on the principle "that in human society all power comes from the will of the people."

After the partition, consummated by three militarily powerful nations, having as their motto "might makes right," the Polish people refused to renounce their claim to independence, and have since participated in many struggles for freedom in every corner of the globe. Czar-dominated Russia was at that time one great vast prison, possessing no semblance of liberty as we understand the term to-day. Her soldiery and gendarmeric, at the point of the bayonet, held the entire civil populace enslaved.

True to Her Traditions.

Regenerated Poland, true to its traditions, has, since the armistice, become at once one of the most progressive and democratic of European states. The executive is vested in the Sejm, (Diet), elected on the basis of the most liberal suffrage system anywhere; which has granted active and passive suffrage rights not only to all adult female, but also made possible the participation in the debates there of minority factions. As a result of this the majority of this Polish Parliament is composed of peasants and workers, In other words Poland is governed, in fact, by peasants and workers. The present premier of Poland is a farmer, Wincenty Witos, chairman of the Progressive Farmers' party. The Polish Diet, a year ago, passed the land reform bill. This measure provides for a general readjustment of land ownership in order that small holders and the landless may possess or share more generously in this ownership. The eight-hour day is a law there; also many other protective laws have been passed for the benefit of the workers. Such is "reactionary" Poland. What is occurring at the same time in Soviet Russia? The celebrated "dictatorship of the proletariat" is nothing else but a tyrannical oppression by a clique, who have again changed entire Russia into one great prison and great armed camp, and a land of extreme misery. The power wielded there is not based on the will of the people, but on the number of bayonets. In the worst days of the Czarist regime there never were as many executions in Russia as there are now, under the rule of Lenin and Trotzky; not only bourgeoisie and landowners are led to the gallows, but also many of the best of the socialist leaders, when they dare to refuse to be guided blindly by Bolshevik tenets. Never were gaols in Russia so crowded with victims coming from among the proletarians as now, when they have the "dictatorship of the proletariat."

No Liberty in Russia.

There is not a vestige left of the freedom of the press; official organs of the Bolsheviki only, are printed; there is not any of the so-called liberty of assemblage; any criticism of the rulers being rigidly excluded. In addition to this the eight-hour work day is abolished, also the right to strike, and in its place there is compulsory conscription for the so-called "army of labour"; obligatory military service; besides the thousands of other restraints, the compulsory belief in Bolsheviki ideals, which are still on paper. Instead of real social reform legislation, emanating from the will of the people, we see there only vain promises or uncanny experiments, precipitating the country into greater and greater economic disruption. Slavery, poverty, rule of the hangman and hunger—all put forward as visions of a better future for the proletariat—these are the actual consequences of the Bolshevik oligarchy. The Poles being nearer, see it better than other nations, and as they are first to feel the Bolshevik invasion, they are defending themselves against this Bolshevist imperialism, which simultaneously seeks aggrandisement in Asia Minor in the hope that soon they will conquer the globe.

At the helo of the Soviet army—the largest armed force in the world—we see former officers of the old Czarist reeime: dyed-in-the-wool reactionaries, forced into their ranks of sheer necessity, for fear of imprisonment or execution; these officers accept generous remuneration and cherish the hope of a counter revolution when the psychological moment arrives. The majority of these Soviet champions are comp osed of hordes of barbarians—Cossacks—the selfsame warriors used by the Czars with great success for bloody suppression of all strike moves, all attempts at emancipation. To-day with the Chinese mercenaries, they form the ranks of the Bolshevik army: so only the name has been changed, the hordes of Budenny being called "proletarian cavalry."

Defending Institutions.

Against this Soviet "proletarian cavalry" the Polish workingman and farmer is struggling defending his institutions and his land. In their ranks you will find—amongst the thousands of volunteers from all walks of life—old Socialist veterans, leaders of the workers' party, as for example, such members of the sejm, as Moraszewski, Reger, and Bobrowski. All of these have been drawn together with a fear bred of intimate acquaintance with the horrors of Soviet in spurring them on in this unequal struggle against a relentless foe, which represents the most perfect contradiction of all that democracy and real liberty stand for on this earth.

A Mortal Conflict.

This mortal conflict is looked on watchfully, by the whole world, conscious that its results will decide the fate of civilization. It is looked on also, by the proletariat of Western Europe, partially at least, misled by the propaganda of the Bolshevik emissaries. The prejudice which seems to exist against the cause of Poland—for some reason not easily comprehended—among the workers of other countries continues to persist, despite the fact that the Polish Socialists and workers have sent out an appeal to them and have asked their sympathy in Poland's hour of need. They have asked their brother workers of the world to help them, they asked the workers to render it possible for Poland to get her sorely needed ammunition which has laid her helpless in the path of the Cossacks and Chinese mercenaries. The Polish proletariat asks the proletariat of other countries to abandon the belief that this conflict is one between a reactionary Poland and a liberty loving Bolshevik Russia and to believe the truth, that it is one between all the Polish people united as they have never been united before and a cruel and relentless enemy.

If they do not, this terrible mistake will make the case of Poland, now wallowing in pools of blood, one of the most pathetic tragedies of history and the aftermath of this mistake may be the destruction of our entire civilization.

BURGLARY IS EVERY NIGHT OCCURRENCE

ALDERMAN SAYS POLICE FORCE IS DISORGANIZED.

LONDON, Ont., August 12. — Burglary of London homes is becoming an every day and night occurrence. Within the past fortnight a rather discomforting number of robberies have been reported, and the police appear to be unable to discover the culprits.

A few days ago the home of Jos. Dambra, Beaconsfield avenue, was sacked while the family was absent, and money and valuables taken. The residences of William Orchard and T. Thomas, on the same street, were also entered and robbed, as were also two houses in McKinnon Place, a short distance away.

At a committee meeting of the Council Alderman Watson, a Labor member, charged that the police force is becoming disorganized, because the Police Commission has left the department without a permanent head since Chief Williams resigned, and he announces that he will have the Council and the Commission act jointly in the selection of a chief. Mr. William's successor has not yet been named, because, it is said, Judge MacBeth and P. M. Graydon, want Inspector Birrell for Chief, while Mayor E. S. Little stands firmly for Sergeant of Detectives Thomas Nickle, who is the senior applicant for the position. Mr. Graydon said to-day that he is willing to appoint a Chief at any time the Mayor cares to call a meeting of the Commission.

MARKET CLOCK BEING CLEANED AND REPAIRED

The market clock is being cleaned and repaired and was stopped by Clock Custodian McClelland this morning. The many habitues of the opposite corner will consequently have to do without the pastime of watching the hands go 'round for a few days.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

One of Kaladare's young men had an exceedingly narrow escape from death the other day. Master William Woodcock of the section staff on a jigger, was struck by a west bound train and his machine smashed up. It is a miracle he is now alive to tell about it, is everybody's verdict.

LAMB 10c A LB. AND POTATOES 15c PECK

BUT THIS WAS TWENTY YEARS AGO IN PORT HOPE.

The Port Hope Guide, under its heading of "20 years ago," gives the following interesting data of prices obtaining for provisions in that town on August 11th, 1900:

"There was a large market attendance this morning. Lamb was plentiful at 10c to 12½c per lb; veal, 6c to 8c lb.; mutton, 8c to 9c lb.; potatoes 15c peck; tomatoes, 35c peck; butter, 18c to 20c a lb.; eggs, 11c dozen; chickens, 20c each; ducks, 30c to 40c each."

But nevertheless who wants a return of those days in question when $8 or $9 a week was considered a fair day's wage in Port Hope and similar towns?

The August Sale of Furniture Lends Its Assistance to Those Who Are Furnishing or Re-Furnishing a Home

Furniture, like everything else, can be good or bad—high, low or reasonable in price, and, like everything else, opinion differs as to its merits and its price.

When we bought this stock we went out to get the very best that was to be had for the money, and we believe we have succeeded. We purchasd it long ago before a 60% advance in price, and that 60% has never been added on to the selling price and it never will. On the contrary, we have reduced much of it, and a man who knows the furniture trade in this country from A to Z, tells us that we have the lowest-priced stock in the country.

His opinion was unsolicited, and we are willing to accept it.

CHEMONG REGATTA ECLIPSED ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS FOR ATTENDANCE

WEATHER WAS GOOD AND AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME WAS PROVIDED—DANCE IN EVENING.

Favoured with good weather the annual Chemong Park Regatta under the auspices of the Chemong Park Regatta Committee was the most successful in every way.

The attendance was very gratifying to the committee, who had worked unceasingly to ensure this. Hundreds of visitors were at the park from Stoney Lake, Lakefield, Peterborough, Pigeon Lake, Buckhorn Lake and Sturgeon Point, making the trip either by boat or motor. Peterborough was represented by a large number of citizens who motored out and Bobcaygeon sent a large number to the event on the Lintonia. The events were held off McClellan's cottage, the judge's boat (Mr. H. Wolfe's) being anchored about 75 yards off shore.

The balcony and cottage wharf was lined with people and the white and light coloured dresses of the girls, the white ducks and cream flannels of the boys and men stood out in striking contrast to the dark green background of grass and trees, the gay blazers sweaters and variety swimming suits adding a touch of colour and animation to the whole scene. A gentle breeze blowing up the lake served only to assure the many crafts on the lake that the sailing races could be held and to alleviate in some measure the oppressive August heat. Smiles of satisfaction at the fine weather and the good attendance forecasting a most successful regatta were worn by all of the officials before the events started and as each event came off smoothly with good entries and excellent races the smiles were not relinquished. The regatta was far in advance of last year's. Close competition in all the events, the fine spirit of sportsmanship shown by the participants, for which the committee is deeply gratified.

The Judges.

There was no slacking on the part of the officials and the committee. All day they had worked completing the final arrangements. The judges were Messrs. H. Wolfe, W. G. Thomson, W. R. Breyfogle, Rev. Robert Gay. The starters were Messrs. A. Brown and G. H. Roper. The clerks of course: Messrs. G. Sullivan and Edgar Burnham, and the announcers: Messrs. W. J. Hancock and Andrew Jobe.

The events opened shortly after two o'clock with the canoe sailing for the McClelland Cup. The breeze was too light for a fast run. Otto Glidden and Reg. Dixon fought for first place over the entire three miles. Glidden won, covering the course in 55 minutes. R. Russell came third.

Boy's single canoe (16 years and under—1st, Mr. Kitchener, of Sturgeon Point; 2nd, Mr. Sherin, of Lakefield; 3rd, H. Bradburn, of Chemong.

The third race was the 14 ft. dinghy sailing for the Chemong Cup. There were four entries—Kemp, of Sandy Point; Flavelle, of Sturgeon Point; C. R. Widdifield, of Peterborough, and H. Knapman, sailing W. G. Hopwood's "Arrow." The wind was light and the boats drifting lazily along until the last leg. Flavelle hung hard onto Kemp, but the Bobcaygeon craft won. Widdifield, with "Sam Pan," Vincent Eastwood's old prize winner, took third honours handily. Knapman had trouble with his boat. Kemp covered the course in 37 minutes.

Men's single canoe—1st, Mr. Blewett, of Kawartha Park; 2nd, D. Fitzgerald, of Lakefield; 3rd, H. Long, of Chemong.

Men's fours (canoe)—1st, D. Fitzgerald, Mr. Blewett, H. Long, G. McClelland; 2nd, R. Dixon, P. Bennitt, R. Russell, V. Walker.

There were six entries in the ladies' tandem canoe. Miss Knowlson and Miss Flavelle, of Sturgeon Point, won with a close second in Miss Eastwood and Miss M. Bull, of Chemong.

Single skiff (boys under 16)—Special—1st, Mr. Edminson, of Kawartha Park; 2nd, Mr. Sherin, of Kawartha Park.

Fourteen tries in the crab race made an exciting hilarious free-for-all. Luckily there were no upsets despite many collisions. Mr. Kemp, of Sandy Point, won with Reg. Dixon second.

Mixed tandern canoe (9 entries)—1st, Miss McCallum, of Kawartha Park, and Mr. Blewett, of Kawartha Park; 2nd, Miss Knowles and D. Fitzgerald, of Lakefield.

The gunwale race caused no little tle excitement, but it is said that nothing as interesting occurred as when the boys were practising before the race. Proficient handling of the canoes was responsible for but one upset, that of Pat. Burritt, who had only got fairly started when over he went. It was a close race between McClelland and Dixon. 1st, McClelland; 2nd, Dixon; 3rd, Mr. Kitchener.

The old popular duck race resulted in Donald Carmichael securing the elusive swimmer after a short dash up the shore.

Admittedly the premier event was the tilting, in which there were many entries. Upsets were numerous and this event provoked more enthusiasm on the part of the spectators than any other event.

Dixon and Roper won from Wright and Bradburn; Webster and Breyfogle from Gledhill and Thompson. The latter upset.

Halpine and J. Matthews upset O. Glidden and P. Burritt, but went over themselves.

H. Long and G. McClelland upset McLean and G. Matthews.

H. Crane and Belcher upset F. Brooks and V. Walker.

D. Carmichael and Strathey won from Webster and R. Breyfogle.

Halpine and Matthews in the second tilt with Glidden and Burritt gave them another bath.

Crane and Belcher defeated Dxon and Roper. Carmichael and Strathey won from G. McClelland and H. Long.

Crane and Belcher, using ramming tactics, defeated Halpine and Matthews, and won in the finals with Carmichael and Strathey.

Ladies' Swimming.

Miss Stewart, of Peterborough, won the ladies' swimming race with Miss Charles, of Chemong, second. There were five entries. The course was from McClelland's cottage to the judge's boat.

G. McClelland and his organized gang of nine other paddle handlers won the punt race from Gordon Matthews' aggregation, when the punt went under and the crew had to take to the water.

In the men's tandern canoe, Blewett and D. Fitzgerald, of Lakefield, won with H. Long and R. Dixon a close second.

There were five entries in the men's swimming race. D. Fitzgerald won by a few yards from J. Gillespie, of Peterborough, with Mac Halpine, of Chemong, third. Owing to Fitzgerald having already won three firsts he could not, in keeping with the rules, be given a prize, and Gillespie and Halpine were awarded first and second prizes respectively.

A special boy's canoe race, 16 years and under, was run off. G. Matthews, of Chemong, and Mr. Kitchener, of Sturgeon Point, coming first and second.

There were only two entries in the ladies' canoe—Miss S. Mills and Miss McCallum, of Kawartha Park. Miss Mills won.

Mr. Sherin and Miss D. Craig won the boy's and girl's under 16 tandern canoe race. Mac Halpine and Miss D. Davidson came second.

The handicap motor boat races was the last event. It was after six o'clock when this race was called. The race was a disappointment. Mr. Wolfe's fast boat was unable to enter and Kemp, of Bobcaygeon, with his "Marconi" had the race to himself as far as speed went. Fred Roy's "Pup" nearly defeated him nevertheless.

The handicap was given by starting the boats at once with throttle wide open and then firing the pistol as a signal for turning. The fast boat cannot turn as quickly and get back on the course again and is handicapped in this way. Five or six boats were in the race. The little "Pup," a much slower boat than Kemp's, had only gone as far as the Marconi when the shot rang out. It had a good lead on the fast boat on the return, but Kemp overtook the "Pup" winning by a boat length. The V. S. R., owned by Christopher Rutherford, came third.

Dance in Evening.

This marked the conclusion of the afternoon sports. In the evening the annual regatta dance was held, and the presentation of prizes made. Excellent music was furnished by the Syncopated Four, under the leadership of Otto Gliddon, and until after midnight the dance went merrily on, the gay event being a fitting climax to the never-to-be-forgotten day.

Mrs. A. Elliott made the presentation of the prizes. Mr. Fred Roy, the chairman of the Regatta Committee, announced the prizewinners.

Mr. Roy thanked all who had in any way participated in the regatta, in making it such a success, and hoped that next year they would have as successful a regatta.

The following committees were largely responsible for the success of the regatta:

Dance Committee—H. Bradburn, chairman; R. Dixon, Mac Halpine.

Programme and Prize Committee—G. McClelland, chairman; G. Matthews, R. Best, H. Long.

Park and Course Committee—Fred Roy, chairman; H. Wolfe, A. Elliott, J. Gemmel, W. Thompson, E. Burnham, C. S. McClelland.

LIGHTS WANTED ON HUNTER STREET

West ward residents who are in the habit of travelling on Hunter street between Belmont avenue and Walton street complain of there being no lights on this section of Hunter street or on Walton street. The corner of Walton and Hunter streets is so dark that it is almost impossible to see the sidewalk. As this section of Hunter street and Walton street is much travelled by residents of these streets and upper Weller street and Homewood avenue, lights are necessary.

CHARGED WITH STEALING MANY CASES OF LIQUOR

Windsor Youth Alleged to Have Impersonated Official.

WINDSOR, Aug. 12.— With more than $10,000 in his possession, Freeman Baldwin, a Windsor youth, was arrested early yesterday morning by Provincial officers on charges of stealing 49 cases of whiskey from a motor truck which he stopped, it is alleged, by representing himself as a special Goervnment officer.

The liquor was being delivered from an express office to a Sandwich resident, when Baldwin is said to have stopped the truck on River Front road and transferred the liquor to his own car.

Magistrate Miers remanded him for trial, bail being refused. The liquor has not been recovered, and Baldwin refuses to give any information as to its whereabouts.

ADDRESS AT THE CHAUTAUQUA BY DR. DANIEL FOX

INTERESTING MUSICAL PROGRAMME ALSO PROVIDED.

At the Chautauqua tent last evening Lieurance's Litle Symphony Co., delighted the large audience with a programme of classical selections. The orchestra consists of four violins, two 'cellos and piano and their presentation of several works of the great masters in a finshed style provided a rare treat to music lovers, particularly worthy of note were the rendition of several Indian numbers arranged by men who have spent a life-time among the North American tribes gathering material and suggestions for love songs, among them being such artistic numbers as "The Canoe Song." Solos, duets, trios and quartettes were also given by various members of the party and were accorded hearty applause by the audience.

Miss Sarah Requa Vick, contralto, assisted, giving several splendid numbers. The work if the company as a whole stamped them as a musical organization of unusual merit and the Chautauqua management is to be congratulated on securing them for this circuit.

The Address.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. Daniel F. Fox, when introduced explained to his audience that he was just recovering from a severe illness. Although decidedly under the weather, he determined not to disappoint the patrons and appeared as usual. Dr. Fox is the pastor of the First Congregational Church at Pasadena, California, and one of America's foremost lecturers.

Dr. Fox had some strong condemnation to make of anyone who tried to drive a wedge between the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes, as these Anglo-Saxon races held a great responsibility for the future of the world in their hands. A good education along lines that would fit one to take his place in the world in the line of work that he could make a success of, level-headedness, a heart that was right—these are some of the essentials that must be preserved. Dr. Fox passed in review the various races of the world and in all discovered something lacking to place them in the forefront as having a commanding place to take. It was thus the Anglo-Saxon who had the greatest mission. His definition of Truth as being right relationship was cleverly illustrated by the controlled and uncontrolled action of fire, water electricity, and was exceedingly fine. The perfection of the tree, the wasp, the spider, the bee and beaver along the lines of their own works could not be improved upon. They had arrived, but the greatness of man lay in the fact that he never arrived. There were always further heights beyond, and the inevitable convictions of an eternal life. Truly Dr. Fox is a most interesting lecturer, his wit and humor are brilliant and his pathos touching. He has a keen perception of the inwardness of things, and about his oratory there is the subtle charm of the perfectness of speech.

Great Britain now has 25 peeresses in their own right. Of this number five are countesses, one is a duchess, two are viscountesses and the remainder baronesses.

ENNISMORE LAWN SOCIAL WAS HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

A LARGE ATTENDANCE AND MANY FANCY GOODS BOOTHS.

The bright August skies and the beautiful grounds of St. Martin's Church provided an idyllic background for Father McAuley's annual lawn social yesterday afternoon and evening. The attendance was large and all afternoon and during the early evening the roads leading to the church seemed from a hill-top like streams of automobiles all meeting at Ennismore.

The church grounds were covered with booths and in the evening the extensive electric lighting system turned the grounds into a veritable Fairyland.

Supper was served in the dining hall, which was full all the time, and had a waiting list which assumed larger proportions as the time proceeded. The women of the parish served a supper which whetted the appetites of the most epicurean.

The Booths.

The fancy goods booth, in charge of the young ladies, presented an array of beautiful and exquisite fancy goods and the fish pond attracted large numbers of those willing to take a chance on their prize. There were two game booths, a horse race and a spear board, both of which deservedly attracted many patrons. The exceedingly warm day added to the land office business of the ice cream and soft drink booths.

Visitors were present from all the surrounding countryside, Peterborough Lakefield, and several more distant points. There were a number of visiting clergy, mostly from Peterborough.

Father McAuley is to be congratulated upon the excellence and the general success of the affair, which has come to be recognized as a summer institution in this district.

The Committees.

Father McAuley was personally in charge of the arrangements for the social and following are those who assisted him:

Dining Hall Committee—Mrs. T. T. Crough, Mrs. W. J. Crough, Mrs. William Kirns, Mrs. Daniel Crough and Mrs. Michael Conway.

Ticket-takers—G. Murphy, G. Maloney, J. K. Galvin, D. Holland, J. Kelland, M. Gerry, A. Crough, P. Reilley.

Fancy goods booth—Miss Claire Young, Claire Galvin, Katey Crough, Muriel Reilley, Marie Brown.

Fish pond—Misses Bernice Scollard, Mary Maloney, Nellie Conway, Teresa Dorne, Clara Harrington, Evelyn Caddington.

Games—James McGuire, Wilfred Gosselin.

Soft drinks and ice cream booths—Misses Nellie Killen, Noriel Crough, Lillian Crough, Messrs. F. Scollard, J. Killen, L. Killen, K. Killen.

PRESS COMMENT ON FINAL GAME

OSHAWA REFORMER ASKS A PERTINENT QUESTION.

Does the C.P.C. on the arms of the Peterborough players stand for Canada's Prettiest Crabbers?—Oshawa Reformer.

"Hap" Harrison, last season with Moose in the "Pit" League, and a member of the Peterborough team winners of the Central Ontario League this season, is spending a few days in Toronto. He is confident that the Petes will win the Ontario championship.

Reformer: It was plain to be seen on Saturday that Peterborough have a snappy team who always scrap every inch of the way. The Central would be a lot stronger circuit if all the teams had the snap of the Petes. Jake Solomon, no matter what other faults may be charged up to him, has certainly put the ginger into the Quaker boys.

BOHUNKS LOST TO CRESSMANS

GOOD GAME AT RIVERSIDE LAST EVENING.

Bohunks and Cressman's played a tidy game at Riverside Park last evening, Cressman's scoring the only run of the game in the third innings. Bohunks were dangerous, but two double plays, Rutherford to Bartley and W. Rutherford to Cobb, held them back.

The pitchers turned in excellent performances, Ecobichon striking out eleven batters and Frost whiffing seven. The former issued two passes and Frost one. Doughty got the only extra base clout, a two-bagger. Nichols featured the outfield work with a nifty catch.

The teams:

Bohunks—Lawrence c, Thirnbeck ss, Herbison lf, Tudhope 3b, White 1b, Ecobichon p, Meredith cf, Doughty 2b, Wolff rf.

Cresman's—Nichols cf, Cobb 1b, Bartley 2b, Soden c, Hunter ss, Rutherford 3b, Frost p, W. Rutherford lf, Sage rf.

By innings:

Cressman's ..... 0010000—1
Bohunks ..... 0000000—0

POLICE CHASE CHEMONG PARK

PERRIN AND BROOKES BROTHERS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Russell D. Perrin, William Brookes and Harvey Brookes were committed for trial at the next session of the Court of Competent Jurisdiction by Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court. Perrin is charged with having on Saturday, June 28, stolen automobile accessories valued at $300 from the Smith Nurse garage at Fowler's Corners in company with Elmer Brookes who is still at large, and the other two Brookes brothers are charged with receiving the stolen property.

B. W. Essry of Toronto, appearing for the accused, elected trial by jury, entered a plea of not guilty and waived preliminary examination.

Perrin Gave Police Slip.

Perrin was the first of the gang to be taken into custody some time after the robbery occurred. He admitted his willingness to aid the police in capturing the rest of the gang and stated that he believed them to be camping in the vicinity of Chemong. He was taken to Chemong by the police to search for the others and while there took the opportunity of breaking away. He was lost for nearly two hours and a posse of cottagers set out to aid the police in capturing him. He was at last cornered in the park and after a struggle was forced to surrender at the point of revolvers held by Max Halpine of New York and Jerry McClelland, son of C. S. McClelland, of Peterborough.

Brookes Captured in Toronto.

Detective Sergeant Newhall then secured information that the Brookes brothers were in Toronto. He went to Toronto and after investigating, with the assistance of the Toronto, arrested Harvey and William Brookes and brought them to Peterborough.

They first appeared in police court about two weeks ago, but were twice remanded in order to allow the accumulation of further evidence.

BIG FEATURE AT POLACK'S SHOWS

THE LA ROSE ELECTRIC FOUNTAIN IS POPULAR ATTRACTION.

The La Rose Electric Fountain, which is one of the Carnival's most pretentious features, is proving to be the most popular outdoor attraction that has ever been seen in Peterborough. The fountain is an ingenious arrangement by which slender spouting streams of water solved itself into bowers, arches and gigantic vases, each giving forth the color of the rainbow, and the spectators testify their appreciation by enthusiastic applause.

Suddenly a comely maiden appears at the top of the fountain, executing a picturesque serpentine dance, surrounded by the falling water. She disappears as mysteriously as she came, and is replaced by other models, who present well known masterpieces in clay and marble. The aquate vaudeville performances terminate with a series of colored pictures thrown upon a background by a young woman with a cloak held at either side.

The next part of the performance deals with marvelous changes of form coupled with various colored blendings. It is here that the great central stream is turned on and soars to a heights of sixty-five feet. The performance ends with a burst of fireworks from the heart of the fountain.

Nothing more beautiful in its variety or more enchanting in its loveliness has ever been seen in this city. The soft allurements of the rainbow combined with other wondrous and mystifying effects completely enraptured all beholders. The La Rose Fountain is the feature attraction of the Polack Shows.

He is a wise man who signs no man's note, not even his own.

Some men have good qualities, but lack the one necessary to make use of them.

FRENCH GOVT. AND THE UNITED STATES IN ONE ACCORD

PREMIER MILLERAND SENDS NOTE TO AMERICAN EXECUTIVE ON SITUATION IN POLAND.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, August 13.—The French Government is sending a note to the United States, expressing pleasure that the French and United States views on the Russia-Polish situation are in "complete accord," it was learned here to-day.

The note, which is signed by Premier Millerand, recapitulates the conclusions in the United States note to Italy, saying that France "reaches an identical conclusion."

It adds that France "never varied in its determination to support the principles so clearly formulated by the U. S. Government."

The French note says it was with these principles in mind that France recognised General Baron Wrangel, and decided not to approve of the Soviet terms to Poland unless they conform with these principles.

BINDER TWINE IS SAID TO BE SCARCE

PETERBORO COUNTY FARMERS ARE AFFECTED.

Farmers in this district and in other parts of Ontario are finding great difficulty in securing binding twine. The large crops caught the dealers with small supplies on hand, and these have been quickly exhausted, and owing to the great demand, manufacturers can only supply a fraction of what is needed. The twine is being doled out to the farmers in small lots and many have been turned away by the dealers without a ball.

While no serious menace to the crop situation, that looks so good at present, is expected from this binding twine shortage, it is a great inconvenience to the farmers to have to run into town to get a few balls that will only perhaps do part of a field. A well-known local dealer said to-day that he did not believe there was any great danger to the harvest, and he thought there was enough to go around if it was properly distributed and the farmers showed a little patience.

He stated that they were afraid to lay in a large supply on acount of the loss involved if the crop was small and they had a large quantity left on their hands. Laying in large quantities is a gamble, he said, and this year they thought they would buy as they needed.

The price last year was 28 cents a pound, this year it is 23 lents. If a dealer had much left over from last year, it is easy to figure his loss.

LEAVES FOR A TRIP TO ENGLAND

Mr. Chris Wood Will Be Absent for Five or Six Weeks.

After 34 years spent in Canada, 30 of which have been spent in this city, and 20 of these have been spent in the service of the Bank of Commerce, Mr. Chris Wood leaves to-night on the midnight to sail from Montreal tomorrow morning on the Metagama for England for a five or six weeks' vacation.

Mr. Woods will visit his mother and brothers and sisters at and near Dover. He expects to return about the end of September on the Melita.

He will be greatly missed at the local Gun Club during his absence, and by the Sons of England, of which he is a leading member.

WINNERS IN LOCAL CROP COMPETITION.

A. B. MANN AND J. D. FOWLER HEAD THE LIST.

In the field crop competition for Peterborough for 1020, put on by the Peterborough Exhibition Board, the winners were:

Oats—1, A. B. Mann; 2, C. Westlake; 3, Wm. Steinkrauss; 4, J. D. Fowler; 5, W. A. Rosehorough; 6, Mr. Welber; 7, Samuel Dixon.

Wheat—1, J. D. Fowler; 2, A. B. Mann; 3, Gordon Mann; 4, R. A. Garbutt; 5, C. Westlake; 6, N. L. White; 7, Ira Robson.

MR. J. S. ARNOTT WILL RESIDE IN THE WEST.

Says the Crops are Looking Fine on the Pacific Coast.

A fine sample of "Silver Chaff" wheat grown in British Columbia was brought home by Mr. James S. Arnott, who has been visiting on the Pacific Coast for several weeks. Mr. Arnott leaves in about a week for Chilliwack, British Columbia, where he has secured a fruit farm. "The crops are excellent," said Mr. Arnott to The Examiner to-day. He said that some of the oat crop would go over one hundred bushels to the acre.

WOUNDED GREEK PREMIER NOW OUT OF DANGER.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, August 13.—Premier Venizelos of Greece, who was wounded here yesterday when fired upon by two Young Greeks, spent a good night in the hospital to which he was taken, and is in no danger, it was announced by his physicians to-day.

The bullet, which lodged in his left shoulder, will be extracted this morning.

VEILED THREAT THAT U.S. MIGHT HOLD COAL SHIPMENTS

CANADIAN COMMISSION URGED TO PERMIT INCREASED RATES ON THROUGH FREIGHT.

OTTAWA, August 13. — The Railway Commission of Canada this morning reserved judgment on the application of the American Railway Association for an increase of forty per cent on the Canadian portion of the freight rates on through lines.

Judgment will probably be given out this afternoon.

R. Geary, the Toronto corporation counsel, said that the application was approved by the Canadian roads because they feared that the American roads might hold up the coal shipments. There was even a veiled threat that the U. S. government might take a hand in stopping the shipment of coal.

Chief Commissioner Carvell, however testified to the friendliness of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States, by whom the utmost willingness had been shown, he said, to give Canada all the coal possible.

PETERBORO HORSES WON IN PORT HOPE RACES.

At the horse races at Port Hope on Wednesday, Lena Rivers, owned by E. James, of Peterboro, won first place in the named race, and Haf Patch, owned by H. Elmhurst of Keene third.

In the 2:18 class, Helen M., owned by J. Sutherland, Peterboro, won third place.

LINDSAY MAN CHARGED WITH ASSAULTING WIFE

COUPLE FORMERLY LIVED IN PETERBORO—SENT UP FOR TRIAL.

LINDSAY, AUG. 13.—At the police court here on Wednesday, George Alport was committed for trial on the charge of assaulting his wife at Beal's tannery, where he was employed as night watchman.

Accused, through his counsel, Mr. I. E. Weldon, elected to be tried by jury. Mr. A. M. Fulton represented the Crown.

Only two witnesses were examined, Mrs. Alport and Mr. Jobe.

Complainant, who still bears marks of the brutal attack on her by her husband, stated accused had threatened to murder her on more than one occasion, and that while living in Peterborough she had been attacked by him. Her husband, she said, thought she did not keep the house clean and wanted her to move. They had differed at times ,and last February he assaulted her.

On the morning of the assault in question, Mrs. Alport declared her husband, who appeared in good humour, invited her to visit him at the tannery in the evening. She did so at 7.30, taking their baby witn her. Alpart met her cheerfully with a kiss. He subsequently wheeled carriage and baby into the boiler room, closed the doors, rushed at her and grabbed her by the throat. He dragged her across the floor and then she felt him clubbing her with something over the head.

Under cross-examination MrM. Alpart became hysterical.

Mr. Jobe was a witness who testified that he heard Mrs. Alport's cries, looked in at the window and yelled at accused, who then opened the door.

WILL GIVE ADDRESS WEDNESDAY EVENING

ANNUAL LAWN AND GARDEN COMPETITION.

The annual lawn and garden competition held under the auspices of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, will this year prove the most successful to date, having thirty-three entries, as follows:

Class A—Open to all for best kept grounds surrounding premises..	4
Class B—Amateurs only, for best garden and surroundings	12
Class C—Workingmen only, for best garden and surroundings.	7
Class D—Best display of window boxes, hanging ba kets, or urns	3
Class F—Best kept factory grounds	2
Class G—Best kept church grounds	2
Class H—Best kept school grounds	3

It is regrettable to note that no entries have been made in Class E—best flower bed cared solely by boy or girl, 16 years or under. Evidently parents have either overlooked this competition, or are not encouraging the children in one of the most educational pastimes that the children could possibly indulge their leisure moments in.

Mr. Thos. McVittie, chief gardener to Sir Henry Pellatt, will arrive in the city on Wednesday, August 18th, and will carry out the duties of official judge, which will mean the distribution of prizes, totalling $78 and the W. F. Adam's Cup. Mr. McVittie will be accompanied on his tour by members of the Special Executive.

A meeting will be held Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, at which Mr. McVittie will give a short address on his impressions while in the city, under the heading of "Horticulture and Its Effect on Civic Development."

This meeting will be held at 8.00 o'clock on Wednesday evening next, in the Board of Trade Chambers, and will be open to all.

MAKES FIRST VISIT TO TORONTO AS PREMIER.

Public Reception Tendered Hon. Arthur Meighen To-day.

TORONTO, Aug. 13. — Hon. Arthur Meighen to-day paid his first visit to the city as Prime Minister.

The new Government leader received a warm welcome, although no public demonstrations had been arranged in his honor. Mayor Church, Dr. Charles Sheard, M.P., and others, greeted him at the station.

A public reception in honor of the premier was held this afternoon at the home of Edmund Bristol, M.P.

HON. MR. CALDER SAILED FOR EUROPE YESTERDAY

Left Quebec on C.P.O.S. Liner "Empress of France."

QUEBEC, Aug. 12.—The Canadian Pacific Ocean Services liner Empress of France left this port for Liverpool at 5 o'clock yesterday with a complete list of passengers and a heavy cargo. Among the passengers are Hon. J. A. Calder, Minister of the Interior, and Capt. Burton, who sailed Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock IV, in the America's Cup races.

PLUMBERS WENT TO CLEAR LAKE

KNIGHTS OF THE STILLSON HAD ENJOYABLE OUTING.

An extremely pleasant event transpired yesterday afternoon when the Plumbers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, Peterborough District Branch, held a get-together picnic on the shore of Clear Lake.

In no way deterred by the fact that thirteen sat down to dinner, these master plumbers and sheet metal workers did ample justice to the fine spread laid out and prepared by that chef of chefs, Mr. R. G. Sturgeon, at whose cottage the picnic took place.

The welcome presence of His Worship Mayor A. A. McIntyre and the Plumbing Inspector, Art. Metheral, served to demonstrate the good spirit and co-operative feeling which exists between these gentlemen and the members of the craft who were their hosts.

After the dinner, with its usual speeches, a lively baseball game took place between two teams, captain by the Mayor and Mr. Sturgeon respectively. Needless to say His Worship's outfit brought home the bacon.

It is whispered that there was a little speeding on the road home, but that may have been due to the late epidemic of hold-ups.
